Something analogous to this custom was adopted by corrupt Christianity; and Theodoret informs us that in his time there might be seen about the tombs of the martyrs figures of eyes, hands, feet, and other parts of the body, which represented those of the offerers which they supposed had been healed by the intercession of those holy persons! This degrading superstition is continued among the papists to the present day.

I need not say that the system of judicial astrology is vain, unfounded, absurd, and wicked. It in effect presumes to take the government of the world out of the hands of an all-wise God, and to abandon it to the most fortuitous and unconnected occurrences of life; for the stars have their influences according to this pretended science, conformably to the occurrences here below: e.g. if a child be born but one hour sooner or later than a particular configuration of the heavens, his destiny will be widely different from what it otherwise would have been; and as an almost infinite number of casualities may accelerate or retard a birth, consequently the whole destiny of man is influenced and ruled by these casualities: to say nothing of the absurdity, that those omnipotent stars ever can effect the infant while invested with a thin covering of flesh in the womb of its parent. But the whole science is a tissue of absurdities.

CHAPTER VII.

The men of Kirjath-jearim bring the ark from Beth-shemesh, and consecrate Eleazar, the son of Ahinadab, to keep it; and there it continued twenty years, 1, 2. Samuel reproves and exhorts the people; and gathers them together at Mizpeh, where they fast and pray, and confess their sins, 3-6. The Philistines go up against them; the Israelites cry unto the Lord for help; Samuel offers sacrifices; and the Lord confounds the Philistines with thunder; Israel discomfits and pursues them to Beth-car, 7-11. Samuel erects a stone for a memorial, and calls it Eben-ezer, 12. The Philistines are totally subdued, and Israel recovers all its lost cities, 13, 14. Samuel acts as an itinerant judge in Israel, 15-17.

AND the men of <sup>a</sup>Kirjath-jearim came, and fetched up the ark of the LORD, and brought it into the house of <sup>b</sup>Abinadab in the hill, and sanctified Eleazar his son to keep the ark of the LORD.

2 And it came to pass, while the ark abode in Kirjath-jearim, that the time was long; for it was twenty years: and all the house of Israel lamented after the LORD.

3 And Samuel spake unto all the house of Israel, saying, If ye do <sup>c</sup>return unto the LORD with all your hearts, <sup>d</sup>then <sup>e</sup>put away the strange gods and <sup>f</sup>Ashtaroth from among you, and <sup>g</sup>prepare your hearts unto the LORD, and <sup>h</sup>serve him only; and he will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines.

4 Then the children of Israel did put away <sup>b</sup>Baalim and Ashtaroth, and served the LORD only.

5 And Samuel said, <sup>i</sup>Gather all Israel to Mizpeh, and I will pray for you unto the LORD.

6 And they gathered together to Mizpeh. <sup>j</sup>And drew water, and poured it out before the LORD, and

7 And when the Philistines heard that the children of Israel were gathered together to Mizpeh, the lords of the Philistines went up against Israel. And when the children of Israel heard it, they were afraid of the Philistines.

8 And the children of Israel said to Samuel, <sup>n</sup>Cease <sup>o</sup>not to cry unto the LORD our God for us, that he will save us out of the hand of the Philistines.

9 <sup>p</sup>And Samuel took a sucking lamb, and offered it for a burnt-offering wholly unto the LORD: and <sup>q</sup>Samuel cried unto the LORD for Israel; and the LORD <sup>r</sup>heard him.

10 And as Samuel was offering up the burnt-offering, the Philistines drew near to battle against Israel: <sup>s</sup>but the LORD thundered with a great thunder on that day upon the Philistines, and discomfited them; and they were smitten before Israel.

Verse 1. Fetched up the ark] When these people received the message of the Beth-shemites, they probably consulted Samuel, and he had encouraged them to go and bring it up, else they might have expected such destruction as happened to the Beth-shemites.

Sanctified Eleazar] Perhaps this sanctifying signifies no more than setting this man apart, simply to take care of the ark.

Verse 2. It was twenty years] This chapter contains the transactions of at least twenty years, but we know not the date of each event.

Verse 3. And Samuel spake] We have heard nothing of this judge since he served in the tabernacle. He was now grown up, and established for a prophet in the land of Israel.

If ye do return] From your backsliding and idolatry.

With all your hearts] For outward services and professions will avail nothing.

Put away the strange gods] Destroy their images, altars, and groves: they are strange; you do not know them as helpers, saviours, or defenders.

Prepare your hearts] Let your hearts be straight and steady.

And serve him only] Have no other religious service but his, and obey his laws.

He will deliver you] Vain are your own exertions; he will deliver you in such a way as to show that the excellence of the power is of himself alone.

Verse 4. Put away Baalim and Ashtaroth] These were not two particular deities, but two genera of idols; the one masculine, BAALIM; the other feminine, ASHTAROTH; both the words are in the plural number, and signify all their gods and goddesses.

Verse 5. Gather all Israel to Mizpeh] This appears to have been an armed assembly, though probably collected principally for religious and political purposes; but Samuel knew that an unarmed multitude could not safely be convened in the vicinity of the Philistines.

Verse 6. Drew water, and poured it out] It is not easy to know what is meant by this: it is true that pouring out water, in the way of libation, was a religious ordinance among the Hebrews (Isa. xii. 3), and among most other nations, particularly the Greeks and Romans, who used, not only water, but wine, milk, honey, and blood.

Deep penitential sorrow was represented under the notion of pouring out water, Ps. xxii. 14. And to repentance, under this very similitude, the prophet exhorts fallen Jerusalem, Lam. ii. 19. David uses the same image, Ps. lxxii. 8; and Hannah in chap. i. 15 of this book. Perhaps the drawing and pouring out of water mentioned in the text was done emblematically, to represent the contrition of their hearts.

And Samuel judged] He gave them ordinances, heard and redressed grievances, and taught them how to get reconciled to God. The assembly, therefore was held for politico-military purposes.

Verse 7. The Philistines went up against Israel] They went to give them battle before that, by continual accessions of numbers, they should become too powerful.

Verse 8. Cease not to cry unto the Lord] They had strong confidence in the intercession of Samuel, because they knew he was a holy man of God.

Verse 9. Samuel took a sucking lamb] This sucking lamb must have been eight days under its mother before it could be offered as the law says, Lev. xxii. 27.

Though Samuel was not a priest, yet he offered this sacrifice; or he might have ordered Eleazar to offer it, and still be said to have done it himself: "He who procures a thing to be done may be said to do it himself."

His not sacrificing at the tabernacle was justified by the necessity of the case; neither tabernacle nor ark was at hand.

Verse 10. The Lord thundered with a great thunder] Literally, The Lord thundered with a great voice—he confounded them with a mighty tempest of thunder and lightning, and no doubt slew many by the lightning.

11 And the men of Israel went out of Mizpeh, and pursued the Philistines, and smote them, until they came under Beth-car.

12 Then Samuel <sup>a</sup>took a stone, and set it between Mizpeh and Shen, and called the name of it <sup>b</sup>Eben-ezer, saying, Hitherto hath the LORD helped us.

13 <sup>c</sup>So the Philistines were subdued, and they <sup>d</sup>came no more into the coast of Israel: and the hand of the LORD was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel.

14 And the cities which the Philistines had taken

Verse 11. Under Beth-car.] We know not where this place was.

Verse 12. Called the name of it Eben-ezer] "The Stone of Help;" perhaps a pillar is meant by the word stone.

Verse 13. They came no more into the coast of Israel] Perhaps a more signal victory was never gained by Israel: the Lord had brought them low, almost to extermination; and now, by his miraculous interference, he lifts them completely up, and humbles to the dust their proud oppressors. God often suffers nations and individuals to be brought to the lowest extremity, that he may show his mercy and goodness by suddenly rescuing them from destruction, when all human help has most evidently failed.

Verse 14. The cities which the Philistines had taken] Perhaps the retaking of the cities was by slow degrees, through the space of several years.

There was peace between Israel and the Amorites.] That is, all the remaining Canaanites kept quiet, and did not attempt to molest the Israelites.

Verse 15. Samuel judged Israel all the days of his life.] Samuel is supposed to have lived one hundred years; he did not begin to judge Israel till he was about forty years of age; and if he was one hundred years of age when he died, from Israel were restored to Israel, from Ekron even unto Gath; and the coasts thereof did Israel deliver out of the hands of the Philistines. And there was peace between Israel and the Amorites.

15 And Samuel <sup>a</sup>judged Israel all the days of his life.

16 And he went from year to year in <sup>c</sup>circuit to Beth-el, and Gilgal, and Mizpeh, and judged Israel in all those places.

17 And <sup>d</sup>his return was to Ramah; for there was his house; and there he judged Israel; and there he <sup>b</sup>built an altar unto the LORD.

he must have been a judge sixty years, and consequently filled that office during the whole of Saul's reign. But that he had been dead before Saul's last battle, is evident from the transactions of that king with the witch of Endor, and probably not long before. Samuel was the prophet of that time; and frequently directed both the civil and military transactions of the kingdom. He seems, in many respects, to have been considered the governor of the people, while Saul was only looked on as the general of the armies.

Verse 16. He went from year to year in circuit] When he was at BETH-EL, the tribe of Ephraim, and all the northern parts of the country, could attend him; when at GILGAL, the tribe of Benjamin, and those beyond Jordan, might have easy access to him; and when at MIZPEH, he was within reach of Simeon, Judah, and Gad; but Ramah was the place of his ordinary abode; and there he held his court, for there he judged Israel; and as it is probable that Shiloh was destroyed, it is said, ver. 17, that there (viz., at Ramah) he built an altar unto the Lord. This altar being duly consecrated, the worship performed at it was strictly legal.

CHAPTER VIII.

Samuel, grown old, makes his sons judges in Beer-sheba, 1, 2. They pervert judgment; and the people complain, and desire a king, 3-5. Samuel is displeased, and inquires of the Lord, 6. The Lord is also displeased; but directs Samuel to appoint them a king, and to show them solemnly the consequences of their choice, 7-9. Samuel does so; and shows them what they may expect from an absolute monarch, and how afflicted they should be under his administration, 10-18. The people refuse to recede from their demand; and Samuel lays the matter before the Lord, and dismisses them, 19-22.

AND it came to pass, when Samuel was old, that he <sup>a</sup>made his sons <sup>b</sup>judges over Israel.

2 Now the name of his first-born was <sup>c</sup>Joel; and the name of his second, Abiah: they were judges in Beer-sheba.

Verse 1. When Samuel was old] Supposed to be about sixty.

He made his sons judges] He appointed them as his lieutenants to superintend certain affairs in Beer-sheba, which he could not conveniently attend to himself. But they were never judges in the proper sense of the word; Samuel was the last judge in Israel, and he judged it to the day of his death.

Verse 3. His sons walked not in his ways] Their iniquity is pointed out in three words: 1. They turned aside after turned aside <sup>a</sup>after lucre, and <sup>b</sup>took bribes, and perverted judgment.

4 Then all the elders of Israel gathered themselves together, and came to Samuel unto Ramah.

5 And said unto him, Behold, thou art old, and thy sons walk not in thy ways: now <sup>c</sup>make us a king to judge us like all the nations.

15, 16, 17.—<sup>a</sup>Exod. xviii. 21. 1 Tim. iii. 3. vi. 10.—<sup>c</sup>Deut. xvi. 19. Ps. xv. 5.—<sup>b</sup>Ver. 19, 20. Deut. xvii. 14. Hos. xiii. 10. Acts xiii. 21.

lucre; the original expresses here the idea of avarice, of getting money by hook or by crook. 2. They took bribes; gifts or presents, to blind their eyes. 3. They perverted judgment—they turned judgment aside; they put it out of its regular path; they sold it to the highest bidder: thus the wicked rich man had his cause, and the poor man was oppressed and deprived of his right.

Verse 5. Make us a king] Hitherto, from the time in which they were a people, the Israelites were under a theocracy, they had no other king but God. Now they desire 6 But the thing <sup>a</sup>displeased Samuel, when they said, Give us a king to judge us. And Samuel prayed unto the LORD.

7 And the LORD said unto Samuel, Harken unto the voice of the people in all that they say unto thee: for <sup>b</sup>they have not rejected thee, but <sup>c</sup>they have rejected me, that I should not reign over them.

8 According to all the works which they have done since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt, even unto this day, wherewith they have forsaken me, and served other gods, so do they also unto thee.

9 Now therefore <sup>d</sup>hearken unto their voice: <sup>e</sup>howbeit yet protest solemnly unto them, and <sup>f</sup>shew them the manner of the king that shall reign over them.

10 And Samuel told all the words of the LORD unto the people that asked of him a king.

11 And he said, <sup>g</sup>This will be the manner of the king that shall reign over you: <sup>h</sup>He will take your sons, and appoint them for himself, for his chariots, and to be his horsemen; and some shall run before his chariots.

12 And he will appoint him captains over thousands, and captains over fifties; and will set them to ear his ground, and to reap his harvest, and to make his instruments of war, and instruments of his chariots.

to have a king like the other nations around them, who may be their general in battle; for this is the point at which they principally aim.

Verse 6. The thing displeased Samuel] Because he saw that this amounted to a formal renunciation of the Divine government.

Samuel prayed unto the Lord.] He begged to know his mind in this important business.

Verse 7. They have rejected me] They wish to put that government in the hands of a mortal, which was always in the hands of their God. But hearken unto their voice—grant them what they request. So we find God grants that in his displeasure which he withholds in his mercy.

Verse 9. Shew them the manner of the king] The word mishpat, which we here render manner, signifies simply what the king would and might require, according to the manner in which kings in general ruled; all of whom, in those times, were absolute and despotic.

It is perfectly vain in Grotius, or any one else, to state that this shows what a king, as king, may any where, in virtue of his office, claim and exact; and that he can take the property and persons of his subjects, and dispose of them as he may judge necessary for the exigence of the state. This was the manner of Saul, but Saul was not a king of God's choosing: "He gave him in his wrath, and took him away in his displeasure;" and the manner of such a king should not be arrogated by any potentate who affects to rule jure divino, by divine right. The manner of the king of God's choice is distinctly detailed, Deut. xvii. 15-20.

Verse 19. The people refused to obey] They would have the king, his manner and all, notwithstanding the solemn warning which they here receive.

Verse 20. May judge us] This appears to be a rejection of Samuel.

Go out before us] Be in every respect our head and governor.

And fight our battles.] Be the general of our armies.

Verse 21. Rehearsed them in the ears of the Lord.] He went to the altar, and in his secret devotion laid the whole business before God.

13 And he will take your daughters to be confectionaries, and to be cooks, and to be bakers.

14 And <sup>i</sup>he will take your fields and your vineyards and your oliveyards, even the best of them, and give them to his servants.

15 And he will take the tenth of your seed, and of your vineyards, and give to his <sup>j</sup>officers, and to his servants.

16 And he will take your men servants, and your maid servants, and your goodliest young men, and your asses, and put them to his work.

17 He will take the tenth of your sheep: and ye shall be his servants.

18 And ye shall cry out in that day because of your king which ye shall have chosen you; and the LORD <sup>k</sup>will not hear you in that day.

19 Nevertheless the people <sup>l</sup>refused to obey the voice of Samuel; and they said, Nay; but we will have a king over us;

20 That we also may be <sup>m</sup>like all the nations; and that our king may judge us, and go out before us, and fight our battles.

21 And Samuel heard all the words of the people, and he rehearsed them in the ears of the LORD.

22 And the LORD said to Samuel, <sup>n</sup>Hearken unto their voice, and make them a king. And Samuel said unto the men of Israel, Go ye every man unto his city.

Verse 22. Hearken unto their voice] Let them have what they desire, and let them abide the consequences.

Go ye every man unto his city.] It seems the elders of the people had tarried all this time with Samuel, and when he had received his ultimate answer from God, he told them of it and dismissed them.

On this account we may observe: 1. That God did not change the government of Israel; it was the people themselves who changed it. 2. That though God permitted them to have a king, yet he did not approve of him. 3. That, notwithstanding he did not suffer them to choose the man, he ordered his servant Samuel to choose him by lot, he disposing of that lot. 4. That God never gave up the supreme government; he was still King in Israel, and the king, so called, was only the vicegerent or deputy of the Lord. 5. That no king of Judah attempted to be supreme, therefore they never made new laws nor altered the old; which was a positive confession that God was the supreme Legislator. 6. That an absolute monarchy is always an evil, and is contrary to all the rights, civil and religious, of mankind; a mode of government that all people should avoid, as pregnant with evils to mankind. 7. That although it was a sin in the Israelites to desire a king, that is, to change a constitution of which God was the author, yet kingly government, properly understood, is a good of the first magnitude to the civil happiness of mankind. 8. That by kingly government, properly understood, I mean such a monarchical government as that of Great Britain, where the king, the nobles, and the people, are duly mixed, each having his proper part in the government, and each preventing the other from running to excess, and all limited by law. 9. That the three grand forms of government which have obtained among mankind, viz., monarchy, aristocracy, and democracy, have each certain advantages without which no state can be well preserved; but they have evils by which any state may be injured. 10. That, from a proper mixture of these, the advantages of the whole may be reaped without any of their attendant evils.

CHAPTER IX.

Saul's lineage and description; he is sent by his father to seek some lost asses, 1-5. Not finding them, he purposes to go and consult Samuel concerning the proper method of proceeding, 6-14. The Lord informs Samuel that he should anoint Saul king, 15, 16. Samuel invites Saul to dine with him, and informs him that the asses are found; and gives him an intimation that he is to be king, 17-21. Saul dines with Samuel, and afterwards he is taken to the house-top, where both commune together, 22-27.

NOW there was a man of Benjamin, whose name was <sup>a</sup> Kish, the son of Abiel, the son of Zeror, the son of Bechorath, the son of Aphiah, <sup>b</sup> a Benjamite, a mighty man of <sup>c</sup> power.

2 And he had a son, whose name was Saul, a choice young man, and a goodly: and there was not among the children of Israel a goodlier person than he: <sup>d</sup> from his shoulders and upward he was higher than any of the people.

3 And the asses of Kish Saul's father were lost. And Kish said to Saul his son, Take now one of the servants with thee, and arise, go seek the asses.

4 And he passed through Mount Ephraim, and passed through the land of <sup>e</sup> Shalisha, but they found them not: then they passed through the land of Shalim, and there they were not: and he passed through the land of the Benjamites, but they found them not.

5 And when they were come to the land of Zuph, Saul said to his servant that was with him, Come, and let us return; lest my father leave caring for the asses, and take thought for us.

6 And he said unto him, Behold now, there is in this city <sup>f</sup> a man of God, and he is an honourable man: <sup>g</sup> all that he saith cometh surely to pass: now let us go thither; peradventure he can shew us our way that we should go.

7 Then said Saul to his servant, But, behold, if we go, <sup>h</sup> what shall we bring the man? for the bread <sup>i</sup> is spent in our vessels, and there is not a present to bring to the man of God: what <sup>j</sup> have we?

8 And the servant answered Saul again, and said, Behold, <sup>k</sup> I have here at hand the fourth part of a shekel of silver: that will I give to the man of God, to tell us our way.

9 (Beforetime in Israel, when a man <sup>l</sup> went to inquire of God, thus he spake, Come, and let us go to the seer: for he that is now called a Prophet was beforetime called <sup>m</sup> a Seer.)

10 Then said Saul to his servant, <sup>n</sup> Well said; come, let us go. So they went unto the city where the man of God was.

11 And as they went up <sup>o</sup> the hill to the city, <sup>p</sup> they found young maidens going out to draw water, and said unto them, Is the seer here?

12 And they answered them, and said, He is; behold, he is before you: make haste now, for he came to day to the city; for <sup>q</sup> there is a <sup>r</sup> sacrifice of the people to day <sup>s</sup> in the high place:

Verse 1. A mighty man of power.] Literally, a strong man; this appears to be the only power he possessed; and the physical strength of the father may account for the extraordinary size of the son.

Verse 2. From his shoulders and upward.] It was probably from this very circumstance that he was chosen for king; for, where kings were elective, in all ancient times great respect was paid to personal appearance.

Verse 3. The asses of Kish—were lost.] What a wonderful train of occurrences were connected in order to bring Saul to the throne of Israel. Every thing seems to go on according to the common course of events, and yet all conspired to favour the election of a man to the kingdom who certainly did not come there by the approbation of God.

Verse 5. Were come to the land of Zuph.] Calmet supposes that Saul and his servant went from Gibeah to Shalisha, in the tribe of Dan; from thence to Shalim, near to Jerusalem; and thence, traversing the tribe of Benjamin, they purposed to return to Gibeah; but passing through the land of Zuph, in which Ramatha, the country of Samuel, was situated, they determined to call on this prophet to gain some directions from him; the whole of this circuit he supposes to have amounted to no more than about twenty-five leagues, or three days' journey. [There is no foundation in the text for the opinion of Calmet and many commentators that Saul called at Ramah.]

Verse 7. There is not a present to bring to the man of God.] We are not to suppose from this that the prophets took money to predict future events: Saul only refers to an invariable custom, that no man approached a superior without a present of some kind or other. We have often seen this before; even God, who needs nothing, would not that his people should approach him with empty hands.

Verse 8. The fourth part of a shekel of silver.] We find from the preceding verse that the bread or provisions which they had brought with them for their journey was expended, else a part of that would have been thought a suitable present; and here the fourth part of a shekel of silver, about ninepence of our money, was deemed sufficient: therefore the present was intended more as a token of respect than as an enrolment.

Verse 9. Beforetime in Israel.] This passage was probably added by the later author, who compiled the book from original memoranda.

Was beforetime called a Seer.] The word seer, roeh, occurs for the first time in this place: it literally signifies a person who sees; particularly preternatural sights. A seer and a prophet were the same in most cases; only with this difference, the seer was always a prophet, but the prophet was not always a seer. A seer seems to imply one who frequently met with and saw some symbolical representation of God. The term prophet was used a long time before this; Abraham is called a prophet, Gen. xx. 7, and the term frequently occurs in the law.

All prophets, false and true, profess to see God; see the case of Balaam, Num. xxiv. 4, 16, and Jer. xiv. 14. All diviners, in their enthusiastic flights, boasted that they had those things exhibited to their sight which should come to pass.

Verse 11. Young maidens going out to draw water.] So far is it from being true, that young women were always kept closely shut up at home, that we find them often in the field, drawing and carrying water, as here.

Verse 12. He came to day to the city.] Though Samuel lived chiefly in Ramah, yet he had a dwelling in the country, at a place called Naioth, where it is probable there was a school of the prophets.

A sacrifice of the people. A great feast. The animals

13 As soon as ye be come into the city, ye shall straightway find him, before he go up to the high place to eat: for the people will not eat until he come, because he doth bless the sacrifice: and afterwards they eat that be bidden. Now therefore get you up; for about <sup>a</sup>this time ye shall find him.

14 And they went up into the city: and when they were come into the city, behold, Samuel came out against them, for to go up to the high place.

15 <sup>b</sup>Now the Lord had <sup>c</sup>told Samuel in his ear a day before Saul came, saying, 16 To morrow about this time I will send thee a man out of the land of Benjamin, <sup>d</sup>and thou shalt anoint him to be captain over my people Israel, that he may save my people out of the hand of the Philistines: for I have <sup>e</sup>looked upon my people, because their cry is come unto me.

17 And when Samuel saw Saul, the Lord said unto him, Behold the man whom I spake to thee of! this same shall <sup>f</sup>reign over my people.

18 Then Saul drew near to Samuel in the gate, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, where the seer's house is.

19 And Samuel answered Saul, and said, I am the seer: go up before me unto the high place; for ye shall eat with me to day, and to morrow I will let thee go, and will tell thee all that <sup>g</sup>is in thine heart.

20 And as for <sup>h</sup>thine asses that were lost <sup>i</sup>three days ago, set not thy mind on them; for they are found. And on whom <sup>j</sup>is all the desire of Israel? Is it not on thee, and on all thy father's house?

used were first sacrificed to the Lord; that is, their blood was poured out before him; and then all the people fed on the flesh. By high place probably Samuel's altar is alone meant; which no doubt was raised on an eminence.

Verse 13. He doth bless the sacrifice] He alone can perform the religious rites which are used on this occasion.

Afterwards they eat that be bidden.] Among the Arabs, often a large feast is made of sacrificed camels, &c., and then the people of the vicinity are invited to come and partake of the sacrifice. This is the custom to which allusion is made here.

Verse 14. Came out against them] Met them.

Verse 15. Now the Lord had told Samuel] How this communication was made, we cannot tell.

Verse 16. Thou shalt anoint him to be captain] Not to be king, but to be nayid, or captain of the Lord's host. But in ancient times no king was esteemed who was not an able warrior.

Verse 17. Behold the man whom I spake to thee of] What an intimate communion must Samuel have held with his God. A constant familiarity seems to have existed between them.

Verse 19. I am the seer] This declaration would prepare Saul for the communications afterwards made.

Verse 20. As for thine asses] Thus he shows him that he knew what was in his heart, God having previously revealed these things to Samuel.

And on whom is all the desire of Israel?] Saul understood this as implying that he was chosen to be king. [The 21 And Saul answered and said, <sup>a</sup>Am not I a Benjamite, of the <sup>b</sup>smallest of the tribes of Israel? and <sup>c</sup>my family the least of all the families of the tribe of Benjamin? wherefore then speakest thou <sup>d</sup>so to me?

22 And Samuel took Saul and his servant, and brought them into the parlour, and made them sit in the chiefest place among them that were bidden, which <sup>e</sup>were about thirty persons.

23 And Samuel said unto the cook, Bring the portion which I gave thee, of which I said unto thee, Set it by thee.

24 And the cook took up <sup>f</sup>the shoulder, and <sup>g</sup>that which <sup>h</sup>was upon it, and set it before Saul. And Samuel said, Behold that which is <sup>i</sup>left! set it before thee, and eat: for unto this time hath it been kept for thee since I said, I have invited the people. So Saul did eat with Samuel that day.

25 And when they were come down from the high place into the city, Samuel communed with Saul upon <sup>j</sup>the top of the house.

26 And they arose early: and it came to pass about the spring of the day, that Samuel called Saul to the top of the house, saying, Up, that I may send thee away. And Saul arose, and they went out both of them, he and Samuel, abroad.

27 And as they were going down to the end of the city, Samuel said to Saul, Bid the servant pass on before us, (and he passed on,) but stand thou still <sup>k</sup>a while, that I may shew thee the word of God.

"desire of Israel" is not what Israel desires, but all that it possesses which is precious.]

Verse 21. Am not I a Benjamite] This speech of Saul is exceedingly modest; he was now becomingly humble; but who can bear elevation and prosperity? The tribe of Benjamin had not yet recovered its strength, after the ruinous war it had with the other tribes, Judg. xx.

Verse 22. Brought them into the parlour] This was the place where they sat down to feast.

Verse 23. Said unto the cook] Probably the butcher is here meant.

Verse 24. The shoulder, and that which was upon it] Probably the shoulder was covered with a part of the caul, that it might be the better roasted. Why was the shoulder set before Saul? Not because it was the best part, but because it was an emblem of the government to which he was now called. See Isa. ix. 6: And the government shall be upon his shoulder.

Verse 25. Upon the top of the house.] All the houses in the East were flat-roofed; on these people walked, talked, and frequently slept, for the sake of fresh and cooling air.

Verse 26. Called Saul to the top of the house] There was no calling him to the house-top a second time; he was sleeping there and Samuel called him up.

Verse 27. As they were going down] So it appears that Saul arose immediately, and Samuel accompanied him out of the town, and sent the servant on that he might show Saul the word—the counsel or design—of the Lord.

CHAPTER X.

Samuel anoints Saul captain of the Lord's inheritance, 1. Instructs him concerning his return home, whom he should meet, and what he should do, 2-8. Saul meets a company of prophets, the Spirit of the Lord comes on him, and he prophesies among them, 9-13. He meets his uncle, and converses with him, 14-16. Samuel calls the people together to Mizpeh, and upbraids them for having rejected the Lord as their king, 17-19. Lots are cast to find out the person proper to be appointed king; Saul is chosen, 20-24. Samuel shows the manner of the king, and writes it in a book, 25. Saul goes to Gibeah; and certain persons refuse to acknowledge him as king, 26, 27.

THEN <sup>a</sup>Samuel took a vial of oil, and poured it upon his head, <sup>b</sup>and kissed him, and said, Is it not because <sup>c</sup>the Lord hath anointed thee to be captain over <sup>d</sup>his inheritance?

2 When thou art departed from me to day, then thou shalt find two men by <sup>e</sup>Rachel's sepulchre in the border of Benjamin <sup>f</sup>at Zelzah; and they will say unto thee, The asses which thou wentest to seek are found: and lo, thy father hath left <sup>g</sup>the care of the asses, and sorroweth for you, saying, What shall I do for my son?

3 Then shalt thou go on forward from thence, and thou shalt come to the plain of Tabor, and there shall meet thee three men going up <sup>h</sup>to God to Beth-el, one carrying three kids, and another carrying three loaves of bread, and another carrying a bottle of wine:

4 And they will <sup>i</sup>salute thee, and give thee two loaves of bread; which thou shalt receive of their hands.

5 After that thou shalt come to <sup>j</sup>the hill of God, <sup>k</sup>where is the garrison of the Philistines: and it shall come to pass, when thou art come thither to the city, that thou shalt meet a company of prophets coming down <sup>l</sup>from the high place with a psaltery, and a tabret, and a pipe, and a harp, before them; <sup>m</sup>and they shall prophesy:

6 And the <sup>n</sup>Spirit of the Lord will come upon thee, and <sup>o</sup>thou shalt prophesy with them, and shalt be turned into another man.

7 And <sup>p</sup>let it be, when these <sup>q</sup>signs are come unto thee, <sup>r</sup>that thou do as occasion serve thee; for <sup>s</sup>God is with thee.

8 And thou shalt go down before me <sup>t</sup>to Gilgal; and, behold, I will come down unto thee, to offer burnt-offerings, <sup>u</sup>and to sacrifice sacrifices of peace-offerings: <sup>v</sup>seven days shalt thou tarry, till I come to thee, and shew thee what thou shalt do.

9 And it was so, that when he had turned his <sup>w</sup>back to go from Samuel, God <sup>x</sup>gave him another heart: and all those signs came to pass that day.

10 And <sup>y</sup>when they came thither to the hill, behold, <sup>z</sup>a company of prophets met him; and <sup>a</sup>the Spirit of God came upon him, and he prophesied among them.

Verse 1. Took a vial of oil] The anointing mentioned here took place in the open field. How simple was the ancient ceremony of consecrating a king! A prophet or priest poured oil upon his head, and kissed him; and said, Thus the Lord hath anointed thee to be captain over his inheritance. This was the whole of the ceremony. Even in this anointing, Saul is not acknowledged as king, but simply nagid, a captain—one who goes before and leads the people.

Verse 2. Rachel's sepulchre] This was nigh to Beth-lehem. At Zelzah] If this be the name of a place, nothing is known of it.

The Hebrew betseltsach is translated by the Septuagint, dancing greatly: now this may refer to the joy they felt and expressed on finding the asses, or it may refer to those religious exultations, or playing on instruments of music, mentioned in the succeeding verses. [This rendering is only conjectural.]

Verse 3. Three men going up to God to Beth-el] Jacob's altar was probably there still, Gen. xxviii. 19. However this might be, it was still considered, as its name implies, the house of God; and to it they were now going, to offer sacrifices.

The three kids were for sacrifice; the three loaves of bread to be offered probably as a thank-offering; and the bottle or skin full of wine, for a libation. When the blood was poured out before the Lord, then they feasted on the flesh and on the bread; and probably had a sufficiency of the wine left for their own drinking.

Verse 4. And they will salute thee] "And they will inquire of thee concerning peace," i.e. welfare. In the East, if this salutation be given, then the person or persons giving it may be reckoned friends; if the others return it, then there is friendship on both sides.

Verse 5. The hill of God] The Targum says, "The hill on which the ark of the Lord was." Calmet supposes it to be a height near Gibeah. [The place was undoubtedly Gibeah; and it is supposed to have been called Gibeah of God, because of an altar, or a school of prophets.]

The garrison of the Philistines] Probably they kept a watch on the top of this hill, with a company of soldiers to keep the country in check.

A company of prophets] Probably the scholars of the prophets; for the prophets seem to have been the only accredited teachers, at particular times, in Israel: and at this time there does not appear to have been any other prophet besides Samuel in this quarter. Probably the teacher of this school was not an inspired man, but one acting under the direction of Samuel.

A psaltery] As the word signifies in other places a bottle or flagon, it was probably something like the utricularia tibia or BAG-PIPE. [It was more probably a stringed instrument.]

A tabret] A sort of drum or cymbal.

A pipe] Chalil, from chal, to make a hole or opening; a sort of pipe, flute, hautbois, clarinet, or the like.

A harp] A stringed instrument similar to our harp, or that on the model of which the harp was formed.

Verse 7. Thou do as occasion serve thee] After God has shown thee all these signs that thou art under his especial guidance, fear not to undertake any thing that belongs to thy office, for God is with thee.

What a number of circumstances thus precisely foretold! Does not this prove that Samuel was under the continual inspiration of the Almighty?

Verse 8. Seven days shalt thou tarry] I will come to thee within seven days, offer sacrifices, receive directions from the Lord, and deliver them to thee. It is likely that these seven days referred to the time in which Samuel came to Saul to 11 And it came to pass, when all that knew him beforetime saw that, behold, he prophesied among the prophets, then the people said "one to another, What is this that is come unto the son of Kish?" Is Saul also among the prophets?

12 And one of the same place answered and said, But "who is their father?" Therefore it became a proverb, Is Saul also among the prophets?

13 And when he had made an end of prophesying, he came to the high place.

14 And Saul's uncle said unto him and to his servant, Whither went ye? And he said, To seek the asses: and when we saw that they were no where, we came to Samuel.

15 And Saul's uncle said, Tell me, I pray thee, what Samuel said unto you.

16 And Saul said unto his uncle, He told us plainly that the asses were found. But of the matter of the kingdom, whereof Samuel spake, he told him not.

17 And Samuel called the people together "unto the LORD" to Mizpeh;

18 And said unto the children of Israel, "Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, I brought up Israel out of Egypt, and delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all kingdoms, and of them that oppressed you:

19 "And ye have this day rejected your God, who himself saved you out of all your adversities and your tribulations; and ye have said unto him, Nay, but set a king over us. Now therefore present yourselves before the LORD by your tribes, and by your thousands.

20 And when Samuel had "caused all the tribes of Israel to come near, the tribe of Benjamin was taken.

21 When he had caused the tribe of Benjamin to come near by their families, the family of Matri was taken, and Saul the son of Kish was taken: and when they sought him, he could not be found.

22 Therefore they "inquired of the LORD further if the man should yet come thither. And the LORD answered, Behold, he hath hid himself among the stuff.

23 And they ran and fetched him thence: and when he stood among the people, "he was higher than any of the people from his shoulders and upward.

24 And Samuel said to all the people, See ye him "whom the LORD hath chosen, that there is none like him among all the people? And all the people shouted, and said, "God" save the king.

25 Then Samuel told the people "the manner of the kingdom, and wrote it in a book, and laid it up before the LORD. And Samuel sent all the people away, every man to his house.

26 And Saul also went home "to Gibeah; and there went with him a band of men, whose hearts God had touched.

27 "But the "children of Belial said, How shall this man save us? And they despised him, "and brought him no presents. But "he held his peace.

Gilgal, offered sacrifices, and confirmed the kingdom to him, after he had defeated the Ammonites.

Verse 12. But who is their father? The Septuagint, in its principal editions, adds, is it not Kish? This makes the sense more complete.

Verse 13. He came to the high place.] I suppose this to mean the place where Saul's father lived; as it is evident the next verse shows him to be at home.

Verse 14. Saul's uncle.] The word dod signifies a beloved one, love, a lover, friend, &c.; and is the same as David. It is supposed to mean uncle here; but I think it means some familiar friend.

Verse 18. I brought up Israel out of Egypt.] These are similar to the upbraidings in chap. viii. 7, &c.

Verse 19. Present yourselves—by your tribes.] It appears that, in order to find out the proper person who should be made their king, they must determine by lot: 1. The tribe. 2. The thousands or grand divisions by families. 3. The smaller divisions by families. And 4. The individual.

Verse 21. When they sought him, he could not be found.] Through modesty or fear he had secreted himself.

Verse 22. The Lord answered.] What a continual access to God! and what condescension in his attention to all their requests!

The stuff among which he had secreted himself may mean the carts, baggage, &c., brought by the people to Mizpeh.

Verse 24. God save the king.] There is no such word here; no, nor in the whole Bible; nor is it countenanced by any of the Versions. The words which we thus translate here and elsewhere are simply, "May the king live." The French Vive le roi! is a proper version of the Hebrew.

Verse 25. The manner of the kingdom.] It is the same word as in chap. viii. 9; and doubtless the same thing is implied as is there related. But possibly there was some kind of compact or covenant between them and Saul; and this was the thing that was written in a book, and laid up before the LORD, probably near the ark.

Verse 26. A band of men.] Not a military band, as I imagine, but some select friends or companions, who were personally attached to him.

Verse 27. Brought him no presents.] They gave him no proofs that they acknowledged either the divine appointment or his authority. Saul was now a public character, and had a right to support from the public. These sons of Belial refused to bear their part; they brought him no presents. He marked it, but at present held his peace; he was as if he were deaf: so says the text. He was prudent, and did not immediately assume all the consequence to which his office entitled him. It is probable however that tribute is meant by the word present. The people in general, finding they had now a king, took it for granted that they must pay tribute or taxes to him. This was a part of the manner of the king which Samuel had shown them; the great majority had done so, but certain refractory people refused to pay any thing, on the pretence that such a person as Saul could not be a deliverer of Israel. How, say they, shall this man save us?

CHAPTER XI.

Nahash, king of the Ammonites, besieges Jabesh-gilead; and proposes to its inhabitants the most degrading conditions of peace, 1, 2. They apply to their brethren for help, 3, 4. Saul hears of their distress; takes a yoke of oxen, hews them in pieces, and sends them throughout the coasts of Israel with the threat, that all who did not come to his standard should have his cattle served in like manner; in consequence of which he is soon at the head of an army of three hundred and thirty thousand men, 5-8. He sends to Jabesh-gilead, and promises help, 9, 10. Saul attacks the Ammonites next morning, and gives them a total overthrow, 11. The people are greatly encouraged, and propose to put to death those who are opposed to Saul's government; but this he prevents, 12, 13. Samuel leads the people to Gilgal; they offer sacrifices, and renew the kingdom to Saul, 14, 15.

THEN <sup>a</sup> Nahash the Ammonite came up, and encamped against <sup>b</sup> Jabesh-gilead: and all the men of Jabesh said unto Nahash, <sup>c</sup> Make a covenant with us, and we will serve thee.

2 And Nahash the Ammonite answered them, On this condition will I make a covenant with you, that I may thrust out all your right eyes, and lay it for <sup>d</sup> a reproach upon all Israel.

3 And the elders of Jabesh said unto him, <sup>e</sup> Give us seven days' respite, that we may send messengers unto all the coasts of Israel: and then, if there be no man to save us, we will come out to thee.

4 Then came the messengers <sup>f</sup> to Gibeah of Saul, and told the tidings in the ears of the people: and <sup>g</sup> all the people lifted up their voices, and wept.

5 And, behold, Saul came after the herd out of the field; and Saul said, What <sup>h</sup> aileth the people that they weep? And they told him the tidings of the men of Jabesh.

6 <sup>i</sup> And the Spirit of God came upon Saul when he heard those tidings, and his anger was kindled greatly.

Verse 1. Nahash the Ammonite] We know little about Nahash; there was a king of this name among the Ammonites in the time of David, 2 Sam. x. 2, but probably not the same person. Nahash might have been a common name of the Ammonitish kings.

Make a covenant with us] They found they were in no condition to risk a war; and they wish to have peace, and desire to know his conditions.

Verse 2. I may thrust out all your right eyes] This cruel condition would serve at once as a badge of their slavery, and a means of incapacitating them from being effective warriors. Theodoret observes, "He who opposes his shield to the enemy with his left hand, thereby hides his left eye, and looks at his enemy with his right eye; he therefore who plunges out that right eye makes men useless in war."

Verse 3. Give us seven days' respite] Such promises are frequently made by besieged places; "We will surrender if not relieved in so many days;" and such conditions are generally received by the besiegers.

Verse 4. Then came the messengers to Gibeah] It does not appear that the people of Jabesh-Gilead knew any thing of Saul's appointment to the kingdom, for the message is not directed to him but to the people.

The people lifted up their voices, and wept.] They saw no hope of deliverance, and they expected that their reproach would be laid on all Israel.

Verse 5. Saul came after the herd] He had been bred up to an agricultural life, and after his consecration he returned to it, waiting for a call of Divine Providence, which he considered he had now received in the message from Jabesh-gilead.

It has often been remarked, that mighty kings and accomplished generals have been chosen from among those who were engaged in agricultural concerns. In these obser-

7 And he took a yoke of oxen, and <sup>h</sup> hewed them in pieces, and sent them throughout all the coasts of Israel by the hands of messengers, saying, <sup>i</sup> Whosoever cometh not forth after Saul and after Samuel, so shall it be done unto his oxen. And the fear of the Lord fell on the people, and they came out <sup>k</sup> with one consent.

8 And when he numbered them in <sup>l</sup> Bezek, the children <sup>m</sup> of Israel were three hundred thousand, and the men of Judah thirty thousand.

9 And they said unto the messengers that came, Thus shall ye say unto the men of Jabesh-Gilead, To-morrow, by that time the sun be hot, ye shall have <sup>n</sup> help. And the messengers came and shewed it to the men of Jabesh; and they were glad.

10 Therefore the men of Jabesh said, To-morrow <sup>o</sup> we will come out unto you, and ye shall do with us all that seemeth good unto you.

11 And it was so on the morrow, that <sup>p</sup> Saul put the people <sup>q</sup> in three companies; and they came into the midst of the host in the morning watch, and slew the Ammonites until the heat of the day: and it came to pass, that they which remained were various one fact has been lost sight of, viz., that in ancient times agriculture was the only employment. Trade and commerce were scarcely known; therefore all descriptions of official dignities must be chosen out of this class, there being no other to choose them from.

Verse 6. The Spirit of God came upon Saul] He felt himself strongly excited to attempt the relief of his brethren.

And his anger was kindled greatly.] I believe this means no more than that his courage was greatly excited—he felt himself strong for fight, and confident of success.

Verse 7. He took a yoke of oxen] The sending the pieces of the oxen was an act similar to that of the Levites, Judg. xix. 29, where see the note. And both customs are similar to the sending about of the bloody cross, to call the clans to battle, practised by the ancient Highlanders of Scotland.

Verse 8. The children of Israel were three hundred thousand, and the men of Judah thirty thousand.] This was a vast army, but the Septuagint make it even more: "All the men of Israel were SIX HUNDRED thousand; and the men of Judah SEVENTY thousand." I suspect even the Hebrew text to be exaggerated, by the mistake or design of some ancient scribe. [The allusion is not to a regular army, but to a general levy.]

Verse 10. To-morrow we will come out unto you] They concealed the information they had received of Saul's promised assistance. They did come out unto them; but it was in a different manner to what the Ammonites expected.

Verse 11. Put the people in three companies] Intending to attack the Ammonites in three different points, and to give his own men more room to act.

In the morning watch] He probably began his march in the evening, passed Jordan in the night, and reached the camp of the Ammonites by day-break.

12 And the people said unto Samuel, <sup>a</sup> Who is he that said, Shall Saul reign over us? <sup>b</sup> bring the men, that we may put them to death.

13 And Saul said, <sup>c</sup> There shall not a man be put to death this day: for to day <sup>d</sup> the LORD hath wrought salvation in Israel.

Verse 12. Who is he that said, Shall Saul reign? Now, flushed with victory, and proud of their leader, they wish to give him a proof of their attachment by slaying, even in cold blood, the persons who were at first averse from his being intrusted with the supreme power! The common soldier is scarcely ever inspired by his victory to acts of magnanimity; he has shed blood—he wishes to shed more!

Verse 13. There shall not a man be put to death. This was as much to Saul's credit as the lately proposed measure was to the discredit of his soldiers.

14 Then said Samuel to the people, Come, and let us go <sup>a</sup> to Gilgal, and renew the kingdom there.

15 And all the people went to Gilgal; and there they made Saul king <sup>b</sup> before the LORD in Gilgal; and <sup>c</sup> there they sacrificed sacrifices of peace-offerings before the LORD; and there Saul and all the men of Israel rejoiced greatly.

xiv. 13, 2). Ch. xix. 5.—<sup>a</sup> Ch. x. 8.—<sup>b</sup> Ch. x. 17.—<sup>c</sup> Ch. x. 8.

Verse 14. Renew the kingdom. The unction of Saul, in the first instance, was a very private act; and his being appointed to be king was not known to the people in general. He had now shown himself worthy to command the people; and Samuel takes advantage of this circumstance to gain the general consent in his favour.

Verse 15. There they made Saul king. It is likely from these words that Saul was anointed a second time; he was now publicly acknowledged, and there was no gainsayer. Thus far Saul acted well, and the kingdom seemed to be confirmed in his hand; but soon through imprudence he lost it.

CHAPTER XII.

Samuel, grown old, testifies his integrity before the people, which they confirm, 1-5. He reproves them for their ingratitude and disobedience; and gives a summary of the history of their fathers, 6-12. He exhorts them to future obedience, and calls for a sign from heaven to confirm his authority, and to show them their disobedience: God sends an extraordinary thunder and rain, 13-19. He warns them against idolatry, and exhorts to obedience, and promises to intercede for them, 20-23. Sums up their duty, and concludes with a solemn warning, 24-25.

AND Samuel said unto all Israel, Behold, I have hearkened unto <sup>a</sup> your voice in all that ye said unto me, and <sup>b</sup> have made a king over you.

2 And now, behold, the king <sup>c</sup> walketh before you: <sup>d</sup> and I am old and grayheaded; and, behold, my sons are with you: and I have walked before you from my childhood unto this day.

3 Behold, <sup>e</sup> here I am: witness against me before the LORD, and before <sup>f</sup> his anointed: <sup>g</sup> whose ox have I taken? or whose ass have I taken? or whom have I defrauded? whom have I oppressed? or of whose hands have I received <sup>h</sup> any <sup>i</sup> bribe <sup>j</sup> to <sup>k</sup> blind mine eyes therewith? and I will restore it you.

4 And they said, Thou hast not defrauded us, nor oppressed us, neither hast thou taken ought of any man's hand.

5 And he said unto them, The LORD is witness against you, and his anointed is witness this day, Verse 1. And Samuel said. It is very likely that it was at this public meeting that Samuel delivered the following address; no other time seems to be given for it, and this is the most proper that could be chosen.

Verse 2. My sons are with you. It is generally agreed that these words intimate that Samuel had deprived them of their public employ, and reduced them to a level with the common people. [The words are more likely intended to confirm what he had said of his own age.]

Have walked before you from my childhood. He had been a long, steady, and immaculate servant of the public.

Verse 3. Witness against me. Did ever a minister of state, in any part of the world, resign his office with so much self-consciousness of integrity, backed with the universal approbation of the public? No man was oppressed under

6 And Samuel said unto the people, <sup>a</sup> It is the LORD that <sup>b</sup> advanced Moses and Aaron, and that brought your fathers up out of the land of Egypt.

7 Now therefore stand still, that I may <sup>c</sup> reason with you before the LORD of all the <sup>d</sup> righteous acts of the LORD, which he did <sup>e</sup> to you and to your fathers.

8 <sup>f</sup> When Jacob was come into Egypt, and your fathers <sup>g</sup> cried unto the LORD, then the LORD <sup>h</sup> sent Moses and Aaron, which brought forth your fathers out of Egypt, and made them dwell in this place.

9 And when they <sup>i</sup> forgot the LORD their God <sup>j</sup> he sold them into the hand of Sisera, captain of the host of Hazor, and into the hand of <sup>k</sup> the Philistines, and into the hand of the king <sup>l</sup> of Moab, and they fought against them.

his government, no man defrauded! He had accumulated no riches for himself; he had procured none for his friends; nor had any needy dependant been provided for out of the public purse.

Verse 4. They said, Thou hast not defrauded. Of what minister or governor can any nation under heaven say such things?

Verse 7. Now therefore stand still. I have arraigned myself before God and you; I now arraign you before God.

Verse 8. The Lord sent Moses and Aaron. He shows them that through all their history God had ever raised them up deliverers, when their necessities required such interference.

Verse 9. The hand of Sisera. See these transactions in the Book of Judges, as marked in the margin; and see the notes on those passages.

LORD, * and have served Baalim and Ashtaroth: but now <sup>b</sup> deliver us out of the hand of our enemies, and we will serve thee.

Verse 11. Jerubbaal] That is, Gideon. And Bedan: instead of Bedan, whose name occurs nowhere else as a judge or deliverer of Israel, the Septuagint have Barak; the same reading is found in the Syriac and Arabic.

Instead of Samuel, the Syriac and Arabic have Samson; and it is most natural to suppose that Samuel does not mention himself in this place. St. Paul's authority confirms these alterations: The time would fall me, says he, to tell of Gideon, of Barak, of Samson, of Jephthah, of David, &c. [But critical authority is in favour of the reading of the Hebrew, especially as it is followed by the Septuagint, Vulgate, and Chaldee.]

Verse 12. When ye saw that Nahash] This was not the first time they had demanded a king; see before, chap. viii. 5. But at this crisis they became more importunate; and it was in consequence of this that the kingdom was a second time confirmed to Saul. Saul was elected at Mizpeh, he was confirmed at Gilgal.

Verse 14. If ye will fear the Lord, &c.] On condition that ye rebel no more, God will take you and your king under his merciful protection, and he and his kingdom shall be confirmed and continued.

Verse 16. This great thing] This unusual occurrence.

Verse 17. Is it not wheat harvest to-day?] That is, This is the time of wheat harvest: about the end of June or beginning of July, in which months it never rains in Judea. What occurred now hardly ever occurs there but in the winter months.

Verse 18. The Lord sent thunder and rain that day] As it came at the call of Samuel, it was a most evident miracle. Greatly feared the Lord] They dreaded His terrible majesty; and they feared Samuel, perceiving that he had so much power with God.

Verse 19. Pray for thy servants—that we die not] As they knew they had rebelled against God, they saw that they had every thing to fear from his justice and power.

We have added unto all our sins this evil] It is no sin to have a king; a good king is one of the greatest blessings of God's providence; but it is a sin to put a man in the place of God. Is it not strange that they did not now attempt to repair their fault? They might have done it, but they did not; they acknowledged their sin, but did not put it away. This is the general way of mankind.

is great, which ye have done in the sight of the LORD, in asking you a king.

18 So Samuel called unto the LORD; and the LORD sent thunder and rain that day: and * all the people greatly feared the LORD and Samuel.

19 And all the people said unto Samuel, * Pray for thy servants unto the LORD thy God, that we die not: for we have added unto all our sins this evil, to ask us a king.

20 And Samuel said unto the people, Fear not: ye have done all this wickedness: yet turn not aside from following the LORD, but serve the LORD with all your heart;

21 And * turn ye not aside: * for then should ye go after vain things, which cannot profit nor deliver; for they are vain.

22 For * the LORD will not forsake his people * for his great name's sake: because * it hath pleased the LORD to make you his people.

23 Moreover, as for me, God forbid that I should sin against the LORD <sup>bb</sup> in <sup>cc</sup> ceasing to pray for you: but <sup>dd</sup> I will teach you the <sup>ee</sup> good and the right way:

24 * Only fear the LORD, and serve him in truth with all your heart: for <sup>ff</sup> consider <sup>hh</sup> how <sup>ii</sup> great things he hath done for you.

Verse 20. Ye have done all this wickedness] That is, although ye have done all this wickedness: what was past God would pass by, provided they would be obedient in future.

Verse 21. After vain things] That is, idols; which he calls here hattohu, the same expression found Gen. i. 2.

Verse 22. The Lord will not forsake his people] His purpose in preserving them in their land and religion was not yet accomplished. It was not however for their sake that he would not cast them off, but for his own great name's sake. He drew his reasons from himself.

Verse 23. God forbid that I should sin] They had earnestly begged him, ver. 19, to pray to God for them, that they might not die; and he tells them that he should consider himself a sinner, should he cease to be their intercessor.

But I will teach you the good and the right way] I will show you, as long as I am with you, what true religion is; it is the way to happiness and heaven. It is right—there is no crookedness in it; it is good—there is no evil in it.

Verse 24. Only fear the Lord] Know, respect, and reverence him.

Serve him] Consider him your Lord and Master; consider yourselves his servants.

In truth] Be ever honest, ever sincere: with all your heart—have every affection engaged in the work of obedience; act not merely from a principle of duty, but also from a pious affectionate sense of obligation. Act towards your God as an affectionate child should act towards a tender and loving parent.

Consider how great things] Review the history of your fathers, review your own life; see what interpositions of power, mercy, goodness, and truth God has displayed in your behalf! Has he not daily loaded you with his benefits?

Verse 25. Ye shall be consumed] If ye do wickedly you shall be destroyed, your kingdom destroyed, and your king destroyed. Here they had set before them life and good, death and evil. Never was a people more fully warned, and never did a people profit less by the warning; and they continue to this day monuments of God's justice and forbearance.

CHAPTER XIII.

Saul chooses a body of troops, 1, 2. Jonathan smites a garrison of the Philistines, 3, 4. The Philistines gather together an immense host against Israel, 5. The Israelites are afraid; and some hide themselves in caves, and others flee over Jordan, 6, 7. Samuel delaying his coming, Saul offers sacrifice, 8, 9. Samuel comes and reproves him, and Saul excuses himself, 10-12. Samuel shows him that God has rejected him from being captain over his people, 13, 14. Samuel departs; and Saul and Jonathan, with six hundred men, abide in Gibeah, 15, 16. The Philistines send out foraging companies, and waste the land, 17, 18. Desolate state of the Israelitish army, having no weapons of defence against their enemies, 19-23.

SAUL *reigned one year; and when he had reigned two years over Israel,

2 Saul chose him three thousand men of Israel; whereof two thousand were with Saul in Michmash and in Mount Beth-el, and a thousand were with Jonathan in <sup>b</sup> Gibeah of Benjamin: and the rest of the people he sent every man to his tent.

3 And Jonathan smote the <sup>c</sup> garrison of the Philistines that was in <sup>d</sup> Geba, and the Philistines heard of it. And Saul blew the trumpet throughout all the land, saying, Let the Hebrews hear.

4 And all Israel heard say that Saul had smitten a garrison of the Philistines, and that Israel also <sup>e</sup> was had in abomination with the Philistines. And the people were called together after Saul to Gilgal.

5 And the Philistines gathered themselves together to fight with Israel, thirty thousand chariots, and six thousand horsemen, and people as the sand which is on the sea-shore in multitude: and they came up, and pitched in Michmash, eastward from Beth-aven.

6 When the men of Israel saw that they were in a strait, (for the people were distressed,) then the people <sup>f</sup> did hide themselves in caves, and in thickets, and in rocks, and in high places, and in pits.

7 And some of the Hebrews went over Jordan to the land of Gad and Gilead. As for Saul, he was yet in Gilgal, and all the people <sup>g</sup> followed him trembling.

8 <sup>h</sup> And he tarried seven days, according to the set time that Samuel had appointed: but Samuel came not to Gilgal; and the people were scattered from him.

9 And Saul said, Bring hither a burnt-offering to

[Verse 1. Saul reigned one year] A great deal of learned labour has been employed and lost on this verse, to reconcile it with propriety and common sense. I shall not recount the meanings put on it. I think this clause belongs to the preceding chapter, either as a part of the whole, or a chronological note afterwards; as if the writer had said, These things (related in chap. xii.) took place in the first year of Saul's reign: and then he proceeds in the next place to tell us what took place in the second year, the two most remarkable years of Saul's reign. In the first he is appointed, unointed, and twice confirmed, viz., at Mizpeh and at Gilgal; in the second, Israel is brought into the lowest state of degradation by the Philistines, Saul acts unconstitutionally, and is rejected from being king. These things were worthy of an especial chronological note. [This interpretation does not fully meet the difficulty. The original refers obviously to Saul's age when he began to reign, and to the term of his reign. It is assumed that in both passages a numeral letter must have been dropped. All other interpretations violate the construction of the Hebrew.]

And when he had reigned] This should begin the chapter and be read thus: "And when Saul had reigned two years over Israel, he chose him three thousand," &c. The Septuagint have left the clause out of the text entirely, and begin the chapter thus: "And Saul chose to himself three thousand men out of the men of Israel."

[Verse 2. Two thousand were with Saul] Saul, no doubt, meditated the redemption of his country from the Philistines; and having chosen three thousand men, he thought best to divide them into companies, and send one against the Philistine garrison at Michmash, another against that at Beth-el, and the third against that at Gibeah; he perhaps hoped, by surprising these garrisons, to get swords and spears for his men, of which we find (ver. 22) they were entirely destitute.

[Verse 3. Jonathan smote] He appears to have taken this garrison by surprise, for his men had no arms for a regular battle, or taking the place by storm. This is the first place in which this brave and excellent man appears; a man who bears one of the most amiable characters in the Bible.

Let the Hebrews hear.] Probably this means the people who dwell beyond Jordan, who might very naturally be termed here haibrim, from abar, he passed over; those who are beyond the river Jordan: as Abraham was called Ibri because he dwelt beyond the river Euphrates. [But the next verse evidently proves that the trumpet was blown in order that the Hebrews might hear.]

[Verse 4. The people were called together] The smiting of this garrison was the commencement of a war, and in effect the shaking off of the Philistine yoke; and now the people found that they must stand together, and fight for their lives.

[Verse 5. Thirty thousand chariots, and six thousand horsemen] There is no proportion here between the chariots and the cavalry. The largest armies ever brought into the field, even by mighty emperors, never were furnished with thirty thousand chariots.

I think sheloshim, THIRTY, is a false reading for shalosh, THREE. The Syriac and the Arabic both have THREE thousand; and this was a fair proportion to the horsemen.

[Verse 6. The people did hide themselves] They, being few in number, and totally unarmed as to swords and spears, were terrified at the very numerous and well-appointed army of the Philistines. Judea was full of rocks, caves, thickets, &c., where people might shelter themselves from their enemies. While some hid themselves, others fled beyond Jordan; and those who did cleave to Saul followed him trembling.

[Verse 8. He tarried seven days, according to the set time] Samuel had at this time promised to come to him within seven days, and he kept his word, for we find him there before the day was ended; but as Saul found he did not come at the beginning of the seventh day, he became impatient, took the whole business into his own hand, and acted the parts of prophet, priest, and king; and thus he attempted a most essential change in the Israelitish constitution. What such a rash person might have done, if he had not been deprived of his authority, who can tell? But his conduct on this occasion sufficiently justifies that deprivation.

[Verse 9. And he offered the burnt-offering.] This was most perfectly unconstitutional; he had no authority to offer, or cause to be offered, any of the Lord's sacrifices. [The original does not say that Saul himself acted the part of priest.]

me, and peace-offerings. And he offered the burnt-offering.

10 And it came to pass, that as soon as he had made an end of offering the burnt-offering, behold, Samuel came; and Saul went out to meet him, that he might <sup>a</sup> salute him.

11 And Samuel said, What hast thou done? And Saul said, Because I saw that the people were scattered from me, and that thou camest not within the days appointed, and that the Philistines gathered themselves together at Michmash:

12 Therefore said I, The Philistines will come down upon me to Gilgal, and I have not <sup>b</sup> made supplication unto the LORD: I forced myself therefore, and offered a burnt-offering.

13 And Samuel said to Saul, <sup>c</sup>Thou hast done foolishly: <sup>d</sup>thou hast not kept the commandment of the LORD thy God, which he commanded thee: for now would the LORD have established thy kingdom upon Israel for ever.

14 <sup>e</sup>But now thy kingdom shall not continue: <sup>f</sup>the LORD hath sought him a man after his own heart, and the LORD hath commanded him to be captain over his people, because thou hast not kept that which the LORD commanded thee.

15 And Samuel arose, and gat him up from Gilgal unto Gibeah of Benjamin. And Saul numbered the people that were <sup>g</sup>present with him, <sup>h</sup>about six hundred men.

Verse 10. Behold, Samuel came] Samuel was punctual to his appointment; one hour longer of delay would have prevented every evil, and by it no good would have been lost. How often are the effects of precipitation fatal!

Verse 11. And Saul said] Here he offers three excuses for his conduct: 1. The people were fast leaving his standard. 2. Samuel did not come at the time, temoed; at the very commencement of the time he did not come, but within that time he did come. 3. The Philistines were coming fast upon him. Saul should have waited out the time; and at all events he should not have gone contrary to the counsel of the Lord.

Verse 12. I forced myself] It was with great reluctance that I did what I did. In all this Saul was sincere, but he was rash, and regardless of the precept of the Lord, which precept or command he most evidently had received, ver. 13. And one part of this precept was, that the Lord should tell him what he should do.

Verse 14. The Lord hath sought him a man after his own heart] That this man was David is sufficiently clear from the sequel. But in what sense was he a man after God's own heart? In all his public official conduct he acted according to the divine mind, and fulfilled the will of his Maker. In reference to his private or personal moral conduct, the word is never used. This is the sense alone in which the word is used here and elsewhere; and it is unfair and wicked to put another meaning on it in order to ridicule the revelation of God, as certain infidels have done.

Verse 15. And Samuel arose] Though David, in the Divine purpose, is appointed to be captain over the people, yet Saul is not to be removed from the government during his life; Samuel therefore accompanies him to Gibeah, to give him the requisite help in this conjuncture.

16 And Saul, and Jonathan his son, and the people that were present with them, abode in <sup>i</sup>Gibeah of Benjamin: but the Philistines encamped in Michmash.

17 And the spoilers came out of the camp of the Philistines in three companies: one company turned unto the way that leadeth to <sup>j</sup>Ophrah, unto the land of Shual:

18 And another company turned the way to <sup>k</sup>Beth-horon: and another company turned to the way of the border that looketh to the valley of <sup>l</sup>Zebaim toward the wilderness.

19 Now <sup>m</sup>there was no smith found throughout all the land of Israel: for the Philistines said, Lest the Hebrews make them swords or spears:

20 But all the Israelites went down to the Philistines, to sharpen every man his share, and his coulter, and his axe, and his mattock.

21 Yet they had <sup>n</sup>a file for the mattocks, and for the coulters, and for the forks, and for the axes, and <sup>o</sup>to sharpen the goads.

22 So it came to pass in the day of battle, that <sup>p</sup>there was neither sword nor spear found in the hand of any of the people that were with Saul and Jonathan; but with Saul and with Jonathan his son was there found.

23 <sup>q</sup>And the <sup>r</sup>garrison of the Philistines went out to the passage of Michmash.

About six hundred men.] The whole of the Israelitish army at this time, and not one sword or spear among them!

Verse 17. The spoilers came out] The Philistines, finding that the Israelites durst not hazard a battle, divided their army into three bands, and sent them in three different directions to pillage and destroy the country.

Verse 19. Now there was no smith found] It is very likely that in the former wars the Philistines carried away all the smiths from Israel.

Verse 21. Yet they had a file] The Hebrew petsirah, from patsar, to rub hard, is translated very differently by the Versions and by critics. Our translation may be as likely as any: they permitted them the use of files (I believe the word means grindstones), to restore the blunted edges of their tridents, axes, and goads. [Another rendering is: "And there came to pass a blunting of the edges."]

Verse 22. In the day of battle—there was neither sword nor spear] But if the Israelites enjoyed such profound peace and undisturbed dominion under Samuel, how is it that they were totally destitute of arms, a state which argues the lowest circumstances of oppression and vassalage? In answer to this we may observe, that the bow and the sling were the principal arms of the Israelites; for these they needed no smith; the most barbarous nations, who have never seen iron, have nevertheless bows and arrows; the arrow heads generally made of flint.

Now it is possible that the Israelites had still bows and arrows; these they could have without the smith; and it is as likely that they had slings, and for these they needed none. But then these were missiles; if they came into close fight, they would avail them nothing: for attacks of this kind they would require swords and spears; of these none were found but with Saul and Jonathan.

CHAPTER XIV.

Jonathan and his armour-bearer purpose to attack a garrison of the Philistines, 1. Saul and his army, with Ahiah the priest, tarry in Gibeah, 2, 3. Jonathan plans his attack of the Philistine garrison, 4-10. He and his armour-bearer climb over a rock; attack and rout the garrison, 11-15. Saul and his company, seeing confusion in the Philistine host, come out against them; as did the men who had hidden themselves; and the Philistines are defeated, 16-23. Saul lays every man under a curse who shall eat food until the evening; in consequence of which the people are sorely distressed, 24-26. Jonathan, not hearing the adjuration, eats a little honey, which he found on the ground, 27-30. The Philistines being defeated, the people seize on the spoil, and begin to eat flesh without previously bleeding the animals, which Saul endeavours to prevent, 31-34. He builds an altar there, 35. Inquires of the Lord if he may pursue the Philistines by night, but receives no answer, 36, 37. Attributes this to some sin committed by some unknown person; makes inquiry by lot; and finds that Jonathan had tasted the honey, on which he purposes to put him to death, 38-44. The people interpose, and rescue Jonathan, 45. Saul fights against the Moabites, Ammonites, and Amalekites, 46-48. An account of the family of Saul, 49-52.

NOW 'it came to pass upon a day, that Jonathan the son of Saul said unto the young man that bare his armour, Come and let us go over to the Philistines' garrison, that is on the other side. But he told not his father.

2 And Saul tarried in the uttermost part of Gibeah under a pomegranate-tree which is in Migron: and the people that were with him were about six hundred men;

3 And <sup>a</sup>Ahiah, the son of Ahitub, <sup>a</sup>I-chabod's brother, the son of Phinchas, the son of Eli, the Lord's priest in Shiloh, <sup>a</sup>wearing an ephod. And the people knew not that Jonathan was gone.

4 And between the passages, by which Jonathan sought to go over 'unto the Philistines' garrison, there was a sharp rock on the one side, and a sharp rock on the other side: and the name of the one was Bozez, and the name of the other Seneh.

5 The <sup>a</sup>fore-front of the one was situate northward over against Michmash, and the other southward over against Gibeah.

6 And Jonathan said to the young man that bare his armour, Come, and let us go over unto the garrison of these uncircumcised: it may be that the Lord will work for us: for there is no restraint to the Lord <sup>a</sup>to save by many or by few.

7 And his armour-bearer said unto him, Do all

Verse 1. Come, and let us go over.] This action of Jonathan was totally contrary to the laws of war; no military operation should be undertaken without the knowledge and command of the general. But it is likely that he was led to this by a divine influence.

The armour-bearer is the origin of what we call esquire, from escu, old French, a shield; armiger is the Latin, from arma, weapons, and gero, I bear. In the times of chivalry, the armiger or esquire was the servant of the knight who went after him, and carried his lance, shield, &c. It is now (strange to tell!) a title of honour.

Verse 2. Under a pomegranate-tree.] Under Rimmon, which not only signifies a pomegranate-tree, but also a strong rock, in which six hundred Benjamites took shelter, Judg. ix. 45. [But the rock Rimmon was on the north-east of Michmash, at a distance from Migron.]

Verse 3. Ahiah, the son of Ahitub.] Phinchas, son of Eli the high-priest, had two sons, Ahitub and I-chabod; the latter was born when the ark was taken, and his mother died immediately after. Ahiah is also called Ahimelech, chap. xxii. 9.

Wearing an ephod.] That is, performing the functions of the high-priest. This man does not appear to have been with Saul when he offered the sacrifices, chap. xiii. 9, &c.

Verse 4. The name of the one was Bozez.] Slippery; and the name of the other Seneh, treading down.

that is in thine heart: turn thee; behold, I am with thee according to thy heart.

8 Then said Jonathan, Behold, we will pass over unto these men, and we will discover ourselves unto them.

9 If they say thus unto us, 'Tarry until we come to you; then we will stand still in our place, and will not go up unto them.

10 But if they say thus, Come up unto us; then we will go up; for <sup>a</sup>the Lord hath delivered them into our hand: and <sup>a</sup>this shall be a sign unto us.

11 And both of them discovered themselves unto the garrison of the Philistines: and the Philistines said, Behold, the Hebrews come forth out of the holes where they had hid themselves.

12 And the men of the garrison answered Jonathan and his armour-bearer, and said, Come up to us, and we will shew you a thing. And Jonathan said unto his armour-bearer, Come up after me: for the Lord hath delivered them into the hand of Israel.

13 And Jonathan climbed up upon his hands and upon his feet, and his armour-bearer after him: and they fell before Jonathan; and his armour-bearer slew after him.

14 And that first slaughter, which Jonathan and his armour-bearer made, was about twenty men, <sup>b</sup> Judg. vii. 4, 7. 2 Chron. xiv. 11. 1 Mac. iii. 18. — <sup>c</sup> Heb. be still. — <sup>d</sup> 1 Mac. iv. 30. — <sup>e</sup> See Gen. xxiv. 14. Judg. vii. 11.

Verse 6. Let us go over.] Moved, doubtless, by a divine impulse.

There is no restraint to the Lord.] This is a fine sentiment; and where there is a promise of defence and support, the weakest, in the face of the strongest enemy, may rely on it with the utmost confidence.

Verse 7. Behold, I am with thee.] I shall accompany thee whithersoever thou goest, and share all thy dangers.

Verse 9. If they say thus unto us.] Jonathan had no doubt asked this as a sign from God; exactly as Eliezer, the servant of Abraham, did, Gen. xxiv. 12.

Verse 12. Come up to us, and we will shew you a thing.] This was the favourable sign which Jonathan had requested. The Philistines seem to have meant, Come, and we will show you how well fortified we are, and how able to quell all the attacks of your countrymen.

Verse 13. Jonathan climbed up.] It seems he had a part of the rock still to get over. When he got over, he began to slay the guards, who were about twenty in number; these were a sort of out-post or advanced guard to the garrison.

Slew after him.] Jonathan knocked them down, and the armour-bearer dispatched him. This seems to be the meaning.

Verse 14. An half acre of land.] The ancients measured land by the quantum which a yoke of oxen could plough in a day. The original is obscure, and is variously understood.

within as it were <sup>a</sup> half acre of land, which a yoke of oxen might plow.

15 And <sup>b</sup> there was trembling in the host, in the field, and among all the people: the garrison, and <sup>c</sup> the spoilers, they also trembled, and the earth quaked: so it was <sup>d</sup> a very great trembling.

16 And the watchmen of Saul in Gibeah of Benjamin looked; and, behold, the multitude melted away, and they <sup>e</sup> went on beating down one another.

17 Then said Saul unto the people that were with him, Number now, and see who is gone from us. And when they had numbered, behold, Jonathan and his armour-bearer were not there.

18 And Saul said unto Ahiah, Bring hither the ark of God. For the ark of God was at that time with the children of Israel.

19 And it came to pass, while Saul <sup>f</sup> talked unto the priest, that the <sup>g</sup> noise that was in the host of the Philistines went on and increased: and Saul said unto the priest, Withdraw thine hand.

20 And Saul and all the people that were with him <sup>h</sup> assembled themselves, and they came to the battle: and, behold, <sup>i</sup> every man's sword was against his fellow, and there was a very great discomfiture.

21 Moreover the Hebrews that were with the Philistines before that time, which went up with them into the camp from the country round about, even they also <sup>j</sup> turned to be with the Israelites that were with Saul and Jonathan.

22 Likewise all the men of Israel which <sup>k</sup> had hid themselves in Mount Ephraim, when they heard that the Philistines fled, even they also followed hard after them in the battle.

23 <sup>l</sup> So the LORD saved Israel that day: and the battle passed over <sup>m</sup> unto Beth-aven.

24 And the men of Israel were distressed that day: for Saul had <sup>n</sup> adjured the people, saying, Cursed be the man that eateth any food until evening, that I may be avenged on mine enemies. So none of the people tasted any food.

It is probably a proverbial expression for a very small space. [Perhaps a furrow.]

Verse 15. There was trembling in the host] The trembling of the earth is probably not to be taken literally, but as a metaphor for a great commotion in the country, though God might have interposed in an extraordinary manner, and produced a real earthquake; but their being panic-struck was sufficient to produce all the requisite confusion and dismay.

Verse 16. The watchmen of Saul] Those who were sent out as scouts to observe the motions of the army.

Melted away] There was no order in the Philistine camp, and the people were dispersing in all directions.

Verse 17. Number now] Saul perceived that the Philistines were routed, but could not tell by what means; supposing that it must be by some of his own troops, he called a muster to see who and how many were absent.

Verse 18. Bring hither the ark of God.] He wished to inquire what use he should make of the present favourable circumstances, and to proceed in the business as God should direct.

Verse 19. While Saul talked unto the priest] Before he had made an end of consulting him, the increasing noise of the panic-struck Philistines called his attention; and finding there was no time to lose, he immediately collected his men and fell on them.

Verse 21. The Hebrews that were with the Philistines] We may understand such as they held in bondage, or who were their servants.

Verse 24. Saul had adjured the people] He was afraid, 25 <sup>o</sup> And all they of the land came to a wood; and there was <sup>p</sup> honey upon the ground.

26 And when the people were come into the wood, behold, the honey dropped; but no man put his hand to his mouth: for the people feared the oath.

27 But Jonathan heard not when his father charged the people with the oath: wherefore he put forth the end of the rod that was in his hand, and dipped it into an honeycomb, and put his hand to his mouth; and his eyes were enlightened.

28 Then answered one of the people, and said, Thy father straitly charged the people with an oath, saying, Cursed be the man that eateth any food this day. And the people were <sup>q</sup> faint.

29 Then said Jonathan, My father hath troubled the land: see, I pray you, how mine eyes have been enlightened, because I tasted a little of this honey.

30 How much more, if haply the people had eaten freely to day of the spoil of their enemies which they found? for had there not been now a much greater slaughter among the Philistines.

31 And they smote the Philistines that day from Michmash to Ajalon: and the people were very faint.

32 And the people flew upon the spoil, and took sheep, and oxen, and calves, and slew them on the ground: and the people did eat them <sup>r</sup> with the blood.

33 Then they told Saul, saying, Behold, the people sin against the LORD, in that they eat with the blood. And he said, Ye have <sup>s</sup> transgressed: roll a great stone unto me this day.

34 And Saul said, Disperse yourselves among the people, and say unto them, Bring me hither every man his ox, and every man his sheep, and slay them here, and eat; and sin not against the LORD in eating with the blood. And all the people brought every man his ox <sup>t</sup> with him that night, and slew them there.

—<sup>o</sup> Josh. vi. 20.—<sup>p</sup> Deut. ix. 28. Mat. iii. 5.—<sup>q</sup> Exod. iii. 8. Num. xiii. 27. Mat. iii. 4.—<sup>r</sup> Or, weary.—<sup>s</sup> Lev. iii. 17. vii. 26. xvii. 10. xix. 26. Deut. xii. 16, 23, 24.—<sup>t</sup> Or, dealt treacherously.—<sup>u</sup> Heb. in his hand.—<sup>v</sup> Ch. vii. 17.

if they waited to refresh themselves, the Philistines would escape out of their hands, and therefore he made the taking any food till sunset a capital crime. This was the very means of defeating his own intention.

Verse 25. There was honey upon the ground] There were many wild bees in that country, and Judea is expressly said to be a land flowing with milk and honey.

Verse 26. The honey dropped] It seems to have dropped from the trees on the ground. Honey dews, as they are called, are not uncommon in most countries; and this appears to have been something of this kind.

Verse 27. His eyes were enlightened.] Hunger and fatigue affect and dim the sight; on taking food, this affection is immediately removed.

Verse 31. They smote the Philistines—from Michmash to Ajalon] The distance Calmet states to be three or four leagues.

Verse 32. The people did eat them with the blood.] They were faint through hunger, and did not take time to bleed the cattle on which they fed. This was another bad effect of Saul's rash adjuration.

Verse 33. Roll a great stone unto me] Probably this means that they should set up an altar to the Lord, on which the animals might be properly slain, and the blood poured out upon the earth.

Verse 35. Saul built an altar] Samuel, as prophet, had hitherto erected the altars, and Saul thought he had sufficient authority to erect one himself without the prophet, as he once offered sacrifice without him.

* the same was the first altar that he built unto the LORD.

36 And Saul said, Let us go down after the Philistines by night, and spoil them until the morning light, and let us not leave a man of them. And they said, Do whatsoever seemeth good unto thee. Then said the priest, Let us draw near hither unto God.

37 And Saul asked counsel of God, Shall I go down after the Philistines? wilt thou deliver them into the hand of Israel? But <sup>b</sup> he answered him not that day.

38 And Saul said, Draw ye near hither, all the chief of the people: and know and see wherein this sin hath been this day.

39 For, <sup>c</sup> as the LORD liveth, which saveth Israel, though it be in Jonathan my son, he shall surely die. But there was not a man among all the people that answered him.

40 Then said he unto all Israel, Be ye on one side, and I and Jonathan my son will be on the other side. And the people said unto Saul, Do what seemeth good unto thee.

41 Therefore Saul said unto the LORD God of Israel, Give <sup>a</sup> a perfect lot. <sup>b</sup> And Saul and Jonathan were taken: but the people <sup>c</sup> escaped.

42 And Saul said, Cast lots between me and Jonathan my son. And Jonathan was taken.

43 Then Saul said to Jonathan, Tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathan told him, and said, I did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod that was in mine hand, and, lo, I must die.

Ch. x. 20, 21.—<sup>i</sup> Heb. went forth.—<sup>j</sup> Josh. vii. 19.

Verse 36. Then said the priest] It is evident that Ahiah doubted the propriety of pursuing the Philistines that night; and as a reverse of fortune might be ruinous after such a victory, he wished to have specific directions from the LORD.

Verse 37. He answered him not that day.] Why was this answer delayed? Surely Jonathan's eating the honey was no sin. This could not have excited God's displeasure.

Verse 42. And Jonathan was taken.] The object of the inquiry most evidently was, "Who has gone contrary to the king's adjuration to-day?" The answer to that must be, JONATHAN. But was this a proof of the divine displeasure against the man? By no means: the holy oracle told the truth, but neither that oracle nor the God who gave it fixed any blame upon Jonathan, and his own conscience acquits him. He seeks not pardon from God, because he is conscious he had not transgressed. But why did not God answer the priest that day? Because he did not think it proper to send the people by night in pursuit of the vanquished Philistines. Saul's motive was perfectly vindictive. Was it right to indulge a disposition of this kind, which would have led to the destruction of many innocent country people, and of many Israelites who resided among the Philistines? Besides, was there not a most manifest reason in the people why God could not be among them? Multitudes of them were defiled in a very solemn manner; they had eaten the flesh with the blood; and however sacrifice might be offered to atone for this transgression of the law, they must continue unclean till the evening. Here were reasons enough why God would not go on with the people for that night.

Verse 44. And Saul answered—thou shalt surely die,

44 And Saul answered, I God do so and more also: <sup>a</sup> for thou shalt surely die, Jonathan.

45 And the people said unto Saul, Shall Jonathan die, who hath wrought this great salvation in Israel? God forbid: <sup>b</sup> as the LORD liveth, there shall not one hair of his head fall to the ground; for he hath wrought with God this day. So the people rescued Jonathan, that he died not.

46 Then Saul went up from following the Philistines: and the Philistines went to their own place.

47 So Saul took the kingdom over Israel and fought against all his enemies on every side, against Moab, and against the children of <sup>c</sup> Ammon, and against Edom, and against the kings of <sup>d</sup> Zobah, and against the Philistines: and whithersoever he turned himself, he vexed them.

48 And he <sup>e</sup> gathered an host, and <sup>f</sup> smote the Amalekites, and delivered Israel out of the hands of them that spoiled them.

49 Now <sup>g</sup> the sons of Saul were Jonathan, and Ishui, and Melchi-shua: and the names of his two daughters were these; the name of the first-born Merab, and the name of the younger Michal:

50 And the name of Saul's wife was Ahinoam, the daughter of Ahimaaz: and the name of the captain of his host was Abner, the son of Ner, Saul's uncle.

51 <sup>h</sup> And Kish was the father of Saul; and Ner the father of Abner was the son of Abiel.

52 And there was sore war against the Philistines all the days of Saul: and when Saul saw any strong man, or any valiant man, <sup>i</sup> he took him unto him.

Jonathan.] To save a rash oath! So must John Baptist's head be taken off at the desire of an impure woman, because a Herod had sworn to give her whatever she might request!

Verse 45. And the people said] Here was a righteous and impartial jury, who brought in a verdict according to the evidence: No man should die but for a breach of the law of God: but Jonathan hath not broken any law of God; therefore Jonathan should not die. And because he should not, therefore he shall not.

He hath wrought with God this day.] God has been commander-in-chief; Jonathan has acted under his directions.

So the people rescued Jonathan] And God testified no displeasure; and perhaps he permitted all this, that he might correct Saul's propensity to rashness and precipitancy.

Verse 47. So Saul took the kingdom] The Targum appears to give the meaning of this expression: "Saul prospered in his government over Israel." And the proofs of his prosperity are immediately subjoined.

Fought against all his enemies] Of the wars which are mentioned here we have no particulars; they must have endured a long time, and have been, at least in general, successful.

Verse 48. Smote the Amalekites] This war is mentioned in the following chapter.

Verse 49. Now the sons of Saul] We do not find Ishbosheth here. [No reason can be assigned.]

Verse 52. When Saul saw any strong man] This was very politic. He thus continued to recruit his army with strong and effective men.

CHAPTER XV.

Samuel sends Saul to destroy the Amalekites, and all their substance, 1-3. Saul collects an immense army, and comes against their city, 4, 5. He desires the Kenites to remove from among the Amalekites, 6. He smites the Amalekites, and takes their king Agag prisoner, and saves the best of the spoil, 7-9. The Lord is displeased, and sends Samuel to reprove him, 10, 11. The conversation between Samuel and Saul, in which the latter endeavours to justify his conduct, 12-23. He is convinced that he has done wrong, and asks pardon, 24-31. Samuel causes Agag to be slain; for which he assigns the reasons, 32-35.

SAMUEL also said unto Saul, * The LORD sent me to anoint thee to be king over his people, over Israel: now therefore hearken thou unto the voice of the words of the LORD.

2 Thus saith the LORD of hosts, I remember that which Amalek did to Israel, <sup>b</sup> how he laid wait for him in the way, when he came up from Egypt.

3 Now go and smite Amalek, and * utterly destroy all that they have, and spare them not; but slay both man and woman, infant and suckling, ox and sheep, camel and ass.

4 And Saul gathered the people together, and numbered them in Telaim, two hundred thousand footmen, and ten thousand men of Judah.

5 And Saul came to a city of Amalek, and <sup>d</sup> laid wait in the valley.

6 And Saul said unto * the Kenites, <sup>f</sup> Go, depart, get you down from among the Amalekites, lest I destroy you with them: for <sup>g</sup> ye shewed kindness to all the children of Israel, when they came up out of Egypt. So the Kenites departed from among the Amalekites.

7 <sup>h</sup> And Saul smote the Amalekites from <sup>i</sup> Havilah until thou comest to <sup>j</sup> Shur, that is over against Egypt.

8 And <sup>k</sup> he took Agag the king of the Amalekites alive, and <sup>l</sup> utterly destroyed all the people with the edge of the sword.

9 But Saul and the people <sup>m</sup> spared Agag, and the best of the sheep, and of the oxen, and <sup>n</sup> of the fatlings, and the lambs, and all that was good, and would not utterly destroy them: but every thing that was vile and refuse, that they destroyed utterly.

Verse 2. I remember that which Amalek did] The Amalekites were a people of Arabia Petraea, who had occupied a tract of country on the frontiers of Egypt and Palestine. They had acted with great cruelty towards the Israelites on their coming out of Egypt. And God then purposed that Amalek as a nation, should be blotted out from under heaven; which purpose was now fulfilled by Saul upwards of four hundred years afterwards!

Verse 3. Slay both man and woman] Nothing could justify such an exterminating decree but the absolute authority of God. This was given; all the reasons of it we do not know; but this we know well, The Judge of all the earth doth right.

Verse 5. Saul came to a city of Amalek] I believe the original should be translated, And Saul came to the city Amalek; their capital being called by the name of their tribe.

Verse 6. Said unto the Kenites] The Kenites were an ancient people. They had a portion of the promised land, near to the city Arad.

11 * It repenteth me that I have set up Saul to be king: for he is <sup>p</sup> turned back from following me, <sup>q</sup> and hath not performed my commandments. And it <sup>r</sup> grieved Samuel; and he cried unto the LORD all night.

12 And when Samuel rose early to meet Saul in the morning, it was told Samuel, saying, Saul came to * Carmel, and, behold, he set him up a place, and is gone about and passed on, and gone down to Gilgal.

13 And Samuel came to Saul: and Saul said unto him, * Blessed be thou of the LORD: I have performed the commandment of the LORD.

14 And Samuel said, What meaneth then this bleating of the sheep in mine ears, and the lowing of the oxen which I hear?

15 And Saul said, They have brought them from the Amalekites: * for the people spared the best of the sheep and of the oxen, to sacrifice unto the LORD thy God; and the rest we have utterly destroyed.

16 Then Samuel said unto Saul, Stay, and I will tell thee what the LORD hath said to me this night. And he said unto him, Say on.

17 And Samuel said, * When thou wast little in thine own sight, wast thou not made the head of the tribes of Israel, and the LORD anointed thee king over Israel?

18 And the LORD sent thee on a journey, and said, Go and utterly destroy the sinners the Amalekites, and fight against them until * they be consumed.

12 Wherefore then didst thou not obey the voice of the LORD, but didst fly upon the spoil, and didst evil in the sight of the LORD?

20 And Saul said unto Samuel, Yea, * I have

Verse 7. From Havilah—to Shur] From Pelusium, in Egypt, unto the Red Sea.—Josephus. But Havilah lay eastward from the Red Sea; the Amalekites lay between this and the way to Egypt towards Shur.

Verse 11. It repenteth me that I have set up Saul] I intended, if he had been obedient, to have established his kingdom. He has been disobedient; I change my purpose, and the kingdom shall not be established in his family. This is what is meant by God's repenting—changing a purpose according to conditions already laid down or mentally determined.

Verse 12. He set him up a place] Literally, a hand, yad. Some say it was a monument; others, a triumphal arch: probably it was no more than a hand, pointing out the place where Saul had gained the victory. Abimelech's pillar is called the hand of Abimelech, 2 Sam. xviii. 18.

Verse 15. The people spared the best of the sheep] That they might not love war, God had interdicted spoil and plunder; so the war was undertaken merely from a sense of duty, without any hope of enriching themselves by it.

Verse 17. Little in thine own sight] Who can bear prosperity? Is it not of the Lord's great goodness that the obeyed the voice of the LORD, and have gone the way which the LORD sent me, and have brought Agag the king of Amalek, and have utterly destroyed the Amalekites.

21 * But the people took of the spoil, sheep and oxen, the chief of the things which should have been utterly destroyed, to sacrifice unto the LORD thy God in Gilgal.

22 And Samuel said, b Hath the LORD as great delight in burnt-offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the LORD? Behold, c to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams.

23 For rebellion is as the sin of d witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry. Because thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, e he hath also rejected thee from being king.

24 f And Saul said unto Samuel, I have sinned: for I have transgressed the commandment of the LORD, and thy words: because I g feared the people, and obeyed their voice.

25 Now, therefore, I pray thee, pardon my sin, and turn again with me, that I may worship the LORD.

26 And Samuel said unto Saul, I will not return with thee: h for thou hast rejected the word of the LORD, and the LORD hath rejected thee from being king over Israel.

27 And as Samuel turned about to go away, i he laid hold upon the skirt of his mantle, and it rent.

28 And Samuel said unto him, 'The LORD hath rent the kingdom of Israel from thee this day, and hath given it to a neighbour of thine, that is better than thou.

29 And also the k Strength of Israel l will not lie nor repent; for he is not a man, that he should repent.

30 Then he said, I have sinned: yet m honour me now, I pray thee, before the elders of my people, and before Israel, and turn again with me that I may worship the LORD thy God.

31 So Samuel turned again after Saul; and Saul worshipped the LORD.

32 Then said Samuel, Bring ye hither to me Agag king of the Amalekites. And Agag came unto him delicately. And Agag said, Surely the bitterness of death is past.

33 And Samuel said, n As thy sword hath made women childless, so shall thy mother be childless among women. And Samuel hewed Agag in pieces before the LORD in Gilgal.

34 Then Samuel went to Ramah; and Saul went up to his house to o Gibeah of Saul.

35 And p Samuel came no more to see Saul until the day of his death: nevertheless Samuel q mourned for Saul: and the LORD r repented that he had made Saul king over Israel.

majority of the inhabitants of the earth are in comparative poverty?

Verse 21. To sacrifice unto the Lord] Thus he endeavours to excuse the people. They did not take the spoil in order to enrich themselves by it, but to sacrifice unto the Lord; and did not this motive justify their conduct?

Verse 22. Hath the Lord as great delight, &c.] This was a very proper answer to, and refutation of, Saul's excuse. Is not obedience to the will of God the end of all religion, of its rites, ceremonies, and sacrifices?

Verse 23. For rebellion is as the sin of witchcraft, and stubbornness is as iniquity and idolatry.] The meaning of this difficult place may be the following: As transgression comes from iniquity, divination from teraphim, and rebellion from stubbornness, so, because thou hast rejected the word of the Lord, he hath also rejected thee from being king.

Verse 24. I have sinned—because I feared the people] This was the best excuse he could make for himself; but had he feared God more, he need have feared the PEOPLE less.

Verse 25. Pardon my sin] Literally, bear my sin; take it away; forgive what I have done against thee, and be my intercessor with God, that he may forgive my offence against him; turn again with me, that I may worship the Lord.

Verse 26. I will not return with thee] I cannot acknowledge thee as king, seeing the Lord hath rejected thee.

Verse 29. The Strength of Israel will not lie] What God has purposed he will bring to pass, for he has all power in the heavens and in the earth; and he will not repent—change his purpose, concerning thee.

We may say it was some extenuation of Saul's fault that the people insisted on preserving the best of the prey; for who could resist the demands of a victorious mob? But his crime was in consenting; had he not, the crime would have been theirs alone.

Verse 32. Agag came unto him delicately.] The original, maadannoth, delicacies; probably ish, man, understood; a man of delights, a pleasure taker. [Or rather he came in the joyous hope of escaping death.]

Surely the bitterness of death is past.] Almost all the Versions render this differently from ours. Surely death is bitter, is their general sense; and this seems to be the true meaning.

Verse 33. As thy sword hath made women childless] It appears that Agag had forfeited his life by his own personal transgressions, and that his death now was the retribution of his cruelties.

And Samuel hewed Agag in pieces] 1. What Samuel did here he did in his magisterial capacity; and 2. It is not likely he did it by his own sword, but by that of an executioner.

Verse 35. And Samuel came no more to see Saul] But we read, chap. xix. 22-24, that Saul went to see Samuel at Naioth, but this does not affect what is said here. From this time Samuel had no connexion with Saul; he never more acknowledged him as king; he mourned and prayed for him, and continued to perform his prophetic functions at Ramah, and at Naioth, superintending the school of the prophets in that place.

CHAPTER XVI.

Samuel is sent from Ramah to Beth-lehem, to anoint David, 1-13. The Spirit of the Lord departs from Saul, and an evil spirit comes upon him, 14. His servants exhort him to get a skilful harper to play before him, 15, 16. He is pleased with the counsel, and desires them to find such a person, 17. They recommend David, 18. He is sent for, comes, plays before Saul, and finds favour in his sight, 19-23.

AND the LORD said unto Samuel, "How long wilt thou mourn for Saul, seeing <sup>b</sup>I have rejected him from reigning over Israel? <sup>c</sup>fill thine horn with oil, and go, I will send thee to Jesse the Beth-lehemite: for <sup>d</sup>I have provided me a king among his sons.

2 And Samuel said, How can I go? if Saul hear it, he will kill me. And the LORD said, Take an heifer <sup>e</sup>with thee, and say, 'I am come to sacrifice to the LORD.

3 And call Jesse to the sacrifice and <sup>f</sup>I will shew thee what thou shalt do: and <sup>g</sup>thou shalt anoint unto me <sup>h</sup>him whom I name unto thee.

4 And Samuel did that which the LORD spake, and came to Beth-lehem. And the elders of the town <sup>i</sup>trembled at his <sup>j</sup>coming, and said, <sup>k</sup>Comest thou peaceably?

5 And he said, Peaceably: I am come to sacrifice unto the LORD: <sup>l</sup>sanctify yourselves, and come with me to the sacrifice. And he sanctified Jesse and his sons, and called them to the sacrifice.

6 And it came to pass, when they were come, that he looked on <sup>m</sup>Eliab, and <sup>n</sup>said, Surely the LORD's anointed <sup>o</sup>is before him.

7 But the LORD said unto Samuel, Look not on <sup>p</sup>his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: <sup>q</sup>for the LORD seeth not as man seeth; for man <sup>r</sup>looketh on the <sup>s</sup>outward appearance, but the LORD looketh on the <sup>t</sup>heart.

8 Then Jesse called <sup>u</sup>Abinadab, and made him pass before Samuel. And he said, Neither hath the LORD chosen this.

9 Then Jesse made <sup>v</sup>Shammah <sup>w</sup>to pass by. And he said, Neither hath the LORD chosen this.

10 Again, Jesse made seven of his sons to pass before Samuel. And Samuel said unto Jesse, The LORD hath not chosen these.

11 And Samuel said unto Jesse, Are here all <sup>x</sup>thy children? And he said, <sup>y</sup>There remaineth yet the youngest, and, behold, he keepeth the sheep. And Samuel said unto Jesse, <sup>z</sup>Send and fetch him: for we will not sit <sup>aa</sup>down till he come hither.

12 And he sent, and brought him in. Now he <sup>ab</sup>was <sup>ac</sup>ruddy, and withal <sup>ad</sup>of a beautiful countenance, and goodly to look to. <sup>ae</sup>And the LORD said, Arise, anoint him: for this <sup>af</sup>is he.

13 Then Samuel took the horn of oil, and <sup>ag</sup>anointed him in the midst of his brethren: and <sup>ah</sup>the Spirit of the LORD came upon David from that day forward. So Samuel rose up, and went to Ramah.

14 <sup>ai</sup>But the Spirit of the LORD departed from Saul, and <sup>aj</sup>an evil spirit from the LORD <sup>ak</sup>troubled him.

15 And Saul's servants said unto him, Behold now, an evil spirit from God troubleth thee.

16 Let our lord now command thy servants, <sup>al</sup>which are <sup>am</sup>before thee, to seek out a man, <sup>an</sup>who is a cunning player on an harp: and it shall come to pass, when the evil spirit from God is upon thee, that he shall <sup>ao</sup>play with his hand and thou shalt be well.

17 And Saul said unto his servants, Provide me now a man that can play well, and bring <sup>ap</sup>him to me.

18 Then answered one of the servants, and said, Behold, I have seen a son of Jesse the Beth-lehemite <sup>aq</sup>that is cunning in playing, and <sup>ar</sup>a mighty valiant man, and a man of war, and prudent in <sup>as</sup>his matters, and a comely person, and <sup>at</sup>the LORD is with him.

19 Wherefore Saul sent messengers unto Jesse, and said, Send me David thy son, <sup>au</sup>which is with the sheep.

20 And Jesse <sup>av</sup>took an ass <sup>aw</sup>laden with bread, and a bottle of wine, and a kid, and sent <sup>ax</sup>them by David his son unto Saul.

Verse 1. Fill thine horn with oil.] Horns appear to have been the ancient drinking vessels of all nations; and we may suppose that most persons who had to travel much, always carried one with them, for the purpose of taking up water from the fountains to quench their thirst.

Verse 2. Take an heifer with thee, and say, I am come to sacrifice.] This was strictly true, Samuel did offer a sacrifice; and it does not appear that he could have done the work which God designed, unless he had offered this sacrifice, and called the elders of the people together, and thus collected Jesse's sons. But he did not tell the principal design of his coming; had he done so, it would have produced evil and no good: and though no man, in any circumstances, should ever tell a lie, yet in all circumstances he is not obliged to tell the whole truth, though in every circumstance he must tell nothing but the truth, and in every case so tell the truth that the hearer shall not believe a lie by it.

Verse 3. Call Jesse to the sacrifice.] The common custom was, after the blood of the victim had been poured out to God, and the fat burnt, to feast on the flesh of the sacrifice. This appears to have been the case in all, except in the whole burnt-offering; this was entirely consumed.

Verse 4. The elders of the town trembled at his coming.] They knew he was a prophet of the Lord, and they were afraid that he was now come to denounce some judgments of the Most High against their city.

Verse 5. Sanctify yourselves.] Change your clothes, and wash your bodies in pure water, and prepare your minds by meditation, reflection, and prayer; that, being in the spirit of sacrifice, ye may offer acceptably to the Lord.

Verse 7. Man looketh on the outward appearance.] And it is well he should, and confine his looks to that; for when he pretends to sound the heart, he usurps the prerogative of God.

In what way were these communications made from God to Samuel? It must have been by direct inspirations into his heart. But what a state of holy familiarity does this argue between God and the prophet! I believe Moses himself was not more highly favoured than Samuel.

Verse 10. Seven of his sons.] This certainly was not done publicly; Samuel, Jesse, and his children must have been in a private apartment, previously to the public feast on the sacrifice; for Samuel says, ver. 11, We will not sit down till he (David) come.

Verse 12. He was ruddy.] I believe the word here means red-haired, he had golden locks. Hair of this kind is ever associated with a delicate skin and florid complexion.

Verse 13. The Spirit of the Lord came upon David.] God qualified him to be governor of his people, by infusing such graces as wisdom, prudence, counsel, courage, liberality, and magnanimity.

Verse 14. The Spirit of the Lord departed from Saul.] God seems to have taken what gifts he had, and given them to David: and then the evil spirit came upon Saul; for what God fills not, the devil will.

An evil spirit from the Lord.] The evil spirit was either immediately sent from the Lord, or permitted to come. Whether this was a diabolic possession or a mere mental malady, the learned are not agreed; it seems to have partaken of both. That Saul had fallen into a deep melancholy 21 And David came to Saul, and <sup>a</sup>stood before him: and he loved him greatly; and he became his armour-bearer.

22 And Saul sent to Jesse, saying, Let David, I pray thee, stand before me; for he hath found favour in my sight.

there is little doubt; that the devil might work more effectually on such a state of mind, there can be but little question. There is an old proverb, Satan delights to fish in troubled waters; and Saul's situation of mind gave him many advantages.

Verse 20. Took an ass laden with bread] He must send a present to Saul to introduce his son, and this was probably the best he had.

Verse 23. The evil spirit from God] The word evil is not in the common Hebrew text.

23 And it came to pass, when <sup>b</sup>the evil spirit from God was upon Saul, that David took an harp, and played with his hand: so Saul was refreshed, and was well, and the evil spirit departed from him.

Prov. xxii. 29.—<sup>b</sup> Ver. 14, 16.

There are several difficulties in this chapter; those of the chronology are pretty well cleared, in the opinion of some, by the observations of Bishop Warburton; but there is still something more to be done to make this point entirely satisfactory. Saul's evil spirit, and the influence of music upon it, are not easily accounted for. I have considered his malady to be of a mixed kind, natural and diabolical; there is too much of apparent nature in it to permit us to believe it was all spiritual, and there is too much of apparent super-natural influence to suffer us to believe that it was all natural.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Philistines gather together against Israel at Ephes-dammim, and Saul and his men pitch their camp near the valley of Elah, 1-3. Goliath of Gath, a gigantic man, whose height was six cubits and a span, defies the armies of Israel, and proposes to end all contests by single combat; his armour is described, 4-11. Saul and his host are greatly dismayed, 12. David, having been sent by his father with provisions to his brethren in the army, hears the challenge, inquires into all circumstances, thinks it a reproach to Israel that no man can be found to accept the challenge, is brought before Saul, and proposes to undertake the combat, 13-32. Saul objects to his youth and inexperience, 33. David shows the grounds on which he undertakes it, 34-37. Saul arms him with his own armour: but David, finding them an incumbrance, puts them off, and takes his staff, his sling, and five stones out of the brook, and goes to meet Goliath, 38-40. The Philistine draws near, despises, defies, and curses him, 41-44. David retorts his defiance, 41-47. They draw near to each other, and David slings a stone, hits Goliath in the forehead, slays him, and cuts off his head with his own sword, 48-51. The Philistines flee, and are pursued by the Israelites, 52, 53. David brings the head of the Philistine to Jerusalem, 54. Conversation between Saul and Abner concerning David, who is in consequence brought before Saul, 55-58.

NOW the Philistines <sup>a</sup>gathered together their armies to battle, and were gathered together at <sup>b</sup>Shochoh, which belongeth to Judah, and pitched between Shochoh and Azekah, in <sup>c</sup>Ephes-dammim.

2 And Saul and the men of Israel were gathered together, and pitched by the valley of Elah, and <sup>d</sup>set the battle in array against the Philistines.

3 And the Philistines stood on a mountain on the

Verse 1. Now the Philistines gathered together] Calmet thinks that this war happened eight years after the anointing of David, and ten or twelve years after the war with the Amalekites.

Shochoh and Azekah] Places which lay to the south of Jerusalem and to the west of Beth-lehem; about five leagues from the former. Ephes-dammim was somewhere in the vicinity, but it is not known where. [Probably its name is preserved in the ruins of Dammim, near the town of Shuweiksh, the modern Shochoh.]

Verse 2. The valley of Elah] Some translate this the turpentine valley, or the valley of the terebinth trees; and others, the valley of oaks. The situation of this valley is well known.

Verse 3. The Philistines stood on a mountain] These were two eminences or hills, from which they could see and talk with each other.

Verse 4. There went out a champion] The original is a middle man, the man between two; that is, as here, the man who undertakes to settle the disputes between two one side, and Israel stood on a mountain on the other side: and there was a valley between them.

4 And there went out a champion, out of the camp of the Philistines, named <sup>a</sup>Goliath, of <sup>b</sup>Gath, whose height was six cubits and a span.

5 And he had an helmet of brass upon his head, and he was <sup>c</sup>armed with a coat of mail; and the weight of the coat was five thousand shekels of brass.

armies or nations. So our ancient champions settled disputes between contending parties by what was termed camp fight; hence the campio or champion.

Whose height was six cubits and a span.] The word cubit signifies the length from cubitus, the elbow, to the top of the middle finger, which is generally rated at one foot six inches. The span is the distance from the top of the middle finger to the end of the thumb, when extended as far as they can stretch on a plain; this is ordinarily nine inches. Were we sure that these were the measures, and their extent, which are intended in the original words, we could easily ascertain the height of this Philistine; it would then be nine feet nine inches, which is a tremendous height for a man.

But the Versions are not all agreed in his height; and the length of the ancient cubit has been variously computed: eighteen inches, twenty inches and a half, and twenty-one inches.

Verse 5. He was armed with a coat of mail] The words in the original mean a coat of mail formed of plates of brass

6 And he had greaves of brass upon his legs, and a target of brass between his shoulders.

7 And the staff of his spear was like a weaver's beam; and his spear's head weighed six hundred shekels of iron: and one bearing a shield went before him.

8 And he stood and cried unto the armies of Israel, and said unto them, Why are ye come out to set your battle in array? am not I a Philistine, and ye servants to Saul? choose you a man for you, and let him come down to me.

9 If he be able to fight with me, and to kill me, then will we be your servants: but if I prevail against him, and kill him, then shall ye be our servants, and serve us.

10 And the Philistine said, I defy the armies of Israel this day; give me a man, that we may fight together.

11 When Saul and all Israel heard those words of the Philistine, they were dismayed, and greatly afraid.

12 Now David was the son of that Ephrathite of Beth-lehem-judah, whose name was Jesse: and he had eight sons: and the man went among men for an old man in the days of Saul.

13 And the three eldest sons of Jesse went and followed Saul to the battle: and the names of his three sons that went to the battle were Eliab the first-born, and next unto him Abinadab, and the third Shammah.

14 And David was the youngest: and the three eldest followed Saul.

15 But David went and returned from Saul to feed his father's sheep at Beth-lehem.

16 And the Philistine drew near morning and evening, and presented himself forty days.

17 And Jesse said unto David his son, Take now for thy brethren an ephah of this parched corn, and these ten loaves, and run to the camp to thy brethren:

18 And carry these ten cheeses unto the captain of their thousand, and look how thy brethren fare, and take their pledge.

19 Now Saul, and they, and all the men of Israel, were in the valley of Elah, fighting with the Philistines.

20 And David rose up early in the morning, and left the sheep with a keeper, and took, and went, as Jesse had commanded him; and he came to the trench, as the host was going forth to the fight, and shouted for the battle.

21 For Israel and the Philistines had put the battle in array, army against army.

22 And David left his carriage in the hand of the keeper of the carriage, and ran into the army, and came and saluted his brethren.

23 And as he talked with them, behold, there came up the champion, the Philistine of Gath, Goliath by name, out of the armies of the Philistines, and spake according to the same words: and David heard them.

24 And all the men of Israel, when they saw the man, fled from him, and were sore afraid.

25 And the men of Israel said, Have ye seen this man that is come up? surely to defy Israel is he come up: and it shall be, that the man who killeth him, the king will enrich him with great riches, and will give him his daughter, and make his father's house free in Israel.

26 And David spake to the men that stood by him, saying, What shall be done to the man that killeth this Philistine, and taketh away the reproach from Israel? for who is this uncircumcised Philistine, that he should defy the armies of the living God?

27 And the people answered him after this manner

The weight—five thousand shekels] Exactly one hundred and fifty-six pounds four ounces avoirdupois. A vast weight for a coat of mail, but not at all out of proportion to the man.

Verse 6. Greaves of brass upon his legs] This species of armour may be seen on many ancient monuments. It was a plate of brass (though perhaps sometimes formed of laminæ or plates, like the mail) which covered the shin or fore part of the leg, from the knee down to the instep, and was buckled with straps behind the leg. From ancient monuments we find that it was commonly worn only on one leg.

A target of brass between his shoulders.] When not actually engaged, soldiers threw their shields behind their backs so that they appeared to rest or hang between the shoulders.

There are different opinions concerning this piece of armour, called here kidon. Some think it was a covering for the shoulders; others, that it was a javelin or dart; others, that it was a lance; some, a club; and others, a sword. It is certainly distinguished from the shield, ver. 41, and is translated a spear, Josh. viii. 18. [It seems to have been a lance. The ancients frequently slung their weapons between the shoulders.]

Verse 7. The staff of his spear was like a weaver's beam] Either like that on which the warp is rolled, or that on which the cloth is rolled. We know not how thick this was, because there were several sorts of looms, and the sizes of the beams very dissimilar.

That is, his spear's head was of iron, and it weighed six hundred shekels; this, according to the former computation, would amount to eighteen pounds twelve ounces.

And one bearing a shield] Taking the proportion of things unknown to those known, the armour of Goliath is supposed to have weighed not less than two hundred and seventy-two pounds thirteen ounces!

Verse 11. Saul and all Israel—were dismayed] They saw no man able to accept the challenge.

Notwithstanding what Bishop Warburton and others have done to clear the chronology of the present printed Hebrew, it is impossible to make a clear consistent sense of the history, unless these verses are omitted. Let any one read the eleventh verse in connexion with the thirty-second, leave out the forty-first, and connect the fifty-fourth with the sixth of chap. xviii., and he will be perfectly convinced that there is nothing wanting to make the sense complete; to say nothing of the other omissions noted above.

Verse 29. Is there not a cause? I believe the meaning is what several of the Versions express: I have spoken but a word. And should a man be made an offender for a word?

Verse 32. And David said] This properly connects with the eleventh verse.

Verse 33. Thou art but a youth.] Supposed to be about twenty-two or twenty-three years of age.

Verse 34. Thy servant kept his father's sheep] He found it necessary to give Saul the reasons why he undertook this combat; and why he expected to be victorious.

Verse 35. The slaying of the lion and the bear mentioned here must have taken place at two different times; perhaps the verse should be read thus: I went out after him (the lion), and smote him, &c. And when he (the bear) rose up against me, I caught him by the beard, and slew him.

Verse 37. Go, and the Lord be with thee.] Saul saw that these were reasonable grounds of confidence, and therefore wished him success.

Verse 38. Saul armed David] He knew that although the battle was the Lord's yet prudent means should be used to secure success.

Verse 39. I cannot go with these] In ancient times it required considerable exercise and training to make a man expert in the use of such heavy armour; armour which in the present day scarcely a man is to be found who is able to carry; and so it must have been then, until that practice which arises from frequent use had made the proprietor perfect. I have not proved them, says David: I am wholly unaccustomed to such armour, and it would be an incumbrance to me.

Verse 40. He took his staff] What we would call his crook.

Five smooth stones] 1. Had they been rough or angular, they would not have passed easily through the air, and their asperities would, in the course of their passage, have given them a false direction. 2. Had they not been smooth, they could not have been readily despatched from the sling.

A shepherd's bag] That in which he generally carried them, seeing he hath defied the armies of the living God.

37 David said moreover, <sup>a</sup> The Lord that delivered me out of the paw of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear, he will deliver me out of the hand of this Philistine. And Saul said unto David, Go, and <sup>a</sup> the Lord be with thee.

38 And Saul <sup>a</sup> armed David with his armour, and he put an helmet of brass upon his head; also he armed him with a coat of mail.

39 And David girded his sword upon his armour, and he assayed to go; for he had not proved it. And David said unto Saul, I cannot go with these; for I have not proved them. And David put them off him.

40 And he took his staff in his hand, and chose him five smooth stones out of the <sup>a</sup> brook, and put them in a shepherd's <sup>a</sup> bag which he had, even in a scrip; and his sling was in his hand: and he drew near to the Philistine.

41 And the Philistine came on and drew near unto David; and the man that bare the shield went before him.

42 And when the Philistine looked about, and saw David, he <sup>a</sup> disdained him: for he was but a youth, and <sup>a</sup> ruddy, and of a fair countenance.

43 And the Philistine said unto David, <sup>a</sup> Am I a dog, that thou comest to me with staves? And the Philistine cursed David by his gods.

44 And the Philistine <sup>a</sup> said to David, Come to me, and I will give thy flesh unto the fowls of the air, and to the beasts of the field.

45 Then said David to the Philistine, Thou comest his provisions while keeping the sheep in the open country.

And his sling] The sling, both among the Greeks and Hebrews, has been a powerful offensive weapon. It is composed of two strings and a leather strap; the strap is in the middle, and is the place where the stone or bullet lies. The string on the right end of the strap is firmly fastened to the hand; that on the left is held between the thumb and middle joint of the forefinger. It is then whirled two or three times round the head; and when discharged, the finger and thumb let go their hold of the left end string. The velocity and force of the string are in proportion to the distance of the strap, where the bullet lies, to the shoulder-joint.

In the use of the sling it requires much practice to hit the mark; but when once this dexterity is acquired, the sling is nearly as fatal as the musket or bow; see on ver. 49. David was evidently an expert marksman; and his sling gave him greatly the advantage over Goliath; an advantage of which the giant does not seem to have been aware. Against him the Philistine could do but little, except in close fight; it is true he appears to have had a javelin or missile spear (see on ver. 6), but David took care to prevent the use of all such weapons, by giving him the first blow.

Verse 42. He disdained him] He held him in contempt; he saw that he was young, and, from his ruddy complexion, supposed him to be effeminate.

Verse 43. Am I a dog, that thou comest to me with staves?] It is very likely that Goliath did not perceive the sling, which David might have kept coiled up within his hand.

Cursed David by his gods.] Prayed his gods to curse him. This long parody between David and Goliath is quite in the style of those times.

Verse 44. Come to me, and I will give thy flesh.] He intended, as soon as he could lay hold on him, to pull him to pieces.

Verse 45. Thou comest to me with a sword] What Goliath expected from his arms, David expected from the ineffable name.

to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield: *but I come to thee in the name of the LORD of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast<sup>b</sup> defied.

46 This day will the LORD<sup>c</sup> deliver thee into mine hand; and I will smite thee, and take thine head from thee; and I will give<sup>d</sup> the carcases of the host of the Philistines this day unto the fowls of the air, and to the wild beasts of the earth; *that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel.

47 And all this assembly shall know that the LORD<sup>e</sup> saveth not with sword and spear: for *the battle is the LORD's, and he will give you into our hands.

48 And it came to pass, when the Philistine arose and came and drew nigh to meet David, that David hastened, and ran toward the army to meet the Philistine.

49 And David put his hand in his bag, and took thence a stone, and slang it, and smote the Philistine in his forehead, that the stone sunk into his forehead; and he fell upon his face to the earth.

50 So<sup>f</sup> David prevailed over the Philistine with a sling and with a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slew him; but there was no sword in the hand of David.

51 Therefore David ran, and stood upon the Philistine, and took his sword, and drew it out of the sheath thereof, and slew him, and cut off his head therewith. And when the Philistines saw their champion was dead,<sup>g</sup> they fled.

52 And the men of Israel and of Judah arose, and shouted, and pursued the Philistines, until thou come to the valley, and to the gates of Ekron. And the wounded of the Philistines fell down by the way to<sup>h</sup> Shaaraim, even unto Gath, and unto Ekron.

53 And the children of Israel returned from chasing after the Philistines, and they spoiled their tents.

54 And David took the head of the Philistine, and brought it to Jerusalem; but he put his armour in his tent.

55 And when Saul saw David go forth against the Philistine, he said unto Abner, the captain of the host, Abner,<sup>i</sup> whose son is this youth? And Abner said, As thy soul liveth, O king, I cannot tell.

56 And the king said, Inquire thou whose son the stripling is.

57 And as David returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner took him, and brought him before Saul<sup>j</sup> with the head of the Philistine in his hand.

58 And Saul said to him, Whose son art thou, thou young man? And David answered,<sup>k</sup> I am the son of thy servant Jesse the Beth-lehemite.

Verse 46. This day will the Lord deliver thee into mine hand] This was a direct and circumstantial prophecy of what did take place.

Verse 47. For the battle is the Lord's] It is the Lord's war: you are fighting against him and his religion, as the champion of your party; I am fighting for God, as the champion of his cause.

Verse 48. The Philistine arose] This was an end of the parley.

Verse 49. Smote the Philistine in his forehead] Except his face, Goliath was everywhere covered over with strong armour. Either he had no beaver to his helmet, or it was lifted up so as to expose his forehead; but it does not appear that the ancient helmets had any covering for the face.

Verse 51. When the Philistines saw their champion was dead, they fled.] They were panic-struck; and not being willing to fulfil the condition which was stipulated by Goliath, they precipitately left the field. The Israelites took a proper advantage of these circumstances, and totally routed their enemies.

Verse 58. Whose son art thou, thou young man?] That Saul should not know David with whom he had treated a little before, and even armed him for the combat, and that he should not know who his father was, though he had sent to his father for permission to David to reside constantly with him (chap. xvi. 22), is exceedingly strange! I fear all Bishop Warburton's attempts to rectify the chronology by assumed anticipations, will not account for this.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Jonathan and David commence a lasting friendship; and David acts prudently with respect to Saul, 1-5. Saul becomes jealous of David, on account of the esteem in which he is held in Israel; and, in his fury, endeavours to destroy him, 6-12. David is made captain over a thousand; and the people love and respect him, 13-16. Saul, in order to ensnare him, offers him his daughter in marriage, 17-24. And requires a hundred foreskins of the Philistines for dowry; hoping that, in endeavouring to procure them, David might fall by the hands of the Philistines, 25. David agrees to the conditions, fulfils them, and has Michal to wife, 26-30.

AND it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking unto Saul, that *the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David,<sup>a</sup> and Jonathan loved him as his own soul.

Verse 1. Jonathan loved him as his own soul.] The most intimate friendship subsisted between them; and they loved

2 And Saul took him that day, *and would let him go no more home to his father's house.

3 Then Jonathan and David made a covenant, because he loved him as his own soul.

4 And Jonathan stripped himself of the robe that each other with pure hearts fervently. No love was lost between them: each was worthy of the other.

was upon him, and gave it to David, and his garments, even to his sword and to his bow, and to his girdle.

5 And David went out whithersoever Saul sent him, and <sup>a</sup>behaved himself wisely: and Saul set him over the men of war, and he was accepted in the sight of all the people, and also in the sight of Saul's servants.

6 And it came to pass as they came, when David was returned from the slaughter of the <sup>b</sup>Philistine, that <sup>c</sup>the women came out of all cities of Israel, singing and dancing, to meet king Saul, with tabrets, with joy, and with <sup>d</sup>instruments of music.

7 And the women <sup>e</sup>answered one another as they played, and said, 'Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands.'

8 And Saul was very wroth, and the saying <sup>f</sup>displeased <sup>g</sup>him; and he said, 'They have ascribed unto David ten thousands, and to me they have ascribed but thousands: and what can he have more but <sup>h</sup>the kingdom?'

9 And Saul eyed David from that day and forward.

10 And it came to pass on the morrow, that <sup>i</sup>the evil spirit from God came upon Saul, <sup>j</sup>and he prophesied in the midst of the house: and David played with his hand, as at other times: <sup>k</sup>and there was a javelin in Saul's hand.

11 And Saul <sup>l</sup>cast the javelin: for he said, I will smite David even to the wall <sup>m</sup>with it. And David avoided out of his presence twice.

12 And Saul was <sup>n</sup>afraid of David, because <sup>o</sup>the Lord was with him, and was <sup>p</sup>departed from Saul.

13 Therefore Saul removed him from him, and made him his captain over a thousand; and <sup>q</sup>he went out and came in before the people.

15 Wherefore when Saul saw that he behaved himself very wisely, he was afraid of him.

16 But <sup>u</sup>all Israel and Judah loved David, because he went out and came in before them.

17 And Saul said to David, Behold, my elder daughter Merab, <sup>v</sup>her will I give thee to wife: only be thou <sup>w</sup>valiant for me, and fight <sup>x</sup>the Lord's battles. For Saul said, <sup>y</sup>Let not mine hand be upon him, but let the hand of the Philistines be upon him.

18 And David said unto Saul, <sup>z</sup>Who am I? and what is my life, or my father's family in Israel, that I should be son in law to the king?

19 But it came to pass at the time when Merab Saul's daughter should have been given to David, that she was given unto <sup>aa</sup>Adriel the <sup>ab</sup>Meholathite to wife.

20 <sup>bb</sup>And Michal Saul's daughter loved David: and they told Saul, and the thing <sup>cc</sup>pleased him.

21 And Saul said, I will give him her, that she may be <sup>dd</sup>a snare to him, and that <sup>ee</sup>the hand of the Philistines may be against him. Wherefore Saul said to David, 'Thou shalt <sup>ff</sup>this day be my son in law in the one of the twain.'

22 And Saul commanded his servants, <sup>gg</sup>saying, Commune with David secretly, and say, Behold, the king hath delight in thee, and all his servants love thee: now therefore be the king's son in law.

23 And Saul's servants spake those words in the ears of David. And David said, Seemeth it to you a light thing to be a king's son in law, seeing that I am a poor man, and lightly esteemed?

24 And the servants of Saul told him, saying, <sup>hh</sup>On this manner spake David.

25 And Saul said, Thus shall ye say to David, The king desireth not any <sup>ii</sup>dowry, but an hundred foreskins of the Philistines, to be <sup>jj</sup>avenged of the king's enemies. But Saul <sup>kk</sup>thought to make David fall by the hand of the Philistines.

26 And when his servants told David these words,

Verse 4. Jonathian stripped himself] Presents of clothes or rich robes, in token of respect and friendship, are frequent in the East. And how frequently arms and clothing were presented by warriors to each other in token of friendship may be seen in Homer and other ancient writers.

Verse 5. Set him over the men of war] Made him generalissimo; or what we would call field-marshal.

Verse 6. The women came out] It was the principal business of certain women to celebrate victories, sing at funerals, &c.

With instruments of music.] The original word signifies instruments with three strings; and is, I think, properly translated by the Vulgate, "with sistrums." This instrument is well known as being used among the ancient Egyptians: it was made of brass, and had three, sometimes more, brass rods across, which, being loose in their holes, made a jingling noise when the instrument was shaken.

Verse 7. Saul hath slain his thousands] As it cannot literally be true that Saul had slain thousands and David ten thousands; it would be well to translate the passage thus: Saul hath smitten or fought against thousands; David, against tens of thousands. [This, however, cannot be the translation. The expression is highly figurative.]

Verse 10. He prophesied in the midst of the house] The Arabic intimates that he was actually possessed by an evil spirit, and that through it he uttered a sort of demoniacal predictions.

But let us examine the original more closely: it is said that Saul prophesied in the midst of his house; that is, he prayed in his family, while David was playing on the harp; and then suddenly threw his javelin, intending to have killed David. Let it be observed that the word rayithlabbe is the third person singular of the future hithpaal; the sign of which is not only to do an action on or for one's self, but also to feign or pretend to do it. The meaning seems to be, Saul pretended to be praying in his family, the better to conceal his murderous intentions, and render David unsuspecting; who was probably at this time performing the musical part of the family worship. This view of the subject makes the whole case natural and plain. [The original word cannot mean anything else here than "he raved."]

Verse 11. Saul cast the javelin] The javelin or spear was the emblem of regal authority; kings always had it at hand, and in ancient monuments they are always represented with it.

Verse 13. Made him his captain] This was under pretence of doing him honour, when it was in effect only to rid himself of the object of his envy.

Verse 15. He was afraid of him.] He saw that, by his prudent conduct, he was every day gaining increasing influence.

Verse 21. That she may be a snare to him] Saul had already determined the condition on which he would give his daughter to David; viz., that he should slay one hundred Philistines: this he supposed he would undertake for the love of Michal, and that he must necessarily perish in the attempt; and thus Michal would become a snare to him.

Verse 25. But an hundred foreskins] That is, Thou shalt it pleased David well to be the king's son in law : and <sup>a</sup> the days were not <sup>b</sup> expired.

27 Wherefore David arose and went, he and <sup>c</sup> his men, and slew of the Philistines two hundred men ; and <sup>d</sup> David brought their foreskins, and they gave them in full tale to the king, that he might be the king's son in law. And Saul gave him Michal his daughter to wife.

28 And Saul saw and knew that the LORD was slay one hundred Philistines, and thou shalt produce their foreskins, as a proof, not only that thou hast killed one hundred men, but that these are of the uncircumcised.

Verse 27. Slew—two hundred men. The Septuagint has only one hundred men. Saul covenanted with David for a hundred ; and David himself says, 2 Sam. iii. 14, that he espoused Michal for a hundred ; hence it is likely that one hundred is the true reading.

with David, and that Michal Saul's daughter loved him.

29 And Saul was yet the more afraid of David ; and Saul became David's enemy continually.

30 Then the princes of the Philistines <sup>a</sup> went forth : and it came to pass, after they went forth, that David <sup>b</sup> behaved himself more wisely than all the servants of Saul ; so that his name was much <sup>c</sup> set by.

Ps. cxvi. 15.

Verse 30. Then the princes of the Philistines went forth. Probably to avenge themselves on David and the Israelites : but of this war we know no more than that David was more skilful and successful in it than any of the other officers of Saul. His military skill was greater, and his success was proportionate to his skill and courage ; hence it is said, he behaved himself more wisely than all the servants of Saul.

CHAPTER XIX.

Jonathan pleads for David before Saul, who is for the present reconciled, 1-7. David defeats the Philistines ; and Saul becomes again envious, and endeavours to slay him, but he escapes, 8-10. Saul sends men to David's house, to lie in wait for him ; but Michal saves him by a stratagem, 11-17. David flees to Samuel, at Ramah, 18. Saul hearing of it, sends messengers three several times to take him ; but the Spirit of God coming upon them, they prophesy, 19-21. Saul, hearing of this, goes after David himself, and falls under the same influence, 22-24.

AND Saul spake to Jonathan his son, and to all his servants, that they should kill David.

2 But Jonathan Saul's son <sup>a</sup> delighted much in David : and Jonathan told David, saying, Saul my father <sup>b</sup> seeketh to kill thee : now therefore, I pray thee, take heed to thyself until the morning, and abide in a secret place, and hide thyself :

3 And I will go out and stand beside my father in the field where thou art, and I will commune with my father of thee ; and what I see, that I will tell thee.

4 And Jonathan <sup>c</sup> spake good of David unto Saul his father, and said unto him, Let not the king <sup>d</sup> sin against his servant, against David ; because he hath not sinned against thee, and because his works have been to thee-ward very good :

5 For he did put his <sup>e</sup> life in his hand, and <sup>f</sup> slew the Philistine, and <sup>g</sup> the LORD wrought a great salvation for all Israel : thou sawest it, and didst

Verse 1. That they should kill David. Nothing less than the especial interposition of God could have saved David's life, when every officer about the king's person, and every soldier, had got positive orders to despatch him.

Verse 2. Take heed to thyself until the morning. Perhaps the order was given to slay him the next day ; and therefore Jonathan charges him to be particularly on his guard at that time, and to hide himself.

Verse 4. Jonathan spake good of David. It is evident that Jonathan was satisfied that David was an innocent man ; and that his father was most unjustly incensed against him.

Verse 5. For he did put his life in his hand. The pleadings in this verse, though short, are exceedingly cogent ; and the argument is such as could not be resisted.

Verse 6. He shall not be slain. In consequence of this rejoice : <sup>h</sup> wherefore then wilt thou <sup>i</sup> sin against innocent blood, to slay David without a cause ?

6 And Saul hearkened unto the voice of Jonathan : and Saul sware, As the LORD liveth, he shall not be slain.

7 And Jonathan called David, and Jonathan shewed him all those things. And Jonathan brought David to Saul, and he was in his presence, <sup>j</sup> as <sup>k</sup> in times past.

8 And there was war again : and David went out, and fought with the Philistines, and slew them with a great slaughter ; and they fled from <sup>l</sup> him.

9 And <sup>m</sup> the evil spirit from the LORD was upon Saul, as he sat in his house with his javelin in his hand : and David played with his hand.

10 And Saul sought to smite David even to the wall with the javelin ; but he slipped away out of Saul's presence, and he smote the javelin into the wall : and David fled, and escaped that night.

11 <sup>n</sup> Saul also sent messengers unto David's house, xi. 18. 1 Chron. xi. 14.—<sup>b</sup> Ch. xx. 32.—<sup>c</sup> Mat. xxvii. 4.—<sup>d</sup> Ch. xvi. 21. xviii. 2, 13.—<sup>e</sup> Heb. yesterday third day.—<sup>f</sup> Heb. his face.—<sup>g</sup> Ch. xvi. 14. xviii. 10, 11.—<sup>h</sup> Ps. lix. title.

oath, we may suppose he issued orders contrary to those which he had given the preceding day.

Verse 7. He was in his presence, as in times past. By Jonathan's advice he had secreted himself on that day on which he was to have been assassinated ; the king having sworn that he should not be slain, David resumes his place in the palace of Saul.

Verse 9. And the evil spirit from the Lord. His envy and jealousy again returned, producing distraction of mind, which was exacerbated by diabolic influence.

Verse 10. But he slipped away. He found he could not trust Saul ; and therefore was continually on his watch. His agility of body was the means of his preservation at this time.

Verse 11. To slay him in the morning. When they might to watch him, and to slay him in the morning: and Michal David's wife told him, saying, If thou save not thy life to night, to morrow thou shalt be slain.

12 So Michal <sup>a</sup>let David down through a window: and he went, and fled, and escaped.

13 And Michal took an <sup>b</sup>image, and laid it in the bed, and put a pillow of goats' hair for his bolster, and covered it with a cloth.

14 And when Saul sent messengers to take David, she said, He is sick.

15 And Saul sent the messengers again to see David, saying, Bring him up to me in the bed, that I may slay him.

16 And when the messengers were come in, behold, there was an image in the bed, with a pillow of goats' hair for his bolster.

17 And Saul said unto Michal, Why hast thou deceived me so, and sent away mine enemy, that he is escaped? And Michal answered Saul, He said unto me, Let me go; <sup>c</sup>why should I kill thee?

18 So David fled, and escaped, and came to Samuel to Ramah, and told him all that Saul had done to him. And he and Samuel went and dwelt in Naioth.

19 And it was told Saul, saying, Behold, David is at Naioth in Ramah.

20 And <sup>d</sup>Saul sent messengers to take David: <sup>e</sup>and when they saw the company of the prophets prophesying, and Samuel standing as appointed over them, the Spirit of God was upon the messengers of Saul, and they also <sup>f</sup>prophesied.

21 And when it was told Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesied likewise. And Saul sent messengers again the third time, and they prophesied also.

22 Then went he also to Ramah, and came to a great well that is in Sechu: and he asked and said, Where are Samuel and David? And one said, Behold, they be at Naioth in Ramah.

23 And he went thither to Naioth in Ramah: and <sup>g</sup>the Spirit of God was upon him also, and he went on, and prophesied, until he came to Naioth in Ramah.

24 <sup>h</sup>And he stripped off his clothes also, and prophesied before Samuel in like manner, and <sup>i</sup>lay down <sup>j</sup>naked all that day and all that night. Wherefore they say, <sup>k</sup>Is Saul also among the prophets?

be able to distinguish between him and Michal his wife; for, had they attempted his life in the night-season, there would have been some danger to Michal's life. Besides, Saul wished to represent him as a traitor; and consequently an attack upon him was justifiable at any time, even in the fullest day-light.

Verse 12. Let David down through a window] Saul's messengers would naturally guard the gate, or lie in wait in that place by which David would come out. Michal, seeing this, let him down to the ground through a window, probably at the back part of the house; and there being neither entrance nor issue that way, the liars in wait were easily eluded.

Verse 13. Michal took an image] The Hebrew word appears to mean any kind of image, in any kind of form, as a representative of some reality. Here it must have been something in the human form; because it was intended to represent a man lying in bed indisposed.

A pillow of goats' hair] Perhaps she formed the appearance of a sick man's head muffled up by this pillow or bag of goats' hair. The goats' hair was merely accidental; unless we could suppose that it was designed to represent the hair of David's head, which is not improbable.

Verse 17. Let me go; why should I kill thee?] That is, If thou do not let me go, I will kill thee. This she said to excuse herself to her father: as a wife she could do no less than favour the escape of her husband, being perfectly satisfied that there was no guilt in him. It is supposed that it was on this occasion that David wrote the fifty-ninth Psalm, Deliver me from mine enemies, &c.

Verse 18. David fled, and escaped—to Samuel] He, no doubt, came to this holy man to ask advice; and Samuel thought it best to retain him for the present, with himself at Naioth, where it is supposed he had a school of prophets.

Verse 20. The company of the prophets prophesying] Employed in religious exercises, Samuel—appointed over them] Being head or president of the school at this place.

The spirit of God was upon the messengers] They partook of the same influence, and joined in the same exercise; and thus were prevented from seizing David.

Verse 23. He went on, and prophesied] The Divine Spirit seemed to have seized him at the well of Sechu; and he went on from that prophesying—praying, singing praises, &c., till he came to Naioth.

Verse 24. He stripped off his clothes] Threw off his royal robes or military dress, retaining only his tunic; and continued so all that day and all that night, uniting with the sons of the prophets in prayers, singing praises, and other religious exercises, which were unusual to kings and warriors; and this gave rise to the saying, Is Saul also among the prophets? By bringing both him and his men thus under a divine influence, God prevented them from injuring the person of David.

CHAPTER XX.

David complains to Jonathan of Saul's enmity against him; Jonathan comforts him, 1-10. They walk out into the field, and renew their covenant, 11-17. David asks Jonathan's leave to absent himself from Saul's court; and Jonathan informs him how he shall ascertain the disposition of his father towards him, 18-23. David hides himself; is missed by Saul; Jonathan is questioned concerning his absence; makes an excuse for David; Saul is enraged, and endeavours to kill Jonathan, 24-33. Jonathan goes out to the field; gives David the sign which they had agreed on, and by which he was to know that the king had determined to take away his life, 34-39. He sends his servant back into the city; and then he and David meet, renew their covenant, and have a very affectionate parting, 40-42.

AND David fled from Naioth in Ramah, and came and said before Jonathan, What have I done? what is mine iniquity? and what is my sin before thy father, that he seeketh my life?

2 And he said unto him, God forbid; thou shalt not die: behold, my father will do nothing either great or small, but that he will shew it me: and why should my father hide this thing from me? it is not so.

3 And David sware moreover, and said, Thy father certainly knoweth that I have found grace in thine eyes; and he saith, Let not Jonathan know this, lest he be grieved: but truly as the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, there is but a step between me and death.

4 Then said Jonathan unto David, Whatsoever thy soul desireth, I will even do it for thee.

5 And David said unto Jonathan, Behold, to morrow is the new moon, and I should not fail to sit with the king at meat: but let me go, that I may hide myself in the field unto the third day at even.

6 If thy father at all miss me, then say, David earnestly asked leave of me that he might run to Bethlehem his city: for there is a yearly sacrifice there for all the family.

7 If he says thus, It is well; thy servant shall have peace: but if he be very wroth, then be sure that evil is determined by him.

8 Therefore thou shalt deal kindly with thy servant; for thou hast brought thy servant into a covenant of the Lord with thee: notwithstanding, if there be in me iniquity, slay me thyself; for why shouldst thou bring me to thy father?

9 And Jonathan said, Far be it from thee: for if I knew certainly that evil were determined by my father to come upon thee, then would not I tell it thee?

10 Then said David to Jonathan, Who shall tell me? or what if thy father answer thee roughly?

11 And Jonathan said unto David, Come, and let us go out into the field. And they went out both of them into the field.

12 And Jonathan said unto David, O Lord God of Israel, when I have sounded my father about to morrow any time, or the third day, and behold, if there be good toward David, and I then send not unto thee, and shew it thee;

13 The Lord do so and much more to Jonathan: but if it please my father to do thee evil, then I will shew it thee, and send thee away, that thou mayest go in peace: and the Lord be with thee, as he hath been with my father.

14 And thou shalt not only, while yet I live, shew me the kindness of the Lord, that I die not:

15 But also thou shalt not cut off thy kindness from my house for ever: no, not when the Lord hath cut off the enemies of David every one from the face of the earth.

16 So Jonathan made a covenant with the house of David, saying, Let the Lord even require it at the hand of David's enemies.

17 And Jonathan caused David to swear again, because he loved him: for he loved him as he loved his own soul.

18 Then Jonathan said to David, To morrow is the new moon: and thou shalt be missed, because thy seat will be empty.

19 And when thou hast stayed three days, then thou shalt go down quickly, and come to the place where thou didst hide thyself, when the business was in hand, and shalt remain by the stone Ezel.

20 And I will shoot three arrows on the side thereof, as though I shot at a mark.

21 And, behold, I will send a lad, saying, Go, find out the arrows. If I expressly say unto the lad, Behold, the arrows are on this side of thee, take them; then come thou: for there is peace to thee, and no hurt; as the Lord liveth.

22 But if I say thus unto the young man, Behold, the arrows are beyond thee; go thy way: for the Lord hath sent thee away.

23 And as touching the matter which thou and I have spoken of, behold, the Lord be between thee and me for ever.

24 So David hid himself in the field: and when the new moon was come, the king sat him down to eat meat.

See ver. 42.

Verse 1. David fled from Naioth.] On hearing that Saul had come to that place, knowing that he was no longer in safety, he fled for his life.

Verse 2. My father will do nothing.] Jonathan thought that his father could have no evil design against David, because of the oath which he had sworn to himself, chap. xix. 6; and at any rate, that he would do nothing against David without informing him.

Verse 3. There is but a step between me and death.] My life is in the most imminent danger. Your father has, most assuredly, determined to destroy me.

Verse 5. To morrow is the new moon.] The months of the Hebrews were lunar months, and they reckoned from new moon to new moon. And as their other feasts, particularly the passover, were reckoned according to this, they were very scrupulous in observing the first appearance of each new moon. On these new moons they offered sacrifices, and had a feast. And we may suppose that the families, on such occasions, sacrificed and feasted together.

Verse 8. If there be in me iniquity.] If thou seest that I am plotting either against the state, or the life of thy father, then slay me thyself.

Verse 10. Who shall tell me?] Who shall give me the necessary information? What means wilt thou use to convey this intelligence to me?

Verse 11. Come, and let us go out into the field.] In answer to David's question, he now shows him how he shall convey this intelligence to him.

Verse 12. Jonathan said—O Lord God of Israel.] There is, most evidently, something wanting in this verse. The Septuagint has, The Lord God of Israel doth know. The Syriac and Arabic, The Lord God of Israel is witness. Either of these makes a good sense. But two of Dr. Kennicott's MSS. supply the word chai, "liveth;" and the text reads thus, As the Lord God of Israel LIVETH, when I have sounded my father—if there be good, and I then send not unto thee, and shew it thee, the Lord do so and much more to Jonathan. This makes a still better sense. [But the ellipsis is quite consistent with the form of the oath.]

Verse 13. The Lord be with thee, as he hath been with my father.] From this, and other passages here, it is evident that Jonathan knew that the Lord had appointed David to the kingdom.

Verse 14. Shew me the kindness of the Lord.] When thou

25 And the king sat upon his seat, as at other times, even upon a seat by the wall: and Jonathan arose, and Abner sat by Saul's side, and David's place was empty.

26 Nevertheless Saul spake not any thing that day: for he thought, Something hath befallen him, he is <sup>a</sup> not clean; surely he is not clean.

27 And it came to pass on the morrow, which was the second day of the month, that David's place was empty: and Saul said unto Jonathan his son, Wherefore cometh not the son of Jesse to meat, neither yesterday nor to day?

28 And Jonathan <sup>b</sup> answered Saul, David earnestly asked leave of me to go to Beth-lehem:

29 And he said, Let me go, I pray thee; for our family hath a sacrifice in the city; and my brother, he hath commanded me to be there: and now, if I have found favour in thine eyes, let me get away, I pray thee, and see my brethren. Therefore he cometh not unto the king's table.

30 Then Saul's anger was kindled against Jonathan, and he said unto him, 'Thou <sup>c</sup> son of the perverse rebellious woman, do not I know that thou hast chosen the son of Jesse to thine own confusion, and unto the confusion of thy mother's nakedness?

31 For as long as the son of Jesse liveth upon the ground, thou shalt not be established, nor thy kingdom. Wherefore now send and fetch him unto me, for he <sup>d</sup> shall surely die.

32 And Jonathan answered Saul his father, and said unto him, 'Wherefore shall he be slain? What hath he done?

comest to the kingdom, if I am alive, thou shalt show kindness to me, and thou shalt continue that kindness to my family after me.

Verse 25. The king sat upon his seat] It seems that there was one table for Saul, Jonathan, David, and Abner; Saul having the chief seat, that next to the wall. As only four sat at this table, the absence of any one would soon be noticed.

Verse 29. Our family hath a sacrifice] Such sacrifices were undoubtedly festive ones; the beasts slain for the occasion were first offered to God, and their blood poured out before him; afterwards all that were bidden to the feast ate of the flesh. This was a family entertainment, at the commencement of which God was peculiarly honoured.

Verse 30. Thou son of the perverse rebellious woman] This clause is variously translated and understood. According to some of the Versions, these words refer to some secret transaction between Saul and Jonathan's mother; which certainly reflects more dishonour on himself than on his brave son. Most sarcasms bear as hard upon the speaker, as they do on him against whom they are spoken. Abusive language always argues a mean, weak, and malevolent heart.

Verse 34. Jonathan arose—in fierce anger] We should probably understand this rather of Jonathan's grief than of his anger, the latter clause explaining the former: for he was grieved for David.

Verse 35. Make speed, haste, stay not.] Though these words appear to be addressed to the lad, yet they were spoken to David, indicating that his life was at stake, and only a prompt flight could save him.

34 So Jonathan arose from the table in fierce anger, and did eat no meat the second day of the month: for he was grieved for David, because his father had done him shame.

35 And it came to pass in the morning, that Jonathan went out into the field at the time appointed with David, and a little lad with him.

36 And he said unto his lad, Run, find out now the arrows which I shoot. And as the lad ran, he shot an arrow <sup>i</sup> beyond him.

37 And when the lad was come to the place of the arrow which Jonathan had shot, Jonathan cried after the lad, and said, Is not the arrow beyond thee?

38 And Jonathan cried after the lad, Make speed, haste, stay not. And Jonathan's lad gathered up the arrows, and came to his master.

39 But the lad knew not anything; only Jonathan and David knew the matter.

40 And Jonathan gave his <sup>j</sup> artillery unto <sup>k</sup> his lad, and said unto him, Go, carry them to the city.

41 And as soon as the lad was gone, David arose out of a place toward the south, and fell on his face to the ground, and bowed himself three times; and they kissed one another and wept one with another, until David exceeded.

42 And Jonathan said to David. <sup>l</sup> Go in peace, <sup>m</sup> forasmuch as we have sworn both of us in the name of the Lord, saying, The Lord be between me and thee, and between my seed and thy seed for ever. And he arose and departed: and Jonathan went into the city.

Verse 41. Until David exceeded.] David's distress must, in the nature of things, be the greatest. Besides his friend Jonathan, whom he was now about to lose for ever, he lost his wife, relatives, country; and, what was most afflictive, the altars of his God, and the ordinances of religion.

Saul saw David's growing popularity, and was convinced of his own mal-administration. He did not humble himself before God, and therefore became a prey to envy, pride, jealousy, cruelty, and every other malevolent temper. From him David had everything to fear, and therefore he thought it was safer to yield to the storm, than attempt to brave it; though he could have even raised a very powerful party in Israel, had he used the means which were so much in his power. But as he neither sought nor affected the kingdom, he left it to the providence of God to bring him in by such means, at such a way, and in such a time, as was most suited to his godly wisdom. He that believeth shall not make haste: God's way and time are ever the best; and he who, even in God's way, runs before he is sent, runs at random; runs without light, and without divine strength. Feeble, therefore, must be his own might, his own counsel, and his own wisdom; though he encompass himself with his own sparks, yet this hath he at the Lord's hand,—he shall lie down in sorrow.

CHAPTER XXI.

David comes to Ahimelech at Nob, receives provisions from him, and the sword of Goliath; and is noticed by Doeg, one of the servants of Saul, 1-9. He leaves Nob, and goes to Achish, king of Gath, 10. But on being recognised as the vanquisher of Goliath by the servants of Achish, he feigns himself deranged, and Achish sends him away, 11-15.

THEN came David to Nob to <sup>a</sup>Ahimelech the priest: and Ahimelech was <sup>b</sup>afraid at the meeting of David, and said unto him, Why art thou alone, and no man with thee?

2 And David said unto Ahimelech the priest, The king had commanded me a business, and hath said unto me, Let no man know anything of the business whereabout I send thee, and what I have commanded thee: and I have appointed my servants to such and such a place.

3. Now therefore what is under thine hand? give me five loaves of bread in mine hand, or what there is <sup>c</sup>present.

4 And the priest answered David, and said, There is no common bread under mine hand, but there is <sup>d</sup>hallowed bread; <sup>e</sup>if the young men have kept themselves at least from women.

5 And David answered the priest and said unto him, Of a truth women have been kept from us about these three days, since I came out, and the <sup>f</sup>vessels of the young men are holy, and the bread is in a manner common, <sup>g</sup>yea, though it were sanctified this day <sup>h</sup>in the vessel.

6 So the priest <sup>i</sup>gave him hallowed bread: for there was no bread there but the shew-bread, <sup>j</sup>that was taken from before the LORD to put hot bread in the day when it was taken away.

7 Now a certain man of the servants of Saul was there that day, detained before the LORD; and his name was <sup>k</sup>Doeg, an Edomite, the chiefest of the herdmen that belonged to Saul.

8 And David said unto Ahimelech, And is there not here under mine hand spear or sword? for I have neither brought my sword nor my weapons with me, because the king's business required haste.

9 And the priest said, The sword of Goliath the Philistine, whom thou slewest in <sup>l</sup>the valley of Elah, <sup>m</sup>behold, it is here wrapped in a cloth behind the ephod: if thou wilt take that, take it: for there is no other save that here. And David said, There is none like that; give it me.

10 And David arose, and fled that day for fear of Saul, and went to <sup>n</sup>Achish the king of Gath.

11 And <sup>o</sup>the servants of Achish said unto him, Is not this David the king of the land? Did they not sing one to another of him in dances, saying, <sup>p</sup>"Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands?"

12 And David <sup>q</sup>laid up these words in his heart, and was sore afraid of Achish the king of Gath.

13 And <sup>r</sup>he changed his behaviour before them, and feigned himself mad in their hands, and <sup>s</sup>scrabbled on the doors of the gate, and let his spittle fall down upon his beard.

14 Then said Achish unto his servants, Lo, you see the man <sup>t</sup>is mad: wherefore then have ye brought him to me?

15 Have I need of mad men, that ye have brought this fellow to play the mad man in my presence? shall this fellow come into my house?

Verse 1. Then came David to Nob] There were two places of this name, one on this side, the second on the other side of Jordan; but it is generally supposed that Nob, near Gibeah of Benjamin, is the place here intended; it was about twelve miles from Jerusalem.

Why art thou alone] Ahimelech probably knew nothing of the difference between Saul and David; and as he knew him to be the king's son-in-law, he wondered to see him come without any attendants.

Verse 2. The king hath commanded me a business] All said here is an untruth, and could not be dictated by the Spirit of the Lord; but there is no reason to believe that David was under the influence of divine inspiration at this time. It is well known that from all antiquity it was held no crime to tell a lie, in order to save life.

Verse 3. So the priest gave him hallowed bread] To this history our Lord alludes, Mark ii. 25, in order to show that in cases of absolute necessity a breach of the ritual law was no sin. It was lawful for the priests only to eat the shew-bread; but David and his companions were starving, no other bread could be had at the time, and therefore he and his companions ate of it without sin.

Verse 7. Detained before the Lord] Probably fulfilling some vow to the Lord, and therefore for a time resident at the tabernacle.

And his name was Doeg] From chap. xxii. 9 we learn that this man betrayed David's secret to Saul, which caused him to destroy the city, and slay eighty-five priests.

Verse 10. Went to Achish the king of Gath] This was the worst place to which he could have gone: it was the very city of Goliath, whom he had slain, and whose sword he now wore; and he soon found, from the conversation of the servants of Achish, that his life was in the most imminent danger in this place.

Verse 13. And he changed his behaviour] Some imagine David was so terrified at the danger to which he was now exposed, that he was thrown into a kind of frenzy, accompanied with epileptic fits. It is worthy of remark that the spittle falling upon the beard, i.e. slavering or frothing at the mouth, is a genuine concomitant of an epileptic fit.

If this exposition be allowed, it will set the conduct of David in a clearer point of view than the present translation does. But others think the whole was a feigned conduct, and that he acted the part of a lunatic or madman in order to get out of the hands of Achish and his courtiers. Many vindicate this conduct of David: but if mocking be catching, according to the proverb, he who feigns himself to be mad may, through the just judgment of God, become so. I dare not be the apologist of insincerity or lying.

CHAPTER XXII.

David flees to the cave of Adullam, where he is joined by four hundred men of various descriptions, 1, 2. He goes afterwards to Moab; and, by the advice of the prophet Gad, to the forest of Hareth, 3-5. Saul, suspecting his servants of infidelity, upbraids them, 6-8. Doeg informs him of David's coming to Nob; of his being entertained by Ahimelech; on which Saul slays Ahimelech and all the priests, to the number of eighty-five, and destroys the city of Nob, 9-19. Abiathar, the son of Ahimelech, only escapes; he joins with David, by whom he is assured of protection, 20-23.

DAVID therefore departed thence, and <sup>a</sup>escaped <sup>b</sup>to the cave Adullam: and when his brethren and all his father's house heard it, they went down thither to him.

2 <sup>c</sup> And every one that was in distress, and every one that <sup>d</sup>was in debt, and every one that was <sup>e</sup>discontented, gathered themselves unto him; and he became a captain over them: and there were with him about four hundred men.

3 And David went thence to Mizpeh of Moab: and he said unto the king of Moab, Let my father and my mother, I pray thee, come forth, and be with you, till I know what God will do for me.

4 And he brought them before the king of Moab, and they dwelt with him all the while that David was in the hold.

5 And the prophet <sup>f</sup>Gad said unto David, Abide not in the hold; depart, and get thee into the land of Judah. Then David departed, and came into the forest of Hareth.

6 When Saul heard that David was discovered, and the men that were with him, (now Saul abode in Gibeath under a <sup>g</sup>tree in Ramah, having his spear in his hand, and all his servants were standing about him;)

7 Then Saul said unto his servants that stood about him, Hear now, ye Benjamites: will the son of Jesse <sup>h</sup>give every one of you fields and vineyards, and make you all captains of thousands, and captains of hundreds;

8 That all of you have conspired against me, and there is none that <sup>i</sup>sheweth me that <sup>j</sup>my son hath made a league with the son of Jesse, and there is none of you that is sorry for me, or sheweth unto me that my son hath stirred up my servant against me, to lie in wait, as at this day?

9 Then answered <sup>k</sup>Doeg the Edomite, which was set over the servants of Saul, and said, I saw the son of Jesse coming to Nob, to <sup>l</sup>Ahimelech the son of <sup>m</sup>Ahitub.

10 <sup>n</sup> And he inquired of the Lord for him, <sup>o</sup>and gave him victuals, and gave him the sword of Goliath the Philistine.

11 Then the king sent to call Ahimelech the priest, the son of Ahitub, and all his father's house, the priests that were in Nob: and they came all of them to the king.

12 And Saul said, Hear now, thou son of Ahitub. And he answered, <sup>p</sup>Here I am, my lord.

13 And Saul said unto him, Why <sup>q</sup>have ye conspired against me, thou and the son of Jesse, in that thou hast given him bread, and a sword, and hast inquired of God for him, that he should rise against me, to lie in wait as at this day?

14 Then Ahimelech answered the king, and said, And who is so faithful among all thy servants as David, which is the king's son in law, and goeth at thy bidding, and is honourable in thine house?

15 Did I then begin to inquire of God for him? be it far from me: let not the king impute any thing unto his servant, nor to all the house of my father: for thy servant knew nothing of all this, <sup>r</sup>less or more.

16 And the king said, Thou shalt surely die, Ahimelech, thou, and all thy father's house.

Verse 1. The cave Adullam] This was in the tribe of Judah, and, according to Eusebius and Jerome, ten miles eastward of what they call Eleutheropolis.

Verse 2. And every one that was in distress—debt—discontented] It is very possible that these several characters might at first have supposed that David, unjustly persecuted, would be glad to avail himself of their assistance that he might revenge himself upon Saul, and so they in the mean time might profit by plunder, &c. But if this was their design they were greatly disappointed, for David never made any improper use of them. Whatever they were before they came to David, we find that he succeeded in civilizing them, and making profitable to the state those who were before unprofitable.

Verse 3. He said unto the king of Moab] The king of Moab, being one of Saul's enemies, would be the more ready to oblige a person from whom he might at least expect friendship, if not considerable services.

Verse 5. Get thee into the land of Judah.] God saw that in this place alone he could find safety.

Verse 6. Saul abode in Gibeath] Saul and his men were in pursuit of David, and had here, as is the general custom in the East, encamped on a height, for so Ramah should be translated, as in the margin. His spear, the ensign of power, was at hand, that is, stuck in the ground where he rested, which was the mark to the soldiers that there was their general's tent.

And all his servants were standing about him] Perhaps here there is a reference to a sort of council of war called by Saul.

Verse 8. There is none that sheweth me] He conjectured that Jonathan had made a league with David to dethrone him, and he accuses them of disloyalty for not making the discovery of this unnatural treason. Now it was impossible for any of them to show what did not exist, no such league having ever been made between David and Jonathan.

Verse 9. Doeg the Edomite, which was set over the servants of Saul] Probably he was what we call the queen's equerry or groom.

Verse 10. And he inquired of the Lord for him] This circumstance is not related in history; but it is probably true, as David would most naturally wish to know where to direct his steps in this very important crisis.

Verse 14. And who is so faithful] The word neeman, which we here translate faithful, is probably the name of an officer.

Verse 15. Did I then begin to inquire of God] He probably means that his inquiring now for David was no new thing, having often done so before, and without ever being informed it was either wrong in itself, or displeasing to the 17 And the king said unto the <sup>a</sup>footmen <sup>b</sup>that stood about him, Turn, and slay the priests of the LORD; because their hand also <sup>c</sup>is with David, and because they knew when he fled, and did not shew it to me. But the servants of the king <sup>c</sup>did not put forth their hand to fall upon the priests of the LORD.

18 And the king said to Doeg, Turn thou, and fall upon the priests. And Doeg the Edomite turned, and he fell upon the priests, and <sup>d</sup>slew on that day fourscore and five persons that did wear a linen ephod.

19 <sup>e</sup>And Nob, the city of the priests, smote he with the edge of the sword, both men and women, king. Nor is it likely that Ahimelech knew of any disagreement between Saul and David.

Verse 17. But the servants of the king would not] They dared to disobey the commands of the king in a case of such injustice, inhumanity, and irreligion.

Verse 18. And Doeg—fell upon the priests] A ruthless Edomite, capable of any species of iniquity.

That did wear a linen ephod] That is, persons who did actually administer, or had a right to administer, in sacred things. The linen ephod was the ordinary clothing of the priests.

Verse 19. And Nob—smote he with the edge of the sword] This is one of the worst acts in the life of Saul; his malice was implacable, and his wrath was cruel, and there is no children and sucklings, and oxen, and asses, and sheep, with the edge of the sword.

20 <sup>e</sup>And one of the sons of Ahimelech the son of Ahitub, named Abiathar, <sup>e</sup>escaped, and fled after David.

21 And Abiathar shewed David that Saul had slain the LORD's priests.

22 And David said unto Abiathar, I knew <sup>i</sup>that day, when Doeg the Edomite <sup>i</sup>was there, that he would surely tell Saul: I have occasioned <sup>i</sup>the death of all the persons of thy father's house.

23 Abide thou with me, fear not: <sup>h</sup>for he that seeketh my life seeketh thy life: but with me thou <sup>h</sup>shalt be in safeguard.

motive of justice or policy by which such a barbarous act can be justified.

Verse 20. Abiathar, escaped] This man carried with him his sacerdotal garments, as we find from chap. xxiii. 6, 9.

Verse 22. I knew it that day] When I saw Doeg there, I suspected he would make the matter known to Saul.

I have occasioned the death of all the persons] I have been the innocent cause of their destruction.

Verse 23. He that seeketh my life seeketh thy life] The enmity of Saul is directed against thee as well as against me, and thou canst have no safety but in being closely attached to me; and I will defend thee, even at the risk of my own life. This he was bound in duty and conscience to do.

CHAPTER XXIII.

David succours Keilah, besieged by the Philistines; defeats them, and delivers the city, 1-6. Saul, hearing that David was at Keilah, determines to come and seize him, 7, 8. David inquires of the Lord concerning the fidelity of the men of Keilah towards him; is informed that if he stays in the city, the men of Keilah will betray him to Saul, 9-12. David and his men escape from the city, and come to the wilderness of Ziph, 13-15. Jonathan meets David in the wood of Ziph, strengthens his hand in God, and they renew their covenant, 16-18. The Ziphites endeavour to betray David to Saul, but he and his men escape to Maon, 19-24. Saul comes to Maon; and having surrounded the mountain on which David and his men were, they must inevitably have fallen into his hands, had not a messenger come to call Saul to the succour of Judah, then invaded by the Philistines, 25-27. Saul leaves the pursuit of David, and goes to succour the land; and David escapes to Engedi, 28, 29.

THEN they told David, saying, Behold, the Philistines fight against <sup>a</sup>Keilah, and they rob the threshing-floors.

2 Therefore David <sup>b</sup>inquired of the LORD, saying, Shall I go and smite these Philistines? And the LORD said unto David, Go and smite the Philistines, and save Keilah.

3 And David's men said unto him, Behold, we be afraid here in Judah: how much more then if we come to Keilah against the armies of the Philistines?

4 Then David inquired of the LORD yet again.

Verse 1. The Philistines fight against Keilah] Keilah was a fortified town in the tribe of Judah, near to Eleutheropolis, on the road to Hebron.

Rob the threshing-floors] This was an ancient custom of the Philistines, Midianites, and others.

Verse 2. Therefore David inquired of the Lord] In what way David made this inquiry we are not told, but it was probably by means of Abiathar. Had not David loved his country, and been above all motives of private and personal revenge, he would have rejoiced in this invasion of Judea. In most cases a man with David's wrongs would have joined

And the LORD answered him, and said, Arise, go down to Keilah; for I will deliver the Philistines into thine hand.

5 So David and his men went to Keilah, and fought with the Philistines, and brought away their cattle, and smote them with a great slaughter. So David saved the inhabitants of Keilah.

6 And it came to pass, when Abiathar the son of Ahimelech <sup>c</sup>fled to David to Keilah, <sup>c</sup>that he came down <sup>c</sup>with an ephod in his hand.

7 And it was told Saul that David was come to with the enemies of his country, and avenged himself on the author of his adversities; but he thinks of nothing but succouring Keilah, and using his power and influence in behalf of his brethren! This is a rare instance of disinterested heroism.

The Lord said—Go and smite] He might now go with confidence, being assured of success. When God promises success, who need be afraid of the face of any enemy?

Verse 4. David inquired of the Lord yet again] This was to satisfy his men, who made the strong objections mentioned in the preceding verse.

Keilah. And Saul said, God hath delivered him into mine hand; for he is shut in, by entering into a town that hath gates and bars.

8 And Saul gathered all the people together to war, to go down to Keilah, to besiege David and his men.

9 And David knew that Saul secretly practised mischief against him; and <sup>a</sup> he said to Abiathar the priest, Bring hither the ephod.

10 Then said David, O LORD God of Israel, thy servant hath certainly heard that Saul seeketh to come to Keilah, <sup>b</sup> to destroy the city for my sake.

11 Will the men of Keilah deliver me up into his hand? will Saul come down, as thy servant hath heard? O LORD God of Israel, I beseech thee, tell thy servant. And the LORD said, He will come down.

12 Then said David, Will the men of Keilah <sup>c</sup> deliver me and my men into the hand of Saul? And the LORD said, They will deliver thee up.

13 Then David and his men, <sup>d</sup> which were about six hundred, arose and departed out of Keilah, and went whithersoever they could go. And it was told Saul that David was escaped from Keilah; and he forbore to go forth.

14 And David abode in the wilderness in strongholds, and remained in <sup>e</sup> a mountain in the wilderness of Ziph. And Saul <sup>f</sup> sought him every day, but God delivered him not into his hand.

15 And David saw that Saul was come out to seek his life; and David was in the wilderness of Ziph in a wood.

16 And Jonathan Saul's son arose, and went to David into the wood, and strengthened his hand in God.

17 And he said unto him, Fear not: for the hand of Saul my father shall not find thee; and thou shalt be king over Israel, and I shall be next unto thee; and <sup>g</sup> that also Saul my father knoweth.

18 And they two <sup>h</sup> made a covenant before the LORD: and David abode in the wood, and Jonathan went to his house.

Verse 5. Brought away their cattle] The forage and spoil which the Philistines had taken, driving the country before them round about Keilah.

Verse 8. Saul called all the people together] That is, all the people of that region or district, that they might scour the country, and hunt out David from all his haunts.

Verse 9. Bring hither the ephod] It seems as if David himself, clothed with the ephod, had consulted the Lord; and the 10th, 11th, and 12th verses contain the words of the consultation, and the Lord's answer.

Verses 11, 12. In this short history we find an ample proof that there is such a thing as contingency in human affairs; that is, God has poised many things between a possibility of being or not being, leaving it to the will of the creature to turn the scale. In the above answers of the Lord the following conditions were evidently implied: If thou continue in Keilah, Saul will certainly come down; and if Saul come down, the men of Keilah will deliver thee into his hands. Now, though the text positively asserts that Saul would come to Keilah, yet he did not come; and that the men of Keilah would deliver David into his hand, yet David was not thus delivered to him. And why? Because David left Keilah; but had he stayed, Saul would have come down, and the men of Keilah would have betrayed David. We may observe from this that, however positive a declaration of God may appear that refers to any thing in which man is to be employed, the prediction is not intended to suspend or destroy free-agency, but always comprehends in it some particular condition.

19 Then <sup>i</sup> came up the Ziphites to Saul to Gibeath, saying, Doth not David hide himself with us in strongholds in the wood, in the hill of Hachilah, which is <sup>j</sup> on the south of Jeshimon?

20 Now therefore, O king, come down according to all the desire of thy soul to come down; and <sup>k</sup> our part shall be to deliver him into the king's hand.

21 And Saul said, Blessed be ye of the LORD; for ye have compassion on me.

22 Go, I pray you, prepare yet, and know and see his place where his <sup>l</sup> haunt is, and who hath seen him there: for it is told me that he dealeth very subtilly.

23 See therefore, and take knowledge of all the lurking places where he hideth himself, and come ye again to me with the certainty, and I will go with you: and it shall come to pass, if he be in the land, that I will search him throughout all the thousands of Judah.

24 And they arose, and went to Ziph before Saul: but David and his men were in the wilderness <sup>m</sup> of Maon, in the plain on the south of Jeshimon.

25 Saul also and his men went to seek him. And they told David: wherefore he came down <sup>n</sup> into a rock, and abode in the wilderness of Maon. And when Saul heard that, he pursued after David in the wilderness of Maon.

26 And Saul went on this side of the mountain, and David and his men on that side of the mountain: <sup>o</sup> and David made haste to get away for fear of Saul; for Saul and his men <sup>p</sup> compassed David and his men round about to take them.

27 <sup>q</sup> But there came a messenger unto Saul, saying, Haste thee, and come; for the Philistines have <sup>r</sup> invaded the land.

28 Wherefore Saul returned from pursuing after David, and went against the Philistines: therefore they called that place <sup>s</sup> Sela-hammahlekoth.

Verse 14. Wilderness of Ziph] Ziph was a city in the southern part of Judea, not far from Carmel.

Verse 16. And Jonathan—strengthened his hand in God] As Jonathan well knew that God had appointed David to the kingdom, he came now to encourage him to trust in the Most High, and to assure him that the hand of Saul should not prevail against him; and at this interview they renewed their covenant of friendship. Now all this Jonathan could do, consistently with his duty to his father and his king. He prevented his father from imbruing his hands in innocent blood: a more filial and a more loyal part he could not have acted; and therefore, in his attachment to David, he is wholly free from blame.

Verse 25. The wilderness of Maon] Maon was a mountainous district in the most southern parts of Judah.

Verse 26. Saul went on this side of the mountain] Evidently not knowing that David and his men were on the other side.

Verse 27. There came a messenger] See the providence of God exerted for the salvation of David's life! God had already prepared the invasion of the land by the Philistines, and kept Saul ignorant how much David was in his power; but as his advanced guards and scouts must have discovered him in a very short time, the messenger arrives just at the point of time to prevent it.

Verse 28. They called that place Sela-hammahlekoth] That is, the rock of divisions; because Saul was obliged to separate himself from David, in order to go and oppose the invading Philistines. [Or the rock of smoothnesses, referring to the slipping away of David. The original does not mean to separate.]

Verse 29. Strongholds at En-gedi.] En-gedi was situated near to the western coast of the Dead Sea, not far from Jeshimon: it literally signifies the kid's well, and was celebrated for its vineyards, Cant. i. 14. It was also celebrated for its balm. It is reported to be a mountainous territory, filled with caverns; and consequently proper for David in his present circumstances.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Saul is informed that David is at En-gedi, and goes to seek him with three thousand men, 1, 2. He goes into a cave to repose, where David and his men lay hid; who, observing this, exhort David to take away his life; David refuses, and contents himself with privily cutting off Saul's skirt, 3-7. When Saul departed not knowing what was done, David called after him; showed him that his life had been in his power; expostulates strongly with him; and appeals to God, the Judge of his innocence, 8-15. Saul confesses David's uprightness; acknowledges his obligation to him for sparing his life; and causes him to swear that, when he should come to the kingdom, he would not destroy his seed, 17-21. Saul returns home, and David and his men stay in the hold, 22.

AND it came to pass, <sup>a</sup> when Saul was returned from <sup>b</sup> following the Philistines, that it was told him, saying, Behold, David is in the wilderness of En-gedi.

2 Then Saul took three thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and <sup>c</sup> went to seek David and his men upon the rocks of the wild goats.

3 And he came to the sheep-cotes by the way, where was a cave; and <sup>d</sup> Saul went in to <sup>e</sup> cover his feet; and <sup>f</sup> David and his men remained in the sides of the cave.

4 <sup>g</sup> And the men of David said unto him, Behold the day of which the LORD said unto thee, Behold, I will deliver thine enemy into thine hand, that thou mayest do to him as it shall seem good unto thee. Then David arose, and cut off the skirt of <sup>h</sup> Saul's robe privily.

5 And it came to pass afterward, that <sup>i</sup> David's heart smote him, because he had cut off Saul's skirt.

6 And he said unto his men, <sup>j</sup> The LORD forbid that I should do this thing unto my master, the LORD's anointed, to stretch forth mine hand against him, seeing he is the anointed of the LORD.

7 So David <sup>k</sup> stayed <sup>l</sup> his servants with these words, and suffered them not to rise against Saul. But Saul rose up out of the cave, and went on his way.

8 David also arose afterward, and went out of the cave, and cried after Saul, saying, My lord the king. And when Saul looked behind him, David stooped with his face to the earth, and bowed himself.

9 And David said to Saul, <sup>m</sup> Wherefore hearest thou men's words, saying, Behold, David seeketh thy hurt?

10 Behold, this day thine eyes have seen how that the LORD had delivered thee to day into mine hand in the cave; and some bade me kill thee; but mine eye spared thee; and I said, I will not put forth mine hand against my lord; for he is the LORD's anointed.

11 Moreover, my father, see, yea, see the skirt of thy robe in my hand: for in that I cut off the skirt of thy robe, and killed thee not; know thou and see that there is <sup>n</sup> neither evil nor transgression in mine hand, and I have not sinned against thee; yet thou <sup>o</sup> huntest my soul to take it.

12 <sup>p</sup> The LORD judge between me and thee, and the LORD avenge me of thee: but mine hand shall not be upon thee.

Verse 1. Saul was returned] It is very probable that it was only a small marauding party that had made an excursion in the Israelitish borders, and this invasion was soon suppressed.

Verse 3. The sheep-cotes] Caves in the rocks, in which it is common, even to the present time, for shepherds and their flocks to lodge.

Saul went in to cover his feet] It is likely that, when he had performed this act of necessity, he lay down to repose himself, and it was while he was asleep that David cut off the skirt of his robe. It is strange that Saul was not aware that there might be men lying in wait in such a place; and the rabbins have invented a most curious conceit to account for Saul's security: "God, foreseeing that Saul would come to this cave, caused a spider to weave her web over the mouth of it, which, when Saul perceived, he took for granted that no person had lately been there, and consequently he entered it without suspicion."

David and his men remained in the sides of the cave.] This is no hyperbole; we have the authority of the most accurate travellers, to attest the fact of the vast capacity of caves in the East.

Verse 4. And the men of David said] We know not to what promise of God the men of David refer: they perhaps meant no more than to say, "Behold the Lord hath delivered thine enemy into thy hand, now do to him as he wishes to do to thee."

Then David arose] It appears that he rose up immediately at the desire of his men to slay his inveterate enemy, and one whom he knew the Lord had rejected; but when about to do it he was prevented by the remonstrance of God in his conscience, and instead of cutting off his head, as he might have done, an act which the laws and usages of war would have justified, he contented himself with cutting off the skirt of his robe; and he did this only to show Saul how much he had been in his power. [But in ver. 5 it is said that David's heart smote him because he had cut off Saul's skirt: i.e. because he had insulted the king.]

Verse 6. The Lord's anointed] It is an awful thing to kill a king, even the most untoward, when he has once been constitutionally appointed to the throne. No experiment of this kind has ever succeeded; the Lord abhors king-killing. Had David taken away the life of Saul at this time, he would, in the sight of God, have been a murderer.

Verse 7. Suffered them not to rise against Saul.] As he could restrain them it was his duty to do so; had he connived at their killing him, David would have been the murderer.

13 As saith the proverb of the ancients, Wickedness proceedeth from the wicked: but mine hand shall not be upon thee.

14 After whom is the king of Israel come out? after whom dost thou pursue? * After a dead dog, after <sup>b</sup> a flea.

15 * The LORD therefore be judge, and judge between me and thee; and <sup>c</sup> sec, and <sup>c</sup> plead my cause, and <sup>c</sup> deliver me out of thine hand.

16 And it came to pass when David had made an end of speaking these words unto Saul, that Saul said, * Is this thy voice, my son David? And Saul lifted up his voice and wept.

17 <sup>b</sup> And he said to David, Thou art <sup>c</sup> more righteous than I: for <sup>d</sup> thou hast rewarded me good, whereas I have rewarded thee evil.

Verse 12. The Lord judge between me and thee] Appeals of this kind to God are the common refuge of the poor and oppressed people.

Verse 13. Wickedness proceedeth from the wicked] This proverb may be thus understood: He that does a wicked act, gives proof thereby that he is a wicked man. From him who is wicked, wickedness will proceed: he who is wicked will add one iniquity to another. Had I conspired to dethrone thee, I should have taken thy life when it was in my power, and thus added wickedness to wickedness.

Verse 14. After a dead dog] A term used among the Hebrews to signify the most sovereign contempt; see 2 Sam. xvi. 9. One utterly incapable of making the least resistance against Saul and the troops of Israel. The same idea is expressed in the term flea.

Verse 15. The Lord therefore be judge] Let God determine who is guilty.

Verse 16. My son David] David had called Saul his master, lord, and king. Saul accosts him here as his son, to show that he felt perfectly reconciled to him, and wished to receive him as formerly into his family.

hast dealt well with me: forasmuch as when <sup>a</sup> the LORD had <sup>b</sup> delivered me into thine hand, thou killedst me not.

19 For if a man find his enemy, will he let him go well away? wherefore the LORD reward thee good for that thou hast done unto me this day.

20 And now, behold, <sup>c</sup> I know well that thou shalt surely be king, and that the kingdom of Israel shall be established in thine hand.

21 * Swear now therefore unto me by the LORD, <sup>c</sup> that thou wilt not cut off my seed after me, and that thou wilt not destroy my name out of my father's house.

Verse 19. If a man find his enemy, will he let him go well away?] Or rather, Will he send him in a good way?

Verse 20. I know well that thou shalt surely be king] He knew this before; and yet he continued to pursue him with the most deadly hatred.

Verse 21. Swear now] Saul knew that an oath would bind David, though it was insufficient to bind himself; see chap. xix. 6. He had sworn to his son Jonathan that David should not be slain; and yet sought by all means in his power to destroy him!

Verse 22. Saul went home] Confounded at a sense of his own baseness, and overwhelmed with a sense of David's generosity.

David and his men gat them up unto the hold.] David could not trust Saul with his life; the utmost he could expect from him was that he should cease from persecuting him; but even this was too much to expect from a man of such a character as Saul. He was no longer under the divine guidance; an evil spirit had full dominion over his soul. What God kills not, the devil will occupy.

CHAPTER XXV.

The death of Samuel, 1. The history of Nabal, and his churlishness towards David and his men, 2-12. David, determining to punish him, is appeased by Abigail, Nabal's wife, 13-35. Abigail returns, and tells Nabal of the danger that he had escaped; who on hearing it is thunder-struck, and dies in ten days, 36-38. David, hearing of this, sends and takes Abigail to wife, 39-42. He marries also Ahinoam of Jezreel, Saul having given Michal, David's wife, to Phalti, the son of Laish, 43, 44.

AND * Samuel died; and all the Israelites were gathered together, and <sup>b</sup> lamented him, and buried him in his house at Ramah. And David arose, and went down <sup>c</sup> to the wilderness of Paran.

2 And there was a man <sup>d</sup> in Maon, whose <sup>e</sup> possessions were in <sup>f</sup> Carmel; and the man was very great, and he had three thousand sheep, and a thousand goats: and he was shearing his sheep in Carmel.

Verse 1. And Samuel died] How long he died before Saul cannot be ascertained.

Buried him in his house] Probably this means, not his dwelling-house, but the house or tomb he had made for his sepulture. [There is no reason for supposing that he was not buried in his dwelling-house.]

David—went down to the wilderness of Paran.] This was either on the confines of Judea, or in Arabia Petrea,

3 Now the name of the man was Nabal; and the name of his wife Abigail: and she was a woman of good understanding, and of a beautiful countenance: but the man was churlish and evil in his doings; and he was of the house of Caleb.

4 And David heard in the wilderness that Nabal did <sup>a</sup> shear his sheep.

5 And David sent out ten young men, and David said unto the young men, Get you up to Carmel, and go to Nabal, and <sup>b</sup> greet him in my name:

between the mountains of Judah and Mount Sinai; it is evident from the history that it was not far from Carmel, on the south confines of Judah.

Verse 3. The name of the man was Nabal] The word nabal signifies to be foolish, base, or villainous.

The name of his wife Abigail] A woman of sense and beauty, married to the boor mentioned above, probably because he was rich. Many women have been thus sacrificed.

AND the Ziphites came unto Saul to Gibeah, saying, "Doth not David hide himself in the hill of Hachilah, which is before Jeshimon?"

2 Then Saul arose, and went down to the wilderness of Ziph, having three thousand chosen men of Israel with him, to seek David in the wilderness of Ziph.

3 And Saul pitched in the hill of Hachilah, which is before Jeshimon, by the way. But David abode in the wilderness, and he saw that Saul came after him into the wilderness.

4 David therefore sent out spies, and understood that Saul was come in very deed.

5 And David arose, and came to the place where Saul had pitched: and David beheld the place where Saul lay, and <sup>b</sup>Abner the son of Ner, the captain of his host: and Saul lay in the <sup>c</sup>trench, and the people pitched round about him.

6 Then answered David and said to Ahimelech the Hittite, and to Abishai <sup>d</sup>the son of Zeruiah, brother to Joab, saying, Who will <sup>e</sup>go down with me to Saul to the camp? And Abishai said, I will go down with thee.

7 So David and Abishai came to the people by night: and, behold, Saul lay sleeping within the trench, and his spear stuck in the ground at his bolster: but Abner and the people lay round about him.

8 Then said Abishai to David, God hath <sup>f</sup>delivered thine enemy into thine hand this day: now therefore let me smite him, I pray thee, with the spear even to the earth at once, and I will not <sup>g</sup>smite him the second time.

9 And David said to Abishai, Destroy him not: <sup>h</sup>for who can stretch forth his hand against the LORD's anointed, and be guiltless?

10 David said furthermore, As the LORD liveth, <sup>i</sup>the LORD shall smite him; or <sup>j</sup>his day shall come to die; or he shall <sup>k</sup>descend into battle, and perish.

Verse 1. The Ziphites came] This is the second time that these enemies of David endeavoured to throw him into the hands of Saul.

Verse 2. Three thousand chosen men] Though they knew that David was but six hundred strong, yet Saul thought it was not safe to pursue such an able general with a less force than that mentioned in the text; and, that he might the better depend on them, they were all elect or picked men out of the whole of his army.

Verse 5. David arose] As David and his men knew the country, they had many advantages over Saul and his men; and no doubt could often watch them without being discovered.

Saul lay in the trench] The word which we translate in the trench, and in the margin in the midst of his carriages, is rendered by some in a ring of carriages, and by others, in the circle, i.e. which was formed by his troops. Luther himself translates it a fortress formed of waggons or carriages.

Verse 6. Abishai the son of Zeruiah] She was David's sister; and therefore Abishai and Joab were nephews to David.

Verse 10. The Lord shall smite him, &c.] These are the three ordinary ways by which man accomplishes, as a hireling, his day. Murder David could not consider to be lawful; this would have been taking the matter out of God's hand, and this David would not do.

Verse 12. David took the spear and the cruse] The spear was the emblem of power and real dignity. But it is usual 11 <sup>a</sup>The LORD forbid that I should stretch forth mine hand against the LORD's anointed: but, I pray thee, take thou now the spear that is at his bolster, and the cruse of water, and let us go.

12 So David took the spear and the cruse of water from Saul's bolster; and they gat them away, and no man saw it, nor knew it, neither awaked: for they were all asleep; because <sup>b</sup>a deep sleep from the LORD was fallen upon them.

13 Then David went over to the other side, and stood on the top of an hill afar off; a great space being between them:

14 And David cried to the people, and to Abner the son of Ner, saying, Answerest thou not, Abner? Then Abner answered and said, Who art thou that criest to the king?

15 And David said to Abner, Art not thou a valiant man? and who is like to thee in Israel? wherefore then hast thou not kept thy lord the king? for there came one of the people in to destroy the king thy lord.

16 This thing is not good that thou hast done. As the LORD liveth, ye are <sup>c</sup>worthy to die, because ye have not kept your master, the LORD's anointed. And now see where the king's spear is, and the cruse of water that was at his bolster.

17 And Saul knew David's voice, and said, <sup>d</sup>Is this thy voice, my son David? And David said, It is my voice, my lord, O king.

18 And he said, <sup>e</sup>Wherefore doth my lord thus pursue after his servant? for what have I done? or what evil is in mine hand?

19 Now therefore, I pray thee, let my lord the king hear the words of his servant. If the LORD have <sup>f</sup>stirred thee up against me, let him <sup>g</sup>accept an offering: but if they be the children of men, cursed be they before the LORD; <sup>h</sup>for they have driven me out this day from <sup>i</sup>abiding in the <sup>j</sup>inheritance of the LORD, saying, Go, serve other gods.

in Arab camps for every man to have his lance stuck in the ground beside him, that he may be ready for action in a moment. The cruse of water resembled, in some measure, the canteens of our soldiers. In such a climate where water was always scarce, it was necessary for each man to carry a little with him, to refresh him on his march.

A deep sleep from the Lord] It is the same word which is used to describe the sleep which God caused to fall upon Adam when he formed Eve out of his side.

Verse 15. Art not thou a valiant man?] This is a strong irony. Ye are worthy to die; ye are sons of death—ye deserve death for this neglect of your king. And had not Saul been so deeply affected with David's generosity in preserving his life, he had doubtless put Abner and his chief officers to death, though they were not to blame, as their apparent neglect was the effect of a supernatural sleep.

Verse 19. Let him accept an offering] As the word is minchah, a gratitude-offering, perhaps the sense may be this. Let God accept a gratitude-offering from thee, for having purged the land of a worker of iniquity; for, were I not such, God would never stir thee up against me.

But if they be the children of men] If I am guilty, I deserve to die; if not, those who seek my life shall be destroyed.

Saying, Go, serve other gods] His being obliged to leave the tabernacle, and the place where the true worship of God was performed, and take refuge among idolaters, said in effect, Go, serve other gods.

20 Now therefore, let not my blood fall to the earth before the face of the LORD; for the king of Israel is come out to seek <sup>a</sup> a flea, as when one doth hunt a partridge in the mountains.

21 Then said Saul, <sup>b</sup> I have sinned: return, my son David: for I will no more do thee harm, because my soul was <sup>c</sup> precious in thine eyes this day: behold, I have played the fool, and have erred exceedingly.

22 And David answered and said, Behold the king's spear! and let one of the young men come over and fetch it.

Verse 20. As when one doth hunt a partridge] It is worthy of remark that the Arabs, observing that partridges, being put up several times, soon become so weary as not to be able to fly; they in this manner hunt them upon the mountains, till at last they can knock them down with their 24 And, behold, as thy life was much set by this day in mine eyes, so let my life be much set by in the eyes of the LORD, and let him deliver me out of all tribulation.

25 Then Saul said to David, Blessed be thou, my son David: thou shalt both do great things, and also shalt still <sup>f</sup> prevail. So David went on his way, and Saul returned to his place.

clubs. [The reference is not to the manner of the pursuit, but to the insignificance of its object.]

Verse 21. I have inned] Perhaps the word chatathi, "I have sinned," should be read, I have erred, or have been mistaken.

CHAPTER XXVII.

David flies to Achish, king of Gath, who receives him kindly, and gives him Ziklag to dwell in, where he continues a year and four months, 1-7. David invades the Geshurites and Amalekites, and leaves neither man nor woman alive, 8, 9. He returns to Achish, and pretends that he had been making inroads on the Israelites, and Achish believes it, 10-12.

AND David said in his heart, I shall now <sup>a</sup> perish one day by the hand of Saul: there is nothing better for me than that I should speedily escape into the land of the Philistines; and Saul shall despair of me, to seek me any more in any coast of Israel: so shall I escape out of his hand.

2 And David arose, <sup>b</sup> and he passed over with the six hundred men that were with him <sup>c</sup> unto Achish, the son of Maach, king of Gath.

3 And David dwelt with Achish at Gath, he and his men, every man with his household, even David <sup>d</sup> with his two wives, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail the Carmelitess, Nabal's wife.

4 And it was told Saul that David had fled to Gath: and he sought no more again for him.

5 And David said unto Achish, If I have now found grace in thine eyes, let them give me a place in some town in the country, that I may dwell there: for why should thy servant dwell in the royal city with thee?

6 Then Achish gave him Ziklag that day: wherefore <sup>e</sup> Ziklag pertaineth unto the kings of Judah unto this day.

Verse 1. I shall now perish one day by the hand of Saul] This was a very hasty conclusion; God had so often interposed in behalf of his life, that he was authorized to believe the reverse. There was now no additional reason why he should withdraw from David his helping hand.

Verse 2. David arose, and he passed over—unto Achish] There is not one circumstance in this transaction that is not blameable. The inspired penman tells what he did, but passes no eulogium upon his conduct; and it is false to say that, because these things are recorded, therefore they are approved. In all these transactions David was in no sense a man after God's own heart.

Verse 3. Every man with his household] So it appears that the men who consorted with David had wives and families.

7 And <sup>f</sup> the time that David dwelt in the country of the Philistines was <sup>g</sup> a full year and four months.

8 And David and his men went up, and invaded <sup>h</sup> the Geshurites, <sup>i</sup> and the <sup>j</sup> Gezrites, and the <sup>k</sup> Amalekites: for those nations were of old the inhabitants of the land, <sup>l</sup> as thou goest to Shur, even unto the land of Egypt.

9 And David smote the land, and left neither man nor woman alive, and took away the sheep and the oxen, and the asses, and the camels, and the apparel, and returned, and came to Achish.

10 And Achish said, <sup>m</sup> Whither have ye made a road to day? And David said, Against the south of Judah, and against the south of <sup>n</sup> the Jerahmeelites, and against the south of <sup>o</sup> the Kenites.

11 And David saved neither man nor woman alive, to bring tidings to Gath, saying, Lest they should tell on us, saying, So did David, and so will be his manner all the while he dwelleth in the country of the Philistines.

12 And Achish believed David, saying, He hath made his people Israel <sup>p</sup> utterly to abhor him; therefore he shall be my servant for ever.

Verse 5. Why should thy servant dwell in the royal city] He seemed to intimate that two princely establishments in the same city were too many. Achish appears to have felt the propriety of his proposal, and therefore appoints him Ziklag.

Verse 6. Achish gave him Ziklag] Ziklag was at first given to the tribe of Judah, but afterwards it was ceded to that of Simeon, Josh. xv. 31, xix. 5. The Philistines had, however, made themselves masters of it, and held it till the time here mentioned; it then fell into the tribe of Judah again, and continued to be the property of the kings of Judah.

Verse 9. David smote the land] The spoil which David took consisted of sheep, oxen, asses, camels, and apparel.

Verse 10. Whither have ye made a road to day] He had probably been in the habit of making predatory excursions. This seems to be implied in the question of Achish.

Verse 12. He hath made his people—utterly to abhor him! This deception imposed upon Achish had the most direct tendency to make him imagine himself secure, while in the utmost danger; and to have a faithful friend and able ally in David, while he was the veriest enemy he could possibly have.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The Philistines prepare to attack the Israelites, and Achish informs David that he shall accompany him to battle, 1, 2. Saul, unable to obtain any answer from God, applies to a witch at En-dor to bring up Samuel, that he may converse with him on the issue of the war, 3-11. Samuel appears, 12-14. He reproaches Saul with his misconduct, and informs him of his approaching ruin, 15-19. He is greatly distressed; but at the solicitations of the woman and his own servants, he takes some food, and departs the same night, 20-25.

AND * it came to pass in those days, that the Philistines gathered their armies together for warfare, to fight with Israel. And Achish said unto David, Know thou assuredly, that thou shalt go out with me to battle, thou and thy men.

2 And David said to Achish, Surely thou shalt know what thy servant can do. And Achish said to David, Therefore will I make thee keeper of mine head for ever.

3 Now <sup>b</sup> Samuel was dead, and all Israel had lamented him, and buried him in Ramah, even in his own city. And Saul had put away <sup>c</sup> those that had familiar spirits, and the wizards, out of the land.

4 And the Philistines gathered themselves together, and came and pitched in <sup>d</sup> Shunem: and Saul gathered all Israel together, and they pitched in <sup>e</sup> Gilboa.

5 And when Saul saw the host of the Philistines, he was <sup>f</sup> afraid, and his heart greatly trembled.

6 And when Saul inquired of the LORD, <sup>g</sup> the LORD answered him not, neither by <sup>h</sup> dreams, nor <sup>i</sup> by Urim, nor by prophets.

7 Then said Saul unto his servants, Seek me a woman that hath a familiar spirit, that I may go to her, and inquire of her. And his servants said to him, Behold, there is a woman that hath a familiar spirit at En-dor.

8 And Saul disguised himself, and put on other raiment, and he went, and two men with him, and they came to the woman by night: and <sup>j</sup> he said, I pray thee, divine unto me by the familiar spirit, and bring me him up, whom I shall name unto thee.

9 And the woman said unto him, Behold, thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he <sup>k</sup> hath cut off those that have familiar spirits, and the wizards, out of the land: wherefore then layest thou a snare for my life, to cause me to die?

10 And Saul sware to her by the LORD, saying, As the LORD liveth, there shall no punishment happen to thee for this thing.

11 Then said the woman, Whom shall I bring up unto thee? And he said, Bring me up Samuel.

12 And when the woman saw Samuel, she cried with a loud voice: and the woman spake to Saul, saying, Why hast thou deceived me? for thou art Saul.

13 And the king said unto her, Be not afraid: for what sawest thou? And the woman said unto Saul, I saw <sup>l</sup> gods ascending out of the earth.

Verse 2. Surely thou shalt know what thy servant can do! This was another equivocal answer; and could only be understood by his succeeding conduct.

Verse 3. Samuel was dead! And there was no longer a public accredited prophet to consult.

Verse 5. When Saul saw! He saw from the superiority of his enemies, from the state of his army, and especially from his own state towards God, that he had every thing to fear.

Verse 6. The Lord answered him not! He used the three methods by which supernatural intelligence was ordinarily given:—Dreams, Urim, and Prophets.

Verse 7. Seek me a woman that hath a familiar spirit! Literally, the mistress of the Ob or Pythonic spirit—one who had a familiar spirit, whom she could invoke when she pleased, and receive answers from him relative to futurity. At En-dor. This was a city in the valley of Jezreel, at the foot of Mount Gilboa, where the army of Saul had now encamped. [It still exists as a village under the old name.]

Verse 8. Saul disguised himself! That he might not be known by the woman, lest she, being terrified, should refuse to use her art.

Verse 11. Whom shall I bring up! The woman certainly meant no more than making her familiar personify whomsoever the querist should wish. In the evocation of spirits this is all that, according to the professed rules of their art, such persons pretend to; for over human souls in Paradise or in the infernal regions there is no power. If we allow that there is such an art founded on true principles, all it can pretend to is, to bring up the familiar; cause him when necessary to assume the form and character of some particular person, and to give such notices relative to futurity as he is able to collect.

Verse 12. When the woman saw Samuel! That Samuel did appear on this occasion, is most evident from the text; nor can this be denied from any legitimate mode of interpretation: and it is as evident that he was neither raised by the power of the devil nor the incantations of the witch, for the appearances which took place at this time were such as she was wholly unacquainted with. Her familiar did not appear; and from the confused description she gives, it is fully evident that she was both surprised and alarmed at what she saw, being so widely different from what she expected to see.

Verse 13. I saw gods ascending out of the earth. The word elohim, which we translate gods, is the word which is used for the Supreme Being throughout the Bible; but all the Versions, the Chaldee excepted, translate it in the plural number, as we do. The Chaldee has, I see an angel of the Lord ascending from the earth. This sight alarmed the woman; it was what she did not expect: in this she could not recognize her familiar, and she was terrified at the appearance.

14 And he said unto her, <sup>a</sup>What form is he of? And she said, An old man cometh up; and he is covered with <sup>b</sup>a mantle. And Saul perceived that it was <sup>c</sup>Samuel, and he stooped with his face to the ground, and bowed himself.

15 And Samuel said to Saul, Why hast thou disquieted me, to bring me up? And Saul answered, <sup>d</sup>I am sore distressed; for the Philistines make war against me, and <sup>e</sup>God is departed from me, and <sup>f</sup>answereth me no more, neither <sup>g</sup>by prophets, nor by dreams: therefore I have called thee, that thou mayest make known unto me what I shall do.

16 <sup>h</sup>Then said Samuel, Wherefore then dost thou ask of me, seeing the LORD is departed from thee, and is become thine enemy?

17 And the LORD hath done <sup>i</sup>to him, <sup>j</sup>as he spake by <sup>k</sup>me: for the LORD hath rent the kingdom out of thine hand, and given it to thy neighbour, even to David:

18 <sup>l</sup>Because thou obeyedst not the voice of the LORD, nor executedst his fierce wrath upon Amalek, therefore hath the LORD done this thing unto thee this day.

19 Moreover the LORD will also deliver Israel with thee into the hand of the Philistines: and to-morrow shalt thou and thy sons be with me: the LORD also shall deliver the host of Israel into the hand of the Philistines.

20 Then Saul <sup>m</sup>fell straightway all along on the earth, and was sore afraid, because of the words of Samuel: and there was no strength in him: for he had eaten no bread all the day, nor all the night.

21 And the woman came unto Saul, and saw that he was sore troubled, and said unto him, Behold, thine handmaid hath obeyed thy voice, and I have <sup>n</sup>put my life in my hand, and have hearkened unto thy words which thou spakest unto me.

22 Now therefore, I pray thee, hearken thou also unto the voice of thine handmaid, and let me set a morsel of bread before thee; and eat that thou mayest have strength, when thou goest on thy way.

23 But he refused, and said, I will not eat. But his servants, together with the woman, compelled him; and he hearkened unto their voice. So he arose from the earth, and sat upon the bed.

24 And the woman had a <sup>o</sup>fat calf in the house; and she hastened, and killed it, and took flour, and kneaded it, and did bake <sup>p</sup>unleavened bread thereof:

25 And she brought it before Saul, and before his servants; and they did eat. Then they rose up, and went away that night.

Verse 14. An old man cometh up; and he is covered with a mantle. This seems to have been a second apparition; she cannot mean that she had seen gods ascending out of the earth, and these gods were like an old man with a mantle. The angelic appearance first mentioned prepared the way for Samuel; and the whole was done so as to show to the woman that her art had not prevailed in the present instance, and that what was now taking place was wholly independent of her incantations. [There is no need for supposing a second apparition. The word elohim may mean a celestial appearance, which she thus describes.]

Saul perceived that it was Samuel The description was suitable to his person and clothing.

Verse 15. Why hast thou disquieted me? The complaint is not directed against the woman, but against Saul. Indeed, her incantations had no influence in the business, and it does not appear that she had commenced her operations before the angels had prepared the way of the prophet, and before the prophet himself had made his appearance.

That thou mayest make known unto me what I shall do. In his former difficulties, and when pressed by his enemies, he was in the habit of consulting Samuel; and now he applies to him as his former preceptor. God, he knew, might answer by such a man as Samuel, when he would answer by no other means.

Verse 16. Wherefore then dost thou ask of me? Was ever I wont to give answers that were not dictated by the Lord? It is his counsel alone that I communicate.

Verse 17. The Lord hath done to him I believe these words are spoken of Saul; and as they are spoken to him, it seems evident that him should be these. [The words, "to him," should be "for himself," i.e. Jehovah.]

As he spake by me Here was no illusion; none but Samuel could say this.

Verse 19. To-morrow shalt thou and thy sons be with me Does this mean that they were to go to Paradise? I suppose it means no more than that they should all die.

Saul had committed the sin unto death—the sin to be visited with a violent death, while the mercy of God was extended to the soul. Thus say my faith, my hope, and my charity; and doth not the mercy of God say the same?

Verse 20. Then Saul fell straightway all along on the earth He was so overwhelmed with this most dreadful message that he swooned away, and thus fell at his own length upon the ground. The woman, being terrified, had probably withdrawn to some distance at the first appearance of the prophet; and Saul was left alone with Samuel.

Verse 23. I will not eat. It is no wonder that not only his strength, but also his appetite, had departed from him.

And sat upon the bed. Beds or couches were the common places on which the ancients sat to take their repasts.

Verse 24. The woman had a fat calf The ancients used great dispatch in their cookery. In hot countries they could not keep flesh meat by them any length of time; hence they generally kept young animals, such as calves, lambs, and kids, ready for slaughter; and when there was occasion, one of them was killed, and dressed immediately.

Unleavened bread There was not time to bake leavened bread; that would have taken considerable time, in order that the leaven might leaven the whole lump.

Verse 25. They rose up, and went away that night. The next day, in all probability, the battle happened in which Israel was defeated, and Saul and his sons lost their lives.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Philistines gather their armies together against Israel, and encamp at Aphek; while the Israelites encamp at Jezreel, 1. The lords of the Philistines refuse to let David go to battle with them, lest he should betray them, 2-5. Achish expresses his confidence in David; but begs him to return, 6-10. David and his men return, 11.

NOW * the Philistines gathered together all their armies * to Aphek: and the Israelites pitched by a fountain which is in Jezreel.

2 And the lords of the Philistines passed on by hundreds, and by thousands; but David and his men passed on in the re-re-ward * with Achish.

3 Then said the princes of the Philistines, What do these Hebrews here? And Achish said unto the princes of the Philistines, Is not this David, the servant of Saul the king of Israel, ~~which~~ hath been with me * these days, or these years, and I have * found no fault in him since he fell unto me unto this day?

4 And the princes of the Philistines were wroth with him; and the princes of the Philistines said unto him, 'Make this fellow return, that he may go again to his place which thou hast appointed him, and let him not go down with us to battle, lest * in the battle he be an adversary to us: for wherewith should he reconcile himself unto his master? should it not be with the heads of these men?

Verse 1. To Aphek] This was a place in the valley of Jezreel, between Mounts Tabor and Gilboa.

Pitched by a fountain] To be near a fountain, or copious spring of water, was a point of great importance to an army in countries such as these, where water was so very scarce.

Verse 2. By hundreds, and by thousands] They were probably divided, as the Jewish armies, by fifties, hundreds, and thousands; each having its proper officer or captain.

Verse 3. These days, or these years] I suppose these words to mark no definite time, and may be understood thus: "Is not this David, who has been with me for a considerable time?"

Verse 4. The princes of the Philistines were wroth] It is strange that they had not yet heard of David's destruction of a village of the Geshurites, Gézrites, and Amalekites, chap. xxvii.

Verse 6. Thou hast been upright] So he thought; for as Surely, as the Lord liveth, thou hast been upright, and thy going out and thy coming in with me in the host is good in my sight: for I have not found evil in thee since the day of thy coming unto me unto this day: nevertheless * the lords favour thee not.

7 Wherefore now return, and go in peace, that thou * displease not the lords of the Philistines.

8 And David said unto Achish, But what have I done? and what hast thou found in thy servant so long as I have been * with thee unto this day, that I may not go fight against the enemies of my lord the king?

9 And Achish answered and said to David, I know that thou art good in my sight, * as an angel of God: notwithstanding * the princes of the Philistines have said, He shall not go up with us to the battle.

10 Wherefore now rise up early in the morning with thy master's servants that are come with thee: * and as soon as ye be up early in the morning, and have light, depart.

11 So David and his men rose up early to depart in the morning, to return into the land of the Philistines. * And the Philistines went up to Jezreel.

yet he had not heard of the above transaction; David having given him to understand that he had been fighting against Israel.

Verse 8. David said—what have I done?] It was in the order of God's gracious providence that the Philistine lords refused to let David go with them to this battle. Had he gone, he had his choice of two sins—First, If he had fought for the Philistines, he would have fought against God and his country. Secondly, If he had in the battle gone over to the Israelites, he would have deceived and become a traitor to the hospitable Achish.

Verse 9. As an angel of God] He speaks here of the angels of God, as a Jew might be expected to speak; and in ver. 6, he appeals to, and swears by, Jehovah; which, perhaps, no Philistine ever did. It is possible that he might have learned many important truths from David, during the time he sojourned with him.

CHAPTER XXX.

While David is absent with the army of Achish, the Amalekites invade Ziklag, and burn it with fire, and carry away captive David's wives, and those of his men, 1, 2. David and his men return; and, finding the desolate state of their city, are greatly affected, 3-5. The men mutiny, and threaten to stone David, who encourages himself in the Lord, 6. David inquires of the Lord, and is directed to pursue the Amalekites, with the promise that he shall recover all, 7, 8. He and his men begin the pursuit, but two hundred, through fatigue, are obliged to stay behind at the brook Besor, 9, 10. They find a sick Egyptian, who directs them in their pursuit, 11-15. David finds the Amalekites secure, feasting on the spoils they had taken; he attacks and destroys the whole host, except four hundred, who escape on camels, 16, 17. The Israelites recover their wives, their families, and all their goods, 18-20. They come to the two hundred who were so faint as not to be able to pursue the enemy, with whom they divide the spoil: and this becomes a statute in Israel, 21-25. David sends part of the spoil which he had taken to different Jewish cities, which had suffered by the incursion of the Amalekites; and where David and his men had been accustomed to resort, 26-31.

AND it came to pass when David and his men were come to Ziklag on the third day, that the <sup>a</sup> Amalekites had invaded the south, and Ziklag, and smitten Ziklag, and burned it with fire;

2 And had taken the <sup>b</sup> women captives, that were therein: they slew not any, either great or small, but carried them away, and went on their way.

3 So David and his men came to the city, and, behold, it was burned with fire; and their wives, and their sons, and their daughters, were taken captives.

4 Then David and the people that were with him lifted up their voice and wept, until they had no more power to weep.

5 And David's <sup>c</sup> two wives were taken captives, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite.

6 And David was greatly distressed; <sup>d</sup> for the people spake of stoning him, because the soul of all the people was <sup>e</sup> grieved, every man for his sons and for his daughters: <sup>f</sup> but David encouraged himself in the Lord his God.

7 <sup>g</sup> And David said to Abiathar the priest, Ahimelech's son, I pray thee, bring me hither the ephod. And Abiathar brought thither the ephod to David.

8 <sup>h</sup> And David inquired at the Lord, saying, Shall I pursue after this troop? shall I overtake them? And he answered him, Pursue: for thou shalt surely overtake them, and without fail recover all.

9 So David went, he and the six hundred men that were with him, and came to the brook Besor, where those that were left behind stayed.

10 But David pursued, he and four hundred men: <sup>i</sup> for two hundred abode behind, which were so faint that they could not go over the brook Besor.

11 And they found an Egyptian in the field, and brought him to David, and gave him bread, and he did eat; and they made him drink water;

12 And they gave him a piece of a cake of figs, and two clusters of raisins: and <sup>j</sup> when he had eaten, his spirit came again to him: for he had eaten no bread, nor drunk any water, three days and three nights.

13 And David said unto him, To whom belongest thou? and whence art thou? And he said, I am a young man of Egypt, servant to an Amalekite; and my master left me, because three days ago I fell sick.

14 We made an invasion upon the south of <sup>k</sup> the Cherethites, and upon the coast which belongeth to Judah, and upon the south of <sup>l</sup> Caleb; and we burned Ziklag with fire.

15 And David said to him, Canst thou bring me down to this company? And he said, Swear unto me by God, that thou wilt neither kill me, nor deliver me into the hands of my master, and I will bring thee down to this company.

16 And when he had brought him down, behold, they were spread abroad upon all the earth, <sup>m</sup> eating and drinking, and dancing, because of all the great spoil that they had taken out of the land of the Philistines, and out of the land of Judah.

17 And David smote them from the twilight even unto the evening of <sup>n</sup> the next day: and there escaped not a man of them, save four hundred young men, which rode upon camels, and fled.

18 And David recovered all that the Amalekites had carried away: and David rescued his two wives.

19 And there was nothing lacking to them, neither small nor great, neither sons nor daughters, neither spoil, nor any thing that they had taken to them: <sup>o</sup> David recovered all.

20 And David took all the flocks and the herds which they drove before those other cattle, and said, This is David's spoil.

21 And David came to the <sup>p</sup> two hundred men, which were so faint that they could not follow David, whom they had made also to abide at the brook Besor: and they went forth to meet David, and to meet the people that were with him: and when David came near to the people, he <sup>q</sup> saluted them.

22 Then answered all the wicked men and men <sup>r</sup> of Belial, of <sup>s</sup> those that went with David, and said, fell sick.] This was very inhuman: though they had booty enough, and no doubt asses sufficient to carry the invalids, yet they left this poor man to perish; and God visited it upon them, as he made this very person the means of their destruction, by the information which he was enabled to give to David and his men.

Verse 16. Out of the land of the Philistines.] That these Amalekites were enemies to the Philistines is evident, but it certainly does not follow from this that those whom David destroyed were enemies also.

Verse 17. There escaped not a man of them.] It is well known to every careful reader of the Bible, that the Amalekites were a proscribed people, even by God himself, and that in extirpating them it has been supposed David fulfilled the express will of God. But all this depends on whether he had an express commission to do so, received from God himself, as Saul had.

Verse 20. And David took all the flocks.] He and his men not only recovered all their own property, but they recovered all the spoil which these Amalekites had taken from the south of Judah, the Cherethites, and the south of Caleb. When this was separated from the rest, it was given to David, and called David's spoil.

Verse 22. Men of Belial.] This is a common expression to denote the sour, the rugged, the severe, the idle, and the profane.

Verse 1. On the third day.] This was the third day after he had left the Philistine army at Aphek.

The Amalekites had invaded.] These were, doubtless, a travelling predatory horde, who, availing themselves of the war between the Philistines and the Israelites, plundered several unprotected towns, and among them Ziklag.

Verse 4. Wept, until they had no more power to weep.] This marks great distress; they wept, as says the Vulgate, till their tears failed them.

Verse 6. The people spake of stoning him.] David had done much to civilize those men; but we find by this of what an unruly and ferocious spirit they were; and yet they strongly felt the ties of natural affection, they "grieved every man for his sons and for his daughters."

Verse 7. Bring me hither the ephod.] It seems as if David had put on the ephod, and inquired of the Lord for himself; but it is more likely that he caused Abiathar to do it.

Verse 9. The brook Besor.] This had its source in the mountain of Idumea, and fell into the Mediterranean Sea beyond Gaza. The sense of this and the following verse is, that when they came to the brook Besor, there were found two hundred out of his six hundred men so spent with fatigue that they could proceed no farther. The baggage or stuff was left there, ver. 24, and they were appointed to guard it.

Verse 18. My master left me, because three days ago I

Because they went not with us, we will not give them ought of the spoil that we have recovered, save to every man his wife and his children, that they may lead them away, and depart.

23 Then said David, Ye shall not do so, my brethren, with that which the LORD hath given us, who hath preserved us, and delivered the company that came against us into our hand.

24 For who will hearken unto you in this matter? but as his part is that goeth down to the battle, so shall his part be that tarrieth by the stuff: they shall part alike.

25 And it was so from that day b forward, that he made it a statute and an ordinance for Israel unto this day.

26 And when David came to Ziklag, he sent of the spoil unto the elders of Judah, even to his

Verse 23. That which the Lord hath given us] He very properly attributes this victory to God; the numbers of the Amalekites being so much greater than his own. Indeed, as many fled away on camels as were in the whole host of David.

Verse 25. He made it a statute and an ordinance for Israel] Nothing could be more just and proper than this law: he who stays at home to defend house and property, has an equal right to the booty taken by those who go out to the war. There was a practice of this kind among the Israelites long before this time; see Num. xxxi. 27, Josh. xxii. 8, and the note on this latter verse.

Verse 26. Unto the elders of Judah] These were the persons among whom he sojourned during his exile, and who had given him shelter and protection. Gratitude required these presents.

Verse 27. To them which were in Bethel] This was in the tribe of Ephraim. [Or Bethuel, in Simeon.]

South Ramoth] So called to distinguish it from Ramoth Gilead, beyond Jordan.

In Jattir] It was situated in the mountains, and belonged to Judah.

Verse 28. In Aroer] Situated beyond Jordan, on the banks of the river Arnon, in the tribe of Gad.

Siphmoth] Supposed to be the same with Shepham, Num. xxxiv. 10, on the eastern border of the promised land. [This is unlikely.]

friends, saying, Behold a present for you of the spoil of the enemies of the LORD;

27 To them which were in Beth-el, and to them which were in <sup>d</sup> south Ramoth, and to them which were in <sup>e</sup> Jattir,

28 And to them which were in <sup>f</sup> Aroer, and to them which were in Siphmoth, and to them which were in <sup>g</sup> Eshtemoa,

29 And to them which were in Rachal, and to them which were in the cities of <sup>h</sup> the Jerahmeelites, and to them which were in the cities of the <sup>i</sup> Kenites,

30 And to them which were in <sup>j</sup> Hormah, and to them which were in Chor-ashan, and to them which were in Athach, 31 And to them which were in <sup>k</sup> Hebron, and to all the places where David himself and his men were wont to haunt.

Eshtemoa] Another city in the tribe of Judah. See Josh. xv. 50. [The present Semua.]

Verse 29. Them which were in Rachal] We know not where this place was; it is mentioned nowhere else in the Bible.

Verse 30. Hormah] The general name of those cities which belonged to Arad, king of Canaan; and were devoted to destruction by the Hebrews, and thence called Hormah. [Supposed to be the present Zephath.]

In Chor-ashan] Probably the same as Ashan, in the tribe of Judah: see Josh. xv. 42.

Verse 31. To them which were in Hebron] This was a place strongly attached to David, and David to it.

David's having sent presents to all these places not only shows his sense of gratitude, but that the booty which he took from the Amalekites must have been exceedingly great. And we learn from this also that David sojourned in many places which are not mentioned in the preceding history; for these are all said to be places where David and his men were wont to haunt.

We are not to suppose that the transactions mentioned here and in the preceding chapter took place after Saul's interview with the woman of En-dor; they were considerably antecedent to this, but how long we do not know. What is recorded in the following chapter must have taken place the next day after Saul left En-dor.

CHAPTER XXXI.

A battle in Mount Gilboa between Israel and the Philistines; in which the former are defeated, and Saul's three sons slain, 1-2. Saul, being mortally wounded, and afraid to fall alive into the hands of the Philistines, desires his armour-bearer to dispatch him; which he refusing, Saul falls on his sword, and his armour-bearer does the same, 3-6. The Israelites on the other side of the valley forsake their cities, and the Philistines come and dwell in them, 7. The Philistines, finding Saul and his three sons among the slain, strip them of their armour, which they put in the house of Ashtaroth, cut off their heads, send the news to all the houses of their idols, and fasten the bodies of Saul and his three sons to the walls of Beth-shan, 8-10. Valiant men of Jubesh-gilead go by night, and take away the bodies; burn them at Jabesh; bury their bones under a tree; and fast seven days, 11-13.

Verse 1. Now the Philistines fought] This is the continuation of the account given in chap. xxix.

The men of Israel fled] It seems as if they were thrown

2 And the Philistines followed hard upon Saul and upon his sons; and the Philistines slew <sup>d</sup>Jonathan, and Abinadab, and Melchishua, Saul's sons.

3 And <sup>e</sup>the battle went sore against Saul, and the into confusion at the first onset, and turned their backs upon their enemies.

Verse 2. Followed hard upon Saul and upon his sons]

*archers <sup>b</sup> hit him; and he was sore wounded of the archers.

4 <sup>c</sup> Then said Saul unto his armour-bearer, Draw thy sword, and thrust me through therewith; lest <sup>d</sup> these uncircumcised come and thrust me through, and <sup>e</sup> abuse me. But his armour-bearer would not; <sup>f</sup> for he was sore afraid. Therefore Saul took a sword, and <sup>g</sup> fell upon it.

5 And when the armour-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he fell likewise upon his sword, and died with him.

6 So Saul died, and his three sons, and his armour-bearer, and all his men, that same day together.

7 And when the men of Israel that were on the other side of the valley, and they that were on the other side Jordan, saw that the men of Israel fled, and that Saul and his sons were dead, they forsook the cities, and fled; and the Philistines came and dwelt in them.

They, seeing the discomfiture of their troops, were determined to sell their lives as dear as possible, and therefore maintained the battle till the three brothers were slain.

Verse 3. He was sore wounded of the archers.] Had not Saul been grievously wounded, and beyond hope of recovery, he would not have wished his armour-bearer to dispatch him: as he might have continued still to fight, or have made his escape from this most disastrous battle. Some of the Versions render it, He feared the archers greatly; but this is by no means likely.

Verse 6. And all his men] Probably meaning those of his troops which were his life or body guards: as to the bulk of the army, it fled at the commencement of the battle, ver. 1.

Verse 7. The men of Israel that were on the other side of the valley] They appear to have been panic-struck, and therefore fled as far as they could out of the reach of the Philistines. As the Philistines possessed Beth-shan, situated near to Jordan, the people on the other side of that river, fearing for their safety, fled also.

Verse 8. On the morrow] It is very likely that the battle and pursuit continued till the night, so that there was no time till the next day to strip and plunder the slain.

Verse 9. And they cut off his head] It is possible that they cut off the heads of his three sons likewise; for although only his head is said to be cut off, and his body only to be fastened to the walls of Beth-shan, yet we find that the men of Jabesh-gilead found both his body and the bodies of his three sons, fastened to the walls, ver. 12.

Verse 10. They put his armour in the house of Ashtaroth] As David had done in placing the sword of Goliath in the tabernacle.

They fastened his body to the wall] Probably by means of iron hooks; but it is said, 2 Sam. xxi. 12, that these bodies were fastened in the street of Beth-shan. This may mean that the place where they were fastened to the wall was the main street or entrance into the city.

Verse 11. When the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead heard] This act of the men of Jabesh-gilead was an act of gratitude

8 And it came to pass on the morrow, when the Philistines came to strip the slain, that they found Saul and his three sons fallen in Mount Gilboa.

9 And they cut off his head, and stripped off his armour, and sent into the land of the Philistines round about, to <sup>a</sup> publish it in the house of their idols, and among the people.

11 <sup>f</sup> And when the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead heard <sup>g</sup> of that which the Philistines had done to Saul;

12 <sup>h</sup> All the valiant men arose, and went all night, and took the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons from the wall of Beth-shan, and came to Jabesh, and <sup>i</sup> burnt them there.

13 And they took their bones, and <sup>j</sup> buried them under a tree at Jabesh, and <sup>k</sup> fasted seven days.

concerning him.—<sup>a</sup> See ch. xi. 1-11. 2 Sam. ii. 4-7.—<sup>b</sup> 2 Chron. xvi. 14. Jer. xxxiv. 5. Amos vi. 10.—<sup>c</sup> 2 Sam. ii. 4, 5. xxi. 12, 13, 14.—<sup>d</sup> Gen. i. 10.

due to Saul, who, at the very commencement of his reign, saved them from the deepest degradation and the most oppressive tyranny. This heroic act, with the seven days' fast, showed that they retained a due sense of their obligation to this unfortunate monarch.

Verse 12. And burnt them there.] It has been denied that the Hebrews burnt the bodies of the dead, but that they buried them in the earth, or embalmed them, and often burned spices around them, &c. These no doubt were the common forms of sepulture, but neither of these could be conveniently practised in the present case. They therefore burnt them, because there was no other way of disposing of them at that time so as to do them honour; and the bones and ashes they collected, and buried under a tree, or in a grove at Jabesh.

Verse 13. And fasted seven days.] To testify their sincere regret for his unfortunate death, and the public calamity that had fallen upon the land.

To the question, "Was not Saul a self-murderer?" I scruple not to answer, "No." He was to all appearance mortally wounded, when he begged his armour-bearer to extinguish the remaining spark of life; and he was afraid that the Philistines might abuse his body if they found him alive; and we can scarcely say how much of indignity is implied in this word; and his falling on his sword was a fit of desperation, which doubtless was the issue of a mind greatly agitated and full of distraction. A few minutes longer, and his life would in all probability have ebbed out; but though this wound accelerated his death, it could not be properly the cause of it, as he was mortally wounded before, and did it on the conviction that he could not survive.

Taking Saul's state and circumstances together, I believe there is not a coroner's inquest in this nation that would not have brought in a verdict of derangement; while the pious and the humane would every where have consoled themselves with the hope that God had extended mercy to his soul.

SAMUEL,

OTHERWISE CALLED THE SECOND BOOK OF THE KINGS.

CHAPTER I.

An Amalekite comes to David, and informs him that the Philistines had routed the Israelites; and that Saul and his sons were slain, 1-4. And pretends that he himself had dispatched Saul, finding him ready to fall alive into the hands of the Philistines, and had brought his crown and bracelets to David, 5-10. David and his men mourn for Saul and his sons, 11, 12. He orders the Amalekite, who professed that he had killed Saul, to be slain, 13-16. David's funeral song for Saul and Jonathan, 17-27.

NOW it came to pass after the death of Saul, when David was returned from <sup>a</sup>the slaughter of the Amalekites, and David had abode two days in Ziklag;

2 It came even to pass on the third day, that, behold, <sup>b</sup>a man came out of the camp from Saul <sup>c</sup>with his clothes rent, and earth upon his head: and so it was, when he came to David, that he fell to the earth, and did obeisance.

3 And David said unto him, From whence comest thou? And he said unto him, Out of the camp of Israel am I escaped.

4 And David said unto him, <sup>d</sup>How went the matter? I pray thee, tell me. And he answered, That the people are fled from the battle, and many of the people also are fallen and dead; and Saul and Jonathan his son are dead also.

5 And David said unto the young man that told him, How knowest thou that Saul and Jonathan his son be dead?

6 And the young man that told him, said, As I happened by chance upon <sup>e</sup>Mount Gilboa, behold, <sup>f</sup>Saul leaned upon his spear; and, lo, the chariots and horsemen followed hard after him.

7 And when he looked behind him, he saw me, and called unto me. And I answered, <sup>g</sup>Here am I.

8 And he said unto me, Who art thou? And I answered him, I am an Amalekite.

9 He said unto me again, stand, I pray thee, upon me, and slay me: for <sup>h</sup>anguish is come upon me, because my life is yet whole in me.

10 So I stood upon him, and <sup>i</sup>slaw him, because I was sure that he could not live after that he was fallen: and I took the crown that <sup>j</sup>was upon his head, and the bracelet that <sup>k</sup>was on his arm, and have brought them hither unto my lord.

11 Then David took hold on his clothes, and <sup>l</sup>rent them; and likewise all the men that <sup>m</sup>were with him:

12 And they mourned, and wept, and fasted until even, for Saul, and for Jonathan his son, and for the people of the LORD, and for the house of Israel; because they were fallen by the sword.

13 And David said unto the young man that told him, Whence <sup>n</sup>art thou? And he answered, I am the son of a stranger, an Amalekite.

14 And David said unto him, <sup>o</sup>How wast thou not <sup>p</sup>afraid to <sup>q</sup>stretch forth thine hand to destroy the LORD's anointed?

15 And <sup>r</sup>David called one of the young men, and said, Go near, and fall upon him. And he smote him that he died.

16 And David said unto him, <sup>s</sup>Thy blood be upon thy head; for <sup>t</sup>thy mouth hath testified against thee, saying, I have slain the LORD's anointed.

17 And David lamented with this lamentation over Saul and over Jonathan his son:

—<sup>a</sup> 1 Sam. xix. 17, 28.—<sup>b</sup> Ch. iv. 10.—<sup>c</sup> 1 Sam. iv. 12.—<sup>d</sup> Heb. what was, &c. 1 Sam. iv. 18.—<sup>e</sup> 1 Sam. xxxi. 1.—<sup>f</sup> See 1 Sam. xxxi. 2, 3, 4.—<sup>g</sup> Heb. having dispatched Saul, merely to ingratiate himself with David.

Verse 10. The crown—and the bracelet] The crown was probably no more than a royal fillet or diadem, both being the ensigns of royalty.

Verse 16. Thy blood be upon thy head] If he killed Saul, as he said he did, then he deserved death; at that

Verse 2. A man came out of the camp] The whole account which this young man gives is a fabrication: in many of the particulars it is grossly self-contradictory. There is no fact in the case but the bringing of the crown, or diadem, and bracelets of Saul; which, as he appears to have been a plunderer of the slain, he found on the field of battle; and he brought them to David, and told the lie of

19 The beauty of Israel is slain upon thy high places: <sup>d</sup> how are the mighty fallen!

20 *Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon; lest <sup>e</sup> the daughters of the <sup>f</sup> Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph.

21 Ye <sup>h</sup> mountains of Gilboa, <sup>i</sup> let there be no dew, neither let there be rain, upon you, nor fields of offerings: for there the shield of the mighty is vilely cast away, the shield of Saul, as though he had not been <sup>j</sup> anointed with oil.

22 From the blood of the slain, from the fat of the mighty, <sup>k</sup> the bow of Jonathan turned not back, and the sword of Saul returned not empty.

23 Saul and Jonathan were lovely and <sup>l</sup> pleasant in their lives, and in their death they were not divided: they were swifter than eagles, they were <sup>m</sup> stronger than lions.

24 Ye daughters of Israel, weep over Saul, who clothed you in scarlet, with other delights, who put on ornaments of gold upon your apparel.

25 How are the mighty fallen in the midst of the battle! O Jonathan, thou wast slain in thine high places.

26 I am distressed for thee, my brother Jonathan: very pleasant hast thou been unto me: <sup>n</sup> thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women.

27 °How are the mighty fallen, and the weapons of war perished!

time it was not known to the contrary, and this man was executed on his own confession.

Verse 18. The use of the bow] The use of is not in the Hebrew; it is simply, the bow, that is, a song thus entitled.

Verse 21. As though he had not been] Instead of beli, not, I read keley, INSTRUMENTS; and thus the passage runs: "the shield of Saul, instruments (or weapons) anointed with oil." [But the reference is evidently to the defilement of Saul's shield; it was not polished, but had the stain of blood on it.]

This lamentation is justly admired as a picture of distress the most tender and the most striking; unequally divided by grief into longer and shorter breaks, as Nature could pour them forth from a mind interrupted by the alternate recurrence of the most lively images of love and greatness.

His reverence for Saul and his love for Jonathan have their strongest colourings; but their greatness and bravery come full upon him, and are expressed with peculiar energy.

Being himself a warrior, it is in that character he sees their greatest excellence; and though his imagination hurries from one point of recollection to another, yet we hear him,—at first, at last, every where, lamenting, How are the mighty fallen!

It is almost impossible to read the noble original without finding every word swollen with a sigh or broken with a sob. A heart pregnant with distress and striving to utter expressions descriptive of its feelings, which are repeatedly interrupted by an excess of grief, is most sensibly painted throughout the whole.

CHAPTER II.

David, by the direction of God, goes up to Hebron, and is there anointed king over the house of Judah, 1-4. He congratulates the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead on their kindness in rescuing the bodies of Saul and his sons from the Philistines, 5-7. Abner anoints Ish-bosheth, Saul's son, king over Gilead, the Ashurites, Jezreel, Ephraim, Benjamin, and all Israel; over whom he reigned two years, 8-10. David reigns over Judah, in Hebron, seven years and six months, 11. Account of a battle between Abner, captain of the Israelites, and Joab, captain of the men of Judah; in which the former are routed, with the loss of three hundred and sixty men: but Asahel, the brother of Joab, is killed by Abner, 12-32.

AND it came to pass after this, that David <sup>a</sup> inquired of the LORD, saying, Shall I go up into any of the cities of Judah? And the LORD said unto him, Go up. And David said, Whither shall I go up? And he said, Unto <sup>b</sup> Hebron.

2 So David went up thither, and his <sup>c</sup> two wives also, Ahinoam the Jezreelitess, and Abigail, Nabal's wife, the Carmelite.

3 And <sup>d</sup> his men that were with him did David

4 * And the men of Judah came; and there they anointed David king over the house of Judah. And they told David, saying, That <sup>e</sup> the men of Jabesh-gilead were they that buried Saul.

5 And David sent messengers unto the men of Jabesh-gilead, and said unto them, * Blessed be ye of the LORD, that ye have shewed this kindness unto your lord, even unto Saul, and have buried him.

by the present anointing he had authority over the kingdom. The other parts of the kingdom were as yet attached to the family of Saul.

Verse 5. David sent messengers unto—Jabesh-gilead] This was a generous and noble act, highly indicative of the grandeur of David's mind. He respected Saul as his once legitimate sovereign; he loved Jonathan as his most intimate friend. The former had greatly injured him, and sought his destruction; but even this did not cancel his 6 And now <sup>a</sup>the LORD shew kindness and truth unto you: and I also will requite you this kindness, because ye have done this thing.

7 Therefore now let your hands be strengthened, and <sup>b</sup>be ye valiant: for your master Saul is dead, and also the house of Judah have anointed me king over them.

8 But <sup>c</sup>Abner the son of Ner, captain of <sup>d</sup>Saul's host, took <sup>e</sup>Ish-bosheth the son of Saul, and brought him over to Mahanaim;

9 And made him king over Gilead, and over the Ashurites, and over Jezreel, and over Ephraim, and over Benjamin, and over all Israel.

10 Ish-bosheth Saul's son was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and reigned two years. But the house of Judah followed David.

11 And <sup>f</sup>the <sup>g</sup>time that David was king in Hebron over the house of Judah was seven years and six months.

12 And Abner the son of Ner, and the servants of Ish-bosheth the son of Saul, went out from Mahanaim to <sup>h</sup>Gibeon.

13 And Joab the son of Zeruiah, and the servants of David, went out, and met <sup>i</sup>together by the <sup>j</sup>pool of Gibeon: and they sat down, the one on the one side of the pool, and the other on the other side of the pool.

14 And Abner said to Joab, Let the young men now arise, and play before us. And Joab said, Let them arise.

15 Then there arose and went over by number twelve of Benjamin, which pertained to Ish-bosheth the son of Saul, and twelve of the servants of David.

16 And they caught every one his fellow by the head, and thrust his sword in his fellow's side; so they fell down together: wherefore that place was called <sup>k</sup>Helkath-hazzurim, which is in Gibeon.

17 And there was a very sore battle that day; and Abner was beaten, and the men of Israel, before the servants of David.

18 And there were <sup>l</sup>three sons of Zeruiah there,

19 And Asahel pursued after Abner; and in going he turned not to the right hand nor to the left <sup>q</sup>from following Abner.

20 Then Abner looked behind him, and said, Art thou Asahel? And he answered, I am.

21 And Abner said to him, Turn thee aside to thy right hand or to thy left, and lay thee hold on one of the young men, and take thee his <sup>r</sup>armour. But Asahel would not turn aside from following of him.

22 And Abner said again to Asahel, Turn thee aside from following me: wherefore should I smite thee to the ground? how then should I hold up my face to Joab thy brother?

23 Howbeit he refused to turn aside: wherefore Abner with the hinder end of the spear smote him <sup>s</sup>under the fifth rib, that the spear came out behind him; and he fell down there, and died in the same place: and it came to pass, that as many as came to the place where Asahel fell down and died stood still.

24 Joab also and Abishai pursued after Abner; and the sun went down when they were come to the hill of Ammah, that lieth before Giah by the way of the wilderness of Gibeon.

25 And the children of Benjamin gathered themselves together after Abner, and became one troop, and stood on the top of an hill.

26 Then Abner called to Joab, and said, Shall the sword devour for ever? knowest thou not that it will be bitterness in the latter end? how long shall it be then, ere thou bid the people return from following their brethren?

27 And Joab said, As God liveth, unless <sup>t</sup>thou hadst spoken, surely then <sup>u</sup>in the morning the people had <sup>v</sup>gone up every one from following his brother.

28 So Joab blew a trumpet, and all the people stood still, and pursued after Israel no more, neither fought they any more.

respect for him as the anointed of God, and as the king of Israel.

Verse 7. Now let your hands be strengthened] David certainly wished to attach the men of Jabesh to his interest; he saw that they were generous and valiant, and must be of great service to him whose part they espoused; and he was no doubt afraid that they would attach themselves to the house of Saul, in consideration of the eminent services Saul had rendered them in rescuing them from Nahash, king of the Ammonites.

Verse 8. Abner the son of Ner] This man had long been one of the chief captains of Saul's army, and commander-in-chief on several occasions; he was probably envious of David's power, by whom he had often been out-generaled in the field.

Verse 9. Made him king over Gilead] These were places beyond Jordan; for as the Philistines had lately roused the Israelites, they were no doubt in possession of some of the principal towns, and were now enjoying the fruits of their victory. Abner was therefore afraid to bring the new king to any place where he was likely to meet with much resistance, till he had got his army well recruited.

Who the Ashurites were is not generally agreed; probably men of the tribe of Ashur.

Verse 10. Ish-bosheth—reigned two years] It is well observed that Ish-bosheth reigned all the time that David reigned in Hebron, which was seven years and six months.

Perhaps the meaning of the writer is this: Ish-bosheth reigned two years before any but the tribe of Judah had attached themselves to the interest of David. Some think that Abner in effect reigned the last five years of Ish-bosheth, who had only the name of king after the first two years. Or the text may be understood thus: When Ish-bosheth had reigned two years over Israel, he was forty years of age. [The more likely explanation is, that Ish-bosheth was not made king, as David was, until Abner had recovered from the Philistines the land which they had taken on this side the Jordan. Ish-bosheth certainly reigned after Abner's death.]

Verse 14. Let the young men—play before us] This was diabolical play, where each man thrust his sword into the body of the other, so that the twenty-four (twelve on each side) fell down dead together!

Verse 16. Caught every one his fellow by the head] Probably by the beard, if these persons were not too young to have one, or by the hair of the head.

Verse 18. Asahel was as light of foot as a wild roe] To be swift of foot was deemed a great accomplishment in the heroes of antiquity.

Verse 21. Take thee his armour] Asahel wished to get the armour of Abner as a trophy; this also was greatly coveted by ancient heroes.

Verse 27. And Joab said] The meaning of this verse appears to be this: If Abner had not provoked the battle, 29 And Abner and his men walked all that night through the plain, and passed over Jordan, and went through all Bithron, and they came to Mahanaim.

30 And Joab returned from following Abner: and when he had gathered all the people together, there lacked of David's servants nineteen men and Asahel.

Joab would not have attacked the Israelites that day; as his orders were probably to act on the defensive.

31 But the servants of David had smitten of Benjamin, and of Abner's men, so that three hundred and threescore men died.

32 And they took up Asahel, and buried him in the sepulchre of his father, which was in Beth-lehem. And Joab and his men went all night, and they came to Hebron at break of day.

Verse 29. They came to Mahanaim.] So they returned to the place whence they set out.

CHAPTER III.

Account of the children born to David in Hebron, 1-5. Abner being accused by Ish-bosheth of familiarities with Rizpah, Saul's concubine, he is enraged; offers his services to David; goes to Hebron, and makes a league with him, 6-22. Joab, through enmity to Abner, pretends to David that he came as a spy, and should not be permitted to return, 23-25. He follows Abner, and treacherously slays him, 26, 27. David, hearing of it, is greatly incensed against Joab, and pronounces a curse upon him, and upon his family, 28, 29. He commands a general mourning for Abner, and himself follows the bier weeping, 30-32. David's lamentation over Abner, 33-34. The people solicit David to take meat; but he fasts the whole day, and complains to them of the insolence and intrigues of Joab and his brothers: the people are pleased with his conduct, 35-39.

NOW there was long war between the house of Saul and the house of David: but David waxed stronger and stronger, and the house of Saul waxed weaker and weaker.

2 And <sup>a</sup>unto David <sup>b</sup>were sons born in Hebron: and his first born was Amnon, <sup>c</sup>of Ahinoam the Jezreelitess;

3 And his second, <sup>d</sup>Chileab, of Abigail the wife of Nabal the Carmelite; and the third, Absalom the son of Maacah, the daughter of Talmai king of <sup>e</sup>Geshur;

4 And the fourth, <sup>f</sup>Adonijah the son of Haggith; and the fifth, Shephatiah the son of Abital;

5 And the sixth, Ithream, by Eglah David's wife. These were born to David in Hebron.

6 And it came to pass, while there was war between the house of Saul and the house of David, that Abner made himself strong for the house of Saul.

7 And Saul had a concubine, whose name was <sup>g</sup>Rizpah, the daughter of Aiah: and Ish-bosheth said to Abner, Wherefore hast thou <sup>h</sup>gone in unto my father's concubine?

8 Then was Abner very wroth for the words of Ish-bosheth, and said, Am I <sup>i</sup>a dog's head, which against Judah do show kindness this day unto the house of Saul thy father, and to his friends, and have not delivered thee into the hand of David, that thou chargest me to day with a fault concerning this woman?

9 <sup>j</sup>So do God to Abner, and more also, except, <sup>k</sup>as the LORD hath sworn to David, even so I do to him;

10 To translate the kingdom from the house of Saul, and to set up the throne of David over Israel and over Judah, <sup>l</sup>from Dan even to Beer-sheba.

11 And he could not answer Abner a word again, because he feared him.

12 And Abner sent messengers to David on his behalf, saying, Whose is the land? saying also, Make thy league with me, and, behold, my hand <sup>m</sup>shall be with thee, to bring about all Israel unto thee.

13 And he said, Well; I will make a league with thee: but one thing I require of thee, <sup>n</sup>that is, <sup>o</sup>Thou shalt not see my face, except thou first bring <sup>p</sup>Michal Saul's daughter, when thou comest to see my face.

14 And David sent messengers to Ish-bosheth Saul's son, saying, Deliver me my wife Michal, which I espoused to me <sup>q</sup>for an hundred foreskins of the Philistines.

15 And Ish-bosheth sent, and took her from her husband, even from <sup>r</sup>Phaltiel the son of Laish.

Verse 1. There was long war] Frequent battles and skirmishes took place between the followers of David and the followers of Ish-bosheth, after the two years mentioned above, to the end of the fifth year, in which Ish-bosheth was slain by Rechab and Baanah.

Verse 6. Abner made himself strong] This strengthening of himself, and going in to the late king's concubine, were most evident proofs that he wished to seize upon the government.

Verse 8. Am I a dog's head] Dost thou treat a man with indignity who has been the only prop of thy tottering kingdom, and the only person who could make head against house of David?

Verse 9. Except, as the Lord hath sworn to David] And why did he not do this before, when he knew that God had given the kingdom to David? Was he not now, according to his own confession, fighting against God?

Verse 11. He could not answer Abner a word] Miserable is the lot of a king who is governed by the general of his army, who may strip him of his power and dignity whenever he pleases! Military men, above all others, should never be intrusted with any civil power, and should be great only in the field.

Verse 13. Except thou first bring Michal] However distressing it was to take her from a husband who loved her most tenderly, yet prudence and policy required that he should strengthen his own interest in the kingdom as much as possible; and that he should not leave a princess in the possession of a man who might, in her right, have made pretensions to the throne. Besides, she was his own lawful wife, and he had a right to demand her when he pleased.

Verse 14. Deliver me my wife] It is supposed that he meant to screen Abner; and to prevent that violence which he might have used in carrying off Michal.

16 And her husband went with her <sup>a</sup>along weeping behind her to <sup>b</sup>Bahurim. Then said Abner unto him, Go, return. And he returned.

17 And Abner had communication with the elders of Israel, saying, Ye sought for David <sup>c</sup>in times past to be king over you:

18 Now then do it: <sup>d</sup>for the LORD hath spoken of David, saying, By the hand of my servant David I will save my people Israel out of the hand of the Philistines, and out of the hand of all their enemies.

19 And Abner also spake in the ears of <sup>e</sup>Benjamin: and Abner went also to speak in the ears of David in Hebron all that seemed good to Israel, and that seemed good to the whole house of Benjamin.

20 So Abner came to David to Hebron, and twenty men with him. And David made Abner and the men that <sup>f</sup>were with him a feast.

21 And Abner said unto David, I will arise, and go, and <sup>g</sup>will gather all Israel unto my lord the king, that they may make a league with thee, and that thou mayest <sup>h</sup>reign over all that thine heart desireth. And David sent Abner away; and he went in peace.

22 And, behold, the servants of David and Joab came from <sup>i</sup>pursuing a troop, and brought in a great spoil with them: but Abner <sup>j</sup>was not with David in Hebron; for he had sent him away, and he was gone in peace.

23 When Joab and all the host that <sup>k</sup>was with him were come, they told Joab, saying, Abner the son of Ner came to the king, and he hath sent him away, and he is gone in peace.

24 Then Joab came to the king, and said, What hast thou done? behold, Abner came unto thee; why is it that thou hast sent him away, and he is quite gone?

25 Thou knowest Abner the son of Ner, that he came to deceive thee, and to know <sup>l</sup>thy going out and thy coming in, and to know all that thou doest.

26 And when Joab was come out from David, he sent messengers after Abner which brought him again from the well of Sirah: but David knew <sup>m</sup>it not.

27 And when Abner was returned to Hebron,

Joab <sup>n</sup>took him aside in the gate to speak with him <sup>o</sup>quietly, and smote him there <sup>p</sup>under the fifth rib, that he died, for the blood of <sup>q</sup>Asahel his brother.

28 And afterward when David heard <sup>r</sup>it, he said, I and my kingdom <sup>s</sup>are guiltless before the LORD for ever from the blood of <sup>t</sup>Abner the son of Ner:

29 <sup>u</sup>Let it rest on the head of Joab, and on all his father's house; and let there not <sup>v</sup>fail from the house of Joab one <sup>w</sup>that hath an issue, or that is a leper, or that leaneth on a staff, or that falleth on the sword, or that lacketh bread.

30 So Joab and Abishai his brother slew Abner, because he had slain their brother <sup>x</sup>Asahel at Gibeon in the battle.

31 And David said to Joab, and to all the people that <sup>y</sup>were with him, <sup>z</sup>Rend your clothes, and <sup>aa</sup>gird you with sackcloth, and mourn before Abner. And king David <sup>ab</sup>himself followed the <sup>ac</sup>bier.

32 And they buried Abner in Hebron: and the king lifted up his voice, and wept at the grave of Abner; and all the people wept.

33 And the king lamented over Abner, and said, Died Abner as a <sup>ad</sup>fool dieth?

34 Thy hands <sup>ae</sup>were not bound, nor thy feet put into fetters: as a man falleth before <sup>af</sup>wicked men, so fellest thou. And all the people wept again over him.

35 And when all the people came <sup>ag</sup>to cause David to eat meat, while it was yet day, David sware, saying, <sup>ah</sup>So do God to me, and more also, if I taste bread, or ought else, <sup>ai</sup>till the sun be down.

36 And all the people took notice of it, and it <sup>aj</sup>pleased them: as whatsoever the king did pleased all the people.

37 For all the people and all Israel understood that day that it was not of the king to slay Abner the son of Ner.

38 And the king said unto his servants, Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?

39 And I <sup>ak</sup>am this day <sup>al</sup>weak, though anointed king; and these men the sons of Zeruiah <sup>am</sup>be too hard for me: <sup>an</sup>the LORD shall reward the doer of evil according to his wickedness.

Verse 16. Weeping behind her] If genuine affection did not still subsist between David and Michal, it was a pity to have taken her from Phaltiel, who had her to wife from the conjoint authority of her father and her king.

Verse 18. The Lord hath spoken of David] Such a promise is not extant.

Verse 21. He went in peace.] David dismissed him in good faith, having no sinister design in reference to him.

Verse 27. And smote him there.] Joab feared that Abner would be made captain of the host: he therefore murdered him, under pretence of avenging the death of his brother Asahel.

The murder, however, was one of the most unprovoked and wicked: and such was the power and influence of this nefarious general, that the king dared not to bring him to justice for his crime.

Verse 29. Let it rest on the head.] All these verbs may be rendered in the future tense; it will rest on the head of Joab, &c. This was a prophetic declaration, which sufficiently showed the displeasure of God against this execrable

Verse 31. David said to Joab] He commanded him to take on him the part of a principal mourner.

Verse 33. The king lamented over Abner] This lamentation, though short, is very pathetic. It is a high strain of poetry; but the measure cannot be easily ascertained.

This song was a heavy reproof to Joab; and must have galled him extremely, being sung by all the people.

Verse 36. The people took notice.] They saw that the king's grief was sincere, and that he had no part nor device in the murder of Abner: see ver. 37.

Verse 39. I am this day weak.] Had Abner lived, all the tribes of Israel would have been brought under my government.

Though anointed king.] I have little else than the title: first, having only one tribe under my government; and secondly, the sons of Zeruiah, Joab and his brethren, having usurped all the power, and reduced me to a shadow of royalty.

The Lord shall reward the doer of evil.] That is, Joab, whom he appears afraid to name.

CHAPTER IV.

Some account of Rechab and Baanah, two of Ish-bosheth's captains, and of Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan, 1-4. Rechab and Baanah murder Ish-bosheth, and escape; and bring his head to David, 5-8. David is greatly irritated, and commands them to be slain, 9-12.

AND when Saul's son heard that Abner was dead in Hebron, <sup>a</sup>his hands were feeble, and all the Israelites were <sup>b</sup>troubled.

2 And Saul's son had two men that were captains of bands: the name of the one was Baanah, and the name of the <sup>c</sup>other Rechab, the sons of Rimmon a Beerothite, of the children of Benjamin: (for <sup>d</sup>Beeroth also was reckoned to Benjamin:

3 And the Beerothites fled to <sup>e</sup>Gittaim, and were sojourners there unto this day.)

4 And 'Jonathan, Saul's son, had a son that was lame of his feet. He was five years old when the tidings came of Saul and Jonathan <sup>f</sup>out of Jezreel, and his nurse took him up, and fled: and it came to pass, as she made haste to flee, that he fell, and became lame. And his name was <sup>g</sup>Mephibosheth.

5 And the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, Rechab and Baanah, went, and came about the heat of the day to the house of Ish-bosheth, who lay on a bed at noon.

6 And they came thither into the midst of the house, as though they would have fetched wheat; and they smote him <sup>h</sup>under the fifth rib: and Rechab and Baanah his brother escaped.

7 For when they came into the house, he lay on his bed in his bedchamber, and they smote him, and slew him, and beheaded him, and took his head, and gat them away through the plain all night.

8 And they brought the head of Ish-bosheth unto David to Hebron, and said to the king, Behold, the head of Ish-bosheth the son of Saul thine enemy, <sup>i</sup>which sought thy life; and the LORD hath avenged my lord the king this day of Saul, and of his seed.

9 And David answered Rechab and Baanah his brother, the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, and said unto them, As the LORD liveth, <sup>k</sup>who hath redeemed my soul out of all adversity,

10 When <sup>l</sup>one told me, saying, Behold, Saul is dead, <sup>m</sup>thinking to have brought good tidings, I took hold of him, and slew him in Ziklag, <sup>n</sup>who thought that I would have given him a reward for his tidings:

11 How much more, when wicked men have slain a righteous person in his own house upon his bed? shall I not therefore now <sup>o</sup>require his blood of your hand, and take you away from the earth?

12 And David <sup>p</sup>commanded his young men, and they slew them, and cut off their hands and their feet, and hanged them up over the pool in Hebron. But they took the head of Ish-bosheth, and buried it in the <sup>q</sup>sepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

Verse 1. All the Israelites were troubled.] Abner was their great support; and on him they depended; for it appears that Ish-bosheth was a feeble prince, and had few of those qualities requisite for a sovereign.

Verse 2. Captains of bands.] Whether Ish-bosheth kept bands of marauders, whose business it was to make sudden incursions into the country places, and carry off grain, provisions, cattle, &c., we know not; but such persons would be well qualified for the bloody work in which those two men were afterwards employed.

Verse 3. The Beerothites fled to Gittaim.] Probably the same as Gath; as Ramathaim is the same as Ramah.

Verse 5. Lay on a bed at noon.] It is a custom in all hot countries to travel or work very early and very late, and rest at noon day, in which the heat chiefly prevails.

Verse 6. As though they would have fetched wheat.] The king's stores were probably near his own dwelling; and these men were accustomed to go thither for provisions for themselves, their cattle, and their men.

No man would suspect their present errand, as they were in the habit of going frequently to that place.

Verse 8. They brought the head—unto David.] They thought, as did the poor lying Amalekite, to ingratiate themselves with David by this abominable act.

Verse 9. Who hath redeemed my soul out of all adversity.] This was, in David's case, a very proper view of the goodness and watchful providence of God towards him. His life was frequently in danger; murderers had often laid wait for it: but God, the living God, had always redeemed that life from all adversity; and called on him now to punish such evil-minded and blood-thirsty men.

Verse 11. How much more.] Ish-bosheth was an innocent man, and therefore none could have any ground of quarrel against him. He was in his own house, which was his sanctuary, and none but the worst of men would disturb him there. He was upon his bed, resting in the heat of the day, and so free from suspicion that he was not even attended by his guards, nor had he his doors secured. To take away the life of such a man, in such circumstances, whom also they professed to hold as their sovereign, was the most abandoned treachery.

Verse 12. And they slew them.] None ever more richly deserved death; and by this act of justice David showed to all Israel that he was a decided enemy to the destruction of Saul's family; and that none could lift up their hands against any of them without meeting with condign punishment.

CHAPTER V.

The elders of all the tribes of Israel come and anoint David king over all Israel, 1-5. He goes against the Jebusites, and takes the stronghold of Zion, and afterwards the city itself; which is called the city of David, 6-9. David's prosperity, and friendship with Hiram, king of Tyre, 10-12. He takes more concubines, and begets several sons and daughters, 13-16. The Philistines gather together against him in the valley of Rephaim, he defeats them; they abandon their idols, and David and his men burn them, 17-21. They assemble once more in the valley of Rephaim, and David smites them from Geba to Gazer, 22-25.

THEN <sup>a</sup>came all the tribes of Israel to David unto Hebron, and spake, saying, Behold, <sup>b</sup>we are thy bone and thy flesh.

2 Also in time past, when Saul was king over us, <sup>c</sup>thou wast he that leddest out and broughtest in Israel: and the LORD said to thee, <sup>d</sup>Thou shalt feed my people Israel, and thou shalt be a captain over Israel.

3 <sup>e</sup>So all the elders of Israel came to the king to Hebron; <sup>f</sup>and king David made a league with them in Hebron <sup>g</sup>before the LORD; and they anointed David king over Israel.

4 David was thirty years old when he began to reign, <sup>h</sup>and he reigned forty years.

5 In Hebron he reigned over Judah <sup>i</sup>seven years and six months: and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty and three years over all Israel and Judah.

6 And the king and his men went <sup>j</sup>to Jerusalem unto <sup>k</sup>the Jebusites, the inhabitants of the land: which spake unto David, saying, Except thou take away the blind and the lame, thou shalt not come in hither: <sup>l</sup>thinking, David cannot come in hither.

7 Nevertheless David took the stronghold of Zion: <sup>m</sup>the same is the city of David.

8 And David said on that day, Whosoever getteth up to the gutter, and smiteth the Jebusites, and the lame and the blind that are hated of David's soul, <sup>n</sup>he shall be chief and captain. <sup>o</sup>Wherefore they said, The blind and the lame shall not come into the house.

9 So David dwelt in the fort, and called it <sup>p</sup>the city of David. And David built round about from Millo and inward.

10 And David <sup>q</sup>went on, and grew great, and the LORD God of hosts was with him.

11 And <sup>r</sup>Hiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and cedar-trees, and carpenters, and <sup>s</sup>masons: and they built David an house.

12 And David perceived that the LORD had established him king over Israel, and that he had exalted his kingdom for his people Israel's sake.

13 And <sup>t</sup>David took <sup>u</sup>him more concubines and wives out of Jerusalem, after he was come from Hebron: and there were yet sons and daughters born to David.

14 And <sup>v</sup>these be the names of those that were born unto him in Jerusalem: <sup>w</sup>Shammuah, and Shobab, and Nathan, and Solomon,

15 Ibhar also, and <sup>x</sup>Elishua, and Nepheg, and Japhia,

16 And Elishama, and <sup>y</sup>Eliada, and Eliphalet.

17 <sup>z</sup>But when the Philistines heard that they had anointed David king over Israel, all the Philistines came up to seek David; and David heard of it, <sup>aa</sup>and went down to the hold.

18 The Philistines also came and spread themselves in <sup>ab</sup>the valley of Rephaim.

19 And David <sup>ac</sup>inquired of the LORD, saying, Shall I go up to the Philistines? wilt thou deliver them into mine hand? And the LORD said unto David, Go up: for I will doubtless deliver the Philistines into thine hand.

Verse 1. Then came all the tribes of Israel] They founded their resolution on three good arguments: David was their own countryman; in Saul's time he had been their general, and had always led them to victory; God had appointed him to the kingdom, to govern and protect the people.

Verse 3. They anointed David king] This was the third time that David was anointed, having now taken possession of the whole kingdom.

Verse 6. The king and his men went to Jerusalem] This city was now in the hands of the Jebusites; but how they got possession of it is not known; probably they took it during the wars between Ish-bosheth and David. After Joshua's death, what is called the lower city, was taken by the Israelites; and it is evident that the whole city was in their possession in the time of Saul, for David brought the head of Goliath thither, <sup>1</sup>Sam. xvii. 64. It appears to have been a very strong fortress, and, from what follows, deemed impregnable by the Jebusites.

Except thou take away the blind and the lame] Scarcely a passage in the sacred oracles has puzzled commentators more than this. From the general face of the text it appears that the Jebusites, vainly confiding in the strength of their fortress, placed lame and blind men upon the walls, and thus endeavoured to turn into ridicule David's attempt to take the place: Thou shalt not come in thither, except thou take away the blind and the lame; nothing could be more cutting to a warrior.

Verse 11. Hiram king of Tyre] He was no doubt a believer in the true God. He was not only a friend to David, but also of his son Solomon, to whom, in building the temple, he afforded the most important assistance.

Verse 18. David took him more concubines] That dispensation permitted polygamy, but from the beginning it was not so; and as upon an average there are about fourteen males born to thirteen females, polygamy is unnatural, and could never have entered into the original design of God.

Verse 14. These be the names] Eleven children are here enumerated in the Hebrew text; but the Septuagint have no less than twenty-four.

Verse 17. The Philistines came up to seek David] Ever since the fall of Saul and his sons, the Philistines seem to have been in undisturbed possession of the principal places in the land of Israel; now, finding that David was chosen king by the whole nation, they thought best to attack him before his army got too numerous, and the affairs of the kingdom were properly settled.

Verse 19. David inquired of the Lord] He considered himself only the captain of the Lord's host, and therefore would not strike a stroke without the command of his Verse 20. The Lord hath broken forth] He very properly attributes the victory to Jehovah, without whose strength and counsel he could have done nothing.

21 And there they left their images, and David and his men <sup>b</sup> burned <sup>c</sup> them.

22 <sup>a</sup> And the Philistines came up yet again, and spread themselves in the valley of Rephaim.

23 And when <sup>a</sup> David inquired of the LORD, he said, Thou shalt not go up; <sup>b</sup> but fetch a compass the breach which God made in the Philistine army; and thus he commemorated the interference of the Lord.

Verse 21. They left their images] It was the custom of most nations to carry their gods with them to battle; in imitation of this custom the Israelites once took the ark and lost it in the field; see 1 Sam. iv.

Verse 23. Fetch a compass behind them] When they may be bad, God will not work without using human means. By this he taught David caution, prudence, and dependence on the divine strength.

behind them, and come upon them over against the mulberry-trees.

24 And let it be, when thou <sup>a</sup> hearest the sound of a going in the tops of the mulberry-trees, that then thou shalt bestir thyself: for then <sup>a</sup> shall the LORD go out before thee, to smite the host of the Philistines.

25 And David did so, as the Lord had commanded him; and smote the Philistines from <sup>b</sup> Gēba until thou come to <sup>c</sup> Gazer.

Verse 24. When thou hearest the sound of a going] If there had not been an evident supernatural interference, David might have thought that the sleight or ruse de guerre which he had used was the cause of his victory. By the going in the tops of the mulberry-trees probably only a rustling among the leaves is intended.

Verse 25. And David did so] He punctually obeyed the directions of the Lord, and then every thing succeeded to his wish.

CHAPTER VI.

David goes with thirty thousand men to bring the ark from Kirjath-jearim to Jerusalem, 1-5. The oxen stumbling, Uzzah, who drove the cart on which the ark was placed, put forth his hand to save it from falling: the Lord was displeased, and smote him so that he died, 6, 7. David, being alarmed, carries the ark to the house of Obed-edom, 8-10. Here it remained three months; and God prospered Obed-edom, in whose house it was deposited, 11. David, hearing of this, brings the ark, with sacrifices and solemn rejoicings, to Jerusalem, 12-15. Michal, seeing David dance before the ark, despises him, 16. He offers burnt-offerings and peace-offerings, and deals among all the people, men and women, a cake of bread, a good piece of flesh, and a flagon of wine each, 17-19. Michal coming to meet him, and seeing him dance extravagantly before the ark, reproaches him for his conduct: he vindicates himself, reproves her, and she dies childless, 20-23.

AGAIN, David gathered together all the chosen men of Israel, thirty thousand.

2 And <sup>a</sup> David arose, and went with all the people that were with him from <sup>b</sup> Baale of Judah, to bring up from thence the ark of God, <sup>c</sup> whose name is called by the name of the LORD of hosts <sup>d</sup> that dwelleth between the cherubims.

3 And they <sup>e</sup> set the ark of God <sup>f</sup> upon a new cart, and brought it out of the house of Abinadab that was in <sup>g</sup> Gibeah; and Uzzah and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab, drove the new cart.

4 And they brought it out of <sup>h</sup> the house of Abinadab which was at Gibeah, <sup>i</sup> accompanying the ark of God: and Ahio went before the ark.

5 And David and all the house of Israel played before the LORD on all manner of instruments made of fir-wood, even on harps, and on psalteries, and on timbrels and on cornets, and on cymbals.

6 And when they came to <sup>j</sup> Nachon's threshing-floor, Uzzah <sup>k</sup> put forth his hand to the ark of God, and took hold of it; for the oxen <sup>l</sup> shook it.

7 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against Uzzah; and <sup>m</sup> God smote him there for his <sup>n</sup> error; and there he died by the ark of God.

8 And David was displeased, because the LORD

Verse 1. Thirty thousand.] This is supposed to have been a new levy: and thus he augmented his army by 80,000 fresh troops.

Verse 2. From Baale of Judah] This is supposed to be the same city which, in Josh. xv. 60, is called Kirjath-baal or Kirjath-jearim.

Whose name is called by the name of the Lord] That is, The ark is called the ark of the Lord of hosts. But this is not a literal version; the word shem, NAME, occurs twice together; probably one of them should be read sham, THERE. There the name of the Lord of hosts was invoked, &c. [It may be rendered: "Upon which the name is called, the name of the Lord of Hosts, &c."]

Verse 3. A new cart] Every thing used in the worship of God was hallowed or set apart for that purpose: a new cart was used through respect, as that had never been applied to any profane or common purpose. But this was not sufficient, for the ark should have been carried on the shoulders of the priests; and the neglect of this ceremony was the cause of the death of Uzzah.

Verse 5. On all manner of instruments made of fir-wood] Instead of bechol atsey, "with all woods" or "trees," the parallel place, 1 Chron. xiii. 8, is bechol oz, "with all their strength;" this makes a good sense, the first makes none.

Verse 6. Uzzah put forth his hand] In Num. iv. 15-20, the Levites are forbidden to touch the ark on pain of death; this penalty was inflicted upon Uzzah, and he was the first that suffered for a breach of this law.

Verse 7. Smote him there for his error] Had he touched the ark with impunity, the populace might have lost their had <sup>a</sup> made a breach upon Uzzah: and he called the name of the place <sup>b</sup> Perez-uzzah to this day.

9 And <sup>c</sup> David was afraid of the LORD that day, and said, How shall the ark of the LORD come to me?

10 So David would not remove the ark of the LORD unto him into the city of David: but David carried it aside into the house of Obed-edom <sup>d</sup> the Gittite.

11 <sup>e</sup> And the ark of the LORD continued in the house of Obed-edom the Gittite three months: and the LORD <sup>f</sup> blessed Obed-edom, and all his household.

12 And it was told king David, saying, The LORD hath blessed the house of Obed-edom, and all that pertaineth unto him, because of the ark of God. <sup>g</sup> So David went and brought up the ark of God from the house of Obed-edom into the city of David with gladness.

13 And it was so, that when <sup>h</sup> they that bare the ark of the LORD had gone six paces, he sacrificed <sup>i</sup> oxen and fatlings.

14 And David <sup>j</sup> danced before the LORD with all his might; and David was girded <sup>k</sup> with a linen ephod.

15 <sup>l</sup> So David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the LORD with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet.

16 And <sup>m</sup> as the ark of the LORD came into the city of David, Michal Saul's daughter looked through a window, and saw king David leaping and dancing before the LORD; and she despised him in her heart.

17 <sup>n</sup> And they brought in the ark of the LORD, and set it in <sup>o</sup> his place in the midst of the tabernacle that David <sup>p</sup> had pitched for it: and David <sup>q</sup> offered burnt-offerings and peace-offerings before the LORD.

18 And as soon as David had made an end of offering burnt-offerings and peace-offerings, <sup>r</sup> he blessed the people in the name of the LORD of hosts.

19 <sup>s</sup> And he <sup>t</sup> dealt among all the people, even among the whole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as <sup>u</sup> men, to every one a cake of bread, and a good piece of flesh, and a flagon of wine. So all the people departed every one to his house.

20 <sup>v</sup> Then David returned to bless his household. And Michal the daughter of Saul came out to meet David, and said, How glorious was the king of Israel to day, who <sup>w</sup> uncovered himself to day in the eyes of the handmaids of his servants, as one of the <sup>x</sup> vain fellows <sup>y</sup> shamelessly uncovereth himself.

21 And David said unto Michal, It was before the LORD, <sup>z</sup> which chose me before thy father, and before all his house, to appoint me ruler over the people of the LORD, over Israel: therefore will I play before the LORD.

22 And I will yet be more vile than thus, and will be base in mine own sight: and <sup>aa</sup> of the maid-servants which thou hast spoken of, of them shall I be had in honour.

23 Therefore Michal the daughter of Saul had no child <sup>ab</sup> unto the day of her death.

respect for it, and its sacred service; the example of Uzzah must have filled them with fear and sacred reverence; and, as to Uzzah, no man can doubt of his eternal safety. He committed, through ignorance and precipitancy, a sin unto death, but doubtless the mercy of God was extended to his soul.

Verse 10. But David carried it aside] The house of Obed-edom appears to have been very near the city, which they were about to enter, but were prevented by this accident, and lodged the ark with the nearest friend.

Verse 11. The Lord blessed Obed-edom] And why? Because he had the ark of the Lord in his house. Whoever entertains God's messengers, or consecrates his house to the service of God, will infallibly receive God's blessing.

Verse 14. And David danced before the Lord] Dancing is a religious ceremony among the Hindoos, and they consider it an act of devotion to their idols. It is evident that David considered it in the same light. What connexion dancing can have with devotion, I cannot tell; but unpremeditated and involuntary skipping may be the effect of sudden mental elation.

Verse 16. She despised him in her heart] She did not blame him outwardly; she thought he had disgraced himself, but she kept her mind to herself.

Verse 18. He blessed the people in the name of the Lord]

David acted here as priest, for it was the general prerogative of the priests to bless the people; but it appears, by both David and Solomon, that it was the prerogative of the kings also.

Verse 19. A cake of bread] Such as those which are baked without leaven, and are made very thin.

A good piece of flesh, and a flagon of wine] The words of flesh and of wine we add; they are not in the Hebrew. [The word translated flagon is literally grape-cake.]

Verse 20. To bless his household] This was according to the custom of the patriarchs, who were priests in their own families.

How glorious was the king of Israel] This is a strong irony. From what Michal says, it is probable that David used some violent gesticulations, by means of which some parts of his body became uncovered. But it is very probable that we cannot guess all that was implied in this reproach.

Verse 21. It was before the Lord, which chose me] David felt the reproach, and was strongly irritated, and seems to have spoken to Michal with sufficient asperity.

Verse 23. Michal had no child till the day of her death] Probably David never more took her to his bed; or God, in his providence, might have subjected her to barrenness, which in Palestine was considered both a misfortune and a reproach.

CHAPTER VII.

David consults the prophet Nathan about building a temple for the Lord, and is encouraged by him to do it, 1-3. That night Nathan receives a revelation from God, stating that Solomon, not David, should build the temple, 4-16. Nathan delivers the divine message, and David magnifies God for his mercies, and makes prayer and supplication, 17-29.

AND it came to pass, "when the king sat in his house, and the LORD had given him rest round about from all his enemies;

2 That the king said unto Nathan the prophet, See now, I dwell in "an house of cedar, " but the ark of God dwelleth within " curtains.

3 And Nathan said to the king, Go, do all that is " in thine heart; for the LORD is with thee.

4 And it came to pass that night, that the word of the LORD came unto Nathan, saying,

5 Go and tell " my servant David, Thus saith the LORD, " Shalt thou build me an house for me to dwell in?

6 Whereas I have not dwelt in any house " since the time that I brought up the children of Israel out of Egypt, even to this day; but have walked in " a tent and in a tabernacle.

7 In all the places wherein I have " walked with all the children of Israel spake I a word with " any of the tribes of Israel, whom I commanded " to feed my people Israel, saying, Why build ye not me an house of cedar?

Verse 1. When the king sat in his house] That is, when he became resident in the palace which Hiram, king of Tyre, had built for him.

And the Lord had given him rest] This was after he had defeated the Philistines, and cast them out of all the strong places in Israel which they had possessed after the overthrow of Saul; but before he had carried his arms beyond the land of Israel, against the Moabites, Syrians, and Idumeans.

Verse 2. I dwell in an house of cedar] That is, a house whose principal beams, ceiling, and wainscot, were cedar.

Dwelleth within curtains] Having no other residence but the tabernacle, which was a place covered with the skins of beasts, Exod. xxvi.

Verse 3. Nathan said to the king] In this case he gave his judgment as a pious and prudent man, not as a prophet; for the prophets were not always under a divine afflatus, it was only at select times they were thus honoured.

For the Lord is with thee] Thou hast his blessing in all that thou doest, and this pious design of thine will most certainly meet with his approbation.

Verse 5. Shalt thou build me an house] That is, Thou shalt not; this is the force of the interrogative in such a case.

Verse 7. With any of the tribes] "Spake I a word to any of the judges" is the reading in the parallel place, 1 Chron. xvi. 6; and this is probably the true reading.

Verse 10. I will appoint a place] I have appointed a place, and have planted them.

Verse 11. The Lord will make thee an house] Thou hast in thy heart to make me an house; I have it in my heart to make thee a house: thy family shall be built up, and shall prosper in the throne of Israel; and thy spiritual posterity shall remain for ever. God is the author of all our holy purposes, as well as of our good works; he first excites them; a place of their own, and move no more; "neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more, as beforetime, 11 And as "since the time that I commanded judges to be over my people Israel, and have "caused thee to rest from all thine enemies. Also the LORD telleth thee "that he will make thee an house.

12 And "when thy days be fulfilled, and thou "shalt sleep with thy fathers: "I will set up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom.

13 "He shall build an house for my name, and I will "establish the throne of his kingdom for ever.

14 "I will be his father, and he shall be my son. "If he commit iniquity, I will chasten him with the rod of men, and with the stripes of the children of men:

15 But my mercy shall not depart away from him, "as I took it from Saul, whom I put away before thee.

16 And "thine house and thy kingdom shall be established for ever before thee: thy throne shall be established for ever.

17 According to all these words, and according to all this vision, so did Nathan speak unto David.

18 Then went king David in, and sat before the LORD, and he said, "Who am I, O LORD God? and what is my house, that thou hast brought me hitherto.

19 And this was yet a small thing in thy sight, O LORD God; "but thou hast spoken also of thy servant's house for a great while to come. "And is this the "manner of man, O LORD God?

and if we be workers together with him, he will crown and reward them as though they were our own, though he is their sole author.

Verse 13. He shall build] That is, Solomon shall build my temple, not thou because thou hast shed blood abundantly, and hast made great wars.

The throne of his kingdom for ever] This is a reference to the government of the spiritual kingdom, the kingdom of the Messiah, agreeably to the predictions of the prophet long after, and by which this passage is illustrated, Isa. ix. 7.

Verse 14. If he commit iniquity] Depart from the holy commandment delivered to him; I will chasten him with the rod of men—he shall have affliction, but his government shall not be utterly subverted.

Verse 15. But my mercy shall not depart away from him, as I took it from Saul] His house shall be a lasting house, and he shall die in the throne of Israel, his children succeeding him; and the spiritual seed, Christ, possessing and ruling in that throne to the end of time.

The family of Saul became totally extinct; the family of David remained till the incarnation. Joseph and Mary were both of that family; Jesus was the only heir to the kingdom of Israel; he did not choose to sit on the secular throne, he ascended the spiritual throne, and now he is exalted to the right hand of God, a PRINCE and a Saviour, to give repentance and remission of sins.

Many have applied these verses and their parallels to support the doctrine of unconditional final perseverance; but with it the text has nothing to do; and were we to press it because of the antitype, Solomon, the doctrine would most evidently be ruined, for there is neither proof nor evidence of Solomon's salvation.

Verse 19. And is this the manner of man] Literally: And this, O Lord God, is the law of Adam. Does he refer to the promise made to Adam, The seed of the woman shall bruise

His posterity did not walk with God, and therefore they were driven from the throne. It was taken from them by the neighbouring nations, and it is now in the hands of the Mohammedans; all the promises have failed to David and his natural posterity, and to Christ and his spiritual seed alone are they fulfilled. Had David's posterity been faithful, they would, according to the promises of God, have been sitting on the Israelitish throne at this day.

CHAPTER VIII.

David subdues the Philistines, 1; and the Moabites, 2; and the king of Zobah, 3, 4; and the Syrians in general, 5-8. Toi, king of Hamath, sends to congratulate him on his victories over the king of Zobah, and sends him rich presents, 9, 10. David dedicates all the spoils to God, 11-13. He garrisons Edom, 14; and reigns over all Israel, 15. An account of his chief officers, 16-18.

AND <sup>a</sup> after this it came to pass, that David smote the Philistines, and subdued them: and David took <sup>b</sup> Metheg-ammah out of the hand of the Philistines.

2 And <sup>c</sup> he smote Moab, and measured them with a line, casting them down to the ground; even with two lines measured he to put to death, and with one full

Verse 1. David took Metheg-ammah.] This is variously translated. The Vulgate has, David removed the bondage of the tribute, which the Israelites paid to the Philistines. Probably this is nearest the truth. [The original may be read "bride of the mother," i.e. the capital. Schultens explains this from an Arabic idiom, in which giving up one's bride is equivalent to submission.]

Verse 2. And measured them with a line—even with two lines.] It has been generally conjectured that David, after he had conquered Moab, consigned two-thirds of the inhabitants to the sword; but I think the text will bear a meaning much more reputable to that king. Death seems here to be referred to the cities by way of metaphor; and from this view we may conclude that two-thirds of the cities, that is, the strong places of Moab, were erased; and not having strong places to trust to, the text adds, So the Moabites became David's servants, and brought gifts, i.e. were obliged to pay tribute. [The common interpretation is probably correct.]

line to keep alive. And so the Moabites <sup>d</sup> became David's servants, and <sup>e</sup> brought gifts.

3 David smote also <sup>f</sup> Hadadezer, the son of Rehob, king of <sup>g</sup> Zobah, as he went to recover <sup>h</sup> his border at the river Euphrates.

4 And David took <sup>1</sup> from him a thousand <sup>i</sup> chariots and seven hundred horsemen, and twenty thousand

Verse 3. David smote—Hadadezer.] He is supposed to have been king of all Syria, except Phœnicia; and, wishing to extend his dominions to the Euphrates, invaded a part of David's dominions which lay contiguous to it: but being attacked by David, he was totally routed.

Verse 4. A thousand chariots.] It is strange that there were a thousand chariots, and only seven hundred horsemen taken, and twenty thousand foot. But as the discomfiture appears complete, we may suppose that the chariots, being less manageable, might be more easily taken, while the horsemen might in general make their escape. [In the parallel passage, 1 Chron. xviii. 4, the number of horsemen is 7000, which is probably correct.]

David houghed all the chariot horses.] If he did so, it was both unreasonable and inhuman. But does the text speak of houghing horses at all? It does not. Let us hear; And David disjoined all the chariots, except a hundred chariots which he reserved for himself. Now, this footmen : and David <sup>a</sup>houghed all the chariot horses, but reserved of them for an hundred chariots.

5 <sup>b</sup> And when the Syrians of Damascus came to succour Hadadezer king of Zobah, David slew of the Syrians two and twenty thousand men.

6 Then David put garrisons in Syria of Damascus : and the Syrians <sup>c</sup> became servants to David, and brought gifts. <sup>d</sup> And the Lord preserved David whithersoever he went.

7 And David took <sup>e</sup> the shields of gold that were on the servants of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jerusalem.

8 And from <sup>f</sup> Bethah, and from <sup>g</sup> Berothai, cities of Hadadezer, king David took exceeding much brass.

9 When <sup>h</sup> Toi king of Hamath heard that David had smitten all the host of Hadadezer,

10 Then Toi sent <sup>i</sup> Joram his son unto king David, to <sup>j</sup> salute him, and to bless him, because he had fought against Hadadezer, and smitten him : for Hadadezer <sup>k</sup> had wars with Toi. And Joram <sup>l</sup> brought with him vessels of silver, and vessels of gold, and vessels of brass :

destruction of the chariots was a matter of sound policy and strict piety. God had censured those who trusted in chariots; and they therefore forbade David the use of them : and lest they should fall into the enemy's hands, and be again used against him, policy induced him to destroy them.

He kept, however, one hundred; probably as a sort of baggage or forage waggons.

Verse 6. Brought gifts.] Paid tribute.

Verse 7. David took the shields of gold.] We know not what these were. Some translate arms, others quivers, others bracelets, others collars, and others shields. They were probably costly ornaments, by which the Syrian soldiers were decked and distinguished. And those who are called servants here, were probably the choice troops or body-guard of Hadadezer.

Verse 9. Toi king of Hamath.] Hamath is supposed to be the famous city of Emesa, situated on the Orontes, in Syria. This was contiguous to Hadadezer; and led him to wage war with Toi, that he might get possession of his territories.

Verse 13. David gat him a name.] Became a very celebrated and eminent man.

13 And David gat him a name when he returned from <sup>n</sup> smiting of the Syrians in <sup>o</sup> the valley of salt, <sup>p</sup> being <sup>q</sup> eighteen thousand men.

14 And he put garrisons in Edom; throughout all Edom put he garrisons, and <sup>r</sup> all they of Edom became David's servants. <sup>s</sup> And the Lord preserved David whithersoever he went.

The valley of salt.] Supposed to be a large plain abounding in this mineral, about a league from the city of Palmyra or Tadmor in the wilderness. [Dr. Robinson fixes it at the termination of the valley through which the Jordan flows from the Lake of Tiberias to the Dead Sea.]

Verse 14. He put garrisons in Edom.] To keep the country in awe.

Verse 16. Ahilud—recorder.] Remembrancer; one who kept a strict journal of all the proceedings of the king and operations of his army; a chronicler.

Verse 17. Seraiah—the scribe.] Most likely the king's private secretary.

Verse 18. Benaiah.] The chief of the second class of David's worthies.

The Cherethites and the Pelethites.] The former supposed to be those who accompanied David when he fled from Saul; the latter, those who came to him at Ziklag. But the Targum translates these two names thus, the archers and the slingers; and this is by far the most likely. [They were the king's body-guard; literally executioners and runners.]

CHAPTER IX.

David inquires after the family of Jonathan, and is informed of Mephibosheth his son, 1-4. He sends for him, and gives him all the land of Saul, 5-8; and appoints Ziba the servant of Saul, and his family, to till the ground for Mephibosheth, 9-13.

AND David said, Is there yet any that is left of the house of Saul, that I may <sup>a</sup> shew him kindness for Jonathan's sake?

2 And there was of the house of Saul a servant whose name was <sup>b</sup> Ziba. And when they had called him unto David, the king said unto him,

Verse 1. Is there yet any that is left?] David, recollecting the covenant made with his friend Jonathan, now inquires after his family. It is supposed that political considerations prevented him from doing this sooner. Reasons of state often destroy all the charities of life.

Art thou Ziba? And he said, Thy servant is he.

3 And the king said, Is there not yet any of the house of Saul, that I may shew <sup>d</sup> the kindness of God unto him? And Ziba said unto the king, Jonathan hath yet a son, which is <sup>e</sup> lame on his feet.

4 And the king said unto him, Where is he?

Verse 3. That I may shew the kindness of God unto him?] That is, the utmost, the highest degree of kindness.

Verse 4. Lo-debar.] Supposed to have been situated beyond Jordan; but there is nothing certain known concerning it.

And Ziba said unto the king, Behold, he is in the house of Machir, the son of Ammiel, in Lodebar.

5 Then king David sent, and fetched him out of the house of Machir, the son of Ammiel, from Lodebar.

6 Now when Mephibosheth the son of Jonathan, the son of Saul, was come unto David, he fell on his face, and did reverence. And David said, Mephibosheth. And he answered, Behold thy servant!

7 And David said unto him, Fear not: for I will surely shew thee kindness for Jonathan thy father's sake, and will restore thee all the land of Saul thy father; and thou shalt eat bread at my table continually.

8 And he bowed himself, and said, What is thy servant, that thou shouldest look upon such a dead dog as I am?

9 Then the king called to Ziba, Saul's servant,

Verse 7. Will restore thee all the land] I believe this means the mere family estate of the house of Kish, which David as king might have retained, but which most certainly belonged, according to the Israelitish law, to the descendants of the family.

And thou shalt eat bread at my table] This was kindness (the giving up the land was justice); and it was the highest honour that any subject could enjoy, as we may see from the reference made to it by our Lord, Luke xxii. 30. For such a person David could do no more. His lameness rendered him unfit for any public employment.

Verse 9. I have given unto thy master's son] Unless Ziba had been servant to Jonathan, this seems to refer to Micha, son of Mephibosheth, and so some understand it; but it is more likely that Mephibosheth is meant, who is called son of Saul instead of grandson. Yet it is evident enough that the and said unto him, * I have given unto thy master's son all that pertained to Saul and to all his house.

10 Thou therefore, and thy sons, and thy servants, shall till the land for him, and thou shalt bring in the fruits, that thy master's son may have food to eat: but Mephibosheth thy master's son shall eat bread always at my table. Now Ziba had fifteen sons and twenty servants.

11 Then said Ziba unto the king, According to all that my lord the king hath commanded his servant, so shall thy servant do. As for Mephibosheth, said the king, he shall eat at my table, as one of the king's sons.

12 And Mephibosheth had a young son, whose name was Micha. And all that dwelt in the house of Ziba were servants unto Mephibosheth.

13 So Mephibosheth dwelt in Jerusalem: for he did eat continually at the king's table; and was lame on both his feet.

produce of the land went to the support of Micha (see ver. 10), for the father was provided for at the table of David; but all the patrimony belonged to Mephibosheth.

Verse 10. Thou therefore, and thy sons—shall till the land] It seems that Ziba and his family had the care of the whole estate, and cultivated it at their own expense, yielding the half of the produce to the family of Mephibosheth.

Verse 11. So shall thy servant do.] The promises of Ziba were fair and specious, but he was a traitor in his heart, as we shall see in the rebellion of Absalom, and David's indulgence to this man is a blot in his character; at this time however he suspected no evil; circumstances alone can develop the human character.

Verse 13. Did eat continually at the king's table] He was fit for no public office, but was treated by the king with the utmost respect and affection.

CHAPTER X.

The king of Ammon being dead, David sends ambassadors to comfort his son Hanun, 1, 2. Hanun, misled by his courtiers, treats the messengers of David with great indignity, 3-5. The Ammonites, justly dreading David's resentment, send, and hire the Syrians to make war upon him, 6. Joab and Abishai meet them at the city of Medeba, and defeat them, 7-14. The Syrians collect another army, but are defeated by David with great slaughter, and make with him a separate peace, 15-19.

AND it came to pass after this time, that the king of the children of Ammon died, and Hanun his son reigned in his stead.

2 Then said David, I will shew kindness unto Hanun the son of Nahash, as his father shewed kindness unto me. And David sent to comfort him by the hand of his servants for his father. And David's servants came into the land of the children of Ammon.

3 And the princes of the children of Ammon said

Verse 2. I will shew kindness unto Hanun the son of Nahash] We do not know exactly the nature or extent of the obligation which David was under to the king of the Ammonites; but it is likely that the Nahash here mentioned was the same who had attacked Jabesh-gilead, and whom Saul defeated: as David had taken refuge with the Moabites (1 Sam. xxii. 8), and this was contiguous to the king of the Ammonites, his hatred to Saul might induce him to show particular kindness to David.

eyes doth David!—<sup>c</sup> Isa. xx. 4. xlviii. 2.

Verse 3. Thinkest thou that David doth honour thy father] Courtiers, especially, are suspicious of each other, and often mislead their sovereigns. They feel themselves to be insincere, and suspect others to be so too.

Verse 4. Shaved off the one half of their beards] The beard is held in high respect in the East: the possessor considers it his greatest ornament; often swears by it; and, in matters of great importance, pledges it. The beard was never cut off but in mourning, or as a sign of slavery. Cutting off half of 5 When they told it unto David he sent to meet them, because the men were greatly ashamed: and the king said, Tarry at Jericho, until your beards be grown, and then return.

6 And when the children of Ammon saw that they <sup>a</sup>stank before David, the children of Ammon sent and hired <sup>b</sup>the Syrians of Beth-rehob, and the Syrians of Zoba, twenty thousand footmen, and of king Maacah a thousand men, and of <sup>c</sup>Ish-tob twelve thousand men.

7 And when David heard of it he sent Joab, and all the host of <sup>d</sup>the mighty men.

8 And the children of Ammon came out, and put the battle in array at the entering in of the gate: and <sup>e</sup>the Syrians of Zoba, and of Rehob, and Ish-tob, and Maacah, were by themselves in the field.

9 When Joab saw that the front of the battle was against him before and behind, he chose of all the choice men of Israel, and put them in array against the Syrians:

10 And the rest of the people he delivered into the hand of Abishai his brother, that he might put them in array against the children of Ammon.

11 And he said, If the Syrians be too strong for me, then thou shalt help me: but if the children of Ammon be too strong for thee, then I will come and help thee.

the beard and the clothes rendered the men ridiculous, and made them look like slaves: what was done to these men was an accumulation of insult.

Verse 5. Tarry at Jericho] This city had not been rebuilt since the time of Joshua; but there were, no doubt, many cottages still remaining, and larger dwellings also, but the walls had not been repaired. As it must have been comparatively a private place, it was proper for these men to tarry in, as they would not be exposed to public notice.

Verse 6. The children of Ammon saw that they stank] That is, that their conduct rendered them abominable.

The Syrians of Beth-rehob] This place was situated at the extremity of the valley between Libanus and Anti-libanus. The Syrians of Zoba were subject to Hadadazer. Maacah was in the vicinity of Mount Hermon, beyond Jordan, in the Trachonitis.

Ish-tob] This was probably the same with Tob, to which Jophthah fled from the cruelty of his brethren. It was situated in the land of Gilead.

Verse 7. All the host of the mighty] All his worthies, and the flower of his army.

Verse 8. At the entering in of the gate] This was the city of Medeba, as we learn from 1 Chron. xix. 7.

Verse 9. Before and behind] It is probable that one of the armies was in the field, and the other in the city, when 13 And Joab drew nigh, and the people that were with him, unto the battle against the Syrians: and they fled before him.

14 And when the children of Ammon saw that the Syrians were fled, then fled they also before Abishai, and entered into the city. So Joab returned from the children of Ammon, and came to Jerusalem.

15 And when the Syrians saw that they smitten before Israel, they gathered themselves together.

16 And Hadadazer sent, and brought out the Syrians that were beyond <sup>j</sup>the river: and they came to Helam; and <sup>k</sup>Shobach the captain of the host of Hadadazer went before them.

17 And when it was told David, he gathered all Israel together, and passed over Jordan, and came to Helam. And the Syrians set themselves in array against David, and fought with him.

18 And the Syrians fled before Israel; and David slew the men of seven hundred chariots of the Syrians, and forty thousand <sup>l</sup>horsemen, and smote Shobach the captain of their host, who died there.

19 And when all the kings that were servants to Hadadazer saw that they were smitten before Israel, they made peace with Israel, and <sup>m</sup>served them. So the Syrians feared to help the children of Ammon any more.

Joab arrived. When he fronted this army, the other appears to have issued from the city, and to have taken him in the rear: he was therefore obliged to divide his army as here mentioned; one part to face the Syrians commanded by himself, and the other to face the Ammonites commanded by his brother Abishai.

Verse 12. Be of good courage] This is a very fine military address, and is equal to any thing in ancient or modern times.

Verse 14. The Syrians were fled] They betook themselves into their own confines, while the Ammonites escaped into their own city.

Verse 16. The Syrians that were beyond the river] That is, the Euphrates.

Hadadazer] This is the same that was overthrown by David, chap. viii., and there called Hadadazer.

Verse 17. David—gathered all Israel together] He thought that such a war required his own presence.

Verse 18. SEVEN HUNDRED chariots—and forty thousand HORSEMEN] In the parallel place, 1 Chron. xix. 18, it is said, David slew of the Syrians SEVEN THOUSAND men, which fought in chariots. It is difficult to ascertain the right number in this and similar places.

Verse 19. Made peace with Israel] They made this peace separately, and were obliged to pay tribute to the Israelites.

CHAPTER XI.

David sends Joab against the Ammonites, who besieges the city of Rabbah, 1. He sees Bath-sheba, the wife of Uriah, bathing; is enamoured of her; sends for and takes her to his bed, 2-4. She conceives, and informs David, 5. David sends to Joab, and orders him to send to him Uriah, 6. He arrives: and David, having inquired the state of the army, dismisses him, desiring him to go to his own house, 7, 8. Uriah sleeps at the door of the king's house, 9. The next day the king urges him to go to his house; but he refuses to go, and gives the most pious and loyal reasons for his refusal, 10, 11. David after two days sends him back to the army, with a letter to Joab, desiring him to place Uriah in the front of the battle, that he might be slain, 12-15. He does so; and Uriah falls, 16, 17. Joab communicates this news in an artful message to David, 18-25. David sends for Bath-sheba and takes her to wife, and she bears him a son, 26, 27.

AND it came to pass *after the year was expired, at the time when kings go forth to battle, that <sup>b</sup>David sent Joab, and his servants with him, and all Israel; and they destroyed the children of Ammon, and besieged Rabbah. But David tarried still at Jerusalem.

2 And it came to pass in an evening-tide, that David arose from off his bed, <sup>c</sup>and walked upon the roof of the king's house: and from the roof he <sup>d</sup>saw a woman washing herself; and the woman was very beautiful to look upon.

3 And David sent and inquired after the woman. And one said, Is not this <sup>e</sup>Bath-sheba, the daughter of <sup>f</sup>Eliam, the wife <sup>g</sup>of Uriah the Hittite?

4 And David sent messengers, and took her; and she came in unto him, and <sup>h</sup>he lay with her; <sup>i</sup>for she was <sup>j</sup>purified from her uncleanness; and she returned unto her house.

5 And the woman conceived, and sent and told David, and said, I am with child.

6 And David sent to Joab, saying, Send me Uriah the Hittite. And Joab sent Uriah to David.

7 And when Uriah was come unto him, David demanded of him <sup>k</sup>how Joab did, and how the people did, and how the war prospered.

8 And David said to Uriah, Go down to thy house, and <sup>l</sup>wash thy feet. And Uriah departed out of the king's house, and there <sup>m</sup>followed him a mess of meat from the king.

9 But Uriah slept at the door of the king's house with all the servants of his lord, and went not down to his house.

10 And when they had told David, saying, Uriah went not down unto his house, David said unto Uriah, Camest thou not from thy journey? why then didst thou not go down unto thine house.

11 And Uriah said unto David, The ark, and Israel, and Judah, abide in tents; and <sup>n</sup>my lord Joab, and the servants of my lord, are encamped in the open fields? shall I then go into mine house, to eat and to drink, and to lie with my wife? as thou livest, and as thy soul liveth, I will not do this thing.

12 And David said to Uriah, Tarry here to day also, and to morrow I will let thee depart. So Uriah abode in Jerusalem that day, and the morrow.

13 And when David had called him he did eat and drink before him; and he made him <sup>o</sup>drunk: and at even he went out to lie on his bed <sup>p</sup>with the servants of his lord, but went not down to his house.

14 And it came to pass in the morning, that David <sup>q</sup>wrote a letter to Joab and sent it by the hand of Uriah.

15 And he wrote in the letter, saying, Set ye Uriah in the forefront of the <sup>r</sup>hottest battle, and retire ye <sup>s</sup>from him, that he may <sup>t</sup>be smitten, and die.

16 And it came to pass, when Joab observed the city, that he assigned Uriah unto a place where he knew that valiant men were.

17 And the men of the city went out, and fought with Joab: and there fell some of the people of the servants of David; and Uriah the Hittite died also.

18 Then Joab sent and told David all the things concerning the war;

19 And charged the messenger, saying, When thou hast made an end of telling the matters of the war unto the king,

20 And if so be that the king's wrath arise, and he say unto thee, Wherefore approached ye so nigh unto the city when ye did fight? knew ye not that they would shoot from the wall?

21 Who smote <sup>u</sup>Abimelech the son of <sup>v</sup>Jerub-besheth? did not a woman cast a piece of a millstone upon him from the wall, that he died in Thebez? why went ye nigh the wall? then say thou, Thy servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also.

Verse 1. When kings go forth] This was about a year after a war with the Syrians spoken of before, and about the spring of the year, as the most proper season for military operations.

Verse 2. In an evening-tide—David arose] He had been reposing on the roof of his house, to enjoy the breeze, as the noon-day was too hot for the performance of business.

He saw a woman washing herself] How could any woman of delicacy expose herself where she could be so fully and openly viewed? Did she not know that she was at least in view of the king's terrace? Was there no design in all this?

Verse 3. The daughter of Eliam] Called 1 Chron. iii. 5, Ammiel; a word of the same meaning.

Verse 4. And she came in unto him] We hear nothing of her reluctance, and there was no evidence that she was taken by force.

Verse 8. Go down to thy house, and wash thy feet.] David's design was that he should go down and lie with his wife, that the child now conceived should pass for his, the honour of Bath-sheba be screened, and his own crime concealed. At this time he had no design of the murder of Uriah, nor of taking Bath-sheba to wife.

A mess of meat from the king.] All this was artfully contrived.

Verse 9. Slept at the door] That is, in one of the apartments or niches in the court of the king's house.

Verse 10. Camest thou not from thy journey?] It is not thy duty to keep watch or guard; thou art come from a journey, and needest rest and refreshment.

Verse 11. The ark, and Israel—abide in tents] It appears, therefore, that they had taken the ark with them to battle.

This was the answer of a brave, generous, and disinterested man. I will not indulge myself while all my fellow-soldiers are exposed to hardships, and even the ark of the Lord in danger. Had Uriah no suspicion of what had been done in his absence?

Verse 13. He made him drunk] Supposing that in this state he would have been off his guard, and hastened down to his house.

Verse 14. David wrote a letter] This was the sum of treachery and villainy.

Verse 17. Uriah the Hittite died also.] He was led to the attack of a place defended by valiant men; and in the heat of the assault, Joab and his men retired from this brave soldier, who cheerfully gave up his life for his king and his country.

Verse 20. If—the king's wrath arise] It is likely that Joab had by some indiscretion suffered loss about this time; and he contrived to get rid of the odium by connecting the trans-

22 So the messenger went, and came and shewed David all that Joab had sent him for.

23 And the messenger said unto David, Surely the men prevailed against us, and came out unto us into the field, and we were upon them even unto the entering of the gate.

24 And the shooters shot from off the wall upon thy servants; and some of the king's servants be dead, and thy servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also.

25 Then David said unto the messenger, Thus action with the death of Uriah, which he knew would be so pleasing to the king.

Verse 25. The sword devoureth one as well as another] What abominable hypocrisy was here! He well knew that Uriah's death was no chance-medley; he was by his own order thrust on the edge of the sword.

Verse 26. She mourned for her husband.] The whole of her conduct indicates that she observed the form without feeling the power of sorrow.

Verse 27. When the mourning was past] Probably it lasted only seven days.

She became his wife] This hurried marriage was no doubt intended on both sides to cover the pregnancy.

But the thing that David had done displeased the Lord.] It was necessary to add this lest the splendour of David's former virtues should induce any to suppose his crimes were passed over, or looked on with an indulgent eye, by the God of purity and justice. Sorely he sinned, and sorely did he suffer for it; he sowed one grain of sweet, and reaped a long harvest of calamity and woe.

shalt thou say unto Joab, Let not this thing * displease thee, for the sword devoureth <sup>b</sup> one as well as another: make thy battle more strong against the city, and overthrow it: and encourage thou him.

26 And when the wife of Uriah heard that Uriah her husband was dead, she mourned for her husband.

27 And when the mourning was past, David sent and fetched her to his house, and she <sup>c</sup> became his wife, and bare him a son. But the thing that David had done <sup>d</sup> displeased the Lord.

* Ch. xii. 9.—<sup>a</sup> Heb. was evil in the eyes of.

On a review of the whole, I hesitate not to say that the preceding chapter is an illustrious proof of the truth of the sacred writings. Who that intended to deceive, by trumping up a religion which he designed to father on the purity of God, would have inserted such an account of one of its most zealous advocates and once its brightest ornament? God alone, whose character is impartiality, has done it, to shew that his religion will ever stand independently of the conduct of its professors.

Let David, once a pious, noble, generous, and benevolent hero, who, when almost perishing with thirst, would not taste the water which his brave men had acquired at the hazard of their lives; let this David, I say, be considered an awful example of apostasy from religion, justice, and virtue; Bath-sheba, of lightness and conjugal infidelity; Joab, of base, unmanly, and cold-blooded cruelty; Uriah, of untarnished heroism, inflexible fidelity, and unspotted virtue; and then justice will be done to each character. For my own part, I must say I pity David: I venerate Uriah; I detest Joab: and think meanly of Bath-sheba.

CHAPTER XII.

The Lord sends Nathan the prophet to reprove David; which he does by means of a curious parable, 1-4. David is led, unknowingly, to pronounce his own condemnation, 5, 6. Nathan charges the guilt home on his conscience; and predicts a long train of calamities which should fall on him and his family, 7-12. David confesses his sin; and Nathan gives him hope of God's mercy, and foretells the death of the child born in adultery, 13, 14. The child is taken ill; David fasts and prays for its restoration, 15-17. On the seventh day the child dies, and David is comforted, 18-24. Solomon is born of Bath-sheba, 25, 26. Joab besieges Rabbah of the Ammonites, takes the city of waters, and sends for David to take Rabbah, 27, 28. He comes, takes it, gets much spoil, and puts the inhabitants to hard labour, 29-31.

AND the LORD sent Nathan unto David. And <sup>a</sup> he came unto him, and <sup>b</sup> said unto him, There were two men in one city; the one rich, and the other poor.

2 The rich man had exceeding many flocks and herds:

3 But the poor man had nothing, save one little ewe lamb, which he had bought and nourished up; and it grew up together with him, and with his children; it did eat of his own <sup>c</sup> meat, and drank of his own cup, and lay in his bosom, and was unto him as a daughter.

4 And there came a traveller unto the rich man, and he spared to take of his own flock and of his own herd, to dress for the wayfaring man that was come unto him; but took the poor man's lamb, and dressed it for the man that was come to him.

5 And David's anger was greatly kindled against the man; and he said to Nathan, As the Lord liveth, the man that hath done this thing shall surely <sup>d</sup> die.

Verse 1. There were two men in one city] There is nothing in this parable that requires illustration; its bent is evident; and it was constructed to make David, unwittingly, pass sentence on himself. It was in David's hand, what his own letters were in the hands of the brave but unfortunate Uriah.

Verse 3. And lay in his bosom] This can only mean that this lamb was what we call a pet or favourite in the family, else the circumstance would be very unnatural, and most likely would have prevented David from making the application which he did, as otherwise it would have appeared absurd.

Verse 5. The man—shall surely die] Literally, "he is a son of death," a very bad man, and one who deserves to die. But the law did not sentence a sheep-stealer to death; and hence David immediately says, He shall restore the lamb fourfold.

6 And he shall restore the lamb *fourfold, because he did this thing, and because he had no pity.

7 And Nathan said to David, Thou art the man. Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, I <sup>b</sup>anointed thee king over Israel, and I delivered thee out of the hand of Saul;

8 And I gave thee thy master's house and thy master's wives into thy bosom, and gave thee the house of Israel and of Judah: and if that had been too little I would moreover have given unto thee such and such things.

9 <sup>c</sup>Wherefore hast thou <sup>d</sup>despised the commandment of the LORD, to do evil in his sight? <sup>e</sup>thou hast killed Uriah the Hittite with the sword, and hast taken his wife to be thy wife, and hast slain him with the sword of the children of Ammon.

10 Now therefore <sup>f</sup>the sword shall never depart from thine house; because thou hast despised me, and hast taken the wife of Uriah the Hittite to be thy wife.

11 Thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will raise up evil against thee out of thine own house, I will <sup>g</sup>take thy wives before thine eyes, and give them unto thy neighbour, and he shall lie with thy wives in the sight of this sun.

12 For thou didst it secretly: <sup>h</sup>but I will do this thing before all Israel, and before the sun.

13 <sup>i</sup>And David said unto Nathan, <sup>j</sup>I have sinned against the LORD. And Nathan said unto David, <sup>k</sup>The LORD also hath <sup>l</sup>put away thy sin: thou shalt not die.

14 Howbeit, because by this deed thou hast given great occasion to the enemies of the LORD <sup>m</sup>to blaspheme, the child also that is born unto thee shall surely die.

Verse 7. Thou art the man.] What a terrible word! And by it David appears to have been transfixed, and brought into the dust before the messenger of God.

THOU ART this son of death, and thou shalt restore this lamb FOURFOLD. Is it indulging fancy too much to say David was called, in the course of a just providence, to pay this fourfold debt? to lose four sons by untimely deaths, viz., this son of Bath-sheba, on whom David had set his heart, was slain by the Lord; Annon, murdered by his brother Absalom; Absalom, slain in the oak by Joab; and Adonijah, slain by the order of his brother Solomon, even at the altar of the Lord? The sword and calamity did not depart from his house, from the murder of wretched Annon by his brother to the slaughter of the sons of Zedekiah, before their father's eyes, by the king of Babylon. His daughter was dishonoured by her own brother, and his wives contaminated publicly by his own son. How dreadfully then was David punished for his sin. Who would repent his transgression to share in its penalty? Can his conduct ever be an inducement to, or an encouragement in, sin?

Verse 8. Thy master's wives into thy bosom] Perhaps this means no more than that he had given him absolute power over every thing possessed by Saul; as it was the custom for the new king to succeed even to the wives and concubines, the whole haram of the deceased king. But could David, as the son-in-law of Saul, take the wives of his father-in-law? However, we find delicacy was seldom consulted in these cases; and Absalom lay with his own father's wives in the most public manner, to show that he had seized on the kingdom, because the wives of the preceding belonged to the succeeding king, and to none other.

Verse 9. Thou hast killed Uriah] Thou art the MURDERER, as having planned his death; the sword of the Ammonites was thy instrument only.

Verse 11. I will take thy wives] That is, In the course of my providence I will permit all this to be done.

15 And Nathan departed unto his house. And the LORD struck the child that Uriah's wife bare unto David, and it was very sick.

16 David therefore besought God for the child; and David <sup>a</sup>fasted, and went in, and <sup>b</sup>lay all night upon the earth.

17 And the elders of the house arose, and went to him, to raise him up from the earth: but he would not, neither did he eat bread with them.

18 And it came to pass on the seventh day, that the child died. And the servants of David feared to tell him that the child was dead: for they said, Behold, while the child was yet alive, we spake unto him, and he would not hearken unto our voice: how will he then <sup>c</sup>vex himself, if we tell him that the child is dead?

19 But when David saw that his servants whispered, David perceived that the child was dead: therefore David said unto his servants, Is the child dead? And they said, He is dead.

20 Then David arose from the earth, and washed, and <sup>d</sup>anointed himself, and changed his apparel, and came into the house of the LORD, and <sup>e</sup>worshipped: then he came to his own house; and when he required, they set bread before him, and he did eat.

21 Then said his servants unto him, What thing is this that thou hast done? thou didst fast and weep for the child, while it was alive; but when the child was dead, thou didst rise and eat bread.

22 And he said, While the child was yet alive, I fasted and wept: <sup>f</sup>for I said, Who can tell whether God will be gracious to me, that the child may live?

23 But now he is dead, wherefore should I fast? can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but <sup>g</sup>he shall not return to me.

Jonah iii. 9.—<sup>j</sup>Job vii. 8, 9, 10.

Verse 13. The Lord—hath put away thy sin] Many have supposed that David's sin was now actually pardoned, but this is perfectly erroneous; David, as an adulterer, was condemned to death by the law of God; and he had according to that law passed sentence of death upon himself. God alone, whose law that was, could revoke that sentence, or dispense with its execution; therefore Nathan, who had charged the guilt home upon his conscience, is authorized to give him the assurance that he should not die a temporal death for it: The Lord hath put away thy sin; thou shalt not die.

There is something very remarkable in the words of Nathan: Also Jehovah HATH CAUSED thy sin TO PASS OVER, or transferred thy sin; THOU shalt not die. God has transferred the legal punishment of this sin to the child; HE shall die, THOU shalt not die.

Verse 16. David—besought God for the child] How could he do so, after the solemn assurance that he had from God that the child should die? The justice of God absolutely required that the penalty of the law should be executed; either the father or the son shall die. This could not be reversed.

Verse 20. David arose from the earth, and washed] Bathing, anointing the body, and changing the apparel are the first outward signs among the Hindoos of coming out of a state of mourning or sickness.

Verse 22. Who can tell] Notwithstanding the positive declaration of Nathan, relative to the death of the child, David sought for its life, not knowing but that might depend on some unexpressed condition, such as earnest prayer, fasting, humiliation, &c., and in these he continued while there was hope. This appears to be the sole reason of David's importunity.

Verse 23. I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me.] It is not clear whether David by this expressed his faith in the immortality of the soul; going to him may

25 And he sent by the hand of Nathan the prophet; and he called his name <sup>c</sup> Jedidiah, because of the Lord.

27 And Joab sent messengers to David, and said, I have fought against Rabbah, and have taken the city of waters.

28 Now therefore gather the rest of the people together, and encamp against the city, and take it: lest I take the city, and <sup>f</sup> it be called after my name.

only mean, I also shall die, and be gathered to my fathers, as he is. But whether David expressed this or not, we know that the thing is true; and it is one of the most solid grounds of consolation to surviving friends. This doctrine has a very powerful tendency to alleviate the miseries of human life, and reconcile us to the death of most beloved friends. And were we to admit the contrary, grief in many cases would wear out its subject before it wore out itself.

We well know who has taught us not to sorrow as those without hope for departed friends.

Verse 24. David comforted Bath-sheba] His extraordinary attachment to this beautiful woman was the cause of all his misfortunes.

He called his name Solomon] This name seems to have been given prophetically, for shalomah signifies peaceable, and there was almost uninterrupted peace during his reign.

Verse 25. Called—Jedidiah] Literally, the beloved of the Lord.

Verse 26. And took the royal city.] How can this be, when Joab sent to David to come to take the city, in consequence of which David did come and take that city. The explanation seems to be this: Rabbah was composed of a city and citadel; the former, in which was the king's residence, Joab had taken, and supposed he could soon render himself master of the latter, and therefore sends to David to come and take it, lest, he taking the whole, the city should be called after his name.

Verse 27. And have taken the city of waters.] The city where the tank or reservoir was that supplied the city and suburbs with water. Some think that the original should be translated, I have intercepted, or cut off, the waters of the city; and that this was the reason why David should come 29 And David gathered all the people together, and went to Rabbah, and fought against it, and took it.

30 <sup>a</sup> And he took their king's crown from off his head, the weight whereof was a talent of gold with the precious stones: and it was set on David's head. And he brought forth the spoil of the city <sup>b</sup> in great abundance.

31 And he brought forth the people that were therein, and put them under saws, and under harrows of iron, and under axes of iron, and made them pass through the brick-kiln: and thus did he unto all the cities of the children of Ammon. So David and all the people returned unto Jerusalem.

Verse 30. The weight whereof was a talent of gold] If this talent was only seven pounds, David might have carried it on his head with little difficulty; but this weight, according to common computation, would amount to more than one hundred pounds!

If, however, mishkalah be taken for the value, not the weight, then all is plain, as the worth of the crown will be about £5075 15s. 7d. sterling. Now this seems to be the true sense, because of the added words, with the precious stones, i.e. the gold of the crown, and the jewels with which it was adorned, were equal in value to a talent of gold.

Verse 31. He brought forth the people] And put them under saws. From this representation a great cry has been raised against "David's unparalleled, if not diabolic, cruelty." I believe this interpretation was chiefly taken from the parallel place, 1 Chron. xx. 3, where it is said, he cut them with saws, and with axes, &c. Instead of vaiyasar, he saved, we have here, vaiyasem, he put them; and these two words differ from each other only in a part of a single letter. The meaning therefore is, He made the people slaves, and employed them in sawing, making iron harrows, or mining (for the word means both), and in hewing of wood, and making of brick. Sawing asunder, hacking, chopping, and hewing human beings, have no place in this text, no more than they had in David's conduct towards the Ammonites. [Recent criticism, however, fails to discover in the original any warrant for Dr. Clarke's exposition. There is little doubt that the fighting men among the Ammonites were cruelly tortured to death, in the manner described in the text. Such a course was only one of retaliation, for the Ammonites were ruthless in their treatment of their foes. See Amos i. 13, and 1 Sam. xi. 2.]

CHAPTER XIII.

Amnon falls in love with his half-sister Tamar, and feigns himself sick, and requests her to attend him, 1-6. David sends her to him, and he violates her, 7-14. He then hates her, and expels her from his house, 15-17. She rends her garments, puts ashes on her head, and goes forth weeping, 18, 19. She is met by Absalom her brother, who, understanding her case, determines the death of Amnon, 20-22. Two years after he invites all his brothers to a sheep-shearing, when he orders his servants to murder Amnon, 23-29. Tidings come to David that Absalom has slain all the king's sons, which fill him with the bitterest distress, 30, 31. The rest soon arrive, and he finds that Amnon only is killed, 32-36. Absalom flees to Talmai, king of Geshur, where he remains three years, 37, 38. David longs after Absalom, having become reconciled to the death of Amnon, 39.

AND it came to pass after this, <sup>a</sup> that Absalom the son of David had a fair sister, whose name was <sup>b</sup> Tamar; and Amnon the son of David loved her.

Verse 1. Whose name was Tamar] Tamar was the daughter of David and Maacah, daughter of the king

2 And Amnon was so vexed that he fell sick for his sister Tamar; for she was a virgin; and <sup>a</sup> Amnon thought it hard for him to do any thing to her.

3 But Amnon had a friend, whose name was

of Geshur, and the uterine sister of Absalom. Amnon was David's eldest son by Abiudam. She was therefore Jonadab, *the son of Shimeah David's brother: and Jonadab was a very subtil man.

4 And he said unto him, Why art thou, being the king's son, <sup>b</sup>lean 'from day to day? wilt thou not tell me? And Amnon said unto him, I love Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister.

5 And Jonadab said unto him, Lay thee down on thy bed, and make thyself sick; and when thy father cometh to see thee, say unto him, I pray thee, let my sister Tamar come, and give me meat; and dress the meat in my sight, that I may see it, and eat it at her hand.

6 So Amnon lay down, and made himself sick: and when the king was come to see him, Amnon said unto the king, I pray thee, let Tamar my sister come, and <sup>a</sup>make me a couple of cakes in my sight, that I may eat at her hand,

7 Then David sent home to Tamar, saying, Go now to thy brother Amnon's house, and dress him meat.

8 So Tamar went to her brother Amnon's house; and he was laid down. And she took <sup>a</sup>flour, and kneaded it, and made cakes in his sight, and did bake the cakes.

9 And she took a pan, and poured them out before him; but he refused to eat. And Amnon said, 'Have out all men from me. And they went out every man from him.

10 And Amnon said unto Tamar, Bring the meat into the chamber that I may eat of thine hand. And Tamar took the cakes which she had made, and brought them into the chamber to Amnon her brother.

11 And when she had brought them unto him to eat, he <sup>a</sup>took hold of her, and said unto her, Come lie with me, my sister.

12 And she answered him, Nay, my brother, do not <sup>a</sup>force me; for <sup>b</sup>'no <sup>c</sup>'such thing ought to be done in Israel: do not thou this <sup>a</sup>folly.

13 And I, whither shall I cause my shame to go? and as for thee, thou shalt be as one of the fools in Israel. Now therefore, I pray thee, speak unto the king; <sup>b</sup>'for he will not withhold me from thee.

14 Howbeit he would not hearken unto her voice: but, being stronger than she, <sup>a</sup>forced her, and lay with her.

15 Then Amnon hated her <sup>a</sup>exceedingly; so that the hatred wherewith he hated her was greater than the love wherewith he had loved her. And Amnon said unto her, Arise, be gone.

16 And she said unto him, There is no cause: this evil in sending me away is greater than the other that thou didst unto me. But he would not hearken unto her.

17 Then he called his servant that ministered unto him, and said, Put now this woman out from me, and bolt the door after her.

18 And she had <sup>a</sup>a garment of divers colours upon her: for with such robes were the king's daughters that were virgins apparelled. Then his servant brought her out, and bolted the door after her.

19 And Tamar put <sup>a</sup>ashes on her head, and rent her garment of divers colours that was on her, and <sup>a</sup>laid her hand on her head, and went on crying.

20 And Absalom her brother said unto her, Hath <sup>a</sup>Amnon thy brother been with thee? but hold now thy peace, my sister: he is thy brother; <sup>a</sup>regard not this thing. So Tamar remained <sup>a</sup>desolate in her brother Absalom's house.

21 But when king David heard of all these things, he was very wroth.

22 And Absalom spake unto his brother Amnon <sup>a</sup>'neither good nor bad: for Absalom <sup>a</sup>'hated Amnon because he had forced his sister Tamar.

23 And it came to pass after two full years, that Absalom <sup>a</sup>'had sheep-shearers in Bual-hazor, which is beside Ephraim: and Absalom invited all the king's sons.

24 And Absalom came to the king, and said, Behold now, thy servant hath sheep-shearers; let the king, I beseech thee, and his servants go with thy servant.

25 And the king said to Absalom, Nay, my son, let us not all now go, lest we be chargeable unto thee. And he pressed him: howbeit he would not go, but blessed him.

26 Then said Absalom, If not, I pray thee, let my brother Amnon go with us. And the king said unto him, Why should he go with thee?

27 But Absalom pressed him, that he let Amnon and all the king's sons go with him.

28 Now Absalom had commanded his servants, saying, Mark ye now when Amnon's <sup>a</sup>'heart is merry with wine, and when I say unto you, Smite Amnon; then kill him, fear not: <sup>a</sup>'have not I commanded you? be courageous, and be <sup>a</sup>'valiant.

29 And the servants of Absalom did unto Amnon as Absalom had commanded. Then all the king's sons arose, and every man <sup>a</sup>'gat him up upon his mule, and fled.

30 And it came to pass, while they were in the way, that tidings came to David, saying, Absalom hath slain all the king's sons, and there is not one of them left.

sister to Amnon only by the father's side, i.e. half-sister; but whole sister to Absalom.

Verse 2. Amnon was so vexed—for she was a virgin]. "The passion of love is nowhere so wasting and vexatious, as where it is unlawful."

Verse 3. Jonadab was a very subtil man]. And most diabolic advice did he give to his cousin. We talk of the simplicity and excellence of primitive times!

Verse 12. Nay, my brother]. There is something exceedingly tender and persuasive in this speech of Tamar; but Amnon was a mere brute, and it was all lost on him.

Verse 18. Speak unto the king]. So it appears that she thought that the king, her father, would give her to him as wife. But perhaps she said this only to divert him from his iniquitous purpose, that she might get out of his hands.

Verse 15. Hated her exceedingly]. Amnon's conduct to his sister was not only brutal, but inexplicable.

Verse 23. Absalom had sheep-shearers]. These were times in which feasts were made; to which the neighbours and relatives of the family were invited.

Verse 26. Let my brother Amnon go]. He urged this with the more plausibility, because Amnon was the first-born, and presumptive heir to the kingdom; and he had disguised his resentment so well before, that he was not suspected.

Verse 30. Absalom hath slain all the king's sons]. Fame never lessens, but always magnifies a fact.

31 Then the king arose, and <sup>a</sup>tare his garments, and <sup>b</sup>lay on the earth; and all his servants stood by with their clothes rent.

32 And <sup>c</sup>Jonadab, the son of Shimeah David's brother, answered and said, Let not my lord suppose that they have slain all the young men the king's sons; for Amnon only is dead: for by the <sup>d</sup>appointment of Absalom this hath been <sup>e</sup>determined from the day that he forced his sister Tamar.

33 Now therefore <sup>f</sup>let not my lord the king take the thing to his heart, to think that all the king's sons are dead: for Amnon only is dead.

34 <sup>g</sup>But Absalom fled. And the young man that kept the watch lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold, there came much people by the way of the hill side behind him.

Verse 32. And Jonadab—said—Amnon only is dead.] This was a very bad man, and here speaks coolly of a most bloody tragedy, which himself had contrived.

Verse 37. Absalom fled.] As he had committed wilful murder, he could not avail himself of a city of refuge, and was therefore obliged to leave the land of Israel, and take refuge with Talmi, king of Geshur, his grandfather by his mother's side.

Verse 39. David longed to go forth unto Absalom.] He had 35 And Jonadab said unto the king, Behold, the king's sons come: <sup>a</sup>as thy servant said, so it is.

36 And it came to pass, as soon as he had made an end of speaking, that, behold, the king's sons came, and lifted up their voice and wept: and the king also and all his servants wept <sup>b</sup>very sore.

37 But Absalom fled and went to <sup>c</sup>Talmi, the son of <sup>d</sup>Amniliud, king of Geshur. And David mourned for his son every day.

38 So Absalom fled, and went to <sup>e</sup>Geshur, and was there three years.

39 And the soul of king David <sup>f</sup>longed to go forth unto Absalom: for he was <sup>g</sup>comforted concerning Amnon, seeing he was dead.

a very strong affection for this young man, who appears to have had little to commend him but the beauty of his person. Joab had marked this disposition, and took care to work on it, in order to procure the return of Absalom. It would have been well for all parties had Absalom ended his days at Geshur. His return brought increasing wretchedness to his unfortunate father. And it may be generally observed, that those undue, unreasonable paternal attachments are thus rewarded.

CHAPTER XIV.

A woman of Tekoah, by the advice of Joab, comes to the king; and by a fictitious story persuades him to recall Absalom, 1-20. Joab is permitted to go to Geshur, and bring Absalom from thence, 21-23. Absalom comes to Jerusalem to his own house, but is forbidden to see the king's face, 24. An account of Absalom's beauty, and the extraordinary weight of his hair, 25, 26. His children, 27. He strives to regain the king's favour, and employs Joab as an intercessor, 28-32. David is reconciled to him, 33.

NOW Joab the son of Zeruiah perceived that the king's heart was <sup>a</sup>toward Absalom.

2 And Joab sent to <sup>b</sup>Tekoah, and fetched thence a wise woman, and said unto her, I pray thee, feign thyself to be a mourner, <sup>c</sup>and put on now mourning apparel, and anoint not thyself with oil, but be as a woman that had a long time mourned for the dead.

3 And come to the king, and speak on this manner unto him. So Joab <sup>d</sup>put the words in her mouth.

4 And when the woman of Tekoah spake to the king, she <sup>e</sup>fell on her face to the ground, and did obeisance, and said, <sup>f</sup>'Help, <sup>g</sup>O king.

5 And the king said unto her, What aileth thee?

Verse 2. Joab sent to Tekoah.] Tekoah, according to St. Jerome, was a little city in the tribe of Judah, about twelve miles from Jerusalem.

There are several particulars relative to this woman and her case which deserve to be noticed.

Her circumstances, her mournful tale, her widow's weeds, her aged person, and her impressive manner, all combined to make one united impression on the king's heart.

Verse 5. I am indeed a widow woman.] It is very possible that the principal facts mentioned here were real, and that Joab found out a person whose circumstances bore a near resemblance to that which he wished to represent.

Verse 7. The whole family is risen.] They took on them

And she answered, <sup>a</sup>I am indeed a widow woman, and mine husband is dead.

6 And thy handmaid had two sons, and they two strove together in the field, and there was <sup>b</sup>none to part them, but the one smote the other, and slew him.

7 And, behold, <sup>c</sup>the whole family is risen against thine handmaid, and they said, Deliver him that smote his brother, that we may kill him, for the life of his brother whom he slew; and we will destroy the heir also: and so they shall quench my coal which is left, and shall not leave to my husband <sup>d</sup>neither name nor remainder <sup>e</sup>upon the earth.

8 And the king said unto the woman, Go to thine house, and I will give charge concerning thee.

9 And the woman of Tekoah said unto the king,

the part of the avenger of blood; the nearest akin to the murdered person having a right to slay the murderer.

They shall quench my coal which is left.] A man and his descendants or successors are often termed in Scripture a lamp or light. See chap. xxi. 17, see also Ps. cxxxii. 17. And to raise up a lamp to a person signifies his having a posterity, to continue his name and family upon the earth: thus, quench my coal that is left means destroying all hope of posterity, and extinguishing the family from among the people.

Verse 8. I will give charge concerning thee.] This would not do; it was too distant; and she could not by it bring her business to a conclusion: so she proceeds—

My lord, O king, <sup>a</sup>the iniquity be on me, and on my father's house: <sup>b</sup>and the king and his throne be guiltless.

10 And the king said, Whosoever saith ought unto thee, bring him to me, and he shall not touch thee any more.

11 Then said she, I pray thee, let the king remember the LORD thy God, <sup>c</sup>that thou wouldest not suffer <sup>d</sup>the revengers of blood to destroy any more, lest they destroy my son. And he said, <sup>e</sup>As the LORD liveth, there shall not one hair of thy son fall to the earth.

12 Then the woman said, Let thine handmaid, I pray thee, speak one word unto my lord the king. And he said, say on.

13 And the woman said, Wherefore then hast thou thought such a thing against <sup>f</sup>the people of God? for the king doth speak this thing as one which is faulty, in that the king doth not fetch home again <sup>g</sup>his banished.

14 For we <sup>h</sup>must needs die, and are as water spilt on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again; <sup>i</sup>neither doth God respect any person: yet doth he <sup>j</sup>devise means that his banished be not expelled from him.

15 Now therefore that I am come to speak of this thing unto my lord the king, it is because the people have made me afraid: and thy handmaid said, I will now speak unto the king; it may be that the king will perform the request of his handmaid.

16 For the king will hear, to deliver his handmaid out of the hand of the man that would destroy me and my son together out of the inheritance of God.

17 Then thine handmaid said, The word of my lord the king shall now be <sup>k</sup>comfortable: for <sup>l</sup>as an angel of God, so is my lord the king <sup>m</sup>to discern good and bad: therefore the LORD thy God will be with thee.

18 Then the king answered and said unto the woman, Hide not from me, I pray thee, the thing that I shall ask thee. And the woman said, Let my lord the king now speak.

Verse 9. The iniquity be on me] She intimates that, if the king should suppose that the not bringing the offender to the assigned punishment might reflect on the administration of justice in the land, she was willing that all blame should attach to her and her family, and the king and his throne be guiltless; and she wished to get the king pledged by a solemn promise that all proceedings relative to the case should be stopped.

Verse 11. Let the king remember the Lord thy God] Consider that when God is earnestly requested to show mercy, he does it in the promptest manner; the danger to which my son is exposed is imminent; if the king do not decide the business instantly, it may be too late.

And he said, As the Lord liveth] Thus he binds himself by a most solemn promise and oath; and this is what the woman wished to extort.

Verse 18. Wherefore then hast thou thought such a thing] Is not the king to blame? He is willing to pardon the meanest of his subjects the murder of a brother at the instance of a poor widow, and he is not willing to pardon his son Absalom, whose restoration to favour is the desire of the whole nation.

Verse 14. For we must needs die] Whatever is done must be done quickly; all must die; God has not exempted any person from this common lot. Though Amnon be dead, yet the death of Absalom cannot bring him to life, nor repair this loss. Seeing, then, that the thing is so, and that God devises means that those who were banished from him by 19 And the king said, Is not the hand of Joab with thee in all this? And the woman answered and said, As thy soul liveth, my lord the king, none can turn to the right hand or to the left from ought that my lord the king hath spoken: for thy servant Joab, he bade me, and <sup>n</sup>he put all these words in the mouth of thine handmaid:

20 To fetch about this form of speech hath thy servant Joab done this thing: and my lord is wise, <sup>o</sup>according to the wisdom of an angel of God, to know all things that are in the earth.

21 And the king said unto Joab, Behold now, I have done this thing: go therefore, bring the young man Absalom again.

22 And Joab fell to the ground on his face, and bowed himself, and <sup>p</sup>thanked the king: and Joab said, To day thy servant knoweth that I have found grace in thy sight, my lord, O king, in that the king hath fulfilled the request of <sup>q</sup>his servant.

23 So Joab arose <sup>r</sup>and went to Geshur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem.

24 And the king said, Let him turn to his own house, and let him <sup>s</sup>not see my face. So Absalom returned to his own house, and saw not the king's face.

25 <sup>t</sup>But in all Israel there was none to be so much praised as Absalom for his beauty: <sup>u</sup>from the sole of his foot even to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him.

26 And when he polled his head, (for it was at every year's end that he polled it: because the hair was heavy on him, therefore he polled it:) he weighed the hair of his head at two hundred shekels after the king's weight.

27 And <sup>v</sup>unto Absalom there were born three sons, and one daughter, whose name was Tamar: she was a woman of a fair countenance.

28 So Absalom dwelt two full years in Jerusalem, <sup>w</sup>and saw not the king's face.

29 Therefore Absalom sent for Joab, to have sent him to the king; but he would not come to him:

means, &c.—1 Num. xxxv. 15, 25, 28.—<sup>x</sup> Heb. for rest.—1 Yer. 90. Ch. xix. 27.—<sup>y</sup> Heb. to hear.—<sup>z</sup> Ver. 3.—<sup>aa</sup> Ver. 17. sin and transgression, may not be finally expelled from his mercy and his kingdom, restore thy son to favour and pardon his crime, as thou hast promised to restore my son, and the Lord thy God will be with thee.

The argument is very elegant and persuasive; but one clause of it has been variously understood, Neither does God respect any person; the Hebrew is, "And God doth not take away the soul." This intimates that, after human life is ended, the soul has a state of separate existence with God. This was certainly the opinion of these translators, and was the opinion of the ancient Jews, at least three hundred years before the incarnation; about which time this translation was made. God is not the author of death; neither hath he pleasure in the destruction of the living; imitate him; pardon and recal thy son.

Verse 20. According to the wisdom of an angel of God] This is quite in the style of Asiatic flattery.

Verse 21. And the king said unto Joab] It appears that Joab was present at this time, and no doubt others of David's courtiers or officers were there also.

Verse 24. Let him not see my face] It was highly proper to show this detestation of the crime, and respect for justice.

Verse 25. None to be so much praised as Absalom] It was probably his personal beauty that caused the people to interest themselves so much in his behalf; for the great mass of the public is ever caught and led by outward appearances.

Verse 26. When he polled his head] Not at any particular 30 Therefore he said unto his servants, See Joab's field is <sup>a</sup> near mine, and he hath barley there: go and set it on fire. And Absalom's servants set the field on fire.

31 Then Joab arose, and came to Absalom unto his house, and said unto him, Wherefore have thy servants set my field on fire?

33 So Joab came to the king, and told him: and when he had called for Absalom, he came to the king, and bowed himself on his face to the ground before the king: and the king <sup>b</sup> kissed Absalom.

Verse 27. Unto Absalom there were born] These children did not survive him: see chap. xviii. 18.

Verse 30. Go, and set it on fire.] This was strange conduct, but it had the desired effect. He had not used his influence to get Absalom to court; now he uses it, and succeeds.

CHAPTER XV.

Absalom conspires against his father, and uses various methods to seduce the people from their allegiance to their king, 1-6. Under pretence of paying a vow at Hebron, he obtains leave from David to go thither; and, by emissaries sent through the land, prepares the people for revolt, 7-11. He gains over Ahithophel, David's counsellor, 12. David is informed of the general defection of the people; on which he, and his life guards and friends, leave the city, and go towards the wilderness, 13-18. The steadfast friendship of Ittai, the Gittite, 19-22. David's affecting departure from the city, 23. He sends Zadok and Abiathar with the ark back to Jerusalem, 24-29. He goes up Mount Olivet; prays that the counsel of Ahithophel may be turned into foolishness, 30-31. He desires Hushai to return to Jerusalem, and to send him word of all that occurs, 32-37.

AND <sup>a</sup> it came to pass after this, that Absalom <sup>b</sup> prepared him chariots and horses, and fifty men to run before him.

2 And Absalom rose up early, and stood beside the way of the gate: and it was so, that when any man that had a controversy <sup>c</sup> came to the king for judgment, then Absalom called unto him, and said, Of what city art thou? And he said, Thy servant is of one of the tribes of Israel.

3 And Absalom said unto him, See, thy matters are good and right; but <sup>d</sup> there is no man deputed of the king to hear thee.

4 Absalom said moreover, <sup>e</sup> Oh that I were made judge in the land, that every man which hath any suit or cause might come unto me, and I would do him justice;

5 And it was so, that when any man came nigh to him to do him obeisance, he put forth his hand, and took him, and kissed him.

6 And on this manner did Absalom to all Israel that came to the king for judgment; <sup>f</sup> so Absalom stole the hearts of the men of Israel.

7 And it came to pass <sup>g</sup> after forty years, that Absalom said unto the king, I pray thee, let me go and pay my vow, which I have vowed unto the LORD, in Hebron.

8 <sup>h</sup> For thy servant <sup>i</sup> vowed a vow <sup>j</sup> while I abode at Geshur in Syria, saying, If the LORD shall bring me again indeed to Jerusalem, then I will serve the LORD.

9 And the king said unto him; Go in peace. So he arose, and went to Hebron.

10 But Absalom sent spies throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, As soon as ye hear the Verse 1. Absalom prepared him chariots and horses] After all that has been said to prove that horses here mean horsemen, I think it most likely that the writer would have us to understand chariots drawn by horses; not by mules or such like cattle.

Fifty men to run before him.] Affecting in every respect the regal state by this establishment.

Verse 6. So Absalom stole the hearts] He was thoroughly versed in the arts of the demagogue; and the common people, the vile mass, heard him gladly. He used the patriot's arguments; found fault with men in power; and he only wanted their place, like all other pretended patriots, that he might act as they did, or worse.

Verse 7. After forty years] There is no doubt that this reading is corrupt. But the Syriac has four years; the Arabic the same, Josephus has the same. Theodoret also reads four, not forty; and most learned men are of opinion that arbaum, forty, is an error for arba, four; yet this reading is not supported by any Hebrew MS. yet discovered.

We know that Absalom did stay THREE years with his grand father at Geshur, chap. xiii. 38; and this probably was a year after his return: the era, therefore, may be the time of his slaying his brother Amnon; and the four years include the time from his flight till the conspiracy mentioned here.

Verse 8. While I abode at Geshur in Syria] Geshur, the country of Talmah, was certainly not in Syria, but lay on the south of Canaan, in or near Edom, as is evident from Judg. i. 10; 1 Sam. xxvii. 8; chap. xiii. 37. Hence it is probable that Aram, Syria, is a mistake for Edom. Edom is the read- of the Syriac and Arabic.

serve the Lord.] Here he pretended to be a strict follower of Jehovah, even while he was in a heathen country; and now he desires liberty to go and perform a vow at Hebron, which he pretends to have made while he was resident at Geshur.

Verse 10. Absalom sent spies] These persons were to go into every tribe; and the trumpet was to be blown as a signal for all to arise, and proclaim Absalom in every place.

sound of the trumpet, then ye shall say, Absalom reigneth in Hebron.

11 And with Absalom went two hundred men out of Jerusalem, that were <sup>a</sup> called; and they went <sup>b</sup> in their simplicity, and they knew not any thing.

12 And Absalom sent for Ahithophel the Gilonite, <sup>c</sup> David's counsellor, from his city, even from <sup>d</sup> Giloh, while he offered sacrifices. And the conspiracy was strong; for the people <sup>e</sup> increased continually with Absalom.

13 And there came a messenger to David, saying, <sup>f</sup> The hearts of the men of Israel are after Absalom.

14 And David said unto all his servants that were with him at Jerusalem, Arise, and let us <sup>g</sup> flee; for we shall not <sup>h</sup> else escape from Absalom: make speed to depart, lest he overtake us suddenly, and <sup>i</sup> bring evil upon us, and smite the city with the edge of the sword.

15 And the king's servants said unto the king, Behold, thy servants are ready to do whatsoever my lord the king shall <sup>j</sup> appoint.

16 And <sup>k</sup> the king went forth, and all his household <sup>l</sup> after him. And the king left <sup>m</sup> ten women, which were concubines, to keep the house.

17 And the king went forth, and all the people after him, and tarried in a place that was far off.

18 And all his servants passed on beside him; <sup>n</sup> and all the Cherethites, and all the Pelethites, and all the Gittites, six hundred men which came after him from Gath, passed on before the king, 19 Then said the king to <sup>o</sup> Ittai the Gittite, Wherefore goest thou also with us? return to thy place, and abide with the king: for thou art a stranger, and also an exile.

20 Whereas thou camest but yesterday, should I this day <sup>p</sup> make thee go up and down with us? seeing I go <sup>q</sup> whither I may, return thou, and take back thy brethren: mercy and truth be with thee.

Verse 11. Went two hundred men] These were probably soldiers, whom he supposed would be of considerable consequence to him. They had been seduced by his specious conduct, but knew nothing of his present design.

Verse 12. Sent for Ahithophel] When Absalom had got him, he in effect got the prime minister of the kingdom to join him.

Verse 13. The hearts of the men of Israel are after Absalom.] It is very difficult to account for this general defection of the people. Several reasons are given: David was old or afflicted, and did not well attend to the administration of justice in the land; there were no properly appointed judges in the land; Joab's power was overgrown; some partisans of the house of Saul thought the crown not fairly obtained by David; David was under the displeasure of the Almighty, for his adultery with Bath-sheba and his murder of Uriah; and there are always troublesome and disaffected men in every state, and under every government; Absalom appeared to be the real and was the undisputed heir to the throne; David could not, in the course of nature, live very long; and most people are more disposed to hail the beams of the rising, than exult in those of the setting, sun.

Verse 14. David—said—Arise, let us flee] This, I believe, was the first time that David turned his back to his enemies. And why did he now flee? Jerusalem, far from not being in a state to sustain a siege, was so strong that even the blind and the lame were supposed to be a sufficient defense for the walls. And he had still with him his faithful Cherethites and Pelethites; besides six hundred faithful Gittites, who were perfectly willing to follow his fortunes. But he 21 And Ittai answered the king, and said, <sup>a</sup> As the Lord liveth, and as my lord the king liveth, surely in what place my lord the king shall be, whether in death or life, even there also will thy servant be.

22 And David said to Ittai, Go and pass over. And Ittai the Gittite passed over, and all his men, and all the little ones that were with him.

23 And all the country wept with a loud voice, and all the people passed over: the king also himself passed over the brook <sup>b</sup> Kidron, and all the people passed over toward the way of the <sup>c</sup> wilderness.

24 And lo, Zadok also, and all the Levites were with him, <sup>d</sup> bearing the ark of the covenant of God: and they set down the ark of God; and Abiathar went up, until all the people had done passing out of the city.

25 And the king said unto Zadok, Carry back the ark of God into the city; if I shall find favour in the eyes of the Lord, he <sup>e</sup> will bring me again, and shew me both it and his habitation:

26 But if he thus say, I have no <sup>f</sup> delight in thee; behold, here am I, <sup>g</sup> let him do to me as seemeth good unto him.

27 The king said also unto Zadok the priest, Art not thou a <sup>h</sup> seer? return into the city in peace, and <sup>i</sup> your two sons with you, Ahimaaz thy son, and Jonathan the son of Abiathar.

28 See, <sup>j</sup> I will tarry in the plain of the wilderness, until there come word from you to certify me.

29 Zadok therefore and Abiathar carried the ark of God again to Jerusalem: and they tarried there.

30 And David went up by the ascent of Mount Olivet, <sup>k</sup> and wept as he went up, and <sup>l</sup> had his head covered, and he went <sup>m</sup> bare-foot: and all the people that was with him <sup>n</sup> covered every man his head, and they went up, <sup>o</sup> weeping as they went up.

appears to take all as coming from the hand of God; therefore he humbles himself, weeps, goes barefoot, and covers his head! He does not even hasten his departure, for the habit of mourners is not the habit of those who are flying before the face of their enemies. He sees the storm, and he yields to what he conceives to be the tempest of the Almighty.

Verse 17. And tarried in a place] He probably waited till he saw all his friends safely out of the city.

Verse 19. Thou art a stranger, and also an exile.] Some suppose that Ittai was the son of Achish, king of Gath, who was very much attached to David, and banished from his father's court on that account.

Verse 20. Mercy and truth be with thee.] May God ever show thee mercy, as thou shonest it to me, and his truth ever preserve thee from error and delusion!

Verse 23. The brook Kidron] This was an inconsiderable brook, and only furnished with water in winter, and in the rains.

Verse 24. Bearing the ark] The priests knew that God had given the kingdom to David; they had no evidence that he had deposed him: they therefore chose to accompany him, and take the ark, the object of their charge, with them.

Verse 25. Carry back the ark] The ark was too precious to be exposed to the dangers of his migrations; he knew that God would restore him if he delighted in him, and he was not willing to carry off from the city of God that without which the public worship could not be carried on.

Verse 27. Art not thou a seer? return unto the city in peace] That is, As thou art the only organ of the public

Verse 30. Had his head covered] This was not only the attitude of a mourner, but even of a culprit ; they usually had their heads covered when condemned.

Verse 31. Turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness.] Ahithophel was a wise man, and well versed in state affairs ; and God alone could confound his devices.

Verse 32. Where he worshipped God] Though in danger of his life, he stops on the top of Mount Olivet for prayer !

How true is the adage, Prayer and provender never hinder any man's journey !

Hushai the Archite] He was the particular friend of David, and was now greatly affected by his calamity.

Verse 33. Then thou shalt be a burden unto me] It appears that Hushai was not a warrior, but was a wise, prudent, and discreet man, who could well serve David by gaining him intelligence of Absalom's conspiracy.

Verse 37. Absalom came into Jerusalem.] It is very probable that he and his partisans were not far from the city when David left it, and this was one reason which caused him to hurry his departure.

CHAPTER XVI.

Ziba, servant of Mephibosheth, meets David with provisions, and by false insinuations obtains the grant of his master's property, 1-4. Shimei abuses and curses David, who restrains Abishai from slaying him, 5-14. Hushai makes a feigned tender of his services to Absalom, 15-19. Absalom calls a council, and Ahithophel advises him to go in to his father's concubines, 20-22. Character of Ahithophel as a counsellor, 23.

AND <sup>a</sup> when David was a little past the top of the hill, behold, <sup>b</sup> Ziba the servant of Mephibosheth met him, with a couple of asses saddled, and upon them two hundred loaves of bread, and an hundred bunches of raisins, and an hundred of summer fruits, and a bottle of wine.

2 And the king said unto Ziba, What meanest thou by these ? And Ziba said, The asses be for the king's household to ride on ; and the bread and summer fruit for the young men to eat ; and the wine, <sup>c</sup> that such as be faint in the wilderness may drink.

3 And the king said, And where is thy master's son ? <sup>d</sup> And Ziba said unto the king, Behold he abideth at Jerusalem : for he said, To day shall the Verse 1. Two hundred loaves of bread] The word loaf gives us a false idea of the ancient Jewish bread ; it was thin cakes, not yeasted and raised like ours.

Summer fruits] These were probably pumpkins, cucumbers, or water melons. The two latter are extensively used in those countries to refresh travellers in the burning heat of the summer. [They were more probably lumps of figs.]

A bottle of wine.] A goat's skin full of wine ; this was the general bottle in the eastern countries.

Verse 2. The asses be for the king's household] This is the eastern method of speaking when any thing is presented to a great man : " This and this is for the slaves of the servants of your majesty," when at the same time the presents are intended for the sovereign himself, and are so understood.

house of Israel restore me the kingdom of my father.

4 <sup>e</sup> Then said the king to Ziba, Behold, thine are all that pertained unto Mephibosheth. And Ziba said, ' I humbly beseech thee that I may find grace in thy sight, my lord, O king.

5 And when king David came to Bahurim, behold, thence came out a man of the family of the house of Saul, whose name was <sup>f</sup> Shimei, the son of Gera : <sup>1</sup> he came forth, and cursed still as he came.

6 And he cast stones at David, and at all the servants of king David : and all the people and all the mighty men were on his right hand and on his left.

7 And thus said Shimei when he cursed, Come

Verse 3. To day shall the house of Israel] What a base wretch was Ziba ! and how unfounded was this accusation against the peaceable, loyal, and innocent Mephibosheth !

Verse 4. Thine are all] This conduct of David was very rash ; he spoiled an honourable man to reward a villain, not giving himself time to look into the circumstances of the case. But David was in heavy afflictions, and these sometimes make even a wise man mad. Nothing should be done rashly ; he who is in the habit of obeying the first impulse of his passions or feelings will seldom do a right action, and never keep a clear conscience.

Verse 5. David came to Bahurim] This place lay northward of Jerusalem, in the tribe of Benjamin. Bahurim signifies youthful.

Cursed still as he came.] Used impressions and execrations.

out, come out, thou <sup>a</sup>bloody man, and thou <sup>b</sup>man of Belial:

8 The LORD hath <sup>c</sup>returned upon thee all <sup>d</sup>the blood of the house of Saul, in whose stead thou hast reigned; and the LORD hath delivered the kingdom into the hand of Absalom thy son: and, <sup>e</sup>behold, thou art taken in thy mischief, because thou art a bloody man.

9 Then said Abishai the son of Zeruiah unto the king, Why should this <sup>f</sup>dead dog <sup>g</sup>curse my lord the king? let me go over, I pray thee, and take off his head.

10 And the king said, <sup>h</sup>What have I to do with you, ye sons of Zeruiah? so let him curse, because <sup>i</sup>the LORD hath said unto him, Curse David. <sup>j</sup>Who shall then say, Wherefore hast thou done so?

11 And David said to Abishai, and to all his servants, Behold, <sup>k</sup>my son, which <sup>l</sup>came forth of my bowels, seeketh my life: how much more now may this Benjaminite do it? let him alone, and let him curse; for the LORD hath bidden him.

12 It may be that the LORD will look on mine <sup>m</sup>affliction, <sup>n</sup>and that the LORD will <sup>o</sup>requite me good for his cursing this day.

13 And as David and his men went by the way, Shimei went along on the hill's side over against him, and cursed as he went, and threw stones at him, and <sup>p</sup>cast dust.

Verse 10. Because the Lord hath said] The particle vechi should be translated for if, not because.

Verse 11. Let him curse; for the Lord hath bidden him.] No soul of man can suppose that ever God bade one man to curse another, much less that he commanded such a wretch as Shimei to curse such a man as David; but this is a peculiarity of the Hebrew language, which does not always distinguish between permission and commandment. Often the Scripture attributes to God what he only permits to be done; or what in the course of his providence he does not hinder. David, however, considers all this as being permitted of God for his chastisement and humiliation.

Verse 18. Whom the Lord and his people—choose] Here is an equivocation; Hushai meant in his heart that God and all the people of Israel had chosen David; but he spake so as to make Absalom believe that he spoke of him: for what-Israel, came to Jerusalem, and Ahithophel with him.

16 And it came to pass, when Hushai the Archite, <sup>r</sup>David's friend, was come unto Absalom, that Hushai said unto Absalom, <sup>s</sup>God save the king, God save the king.

17 And Absalom said to Hushai, <sup>t</sup>Is this thy kindness to thy friend? <sup>u</sup>why wentest thou not with thy friend?

18 And Hushai said unto Absalom, Nay: but whom the LORD, and this people, and all the men of Israel, choose, his will I be, and with him will I abide.

19 And again, <sup>v</sup>whom should I serve? <sup>w</sup>should I not serve in the presence of his son? as I have served in thy father's presence, so will I be in thy presence.

20 Then said Absalom to Ahithophel, Give counsel among you what we shall do.

21 And Ahithophel said unto Absalom, Go in unto thy father's <sup>x</sup>concubines, which he hath left to keep the house; and all Israel shall hear that thou <sup>y</sup>art abhorred of thy father; then shall <sup>z</sup>the hands of all that are with thee be strong.

22 So they spread Absalom a tent upon the top of the house; and Absalom went in unto his father's concubines <sup>a</sup>in the sight of all Israel.

23 And the counsel of Ahithophel, which he counselled in those days, <sup>b</sup>was as if a man had inquired at the <sup>c</sup>oracle of God: so was all the counsel of Ahithophel, <sup>d</sup>both with David and with Absalom.

ever of insincerity may appear in this, Hushai is alone answerable.

Verse 21. Go in unto thy father's concubines] David left ten of them behind to take care of the house, see chap. xv. 16. Ahithophel advised this infernal measure, in order to prevent the possibility of a reconciliation between David and his son; thus was the prophecy of Nathan fulfilled, chap. xii. 11.

Every part of the conduct of Absalom shows him to have been a most profligate young man; he was proud, vindictive, adulterous, incestuous, a fratricide, and, in fine, reprobate to every good word and work. We still however recollect that David had grievously sinned, and we should also recollect that he suffered grievously for it; and that his humiliation, repentance, and amendment, were most decisive and exemplary.

CHAPTER XVII.

Ahithophel counsels Absalom to pursue his father with twelve thousand men, 1-4. Hushai gives a different counsel, and is followed, 5-14. Hushai informs Zadok and Abiathar; and they send word to David, 15-21. David and his men go beyond Jordan, 22. Ahithophel, finding his counsel slighted, goes home, sets his house in order, and hangs himself, 23. David moves to Mahanaim; and Absalom follows him over Jordan, 24-26. Several friends meet David at Mahanaim with refreshments and provisions, 27-29.

MOREOVER Ahithophel said unto Absalom, Let me now choose out twelve thousand men, and I will arise and pursue after David this night:

Verse 1. Let me now choose out twelve thousand men] Had this council been followed, David and his little troop would soon have been destroyed; nothing but the miraculous interposition of God could have saved them.

3 And I will bring back all the people unto thee: the man whom thou seekest is as if all returned; so all the people shall be in peace.

4 And the saying <sup>a</sup>pleased Absalom well, and all the elders of Israel.

5 Then said Absalom, Call now Hushai the Archite also, and let us hear likewise <sup>b</sup>what he saith.

6 And when Hushai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake unto him, saying, Ahithophel hath spoken after this manner: shall we do after his <sup>c</sup>saying? if not; speak thou.

7 And Hushai said unto Absalom, The counsel that Ahithophel hath <sup>d</sup>given is not good at this time.

8 For, said Hushai, thou knowest thy father and his men, that they be mighty men, and they be <sup>e</sup>chafed in their minds, as <sup>f</sup>a bear robbed of her whelps in the field: and thy father is a man of war, and will not lodge with the people.

9 Behold, he is hid now in some pit, or in some other place: and it will come to pass, when some of them be <sup>g</sup>overthrown at the first, that whosoever heareth it will say, There is a slaughter among the people that follow Absalom.

10 And he also that is valiant, whose heart is as the heart of a lion, shall utterly <sup>h</sup>melt: for all Israel knoweth that thy father is a mighty man, and they which be with him are valiant men.

11 Therefore I counsel that all Israel be generally gathered unto thee, <sup>i</sup>from Dan even to Beer-sheba, as the sand that is by the sea for multitude; and <sup>j</sup>that thou go to battle in thine own person.

12 So shall we come upon him in some place where he shall be found, and we will light upon him as the dew falleth on the ground: and of him and of all the men that are with him there shall not be left so much as one.

13 Moreover, if he be gotten into a city, then shall all Israel bring ropes to that city, and we will draw it into the river, until there be not one small stone found there.

14 And Absalom and all the men of Israel said, The counsel of Hushai the Archite is better than the counsel of Ahithophel. For <sup>k</sup>the LORD had <sup>l</sup>appointed to defeat the good counsel of Ahithophel, to the intent that the LORD might bring evil upon Absalom.

15 <sup>m</sup>Then said Hushai unto Zadok and to Abiathar the priests, Thus and thus did Ahithophel counsel Absalom and the elders of Israel; and thus and thus have I counselled.

Verse 8. The man whom thou seekest is as if all returned] Only secure David, and all Israel will be on thy side. He is the soul of the whole; destroy him, and all the rest will submit.

Verse 8. As a bear robbed of her whelps] All wild beasts are very furious when robbed of their young; but we have some remarkable instances of the maternal affection of the bear in such circumstances.

Verse 13. Shall all Israel bring ropes to that city] The original word chabalim, which signifies ropes, and from which we have our word cable, may have some peculiarity of meaning here; for it is not likely that any city could be pulled down with ropes. The Chaldees, which should be best judge in this case, translates the original word by mashreyan, towers: this gives an easy sense.

Verse 17. En-rogel] The fuller's well; the place where 16 Now therefore send quickly, and tell David, saying, Lodge not this night <sup>a</sup>in the plains of the wilderness, but speedily pass over; lest the king be swallowed up, and all the people that are with him.

17 <sup>b</sup>Now Jonathan and Ahimaaz <sup>c</sup>stayed by <sup>d</sup>En-rogel; for they might not be seen to come into the city: and a wench went and told them; and they went and told king David.

18 Nevertheless a lad saw them, and told Absalom: but they went both of them away quickly, and came to a man's house <sup>e</sup>in Bahurim, which had a well in his court; whither they went down.

19 And <sup>f</sup>the woman took and spread a covering over the well's mouth, and spread ground corn thereon; and the thing was not known.

20 And when Absalom's servants came to the woman to the house, they said, Where is Ahimaaz and Jonathan? And <sup>g</sup>the woman said unto them, They be gone over the brook of water. And when they had sought and could not find them, they returned to Jerusalem.

21 And it came to pass, after they were departed, that they came up out of the well, and went and told king David, and said unto David, <sup>h</sup>Arise, and pass quickly over the water: for thus hath Ahithophel counselled against you.

22 Then David arose, and all the people that were with him, and they passed over Jordan: by the morning light there lacked not one of them that was not gone over Jordan.

23 And when Ahithophel saw that his counsel was not <sup>i</sup>followed, he saddled <sup>j</sup>his ass, and arose, and gat him home to his house, to <sup>k</sup>his city, and <sup>l</sup>put his household in order, and <sup>m</sup>hanged himself, and died, and was buried in the sepulchre of his father.

24 Then David came to <sup>n</sup>Mahanaim, and Absalom passed over Jordan, he and all the men of Israel with him.

25 And Absalom made Amasa captain of the host instead of Joab; which Amasa was a man's son, whose name was <sup>o</sup>Ithra an Israelite, that went in to <sup>p</sup>Abigail <sup>q</sup>the daughter of <sup>r</sup>Nahash, sister to Zeruiah Joab's mother.

26 So Israel and Absalom pitched in the land of Gilead.

27 And it came to pass, when David was come to Mahanaim, that <sup>s</sup>Shobi the son of Nahash of Rabbah of the children of Ammon, and <sup>t</sup>Machir the son of Ammiel of Lo-debar, and <sup>u</sup>Barzillai the Gileadite of Rogelim, they were accustomed to tread the clothes with their feet; hence the name ein, a well, and rogel, the foot, because of the treading above mentioned.

And a wench went and told them] The word wench occurs nowhere else in the Holy Scriptures, and, indeed, has no business here; as the Hebrew word should have been translated girl, maid, maid-servant.

Verse 23. Put his household in order] He foresaw Absalom's ruin; and he did not choose to witness it, and share in the disgrace; and he could expect no mercy at the hands of David. He was a very bad man, and died an unprepared and accursed death.

Verse 25. Amasa captain of the host] From the account in this verse, it appears that Joab and Amasa were sisters' children, and both nephews to David.

28 Brought beds, and *basons, and earthen vessels, and wheat, and barley, and flour, and parched corn, and beans, and lentiles, and parched pulse,

* Or, cups.

Verse 28. Brought beds] These no doubt consisted in skins of beasts, mats, carpets, and such like things.

Basons] Probably wooden bowls, such as the Arabs still use to eat out of, and to knead their bread in.

Earthen vessels] Probably clay vessels, baked in the sun. These were perhaps used for lifting water, and boiling those articles which required to be cooked.

29 And honey, and butter, and sheep, and cheese of kine, for David, and for the people that were with him, to eat: for they said, The people is hungry, and weary, and thirsty, <sup>b</sup> in the wilderness.

Wheat, and barley, &c.] There is no direct mention of flesh-meat here; little was eaten in that country, and it would not keep. Whether the sheep mentioned were brought for their flesh or their milk, I cannot tell.

This was a timely supply for David and his men, and no doubt contributed much to the victory mentioned in the following chapter.

CHAPTER XVIII.

David reviews and arranges the people, and gives the command to Joab, Abishai, and Ittai, 1, 2. On his expressing a desire to accompany them to the battle, they will not permit him, 3. He reviews them as they go out of the city, and gives commandment to the captains to save Absalom, 4, 5. They join battle with Absalom and his army, who are discomfited with the loss of twenty thousand men, 6-8. Absalom, fleeing away, is caught by his head in an oak; Joab finds him, and transfixes him with three darts, 9-15. The servants of David are recalled, and Absalom buried, 16-18. Ahimaaz and Cushie bring the tidings to David, who is greatly distressed at hearing of the death of Absalom, and makes bitter lamentation for him, 19-33.

AND David *numbered the people that were with him, and set captains of thousands and captains of hundreds over them.

2 And David sent forth a third part of the people under the hand of Joab, <sup>b</sup> and a third part under the hand of Abishai the son of Zeruiah, Joab's brother, <sup>c</sup> and a third part under the hand of Ittai the Gittite. And the king said unto the people, I will surely go forth with you myself also.

3 *But the people answered, Thou shalt not go forth: for if we flee away, they will not *care for us; neither if half of us die, will they care for us: but now thou art <sup>d</sup> worth ten thousand of us: therefore now it is better that thou <sup>e</sup> succour us out of the city.

4 And the king said unto them, What seemeth you best I will do. And the king stood by the gate side, and all the people came out by hundreds and by thousands,

5 And the king commanded Joab and Abishai and Ittai, saying, Deal gently for my sake with the young man, even with Absalom. <sup>b</sup> And all the people heard when the king gave all the captains charge concerning Absalom.

* Ps. lli. 1.—1 Sam. xvi. 6.—Ch. xv. 19.—Ch. xxi. 17.—Heb. set their heart on us.—Heb. as ten thousand of us.—Heb. be to Verse 1. And set captains of thousands] By this time David's small company was greatly recruited; but what its number was we cannot tell.

Verse 3. But now thou art worth ten thousand of us] The particle attah, now, is doubtless a mistake for the pronoun thou; and so it appears to have been read by the Septuagint, the Vulgate, and the Chaldees.

Verse 5. Deal gently—with the young man] Who in his circumstances, that had such feelings as every man should have, would have felt or acted otherwise?

Verse 7. Twenty thousand men.] Whether these were slain on the field of battle, or whether they were reckoned with those slain in the wood of Ephraim, we know not.

Verse 8. The wood devoured more people] It is generally supposed that, when the army was broken, they betook themselves to the wood, fell into pits, swamps, &c., and, being entangled, were hewn down by David's men; but the 6 So the people went out into the field against Israel: and the battle was in the <sup>1</sup> wood of Ephraim;

7 Where the people of Israel were slain before the servants of David, and there was there a great slaughter that day of twenty thousand men.

8 For the battle was there scattered over the face of all the country: and the wood <sup>1</sup> devoured more people that day than the sword devoured.

9 And Absalom met the servants of David. And Absalom rode upon a mule, and the mule went under the thick boughs of a great oak, and his head caught hold of the oak, and he was taken up between the heaven and the earth: and the mule that was under him went away.

10 And a certain man saw it, and told Joab, and said, Behold, I saw Absalom hanged in an oak.

11 And Joab said unto the man that told him, And, behold, thou sawest him, and why didst thou not smite him there to the ground? and I would have given thee ten shekels of silver, and a girdle.

12 And the man said unto Joab, Though I should <sup>a</sup> receive a thousand shekels of silver in mine hand, yet would I not put forth mine hand against the succour.—<sup>b</sup> Ver. 12.—Josh. xvii. 15, 19.—1 Heb. multiplied to devour.—<sup>c</sup> Heb. weigh upon mine hand.

Chaldee, Syriac, and Arabic, state that they were devoured by wild beasts in the wood.

Verse 9. And his head caught hold of the oak] It has been supposed that Absalom was caught by the hair, but no such thing is intimated in the text. Probably his neck was caught in the fork of a strong bough, and he was nearly dead when Joab found him; for it is said, ver. 14, he was yet alive, an expression which intimates he was nearly dead.

Verse 10. I saw Absalom hanged in an oak.] He must have hung there a considerable time. This man saw him hanging; how long he had been hanging before he saw him, we cannot tell.

Verse 11. And a girdle.] The military belt was the chief ornament of a soldier, and was highly prized in all ancient nations; it was also a rich present from one chieftain to another. Jonathan gave his to David, as the highest pledge of his esteem and perpetual friendship, 1 Sam. xviii. 4.

king's son: * for in our hearing the king charged thee and Abishai and Ittai, saying, <sup>b</sup> Beware that none touch the young man Absalom.

13 Otherwise I should have wrought falsehood against mine own life: for there is no matter hid from the king, and thou thyself wouldest have set thyself against me.

14 Then said Joab, I may not tarry thus * with thee. And he took three darts in his hand, and thrust them through the heart of Absalom, while he was yet alive in the <sup>d</sup> midst of the oak.

15 And ten young men that bare Joab's armour compassed about and smote Absalom, and slew him.

16 And Joab blew the trumpet, and the people returned from pursuing after Israel: for Joab held back the people.

17 And they took Absalom, and cast him into a great pit in the wood, and <sup>c</sup> laid a very great heap of stones upon him: and all Israel fled every one to his tent.

18 Now Absalom in his lifetime had taken and reared up for himself a pillar, which <sup>e</sup> is in <sup>f</sup> the king's dale: for he said, <sup>g</sup> I have no son to keep my name in remembrance: and he called the pillar after his own name: and it is called unto this day, Absalom's place.

19 Then said Ahimaaz the son of Zadok, Let me now run, and bear the king tidings, how that the LORD hath <sup>h</sup> avenged him of his enemies.

20 And Joab said unto him, Thou shalt not <sup>i</sup> bear tidings this day, but thou shalt bear tidings another day: but this day thou shalt bear no tidings, because the king's son is dead.

21 Then said Joab to Cush, Go tell the king what thou hast seen. And Cush bowed himself unto Joab, and ran.

22 Then said Ahimaaz the son of Zadok yet again to Joab, But <sup>j</sup> howsoever, let me, I pray thee, also run after Cush. And Joab said, Wherefore wilt thou run, my son, seeing that thou hast no tidings <sup>k</sup> ready?

23 But howsoever, said he, let me run. And he Verse 13. Thou thyself wouldest have set thyself against me.] This is a strong appeal to Joab's loyalty, and respect for the orders of David; but he was proof against every fine feeling, and against every generous sentiment.

Verse 14. I may not tarry thus with thee] Joab should have obeyed the king's commandment: and yet the safety of the state required the sacrifice of Absalom. But independently of this, his life was quadruply forfeited to the law:—1. In having murdered his brother Amnon. 2. In having excited an insurrection in the state. 3. In having taken up arms against his own father, Deut. xxi. 18, 21. 4. In having lain with his father's concubines, Lev. xviii. 29. Yet, in the present circumstances, Joab's act was base and disloyal, and a cowardly murder.

Verse 15. Ten young men—smote Absalom and slew him.] That is, they all pierced the body; but there could be no life in it after three darts had been thrust through the heart: but they added as much as would have killed him had he been alive.

Verse 16. Joab blew the trumpet] He knew that the rebellion was now extinguished by the death of Absalom; and was not willing that any farther slaughter should be made of the deluded people.

Verse 17. And laid a very great heap of stones] This was the method of burying heroes, and even traitors; the heap of stones being designed to perpetuate the memory of the event, whether good or bad. The ancient cavins or heaps of stones in different parts of the world are of this kind.

said unto him, Run. Then Ahimaaz ran by the way of the plain, and overran Cush.

24 And David sat between the two gates: and <sup>l</sup> the watchman went up to the roof over the gate unto the wall, and lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold a man running alone.

25 And the watchman cried, <sup>m</sup> and told the king. And the king said, If he be alone, <sup>n</sup> there is tidings in his mouth. And he came apace, and drew near.

26 And the watchman saw another man running: and the watchman called unto the porter, and said, Behold <sup>o</sup> another man running alone. And the king said, He also bringeth tidings.

27 And the watchman said, <sup>p</sup> Me thinketh the running of the foremost is like the running of Ahimaaz the son of Zadok. And the king said, He <sup>q</sup> is a good man, and cometh with good tidings.

28 And Ahimaaz called and said unto the <sup>r</sup> king, <sup>s</sup> All is well. And he fell down to the earth upon his face before the king, and said, Blessed be the LORD thy God, which hath <sup>t</sup> delivered up the men that lifted up their hand against my lord the king.

29 And the king said, <sup>u</sup> Is the young man Absalom safe? And Ahimaaz answered, When Joab sent the king's servant, and <sup>v</sup> me thy servant, I saw a great tumult, but I knew not what it was.

30 And the king said <sup>w</sup> unto him, Turn aside, and stand here. And he turned aside, and stood still.

31 And, behold, Cush came; and Cush said, <sup>x</sup> Tidings, my lord the king: for the LORD hath avenged thee this day of all them that rose up against thee.

32 And the king said unto Cush, <sup>y</sup> Is the young man Absalom safe? And Cush answered, The enemies of my lord the king, and all that rise against thee to do <sup>z</sup> thee hurt, be as <sup>a</sup> that young man is.

33 And the king was much moved, and went up to the chamber over the gate, and wept: and as he went, thus he said, <sup>b</sup> O my son Absalom, my son, my son Absalom! would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!

Verse 18. Reared up for himself a pillar] There was a marble pillar in the time of Josephus called Absalom's pillar; and there is one shown to the present day under this name; but it is comparatively a modern structure.

Absalom's place] Literally Absalom's HAND. See the note on 1 Sam. xv. 12.

Verse 24. David sat between the two gates] He was probably in the seat of justice. Before the gate of the city it is supposed there was an inclosure, which had its gate also: David sat in the space between these two doors. Over the larger gate there appears to have been a turret, on which a sentinel or watchman stood continually, and gave information of what he saw in the country.

Verse 25. If he be alone, there is tidings] That is, good tidings. For if the battle had been lost, men would have been running in different directions through the country.

Verse 29. I saw a great tumult] It is very probable that Ahimaaz did not know of the death of Absalom; he had seen the rout of his army, but did not know of his death. Others think he knew all, and told this untruth that he might not be the messenger of bad news to David.

Verse 30. Stand here] He intended to confront the two messengers, and compare their accounts.

Verse 32. Is the young man Absalom safe?] This was the utmost of his solicitude, and it well merited the reproof which Joab gave him, chap. xix. 6.

Verse 33. O my son Absalom] It is allowed by the most able critics that this lamentation is exceedingly pathetic.

Is there no hope for the soul of this profligate young man? He died in his iniquity: but is it not possible that he implored the mercy of his Maker while he hung in the tree? And is it not possible that the mercy of God was extended to him? And was not that suspension a respite to the end, that he might have time to deprecate the wrath of divine justice? This is at least a charitable conjecture, and humanity will delight in such a case to lay hold even on possibilities. If there be any room for hope in such a death, who that knows the worth of an immortal soul would not wish to indulge in it?

CHAPTER XIX.

David continues his lamentation for his son, and the people are greatly discouraged, 1-4. Joab reproves and threatens him with the general defection of the people, 5-7. David lays aside his mourning, and shows himself to the people, who are thereby encouraged, 8. The tribes take counsel to bring the king back to Jerusalem, 9-12. He makes Amasa captain of the host in place of Joab, 13. The king, returning, is met by Judah at Gilgal, 14, 15. Shimei comes to meet David, and entreats for his life, which David grants, 16-23. Mephibosheth also meets him, and shows how he had been slandered by Ziba, 24-30. David is met by Barzillai, and between them there is an affecting interview, 31-40. Contention between the men of Judah and the men of Israel, about bringing back the king, 41-43.

AND it was told Joab, Behold, the king weepeth and mourneth for Absalom.

2 And the victory that day was turned into mourning unto all the people: for the people heard say that day how the king was grieved for his son.

3 And the people gat them by stealth that day into the city, as people being ashamed steal away when they flee in battle.

4 But the king covered his face, and the king cried with a loud voice, O my son Absalom, O Absalom, my son, my son!

5 And Joab came into the house to the king, and said, Thou hast shamed this day the faces of all thy servants, which this day have saved thy life, and the lives of thy sons and of thy daughters, and the lives of thy wives, and the lives of thy concubines;

6 In that thou lovest thine enemies, and hatest thy friends. For thou hast declared this day, that thou regardest neither princes nor servants: for this day I perceive that if Absalom had lived, and all we had died this day, then it had pleased thee well.

7 Now therefore arise, go forth, and speak comfortably unto thy servants: for I swear by the LORD, if thou go not forth, there will not tarry one with thee this night: and that will be worse unto thee than all the evil that befell thee from thy youth until now.

Verse 2. The victory—was turned into mourning] Instead of rejoicing that a most unnatural and ruinous rebellion had been quashed, the people mourned over their own success, because they saw their king so immoderately afflicted for the loss of his worthless son.

Verse 4. The king covered his face] This was the custom of mourners.

O my son Absalom] The frequent repetition of the name of the defunct is common in the language of lamentation.

Verse 5. Thou hast shamed this day] Joab's speech to David on his immoderate grief for the death of his rebellious son is not only remarkable for the insolence of office, but also for good sense and firmness. Every man who candidly considers the state of life case must allow that David acted imprudently at least; and that Joab's firm reproof was necessary to arouse him to a sense of his duty to his people. But still, in his manner, Joab had far exceeded the bounds of that reverence which a servant owes to his master, or a 8 Then the king arose, and sat in the gate. And they told unto all the people, saying, Behold, the king doth sit in the gate. And all the people came before the king: for Israel had fled every man to his tent.

9 And all the people were at strife throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, The king saved us out of the hand of our enemies, and he delivered us out of the hand of the Philistines; and now he is fled out of the land for Absalom.

10 And Absalom, whom we anointed over us, is dead in battle. Now therefore why speak ye not a word of bringing the king back?

11 And king David sent to Zadok and to Abiathar the priests, saying, Speak unto the elders of Judah, saying, Why are ye the last to bring the king back to his house? seeing the speech of all Israel is come to the king, even to his house.

12 Ye are my brethren, ye are my bones and my flesh: wherefore then are ye the last to bring back the king?

13 And say ye to Amasa, Art thou not of my bone, and of my flesh? God do so to me, and more also, if thou be not captain of the host before me continually in the room of Joab.

14 And he bowed the heart of all the men of Judah, even as the heart of one man; so that they sent this word unto the king, Return thou, and all thy servants.

subject to his prince. Joab was a good soldier, but in every respect a bad man and a dangerous subject.

Verse 8. The king—sat in the gate] The place where justice was administered to the people.

Verse 11. Speak unto the elders of Judah] David was afraid to fall out with this tribe: they were in possession of Jerusalem, and this was a city of great importance to him. They had joined Absalom in his rebellion; and doubtless were now ashamed of their conduct. David appears to take no notice of their infidelity, but rather to place confidence in them, that their confidence in him might be naturally excited: and to oblige them yet farther, purposes to make Amasa captain of the host in the place of Joab.

Verse 14. And he bowed the heart of all the men of Judah] The measures that he pursued were the best calculated that could be to accomplish this salutary end. Appear to distrust those whom you have some reason to suspect, and you increase their caution and distrust. Put as much confidence 15 So the king returned, and came to Jordan. And Judah came to Gilgal, to go to meet the king, to conduct the king over Jordan.

16 And Shimei the son of Gera, a Benjamite, which was of Bahurim, hasted and came down with the men of Judah to meet king David.

17 And there was a thousand men of Benjamin with him, and Ziba the servant of the house of Saul, and his fifteen sons and his twenty servants with him; and they went over Jordan before the king.

18 And there went out a ferry boat to carry over the king's household, and to do what he thought good. And Shimei the son of Gera fell down before the king, as he was come over Jordan;

19 And said unto the king, Let not my lord impute iniquity unto me, neither do thou remember that which thy servant did perversely the day that my lord the king went out of Jerusalem, that the king should take it to his heart.

20 For thy servant doth know that I have sinned: therefore, behold, I am come the first this day of all the house of Joseph to go down to meet my lord the king.

21 But Abishai the son of Zeruiah answered and said, Shall not Shimei be put to death for this, because he cursed the LORD's anointed?

22 And David said, What have I to do with you, ye sons of Zeruiah, that ye should this day be adversaries unto me? shall there any man be put to death this day in Israel? for do not I know that I am this day king over Israel.

23 Therefore the king said unto Shimei, Thou shalt not die. And the king sware unto him.

24 And Mephibosheth the son of Saul came down to meet the king, and he had neither dressed his feet, nor trimmed his beard, nor washed his clothes, from the day the king departed until the day he came again in peace.

25 And it came to pass, when he was come to Jerusalem to meet the king, that the king said unto him, Wherefore wentest not thou with me, Mephibosheth?

26 And he answered, My lord, O king, my servant deceived me: for thy servant said, I will saddle me an ass, that I may ride thereon, and go to the king; because thy servant is lame.

27 And he hath slandered thy servant unto my lord the king; but my lord the king is as an angel of God: do therefore what is good in thine eyes.

28 For all of my father's house were but dead men before my lord the king: yet didst thou set thy servant among them that did eat at thine own table. What right therefore have I yet to cry any more unto the king?

29 And the king said unto him, Why speakest thou any more of thy matters? I have said, Thou and Ziba divide the land.

30 And Mephibosheth said unto the king, Yea, let him take all, forasmuch as my lord the king is come again in peace unto his own house.

31 And Barzillai the Gileadite came down from Rogelim, and went over Jordan with the king, to conduct him over Jordan.

32 Now Barzillai was a very aged man, even fourscore years old: and he had provided the king of sustenance while he lay at Mahanaim; for he was a very great man.

33 And the king said unto Barzillai, Come thou over with me, and I will feed thee with me in Jerusalem.

34 And Barzillai said unto the king, How long have I to live, that I should go up with the king unto Jerusalem?

35 I am this day fourscore years old: and can I discern between good and evil? can thy servant taste what I eat or what I drink? can I hear any more the voice of singing men and singing women? Wherefore then should thy servant be yet a burden unto my lord the king?

36 Thy servant will go a little way over Jordan with the king: and why should the king recompense it me with such a reward?

37 Let thy servant, I pray thee, turn back again that I may die in mine own city, and be buried by the grave of my father and of my mother. But behold thy servant Chimham; let him go over with my lord the king; and do to him what shall seem good unto thee.

in them as you safely can, and this will not fail to excite their confidence towards you.

Verse 16. Shimei the son of Gera] It appears that Shimei was a powerful chieftain in the land; for he had here, in his retinue, no less than a thousand men.

Verse 18. There went over a ferry boat] This is the first mention of any thing of the kind. Some think a bridge or raft is what is here intended.

Verse 20. For thy servant doth know that I have sinned] This was all he could do; his subsequent conduct alone could prove his sincerity. On such an avowal as this David could not but grant him his life.

Verse 24. Neither dressed his feet] He had given the fullest proof of his sincere attachment to David and his cause; and by what he had done, amply refuted the calumnies of his servant Ziba.

Verse 27. The king is as an angel of God] As if he had said, I shall make no appeal; with whatsoever thou determinest I shall rest contented.

Verse 29. I have said, Thou and Ziba divide the land] Now he finds that he has acted too rashly, and therefore confirms the former grant: i.e. that Ziba should cultivate the ground, and still continue to give to Mephibosheth, as the lord, the half of the produce. But why did he leave this treacherous man anything? Answer, 1. He was one of the domestics of Saul, and David wished to show kindness to that house. 2. He had supplied him with the necessities of life when he was in the greatest distress.

Verse 32. Barzillai was a very aged man] David's offer to him was at once noble and liberal; he wished to compensate such a man, and he wished to have at hand such a friend.

Verse 35. Can thy servant taste what I eat] Here is at once an affecting description of the infirmities of old age; and a correct account of the mode of living at an eastern court in ancient times.

Besides delicate meats and drinks, we find that vocal music constituted a principal part of court entertainments: male and female singers made a necessary appendage to these banquets, as they do in most eastern courts to the present day.

Verse 37. Thy servant Chimham] It is generally understood that this was Barzillai's son; and this is probable from 1 Kings ii. 7, where, when David was dying, he said, Show kindness to the sons of Barzillai: and it is very probable that this Chimham was one of them. In Jer. xli. 17 mention is made of the habitation of Chimham, which was near to Beth-lehem; and it is reasonably conjectured that David had left that portion, which was probably a part of his paternal estate, to this son of Barzillai.

38 And the king answered, Chimham shall go over with me, and I will do to him that which shall seem good unto thee: and whatsoever thou shalt require of me, that will I do for thee.

39 And all the people went over Jordan. And when the king was come over, the king <sup>b</sup> kissed Barzillai, and blessed him; and he returned unto his own place.

40 Then the king went on to Gilgal, and <sup>c</sup> Chimham went on with him: and all the people of Judah conducted the king, and also half of the people of Israel.

41 And, behold, all the men of Israel came to the king, and said unto the king, Why have our brethren the men of Judah stolen thee away, and <sup>d</sup> have brought the king, and his household, and all David's men with him, over Jordan?

42 And all the men of Judah answered the men of Israel, Because the king is <sup>e</sup> near of kin to us: wherefore then be ye angry for this matter? have we eaten at all of the king's cost? or hath he given us any gift?

43 And the men of Israel answered the men of Judah, and said, We have ten parts in the king, and we have also more right in David than ye: why then did ye <sup>f</sup> despise us, that our advice should not be first had in bringing back our king? And the words of the men of Judah were fiercer than <sup>g</sup> the words of the men of Israel.

Verse 39. The king kissed Barzillai, and blessed him. The kiss was the token of friendship and farewell; the blessing was a prayer to God for his prosperity, probably a prophetic benediction.

Verse 42. Wherefore then be ye angry for this matter? We have not done this for our own advantage; we have gained nothing by it; we did it through loyal attachment to our king.

Verse 43. We have ten parts in the king, and—more right. We are ten tribes to one, or we are ten times so many as you; and consequently should have been consulted in this business.

The words of the men of Judah were fiercer than the words of the men of Israel. They had more weight, for they had more reason on their side.

CHAPTER XX.

Sheba raises an insurrection, and gains a party in Israel, 1, 2. David shuts up the ten concubines who were defiled by Absalom, 3. Amasa is sent to assemble the men of Judah, 4, 5. And in the mean time Abishai is sent to pursue Sheba, 6, 7. Joab treacherously murders Amasa, 8-12. Joab and the army continue the pursuit of Sheba, 13, 14. He is besieged in Abel; and, by the counsels of a wise woman, the people of Abel cut off his head, and throws it over the wall to Joab; who blows the trumpet of peace, and he and his men return to Jerusalem, 15-22. Account of David's civil and military officers, 23-26.

AND there happened to be there a man of Belial, whose name was Sheba, the son of Bichri, a Benjamite: and he blew a trumpet, and said, <sup>a</sup> We have no part in David, neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse: <sup>b</sup> every man to his tents, O Israel.

2 So every man of Israel went up from after David, and followed Sheba the son of Bichri: but the men of Judah clave unto their king, from Jordan even to Jerusalem.

3 And David came to his house at Jerusalem; and the king took the ten women his <sup>c</sup> concubines, whom he had left to keep the house, and put them in <sup>d</sup> ward, and fed them, but went not in unto them. So they were <sup>e</sup> shut up unto the day of their death, <sup>f</sup> living in widowhood.

4 Then said the king to Amasa, <sup>g</sup> Assemble <sup>h</sup> me the men of Judah within three days, and be thou here present.

5 So Amasa went to assemble the men of Judah: but he tarried longer than the set time which he had appointed him.

6 And David said to Abishai, Now shall Sheba the son of Bichri do us more harm than did Absalom: take thou <sup>i</sup> thy lord's servants, and pursue after him, lest he get him fenced cities, and <sup>j</sup> escape us.

7 And there went out after him Joab's men, and the <sup>k</sup> Cherethites, and the Pelethites: and all the mighty men: and they went out of Jerusalem, to pursue after Sheba the son of Bichri.

8 When they were at the great stone which is in Gibeon, Amasa went before them. And Joab's garment that he had put on was girded unto him, and Verse 1. Sheba, the son of Bichri. As this man was a Benjamite, he probably belonged to the family of Saul; but we know nothing farther of him than what is related in this place.

We have no part in David. We of Israel, we of the ten tribes, are under no obligation to the house of David. Leave him, and let every man fall into the ranks under his own leader.

Verse 3. The ten women. He could not well divorce them; he could not punish them, as they were not in the transgression; he could no more be familiar with them, because they had been defiled by his son; and to have married them to other men would have been dangerous to the state: therefore he shut them up and fed them—made them quite comfortable, and they continued as widows to their death.

Verse 4. Then said the king to Amasa. It appears that Amasa found more difficulty in collecting his countrymen than was at first supposed; and this detaining him beyond the three days, David, fearing that Sheba's rebellion would get head, sent Abishai, who, it appears, was accompanied by Joab, to pursue after Sheba.

Verse 8. Joab's garment. It appears this was not a military garment; and that Joab had no arms but a short sword, which he had concealed in his girdle; and this sword, or knife, was so loose in its sheath that it could be easily drawn out. This seems to be the meaning of this very obscure verse. It is worthy of remark that in the upon it a girdle with a sword fastened upon his loins in the sheath thereof; and as he went forth it fell out.

9 And Joab said to Amasa, Art thou in health, my brother? And Joab took Amasa by the beard with the right hand to kiss him.

10 But Amasa took no heed to the sword that was in Joab's hand: so he smote him therewith in the fifth rib, and shed out his bowels to the ground, and struck him not again; and he died. So Joab and Abishai his brother pursued after Sheba the son of Bichri.

11 And one of Joab's men stood by him, and said, He that favoureth Joab, and he that is for David, let him go after Joab.

12 And Amasa wallowed in blood in the midst of the highway. And when the man saw that all the people stood still, he removed Amasa out of the highway into the field, and cast a cloth upon him, when he saw that every one that came by him stood still.

13 When he was removed out of the highway, all the people went on after Joab, to pursue after Sheba the son of Bichri.

14 And he went through all the tribes of Israel unto Abel, and to Beth-maacah, and all the Berites: and they were gathered together, and went also after him.

15 And they came and besieged him in Abel of Beth-maacah, and they cast up a bank against the city, and it stood in the trench: and all the people that were with Joab battered the wall, to throw it down.

16 Then cried a wise woman out of the city, Hear, hear; say, I pray you, unto Joab, Come near hither, that I may speak with thee.

eastern country it is the beard, not the man, which is usually kissed.

Verse 10. In the fifth rib] Chomesh, which we render here and elsewhere the fifth rib, means any part of the abdominal region.

Verse 11. He that favoureth Joab] As if he had said, There is now no other commander besides Joab; and Joab is steadily attached to David: let those therefore who are loyal follow Joab.

Verse 12. Amasa wallowed in blood] It is very likely that Amasa did not immediately die: I have known instances of persons living several hours after their bowels had been shed out.

Verse 14. Unto Abel] This is supposed to have been the capital of the district called Abilene in St. Luke's gospel chap. iii. 1.

Beth-maacah] It is supposed to have been in the northern part of the Holy Land, on the confines of Syria, and probably in the tribe of Naphtali. [It is now supposed that the two places here named were so close as to be as one city. The site is now occupied by the Christian village, Abil.]

Verse 15. They cast up a bank against the city] The word which we render bank means most probably a battering engine of some kind, or a tower overlooking the walls, on which archers and slingers could stand and annoy the inhabitants, while others of the besiegers could proceed to sap the walls. That it cannot be a bank that stood in the trench is evident from the circumstance thus expressed.

Verse 16. A wise woman] She was probably governess.

17 And when he was come near unto her, the woman said, Art thou Joab? And he answered, I am he. Then she said unto him, Hear the words of thine handmaid. And he answered, I do hear.

18 Then she spake, saying, They were wont to speak in olden time, saying, They shall surely ask counsel at Abel: and so they ended the matter.

19 I am one of them that are peaceable and faithful in Israel: thou seekest to destroy a city and a mother in Israel; why wilt thou swallow up the inheritance of the Lord?

20 And Joab answered and said, Far be it, far be it from me, that I should swallow up or destroy.

21 The matter is not so: but a man of Mount Ephraim, Sheba the son of Bichri by name, hath lifted up his hand against the king, even against David: deliver him only, and I will depart from the city. And the woman said unto Joab, Behold, his head shall be thrown to thee over the wall.

22 Then the woman went unto all the people in her wisdom. And they cut off the head of Sheba the son of Bichri, and cast it out to Joab. And he blew a trumpet, and they retired from the city, every man to his tent. And Joab returned to Jerusalem unto the king.

23 Now Joab was over all the host of Israel: and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada was over the Cherethites and over the Pelethites:

24 And Adoram was over the tribute: and Jehoshaphat the son of Ahilud was recorder:

25 And Sheva was scribe: and Zadok and Abiathar were the priests:

26 And Ira also the Jairite was a chief ruler about David.

Verse 18. They shall surely ask counsel at Abel] Abel was probably famed for the wisdom of its inhabitants; and parties who had disputes appealed to their judgment, which appears to have been in such high reputation as to be final by consent of all parties.

Verse 19. I—peaceable and faithful in Israel] Perhaps the woman speaks here in the name and on behalf of the city: "I am a peaceable city, and am faithful to the king."

A mother in Israel] That is, a chief city of a district; for it is very likely that the woman speaks of the city, not of herself.

Verse 21. His head shall be thrown to thee] Thus it appears she had great sway in the counsels of the city; and that the punishment of a state rebel was then beheading.

Verse 23. Joab was over all the host] He had seized on the supreme command: and such was his power at present, and the service which he had rendered, that David was obliged to continue him; and dared not to call him to account without endangering the state by a civil war.

Verse 24. Adoram was over the tribute] Probably the chief receiver of the taxes; or Chancellor of the Exchequer, as we term it. [The original does not mean tribute, but tributary labourers.]

Jehoshaphat—recorder] The registrar of public events.

Verse 25. Sheva was scribe] The king's secretary.

Verse 26. Ira—was a chief ruler about David] The Hebrew is cohen le'david, a priest to David; and so the Vulgate, Septuagint, Syriac, and Arabic. He was probably a sort of domestic chaplain to the king. [Or rather a confidential adviser.]

CHAPTER XXI.

A famine taking place three successive years in Israel, David inquired of the Lord the cause; and was informed that it was on account of Saul and his bloody house, who had slain the Gibeonites, 1. David inquires of the Gibeonites what atonement they require, and they answer, seven sons of Saul, that they may hang them up in Gibeah, 2-6. Names of the seven sons thus given up, 7-9. Affecting account of Rizpah, who watched the bodies through the whole of the time of the harvest, to prevent them from being devoured by birds and beasts of prey, 10. David is informed of Rizpah's conduct, and collects the bones of Saul, Jonathan, and the seven men that were hanged at Gibeah, and buries them; and God is entreated for the land, 11-14. War between the Israelites and Philistines, in which David is in danger of being slain by Ishbi-benob, but is succoured by Abishai, 15-17. He, and several gigantic Philistines, are slain by David and his servants, 18-22.

THEN there was a famine in the days of David three years, year after year; and David <sup>a</sup>inquired of the LORD. And the LORD answered, It is for Saul and for his bloody house, because he slew the Gibeonites.

2 And the king called the Gibeonites, and said unto them; (now the Gibeonites were not of the children of Israel, but <sup>b</sup>of the remnant of the Amorites: and the children of Israel had sworn unto them: and Saul sought to slay them in his zeal to the children of Israel and Judah.)

3 Wherefore David said unto the Gibeonites, What shall I do for you? and wherewith shall I make the atonement, that ye may bless <sup>c</sup>the inheritance of the LORD?

4 And the Gibeonites said unto him, <sup>d</sup>We will have no silver nor gold of Saul, nor of his house; neither for us shalt thou kill any man in Israel. And he said, What ye shall say, that will I do for you.

5 And they answered the king, The man that consumed us, and that <sup>e</sup>devised against us that we should be destroyed from remaining in any of the coasts of Israel.

6 Let seven men of his sons be delivered unto us, and we will hang them up unto the LORD <sup>f</sup>in Gibeah of Saul, <sup>g</sup>whom <sup>h</sup>the LORD did choose. And the king said, I will give them.

7 But the king spared Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan the son of Saul, because of <sup>i</sup>the LORD'S oath that was between them, between David and Jonathan the son of Saul.

8 But the king took the two sons of <sup>j</sup>Rizpah the daughter of Aiah, whom she bare unto Saul, Armoni and Mephibosheth; and the five sons of <sup>k</sup>Michal the daughter of Saul, whom she <sup>l</sup>brought up for Adriel the son of Barzillai the Meholathite:

9 And he delivered them into the hand of the Gibeonites, and they hanged them in the hill <sup>m</sup>before the LORD: and they fell all seven together, and were put to death in the days of harvest, in the first days, in the beginning of barley harvest.

10 And <sup>n</sup>Rizpah the daughter of Aiah took sackcloth, and spread it for her upon the rock, <sup>o</sup>from the beginning of harvest until water dropped upon them out of heaven, and suffered neither the birds of the air to rest on them by day, nor the beasts of the field by night.

11 And it was told David what Rizpah the daughter of Aiah, the concubine of Saul, had done.

12 And David went and took the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his son from the men of <sup>p</sup>Jabesh-gilead, which had stolen them from the streets of Beth-shan, where the <sup>q</sup>Philistines had hanged them, when the Philistines had slain Saul in Gilboa:

13 And he brought up from thence the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his son: and they gathered the bones of them that were hanged.

Verse 1. Then there was a famine] Of this famine we know nothing; it is not mentioned in any part of the history of David.

Because he slew the Gibeonites] No such fact is mentioned in the life and transactions of Saul; nor is there any reference to it in any other part of scripture.

Verse 2. The remnant of the Amorites] The Gibeonites were Hivites, not Amorites, as appears from Josh. xi. 19: but Amorites is a name often given to the Canaanites in general, Gen. xv. 16, Amos ii. 9, and elsewhere.

Verse 3. Wherewith shall I make the atonement] Why not ask this of God himself?

Verse 6. Seven men of his sons] Meaning sons, grandsons, or other near branches of his family. It is supposed that the persons chosen were principal in assisting Saul to exterminate the Gibeonites.

Verse 8. Five sons of Michal—whom she brought up] Michal, Saul's daughter, was never married to Adriel, but to David, and afterwards to Phaltiel: though it is here said she bore, not brought up, as we falsely translate it: but we learn from 1 Sam. xviii. 19 that Merab, one of Saul's daughters, was married to Adriel.

The Chaldees has properly Merab; but it renders the passage thus:—And the five sons of Merab which Michal the daughter of Saul brought up, which she brought forth to Adriel the son of Barzillai. This cuts the knot.

Verse 9. In the beginning of barley harvest.] This happened in Judea about the vernal equinox, or the 21st of March.

Verse 10. Rizpah—took sackcloth] Was the requisition of the Gibeonites to have Saul's sons sacrificed to God, to be considered as an oracle of God? Certainly not; God will not have man's blood for sacrifice, no more than he will have swine's blood. The famine might have been removed, and the land properly purged, by offering the sacrifices prescribed by the law, and by a general humiliation of the people.

Until water dropped upon them] Until the time of the autumnal rains, which in that country commence about October. Is it possible that this poor broken-hearted woman could have endured the fatigue (and probably in the open air) of watching these bodies for more than five months? Some think that the rain dropping on them out of heaven means the removal of the famine which was occasioned by drought, by now sending rain, which might have been shortly after these men were hanged; but this by no means agrees with the manner in which the account is introduced.

Verse 12. Took the bones of Saul] The men of Jabesh-gilead burned the bodies of Saul and his sons, and buried the remaining bones under a tree at Jabesh. These David might have dugged up again in order to bury them in the family sepulchre.

buried they in the country of Benjamin in *Zelah, in the sepulchre of Kish his father: and they performed all that the king commanded. And after that <sup>b</sup> God was intreated for the land.

15 Moreover the Philistines had yet war again with Israel; and David went down, and his servants with him, and fought against the Philistines, and David waxed faint.

16 And Ishbi-benob, which was of the sons of *the giant, the weight of whose <sup>a</sup> spear weighed three hundred shekels of brass in weight, he being girded with a new sword, thought to have slain David.

17 But Abishai the son of Zeruiah succoured him, and smote the Philistine, and killed him. Then the men of David swore unto him, saying, *Thou shalt go no more out with us to battle, that thou quench not the <sup>c</sup> light <sup>d</sup> of Israel.

Verse 15. Moreover, the Philistines had yet war] There is no mention of this war in the parallel place, 1 Chron. xx. 4, &c.

David waxed faint.] This circumstance is nowhere else mentioned.

Verse 16. Being girded with a new sword] As the word sword is not in the original, we may apply the word new to his armour in general.

Verse 17. That thou quench not the light of Israel.] David is here considered as the lamp by which all Israel was guided, and without whom all the nation must be involved in darkness. The lamp is the emblem of direction and support.

Verse 18. A battle—at Gob] Instead of Gob, several editions have Nob; but Gezer is the name in the parallel place, 1 Chron. xx. 4.

Verse 19. Elhanan the son of Jaare-oregim—slew—Goliath the Gittite.] Here is a most manifest corruption of the text, or gross mistake of the transcriber; David, not Elhanan, slew Goliath. In 1 Chron. xx. 5, the parallel place, it stands thus: “Elhanan, the son of Jair, slew Lahmi, the brother of Goliath the Gittite, whose spear-staff was like a weaver’s beam.”

18 <sup>a</sup> And it came to pass after this, that there was again a battle with the Philistines at Gob: then <sup>b</sup> Sibbechai the Hushathite slew <sup>c</sup> Saph, which was of the sons of *the giant.

19 And there was again a battle in Gob with the Philistines, where Elhanan the son of <sup>d</sup> Jaare-oregim a Beth-lehemite, slew <sup>e</sup> the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the staff of whose spear was like a weaver’s beam.

20 And <sup>f</sup> there was yet a battle in Gath, where was a man of great stature, that had on every hand six fingers, and on every foot six toes, four and twenty in number; and he also was born to *the giant.

21 And when he <sup>g</sup> defied Israel, Jonathan the son of **Shimeah* the brother of David slew him.

22 *These four were born to the giant in Gath, and fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants.

Verse 20. On every hand six fingers] This is not a solitary instance.

There are evidently many places in this chapter in which the text has suffered much from the ignorance or carelessness of transcribers; and indeed I suspect the whole has suffered so materially as to distort, if not misrepresent, the principal facts.

Till I get farther light on the subject, I am led to conclude that the whole chapter is not now what it would be coming from the pen of an inspired writer; and that this part of the Jewish records has suffered much from rabbinical glosses, alterations, and additions. The law, the prophets, and the hagiographa, including Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, &c., have been ever considered as possessing the highest title to divine inspiration; and therefore have been most carefully preserved and transcribed; but the historical books, especially Samuel, Kings, and Chronicles, have not ranked so high, have been less carefully preserved, and have been the subjects of frequent alteration and corruption. Yet still the great foundation of God standeth sure, and is sufficiently attested by his own broad seal of consistency, truth, and holiness.

21 <sup>r</sup> The LORD rewarded me according to my righteousness: according to the <sup>s</sup> cleanness of my hands hath he recompensed me.

22 For I have <sup>t</sup> kept the ways of the LORD, and have not wickedly departed from my God.

23 For all his <sup>u</sup> judgments were before me: and as for his statutes, I did not depart from them.

24 I was also <sup>v</sup> upright <sup>w</sup> before him, and have kept myself from mine iniquity.

25 Therefore <sup>x</sup> the LORD hath recompensed me according to my righteousness; according to my cleanness <sup>y</sup> in his eye sight.

26 With <sup>z</sup> the merciful thou wilt shew thyself merciful, and with the upright man thou wilt shew thyself upright.

27 With the pure thou wilt shew thyself pure; and <sup>aa</sup> with the forward thou wilt <sup>bb</sup> shew thyself unsavoury.

28 And the <sup>cc</sup> afflicted people thou wilt save: but thine eyes are upon <sup>dd</sup> the haughty, that thou mayest bring them down.

31 As for God, <sup>kk</sup> his way is perfect; <sup>ll</sup> the word of the <sup>mm</sup> LORD is tried: he is a buckler to all them that trust in him.

32 For <sup>nn</sup> who is God, save the LORD? and who is a rock, save our God?

34 He <sup>ss</sup> maketh my feet <sup>tt</sup> like hinds' feet: and <sup>uu</sup> setteth me upon my high places.

37 Thou hast <sup>yy</sup> enlarged my steps under me; so that my <sup>zz</sup> feet did not slip.

38 I have pursued mine enemies, and destroyed them; and turned not again until I had consumed them.

39 And I have consumed them, and wounded them, that they could not arise: yea, they are fallen <sup>aaa</sup> under my feet.

40 For thou hast <sup>bbb</sup> girded me with strength to battle: <sup>ccc</sup> them that rose up against me hast thou <sup>ddd</sup> subdued under me.

43 Then did I beat them as small <sup>ggg</sup> as the dust of the earth, I did stamp them <sup>hhh</sup> as the mire of the street, and did spread them abroad.

The clap of the wing, the agitation and rush through the air, are expressed in a very extraordinary manner.

Other beauties of this kind will be noted in the exposition of the Psalm alluded to above.

in a primary sense many of these things belong to David, yet generally and fully they belong to the Messiah alone.

Verse 11. He rode upon a cherub and did fly—he was seen upon the wings of the wind.] In the original of this sublime passage, sense and sound are astonishingly well connected.

49 And that bringeth me forth from mine enemies: thou hast also lifted me up on high above them that rose up against me: thou hast delivered me from the violent man.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The last words of David, 1-7. The names and the exploits of his thirty-seven worthies, 8-39.

NOW these be the last words of David. David the son of Jesse said, <sup>a</sup> and the man who was raised up on high, <sup>b</sup> the anointed of the God of Jacob, and the sweet psalmist of Israel, said,

2 <sup>c</sup> The Spirit of the LORD spake by me, and his word was in my tongue.

3 The God of Israel said, <sup>d</sup> the Rock of Israel spake to me, <sup>e</sup> He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling <sup>f</sup> in the fear of God.

4 And <sup>g</sup> he shall be as the light of the morning, when the sun riseth, even a morning without clouds; as the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain.

5 Although my house be not so with God; <sup>h</sup> yet he hath made with me an everlasting covenant, ordered in all things, and sure: for <sup>i</sup> this is all my salvation, and all my desire, although he make it not to grow.

6 But the sons of Belial shall be all of them as

Verse 1. These be the last words of David.] I suppose the last poetical composition is here intended. He might have spoken many words after these in prose, but none in verse.

The words of this song contain a glorious prediction of the Messiah's kingdom and conquests in highly poetic language.

The sweet psalmist of Israel] This character not only belonged to him as the finest poet in Israel, but as the finest and most divine poet of the whole Christian world. The sweet Psalmist of Israel has been the sweet psalmist of every part of the habitable world, where religion and piety have been held in reverence.

Verse 2. The Spirit of the Lord spake by me] Hence the matter of his writing came by direct and immediate inspiration.

His word was in my tongue.] Hence the words of this writing were as directly inspired as the matter.

Verse 3. The Rock of Israel] The Fountain whence Israel was derived.

He that ruleth over men must be just] More literally, The just one is the ruler among men.

Ruling in the fear of God.] It is by God's fear that Jesus Christ rules the heart of all his followers; and he who has not the fear of God before his eyes, can never be a Christian.

Verse 4. He shall be as the light of the morning] This verse is very obscure, for it does not appear from it who the person is of whom the prophet speaks. As the Messiah seems to be the whole subject of these last words of David, he is probably the person intended. He shall be the Sun of righteousness, bringing salvation in his rays, and shining—illuminating the children of men, with increasing splendour, as long as the sun and moon endure.

As the tender grass] The effects of this shining, and of thorns thrust away, because they cannot be taken with hands:

7 But the man that shall touch them must be fenced with iron and the staff of a spear: and they shall be utterly burned with fire in the same place.

8 These be the names of the mighty men whom David had: <sup>1</sup> The 'Tachmonite that sat in the seat chief among the captains: the same was Adino the Eznite: <sup>2</sup> he lift up his spear against eight hundred, <sup>3</sup> whom he slew at one time.

9 And after him was <sup>4</sup> Eleazar the son of Dodo the Ahohite, one of the three mighty men with David, when they defied the Philistines that were there gathered together to battle, and the men of Israel were gone away:

10 He arose, and smote the Philistines until his hand was weary, and his hand clave unto his sword: and the LORD wrought a great victory that day; and the people returned after him only to spoil.

11 And after him was <sup>5</sup> Shammah the son of Agee the rays of his grace, shall be like the shining of the sun upon the young grass or corn, after a plentiful shower of rain.

Verse 5. Although my house be not so with God] Instead of ken, so, read kun, established; and let the whole verse be considered as an interrogation, including a positive assertion; and the sense will be at once clear and consistent: "For is not my house (family) established with God; because he hath made with me an everlasting covenant, ordered in all, and preserved? For this (He) is all my salvation, and all my desire, although he make it (or him) not to spring up." [There is no need for the suggested emendation. The sentence taken interrogatively is not obscure.]

Verse 6. But the sons of Belial shall be all of them as thorns] There is no word in the text for sons; it is simply Belial, the good-for-nothing man, and may here refer—first, to Saul, and secondly, to the enemies of our Lord.

As thorns thrust away] A metaphor taken from hedging; the workman thrusts the thorns aside either with his bill or hand, protected by his impenetrable glove, till, getting a fair blow at the roots, he cuts them all down. The man is fenced with iron, and the handle of his bill is like the staff of a spear.

Verse 8. These be the names of the mighty men] This chapter should be collated with the parallel place, 1 Chron. xi.

The Tachmonite that sat in the seat] Literally and properly, Jashobeam the Hachmonite. See 1 Chron. xi. 11.

The same was Adino the Eznite] This is a corruption for he lift up his spear. See 1 Chron. xi. 11.

Eight hundred, whom he slew at one time.] THREE hundred is the reading in Chronicles, and seems to be the true one.

Verse 9. When they defied the Philistines that were there gathered] This is supposed to refer to the war in which David slew Goliath.

Verse 11. A piece of ground full of lentiles] In 1 Chron.

the Hararite. * And the Philistines were gathered together <sup>b</sup> into a troop, where was a piece of ground full of lentiles : and the people fled from the Philistines.

12 But he stood in the midst of the ground, and defended it, and slew the Philistines, and the Lord wrought a great victory.

13 And <sup>c</sup> three <sup>d</sup> of the thirty chief went down, and came to David in the harvest time unto <sup>e</sup> the cave of Adullam : and the troops of the Philistines pitched in <sup>f</sup> the valley of Rephaim.

14 And David was then in <sup>g</sup> an hold, and the garrison of the Philistines was then in Beth-lehem.

15 And David longed and said, Oh that one would give me drink of the water of the well of Beth-lehem, which is by the gate !

16 And the three mighty men brake through the host of the Philistines, and drew water out of the well of Beth-lehem, that was by the gate, and took it, and brought it to David : nevertheless he would not drink thereof, but poured it out unto the Lord.

17 And he said, Be it far from me, O LORD, that I should do this : is not this <sup>h</sup> the blood of the men that went in jeopardy of their lives ? therefore he would not drink it. These things did these three mighty men.

18 And <sup>i</sup> Abishai, the brother of Joab, the son of Zeruiah, was chief among three. And he lifted up his spear against three hundred, <sup>j</sup> and slew them, and had the name among three.

19 Was he not most honourable of three ? therefore he was their captain : howbeit he attained not unto the first three.

20 And Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, the son of a valiant man, of <sup>k</sup> Kabzeel, <sup>l</sup> who had done many acts, <sup>m</sup> he slew two <sup>n</sup> lion-like men of Moab : he went down also and slew a lion in the midst of a pit in time of snow :

21 And he slew an Egyptian, <sup>o</sup> a goodly man :

xi. 13 it is a parcel of ground full of barley. Some think there were both lentiles and barley in the field.

Verse 13. And three of the thirty] The word shalishim, which we translate thirty, probably signifies an office or particular description of men. Of these shalishim we have here thirty-seven, and it can scarcely be said with propriety that we have thirty-seven out of thirty ; and besides, in the parallel place, 1 Chron. xi., there are sixteen added. The captains over Pharaoh's chariots are termed shalishim, Exod. xiv. 7.

The Philistines pitched in the valley of Rephaim.] This is the same war which is spoken of chap. v. 17, &c.

Verse 15. The water of the well of Beth-lehem] This was David's city, and he knew the excellence of the water which was there ; and being near the place, and parched with thirst, it was natural for him to wish for a draught of water out of that well.

Verse 16. Poured it out unto the Lord.] To make libations, both of water and wine, was a frequent custom among the heathens.

Verse 20. Two lion-like men of Moab] Some think that two real lions are meant ; some, that they were two savage gigantic men ; others, that two fortresses are meant. The and the Egyptian had a spear in his hand ; but he went down to him with a staff, and plucked the spear out of the Egyptian's hand, and slew him with his own spear.

22 These things did Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and had the name among three mighty men.

23 He was <sup>r</sup> more honourable than the thirty, but he attained not to the first three. And David set him <sup>s</sup> over his <sup>t</sup> guard.

24 <sup>u</sup> Asahel the brother of Joab was one of the thirty ; Elhanan the son of Dodo of Beth-lehem,

28 Zalmon the Ahohite, Maharai the Netophathite,

29 Heleb the son of Baanah, a Netophathite, Ittai the son of Ribai out of Gibeah of the children of Benjamin,

30 Benaiah the Pirathonite, Hiddai of the <sup>w</sup> brooks of <sup>x</sup> Gaash, words may signify, "The two princes of Moab." [The Arabs call every remarkably brave man Ariel, or lion of God.]

Verse 21. He slew an Egyptian] This man in 1 Chron. xi. 23 is stated to have been five cubits high, about seven feet six inches.

He went down to him with a staff] I have known men who, with a staff only for their defence, could render the sword of the best practised soldier of no use to him.

Verse 23. David set him over his guard.] The Vulgate renders this, "David made him his privy counsellor ;" or, according to the Hebrew, He put him to his ears, i.e. confided his secrets to him. Some think he made him a spy over the rest.

Verse 24. Asahel—was one of the thirty] Asahel was one of those officers or troops, called the shalishim. This Asahel, brother of Joab, was the same that was killed by Abner, chap. ii. 23.

Verse 25. Shammah the Harodite] There are several varieties in the names of the following shalishim ; which may be seen by comparing these verses with 1 Chron. xi. 27.

Verse 39. Uriah the Hittite : thirty and seven in all.] To these the author of 1 Chron. xi. 41 adds several.

CHAPTER XXIV.

David is tempted by Satan to number Israel and Judah, 1. Joab remonstrates against it, but the king determines that it shall be done; and Joab and the captains accomplish the work, and bring the sum total to the king; viz., eight hundred thousand warriors in Israel, and five hundred thousand in Judah, 2-9. David is convinced that he has done wrong; and the prophet Gad is sent to him, to give him his choice of three judgments, one of which God is determined to inflict upon the nation, 10-13. David humbles himself before God; and a pestilence is sent, which destroys seventy thousand men, 14, 15. The angel of the Lord being about to destroy Jerusalem, David makes an intercession, and the plague is stayed, 16, 17. Gad directs him to build an altar to the Lord on the threshing-floor of Araunah, where the plague was stayed, 18. He purchases this place for the purpose, and offers burnt-offerings and peace-offerings, 19-25.

AND <sup>a</sup>again the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, and <sup>b</sup>he moved David against them to say, <sup>c</sup>Go, number Israel and Judah.

2 For the king said to Joab the captain of the host, which was with him, <sup>d</sup>Go now through all the tribes of Israel, <sup>e</sup>from Dan even to Beer-sheba, and number ye the people, that <sup>f</sup>I may know the number of the people.

3 And Joab said unto the king, Now the LORD thy God add unto the people, how many soever they be, an hundred fold, and that the eyes of my lord the king may see it: but why doth my lord the king delight in this thing?

4 Notwithstanding the king's word prevailed against Joab, and against the captains of the host. And Joab and the captains of the host went out from the presence of the king, to number the people of Israel.

5 And they passed over Jordan, and pitched in

Verse 1. He moved David against them] God could not be angry with David for numbering the people if He moved him to do it; but in the parallel place (1 Chron. xxi. 1) it is expressly said, Satan stood up against Israel, and provoked David to number Israel. David, in all probability, slackening in his piety and confidence toward God, and meditating some extension of his dominions without the divine counsel or command, was naturally curious to know whether the number of fighting men in his empire was sufficient for the work which he had projected. He therefore orders Joab and the captains to take an exact account of all the effective men in Israel and Judah. God is justly displeased with this conduct, and determines that the progs of his vain ambition shall be taken away, either by famine, war, or pestilence.

Verse 3. Joab said unto the king] This very bad man saw that the measure now recommended by the king was a wrong one, and might be ruinous to the people, and therefore he remonstrates against it in a very sensible speech; but the king was infatuated, and would hear no reason.

Verse 5. And pitched in Arzer] This was beyond Jordan, on the river Arnon, in the tribe of Gad: hence it appears that they began their census with the most eastern parts of the country beyond Jordan.

Verse 6. Tahtim-hodshi] Where this place was is not exactly known: some think that the words refer to a newly-conquered country, as our margin, the nether land newly inhabited; and if so, this was probably the country eastward of Gilead, which the Israelites, in the time of Saul, had conquered from the Hagarites, and dwelt in themselves.

To Dan-jaan] Or, to Dan of the woods. This is the place so frequently mentioned, situated at the foot of Mount Libanus, near to the source of the Jordan, the most northern city of all the possessions of the Israelites in what was called the promised land, as Beer-sheba was the most southern: hence the common form of speech, From Dan to Beer-sheba, i.e. from north to south.

Verse 7. The stronghold of Tyre] This must have been

6 Then they came to Gilead, and to the <sup>d</sup> land of Tahtim-hodshi; and they came to <sup>e</sup> Dan-jaan, and about to <sup>f</sup> Zidon.

7 And came to the stronghold of Tyre, and to all the cities of the Hivites, and of the Canaanites: and they went out to the south of Judah, even to Beer-sheba.

8 So when they had gone through all the land, they came to Jerusalem at the end of nine months and twenty days.

9 And Joab gave up the sum of the number of the people unto the king: <sup>a</sup>and there were in Israel eight hundred thousand valiant men that drew the sword; and the men of Judah were five hundred thousand men.

10 And <sup>b</sup>David's heart smote him after that he had numbered the people. And David said unto the LORD, <sup>c</sup>I have sinned greatly in that I have done:

the old city of Tyre, which was built on the main land: the new city was built on a rock in the sea.

Verse 8. Nine months and twenty days] This was a considerable time; but they had much work to do, nor did they complete the work, as appears from 1 Chron. xxi. 6, xvii. 24.

Verse 9. In Israel eight hundred thousand—the men of Judah were five hundred thousand] In the parallel place, 1 Chron. xxi. 5, the sums are widely different: in Israel one million one hundred thousand, in Judah four hundred and seventy thousand. Neither of these sums is too great, but they cannot be both correct; and which is the true number is difficult to say. The former seems the most likely; but more corruptions have taken place in the numbers of the historical books of the Old Testament, than in any other part of the sacred records. To attempt to reconcile them in every part is lost labour; better at once acknowledge what cannot be successfully denied, that although the original writers of the Old Testament wrote under the influence of the Divine Spirit, yet we are not told that the same influence descended on all copiers of their words, so as absolutely to prevent them from making mistakes. They might mistake, and they did mistake; but a careful collation of the different historical books serves to correct all essential errors of the scribes.

Verse 10. David said—I have sinned greatly] <sup>a</sup>We know not exactly in what this sin consisted. I have already hinted, ver. 1, that probably David now began to covet an extension of empire, and purposed to unite some of the neighbouring states with his own; and having, through the suggestions of Satan or some other adversary (for so the word implies) given way to this covetous disposition, he could not well look to God for help, and therefore wished to know whether the thousands of Israel and Judah might be deemed equal to the conquests which he meditated. When God is offended and refuses assistance, vain is the help of man.

and now, I beseech thee, O LORD, take away the iniquity of thy servant; for I have <sup>a</sup>done very foolishly.

11 For when David was up in the morning, the word of the LORD came unto the prophet <sup>b</sup>Gad, David's <sup>c</sup>seer, saying, 12 Go and say unto David, Thus saith the LORD, I offer thee three things; choose thee one of them, that I may do it unto thee.

13 So Gad came to David, and told him, and said unto him, Shall <sup>d</sup>seven years of famine come unto thee in thy land? or wilt thou flee three months before thine enemies, while they pursue thee? or that there be three days' pestilence in thy land? now advise, and see what answer I shall return to him that sent me,

14 And David said unto Gad, I am in a great strait: let us fall now into the hand of the LORD; <sup>e</sup>for his mercies are <sup>f</sup>great: and <sup>g</sup>let me not fall into the hand of man.

15 So <sup>h</sup>the LORD sent a pestilence upon Israel from the morning even to the time appointed: and there died of the people from Dan even to Beer-sheba seventy thousand men.

16 <sup>i</sup>And when the angel stretched out his hand upon Jerusalem to destroy it, <sup>j</sup>the LORD repented him of the evil, and said to the angel that destroyed the people, It is enough: stay now thine hand. And the angel of the LORD was by the threshing-place of <sup>k</sup>Araunah the Jebusite.

17 And David spake unto the LORD when he saw the angel that smote the people, and said, Lo, <sup>l</sup>I have sinned, and I have done wickedly: but these sheep, what have they done? let thine hand, I pray thee, be against me, and against my father's house.

18 And Gad came that day to David, and said unto him, <sup>m</sup>Go up, rear an altar unto the LORD in the threshing-floor of <sup>n</sup>Araunah the Jebusite.

19 And David, according to the saying of Gad, went up as the LORD commanded.

20 And Araunah looked, and saw the king and his servants coming on toward him: and Araunah went out, and bowed himself before the king on his face upon the ground.

21 And Araunah said, Wherefore is my lord the king come to his servant? <sup>o</sup>And David said, To buy the threshing-floor of thee, to build an altar unto the LORD, that <sup>p</sup>the plague may be stayed from the people.

22 And Araunah said unto David, Let my lord the king take and offer up what seemeth good unto him: <sup>q</sup>behold, here be oxen for burnt-sacrifice, and threshing instruments and other instruments of the oxen for wood.

23 All these things did Araunah, as a king, give unto the king. And Araunah said unto the king, The LORD thy God <sup>r</sup>accept thee.

24 And the king said unto Araunah, Nay; but I will surely buy it of thee at a price; neither will I offer burnt-offerings unto the LORD my God of that which doth cost me nothing. So <sup>s</sup>David bought Verse 11. For when David was up] It is supposed that David's contrition arose from the reproof given by Gad, and that in the order of time the reproof came before the confession stated in the 10th verse.

David's seer] A holy man of God, under the divine influence, whom David had as a domestic chaplain.

Verse 13. Shall seven years of famine] In 1 Chron. xxi. 12, the number is three, not seven; and here the Septuagint has three, the same as in Chronicles: this is no doubt the true reading. A mistake of this kind might be easily made from the similarity of the letters.

Verse 14. I am in a great strait: let us fall now into the hand of the Lord] David acted nobly in this business. Had he chosen war, his own personal safety was in no danger, because there was already an ordinance preventing him from going to battle. Had he chosen famine, his own wealth would have secured his and his own family's support. But he showed the greatness of his mind in choosing the pestilence, to the ravages of which himself and household were exposed equally with the meanest of his subjects.

Verse 15. From the morning—to the time appointed] That is, from the morning of the day after David had made his election till the third day, according to the condition which God had proposed, and he had accepted: but it seems that the plague was terminated before the conclusion of the third day, for Jerusalem might have been destroyed, but it was not. Throughout the land, independently of the city, seventy thousand persons were slain! This was a terrible mortality in the space of less than three days.

Verse 16. The angel stretched out his hand upon Jerusalem] By what means this destruction took place, we know not: it appears that an angel was employed in it, and that this minister of divine justice actually appeared as an object of sight.

The threshing-place of Araunah] These threshing-places were made in the open air. In the parallel place, 1 Chron. xxi. 15, 20, &c., this person is called Ornan. The word that we render Araunah is written in this very chapter Avraunah, ver. 16, Araniah: ver. 18, Araunah or Arannah, ver. 20, and the following: but in every place in 1 Chron. xxi. where it occurs it is written Ornan. It is likely he had both names, Araunah and Ornan: but the varieties of spelling in 2 Sam. must arise from the blunders of transcribers.

Verse 17. But these sheep, what have they done?] It seems that in the order of providence there is no way of punishing kings in their regal capacity, but by afflictions on their land, in which the people must necessarily suffer. The people generally suffer for the miscarriages of their governors: this has been observed in every age.

Against my father's house] That is, against his own family; even to cut it off from the face of the earth.

Verse 18. Go up, rear an altar unto the Lord] This place is supposed to be Mount Moriah; on which, according to the rabbins, Cain and Abel offered their sacrifices; where Abraham attempted to sacrifice Isaac, and where the temple of Solomon was afterwards built.

Verse 22. Here be oxen for burnt sacrifice] He felt for the king; and showed his loyalty to him by this offer. He felt for the people; and was willing to make any sacrifice to get the plague stayed. He felt for his own personal safety; and therefore was willing to give up all to save his life. He felt for the honour of God; and therefore was glad that he had a sacrifice to offer, so that God might magnify both his justice and mercy.

Verse 23. As a king, give unto the king] Literally, all these did king Araunah give unto the king. That there could not be a king of the Jebusites on Mount Moriah, is sufficiently evident; and that there was no other king than David in the land, is equally so: the word hammelech, "the king," given here to Araunah, is wanting in the Septuagint, Syriac, and Arabic; and in the parallel place in Chronicles: and it is very probable, never made a part of the text. Perhaps it should be read, All these did Araunah give unto the king. [It is simply a vocative: "All this giveth Araunah, O king, to the king."]

Verse 24. Neither will I offer burnt-offerings] He who has a religion that costs him nothing, has a religion that is worth nothing: nor will any man esteem the ordinances of God, if those ordinances cost him nothing. Had Araunah's noble offer been accepted, it would have been Araunah's sacri*fice, not David's; nor would it have answered the end of turning away the displeasure of the Most High. It was David that sinned, not Araunah; therefore David must offer sacrifice, and at his own expense too.*

cumstance marked in a parallel place, 1 Chron. xxi. 26: David called upon the Lord, and he answered him from heaven by fire upon the altar of burnt-offering.

The plague was stayed] Jerusalem did not share in the common calamity, seventy thousand being the whole that were slain throughout the land.

PREFACE TO THE FIRST BOOK

OF THE

K I N G S,

OTHERWISE CALLED THE THIRD BOOK OF THE KINGS.

THE author of these books is unknown: that they are a compilation out of public and private records, as the Books of Samuel are, there is little doubt; but by whom this compilation was made nowhere appears. Some have attributed it to Isaiah and to Jeremiah, because there are several chapters in both these prophets, which are similar to some found in the First and Second Book of Kings; compare 2 Kings xviii., xix., and xx., with Isa. xxxvi., xxxvii., xxxviii., and xxxix.; and 2 Kings xxiv. 18, and xxv. 1, &c., with Jer. lii. 1, &c. But rather than allow those prophets to be the authors or compilers of these Books, some very learned men have judged that the chapters in question have been taken from the Books of Kings in after times, and inserted in those prophets. It is worthy of remark that the fifty-second chapter found in Jeremiah is marked so as to intimate that it is not the composition of that Prophet; for at the end of chap. li. we find these words, Thus far are the words of Jeremiah; intimating that the following chapter is not his.

But the most common opinion is, that Ezra was the author, or rather the compiler, of the history found in these Books. Allowing only the existence of ancient documents from which it was compiled, it appears,

1. That it is the work of one person; as is sufficiently evident from the uniformity of the style, and the connexion of events.

2. That this person had ancient documents from which he compiled, and which he often only abridged, is evident from his own words, The rest of the acts of such and such a prince, are they not written in the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah, or of Israel, which occur frequently.

3. These books were written during or after the Babylonish captivity, as at the end of the Second Book that event is particularly described. The author states also, 2 Kings xvii. 23, that Israel was, in his time, in captivity in Assyria, according to the declaration of God by his prophets.

4. That the writer was not contemporary with the facts which he relates, is evident from the reflections he makes on the facts that he found in the memoirs which he consulted. See 2 Kings xvii. from ver. 6 to ver. 24.

5. There is every reason to believe that the author was a priest or a prophet; he studies less to describe acts of heroism, successful battles, conquests, political address, &c., than what regards the temple, religion, religious ceremonies, festivals, the worship of God, the piety of princes, the fidelity of the prophets, the punishment of crimes, the manifestation of God's anger against the wicked, and his kindness to the righteous. He appears every where strongly attached to the house of David; he treats of the kings of Israel only accidentally; his principal object seems to be the kingdom of Judah, and the matters which concern it.

Now, all this agrees well with the supposition that Ezra was the compiler of these Books. He was not only a priest, a zealous servant of God, and a reformer of the corruptions which had crept into the divine worship, but is universally allowed by the Jews to have been the collector and compiler of the whole sacred code, and author of the arrangement of the different books which constitute the Old Testament. If some things be found in these Books of Kings which do not agree to his time, they may be easily accounted for on the ground of his often taking the facts as he found them in the documents which he consults, without any kind of alteration; and this is so far a proof of his great sincerity and scrupulous exactness.

[There is no evidence in favour of the authorship of Ezra. The most recent criticism pronounces the impossibility of fixing upon any definite name.]

THE FIRST BOOK

OF THE

KINGS.

CHAPTER I.

David grown old, is, by the advice of his physicians, cherished by Abishag the Shunammite, 1-4. Adonijah conspires with Joab and Abiathar to seize on the government, 5-10. Nathan and Bath-sheba communicate these tidings to the aged king, 11-27. David immediately pronounces Solomon his successor, and causes Zadok and Nathan to proclaim and anoint him king, 28-40. Adonijah and his friends hear of it, are afraid, and flee away, Adonijah laying hold on the horns of the altar, from which he refuses to go till Solomon shall promise him his life; this he does, and banishes him to his own house, 41-53.

NOW king David was old and <sup>a</sup> stricken in years; and they covered him with clothes, but he gat no heat.

2 Wherefore his servants said unto him, <sup>b</sup> Let there be sought for my lord the king <sup>c</sup> a young virgin: and let her stand before the king, and let her <sup>d</sup> cherish him, and let her lie in thy bosom, that my Lord the king may get heat.

3. So they sought for a fair damsel throughout all the coasts of Israel, and found Abishag a <sup>e</sup> Shunammite, and brought her to the king.

4 And the damsel was very fair, and cherished the king, and ministered to him: but the king knew her not.

5 Then <sup>f</sup> Adonijah the son of Haggith exalted himself, saying, I will <sup>g</sup> be king: <sup>h</sup> and he prepared him chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him.

6 And his father had not displeased him <sup>i</sup> at any time in saying, Why hast thou done so? and he also was a very goodly man; <sup>j</sup> and his mother bare him after Absalom.

7 And <sup>k</sup> he conferred with Joab the son of Zeruiah, and with <sup>l</sup> Abiathar the priest: and <sup>m</sup> they <sup>n</sup> following Adonijah helped him.

8 But Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and Nathan the prophet, and <sup>o</sup> Shimei, and Rei, and <sup>p</sup> the mighty men which belonged to David, were not with Adonijah.

9 And Adonijah slew sheep and oxen and fat cattle by the stone of Zoheleth, which is by <sup>q</sup> Engogel, and called all his brethren the king's sons, and all the men of Judah the king's servants:

10 But Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah, and the mighty men, and Solomon his brother, he called not.

11 Wherefore Nathan spake unto Bath-sheba the mother of Solomon, saying, Hast thou not heard that Adonijah the son of <sup>r</sup> Haggith, doth reign, and David our lord knoweth it not?

Verse 1. Now king David was old] He was probably now about sixty-nine years of age. He was thirty years old when he began to reign, reigned forty, and died in the seventieth year of his age, 2 Sam. v. 4, and chap. ii. 11; and the transactions mentioned here are supposed to have taken place about a year before his death.

But he gat no heat.] Sixty-nine was not an advanced age; but David had been exhausted with various fatigues, and especially by family afflictions, so that he was much older in constitution than he was in years. Besides, he seems to have laboured under some wasting maladies; to which there is frequent reference in the Psalms.

Verse 2. Let there be sought—a young virgin] This was the best remedy which in his state could be prescribed. His nearly exhausted frame would infallibly absorb from her young and healthy body an additional portion of animal heat, and consequently trim and revive the flame of animal life.

Verse 5. Adonijah the son of Haggith] Who this woman was we know not; Adonijah was evidently David's eldest son now living, and one of whom his father was particularly fond; see verse 6.

Prepared him chariots and horsemen] He copied the conduct of his brother Absalom in every respect.

Verse 7. And he conferred with Joab] Joab well knew, if he made the new king, he would necessarily be continued in the command of the army, and so govern him.

Verse 8. And Nathan] Some suppose that he was the preceptor of Solomon.

Verse 9. Slew sheep and oxen] Making a royal feast, in reference to his inauguration. As he had Abiathar the priest with him, no doubt these animals were offered sacrificially, and then the guests fed on the flesh of the victims.

Verse 11. Hast thou not heard that Adonijah the son of Haggith doth reign] He was now considered as being legally 12 Now therefore, come, let me, I pray thee, give thee counsel, that thou mayest save thine own life, and the life of thy son Solomon.

13 Go and get thee in unto king David, and say unto him, Didst not thou, my lord, O king, swear unto thine handmaid, saying, ' Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne? why then doth Adonijah reign?

14 Behold, while thou yet talkest there with the king, I will also come in after thee, and <sup>b</sup> confirm thy words.

15 And Bath-sheba went in unto the king into the chamber: and the king was very old; and Abishag the Shunammite ministered unto the king.

16 And Bath-sheba bowed, and did obeisance unto the king. And the king said, ' What wouldest thou?

17 And she said unto him, My lord, <sup>d</sup> thou swarest by the LORD thy God unto thine handmaid, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne.

18 And now, behold, Adonijah reigneth; and now, my lord the king, thou knowest it not.

19 ' And he hath slain oxen and fat cattle and sheep in abundance, and hath called all the sons of the king, and Abiathar the priest, and Joab the captain of the host: but Solomon thy servant hath he not called.

20 And thou, my lord, O king, the eyes of all Israel are upon thee, that thou shouldest tell them who shall sit on the throne of my lord the king after him.

21 Otherwise it shall come to pass, when my lord the king shall ' sleep with his fathers, that I and my son Solomon shall be counted <sup>e</sup> offenders.

22 And, lo, while she yet talked with the king, Nathan the prophet also came in.

23 And they told the king, saying, Behold Nathan the prophet. And when he was come in before the king, he bowed himself before the king, with his face to the ground.

24 And Nathan said, My lord, O king, hast thou said, Adonijah shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne?

appointed to the regal office, and no doubt was about to begin to perform its functions.

Verse 12. Save thine own life, and the life of thy son] Nathan took for granted that Adonijah would put both Bath-sheba and Solomon to death as state criminals, if he got established on the throne. O cursed lust of rule! a father will destroy his son, a son depose his father, and a brother murder a brother, in order to obtain a crown!

Verse 13. Go and get thee in unto king David] He knew that this woman had a sovereign influence over the king. If Bath-sheba was a source of pleasure to David, must she not also have been a source of pain to him? For could he ever forget the guilty manner in which he acquired her?

Didst not thou—swear? It is very likely that David made such an oath, and that it was known only to Bath-sheba and Nathan. It is nowhere else mentioned.

Verse 20. That thou shouldest tell—who shall sit on the throne] This was a monarchy neither hereditary nor elective; the king simply named his successor. This obtained less or more, anciently, in most countries.

Verse 21. Shall be counted offenders] When Adonijah and his party shall find that I and my son have had this promise from thee by oath, he will slay us both.

Verse 24. Call me Bath-sheba] She had gone out when Nathan came in, and he retired when she was re-admitted.

25 <sup>a</sup> For he is gone down this day, and hath slain oxen and fat cattle and sheep in abundance, and hath called all the king's sons, and the captains of the host, and Abiathar the priest; and, behold, they eat and drink before him, and say, ' God ' save king Adonijah.

26 But me, even me thy servant, and Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and thy servant Solomon, hath he not called.

27 Is this thing done by my lord the king, and thou hast not shewed it unto thy servants, who should sit on the throne of my lord the king after him?

28 Then king David answered and said, Call me Bath-sheba. And she came <sup>b</sup> into the king's presence, and stood before the king.

29 And the king sware, and said, ' As the LORD liveth, that hath redeemed my soul out of all distress, 30 <sup>c</sup> Even as I sware unto thee by the LORD God of Israel, saying, Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne in my stead; even so will I certainly do this day.

31 Then Bath-sheba bowed with her face to the earth, and did reverence to the king, and said, <sup>d</sup> Let my lord king David live for ever.

32 And king David said, Call me Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada. And they came before the king.

33 The king also said unto them, <sup>e</sup> Take with you the servants of your lord, and cause Solomon my son to ride upon <sup>f</sup> mine own mule, and bring him down to <sup>g</sup> Gihon:

34 And let Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet <sup>h</sup> anoint him there king over Israel, and <sup>i</sup> blow ye with the trumpet, and say, God save king Solomon.

35 Then ye shall come up after him, that he may come and sit upon my throne: for he shall be king in my stead: and I have appointed him to be ruler over Israel and over Judah.

36 And Benaiah the son of Jehoiada answered the king, and said, Amen: the LORD God of my lord the king say so too.

Each had a separate audience, but to Nathan the king did not express any will.

Verse 33. Take with you the servants of your lord] By these we may understand the king's guards, the guards of the city, the Cherethites and Pelethites, who were under the command of Benaiah; and in short, all the disposable force that was at hand.

Solomon—to ride upon mine own mule] No subject could use any thing that belonged to the prince, without forfeiting his life. As David offered Solomon to ride on his own mule, this was full evidence that he had appointed him his successor.

Verse 34. Blow ye with the trumpet] After he has been anointed, make proclamation that he is king.

Verse 35. Sit upon my throne] The matter of conducting a business of this kind seems to have been this: 1. The king elect was placed on the mule of his predecessor, and caused to ride abroad where there was the greatest concourse of people, that they might see who he was that was appointed. 2. The priest and the prophet anointed him in the name of the Lord; and thereby signified that he should reign by, under, and for the Lord. 3. The trumpet was then to be blown, and solemn proclamation made, that he was anointed king. 4. He was then brought and solemnly placed on the throne, to signify that he had now assumed the reins of government.

37 *As the LORD hath been with my lord the king, even so be he with Solomon, and <sup>b</sup>make his throne greater than the throne of my lord king David.

38 So Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, <sup>c</sup>and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, went down, and caused Solomon to ride upon king David's mule, and brought him to Gihon.

39 And Zadok the priest took an horn of <sup>d</sup>oil out of the tabernacle, and <sup>e</sup>anointed Solomon. And they blew the trumpet; <sup>f</sup>and all the people said, God save king Solomon.

40 And all the people came up after him, and the people piped with <sup>g</sup>pipes, and rejoiced with great joy, so that the earth rent with the sound of them.

41 And Adonijah and all the guests that were with him heard it as they had made an end of eating. And when Joab heard the sound of the trumpet, he said, Wherefore is this noise of the city being in an uproar?

42 And while he yet spake, behold, Jonathan the son of Abiathar the priest came: and Adonijah said unto him, Come in; for <sup>h</sup>thou art a valiant man, and bringest good tidings.

43 And Jonathan answered and said to Adonijah, Verily my lord king David hath made Solomon king.

44 And the king hath sent with him Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, and they have caused him to ride upon the king's mule:

45 And Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet have anointed him king in Gihon: and they are come up from thence rejoicing, so that the city rang again. This is the noise that ye have heard.

46 And also Solomon <sup>i</sup>sitteth on the throne of the kingdom.

47 And moreover the king's servants came to bless our lord king David, saying, <sup>j</sup>God make the name of Solomon better than thy name, and make his throne greater than thy throne. <sup>k</sup>And the king bowed himself upon the bed.

48 And also thus said the king, Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, which hath <sup>l</sup>given one to sit on my throne this day, mine eyes even seeing it.

49 And all the guests that were with Adonijah were afraid, and rose up, and went every man his way.

50 And Adonijah feared because of Solomon, and arose, and went, and <sup>m</sup>caught hold on the horns of the altar.

51 And it was told Solomon, saying, Behold, Adonijah feareth king Solomon: for, lo, he hath caught hold on the horns of the altar, saying, Let king Solomon swear unto me to day that he will not slay his servant with the sword.

52 And Solomon said, If he will shew himself a worthy man, <sup>n</sup>there shall not an hair of him fall to the earth: but if wickedness shall be found in him, he shall die.

53 So king Solomon sent, and they brought him down from the altar. And he came and bowed himself to king Solomon: and Solomon said unto him, Go to thine house.

Verse 37. Make his throne greater than the throne of David.] A wish of this kind a king will suffer in behalf of his son, but it is never in ordinary cases considered a compliment to say, "I hope this child will make a better man than his father," because it seems to insinuate some reflection on his father's conduct or character.

Verse 39. Zadok—took an horn of oil] Pottery and glass were little in use in those times; and horns were frequently used to hold oil and wine. The oil used here was the holy anointing oil, which was laid up in the tabernacle, and which was used for the anointing of both priests and kings.

Verse 40. The people piped with pipes] They danced, sang, and played on what instruments of music they possessed. The earth rent] We use a similar expression in precisely the same sense: They rent the air with their cries.

Verse 43. Jonathan answered] He was properly a messenger about the court; we have met with him and Ahimaas before, 2 Sam. xv. 36. He had now been an observer, if not a spy, on all that was doing, and relates the transactions to Adonijah, in the very order in which they took place.

Verse 47. Moreover the king's servants came] The king himself was at this time confined to his own house, and probably to his bed, and could not possibly see these ceremonies; therefore his confidential servants came and told him.

Verse 50. Adonijah feared] He therefore took sanctuary, and, fleeing to the temple, laid hold on one of the horns of the altar, as if appealing to the protection of God against the violence of men. The altar was a privileged place, and it was deemed sacrilege to molest a man who had taken refuge there.

Verse 52. If he will shew himself a worthy man] If, from henceforth, he behave well, show himself to be contented, and not endeavour to make partisans, or stir up insurrections among the people, he shall be safe; but if wickedness be found in him—if he act at all contrary to this, he shall die—his blood shall be upon him.

Verse 53. Go to thine house.] Intimating that he should have no place about the king's person, nor under the government. Adonijah must have seen that he stood continually on his good behaviour.

CHAPTER II.

David leaves his dying charge with Solomon, relative to his own personal conduct, 1-4; to Joab, 5, 6; to Barzillai, 7; to Shimei, 8, 9. He dies, and Solomon is established in the kingdom, 10-12. Adonijah requests to have Abishag to wife, and is put to death by Solomon, 13-25. Abiathar the priest is banished to his estate at Anathoth, 26, 27. Joab, fearing for his life, flees to the horns of the altar, and is slain by Benaiah, 28-34. Benaiah is made captain of the host in his stead, 35. Shimei is ordered to confine himself to Jerusalem, and never leave it on pain of death, 36-38. After three years he follows some of his runaway servants to Gath, and thereby forfeits his life, 39, 40. Solomon sends for him, upbraids him, and commands him to be slain by Benaiah, 41-46.

NOW 'the days of David drew nigh that he should die; and he charged Solomon his son, saying,

2 'I go the way of all the earth: 'be thou strong therefore, and shew thyself a man;

3 And keep the charge of the LORD thy God, to walk in his ways, to keep his statutes, and his commandments, and his judgments, and his testimonies, as it is written in the law of Moses, that thou mayest 'prosper' in all that thou doest, and whithersoever thou turnest thyself.

4 That the LORD may 'continue his word which he spake concerning me, saying, 'If thy children take heed to their way, to 'walk before me in truth with all their heart and with all their soul, 'there shall not 'fail thee (said he) a man on the throne of Israel.

5 Moreover thou knowest also what Joab the son of Zeruiah 'did to me, and what he did to the two captains of the hosts of Israel, unto 'Abner the son of Ner, and unto 'Amassa the son of Jether, whom he slew, and 'shed the blood of war in peace, and put the blood of war upon his girdle that was about his loins, and in his shoes that were on his feet.

6 Do therefore 'according to thy wisdom, and let not his hoar head go down to the grave in peace.

Verse 2. I go the way of all the earth] I am dying. All the inhabitants of the earth must come to the dust. In life, some follow one occupation, some another; but all must, sooner or later, come to the grave. Death is no respecter of persons; he visits the palace of the king as well as the cottage of the peasant.

There is no respect to age or youth more than to the station or external circumstance.

And it is not merely man that is subjected to this necessity; all that have in them the breath of life must lose it; it is the way of all the earth, both of men and inferior animals.

It is painful to the pride of the great and mighty that, however decorated their tombs may be, they must undergo the same dissolution and corruption with the vulgar dead; for the grave is the house appointed for all living: man is born to die.

Here emperors, kings, statesmen, warriors, heroes, and butchers of all kinds, with peasants and beggars, meet; however various their routes, they terminate in the same point.

Shew thyself a man] Act like a rational being, and not like a brute; and remember that he acts most like a man who is most devoted to his God.

Verse 3. Keep the charge of the Lord] 1. Walk in his ways. Not in thine own, nor in the ways of a wicked, perishing world.

2. Keep his statutes. Consider all his appointments to be holy, just, and good; and conscientiously observe them.

3. Keep his commandments. Whatever he has bidden thee to do, perform; whatever he has forbidden thee to do, omit.

4. Keep his judgments. What he has determined to be right, is essentially and inherently right; what he has determined to be wrong or evil, is inherently and essentially so. A thing is not good because God has commanded it; a thing is not evil because he has forbidden it. He has commanded the good, because it is in its own nature good and useful; he has forbidden the evil, because it is in its own nature bad and hurtful.

5. Keep his testimonies. Bear witness to all to which he has borne witness. His testimonies are true; there is no deceit or falsity in them.

That thou mayest prosper] If thou hast God's approbation, thou wilt have God's blessing.

7 But shew kindness unto the sons of 'Barzillai the Gileadite, and let them be of those that 'eat at thy table: for so 'they came to me when I fled because of Absalom thy brother.

8 And, behold, thou hast with thee 'Shimei the son of Gera, a Benjamite of Bahurim, which cursed me with a 'grievous curse in the day when I went to Mahanaim: but 'he came to meet me at Jordan and 'I sware to him by the LORD, saying, I will not put thee to death with the sword.

9 Now therefore 'hold him not guiltless: for thou art a wise man, and knowest what thou oughtest to do unto him; but his hoar head 'bring thou down to the grave with blood.

10 So 'David slept with his fathers, and was buried in 'the city of David.

11 And the days that David 'reigned over Israel were forty years: seven years reigned he in Hebron, and thirty and three years reigned he in Jerusalem.

12 'Then sat Solomon upon the throne of David his father; and his kingdom was established greatly.

13 And Adonijah the son of Haggith came to Bath-sheba the mother of Solomon. And she said, 'Comest thou peaceably? And he said, Peaceably.

14 He said moreover, I have somewhat to say unto thee. And she said, Say on.

Verse 4. That the Lord may continue his word] The prosperity which God has promised to grant to my family will depend on their faithfulness to the good they receive; if they live to God, they shall sit for ever on the throne of Israel.

Verse 5. Thou knowest—what Joab—did to me] He did every thing bad and dishonourable in itself, in the murder of Abner and Amassa, and indeed in the death of the profligate Absalom.

Shed the blood of war—upon his girdle—and in his shoes] He stabbed them while he pretended to embrace them, so that their blood gushed out on his girdle, and fell into his shoes!

Verse 6. Let not his hoar head go down to the grave in peace] According to the law of God, Joab, having murdered Abner and Amassa, should die. And had not David commanded Solomon to perform this act of justice, he could not have died in the approbation of his Maker.

Verse 9. Hold him not guiltless] Do not consider him as an innocent man, though I have sworn to him that I would not put him to death by the sword; yet as thou art a wise man, and knowest how to treat such persons, treat him as he deserves; only as I have sworn to him, and he is an aged man, let him not die a violent death; bring not down his hoary head to the grave with blood. So Solomon understood David; and so I think David should be understood; for the negative particle lo, in the former clause, hold him not guiltless, should be repeated in this latter clause, though not expressed, his hoary head bring thou not down; instances of which frequently occur in the Hebrew Bible. [The suggested emendation is not necessary. Some more recent crime may have absolved David from his oath.]

Verse 10. David slept with his fathers] His life was a life of remarkable providence, of much piety, and of great public usefulness. In general he lived well, and it is most evident that he died well; and as a king, a general, a poet, a father, and a friend, he has had few equals, and no superior, from his own time to the present day.

Was buried in the city of David] That the tomb of David existed in the days of the apostles, we learn from Acts ii. 29. St. Jerome speaks of it as existing in his time; and modern travellers pretend that it is still in existence. [The situation of the tomb is yet unknown. The traditional site is the 16 And now I ask one petition of thee, <sup>c</sup> deny me not. And she said unto him, Say on.

17 And he said, Speak, I pray thee, unto Solomon the king, (for he will not say thee nay,) that he give me <sup>d</sup> Abishag the Shunammite to wife.

18 And Bath-sheba said, Well; I will speak for thee unto the king.

19 Bath-sheba therefore went unto king Solomon, to speak unto him for Adonijah. And the king rose up to meet her, and <sup>e</sup> bowed himself unto her, and sat down on his throne, and caused a seat to be set for the king's mother; <sup>f</sup> and she sat on his right hand.

20 Then she said, I desire one small petition of thee; I pray thee, say me not nay. And the king said unto her, Ask on, my mother; for I will not say thee nay.

21 And she said, Let Abishag the Shunammite be given to Adonijah thy brother to wife.

22 And king Solomon answered and said unto his mother, And why dost thou ask Abishag the Shunammite for Adonijah? ask for him the kingdom also; for he is mine elder brother; even for him, and for <sup>g</sup> Abiathar the priest, and for Joab the son of Zeruiah.

23 Then king Solomon swore by the LORD, saying, <sup>h</sup> God do so to me, and more also, if Adonijah have not spoken this word against his own life.

24 Now therefore, as the LORD liveth, which hath established me, and set me on the throne of David my father, and who hath made me an house, as he <sup>i</sup> promised, Adonijah shall be put to death this day.

25 And king Solomon sent by the hand of Benaiah the son of Jehoiada; and he fell upon him that he died.

26 And unto Abiathar the priest said the king, vault underneath the mosque of David, on the southern side of Jerusalem.]

Verse 15. Thou knowest that the kingdom was mine] It certainly was his by the right of primogeniture, and it was his by the voice of the people, and the consent of the high-priest. But there was a right paramount to all these, the right of God; it was his kingdom; the kings were his lieutenants, and he had a right to give the crown to whomsoever he pleased, and he was pleased to give it to Solomon.

Verse 17. That he give me Abishag—to wife.] He cheerfully gives up all right to the kingdom, and only desires to have this young woman, who, though she had been his father's wife or concubine, was still in a state of virginity. It does not appear that Adonijah by desiring to have Abishag had any thought of the kingdom, or of maintaining any right to it, though Solomon appears to have understood him in this sense. But without further evidence, this was a flimsy pretence to imbrue his hands in a brother's blood. We readily find an excuse for whatever we are determined to do. He who attempts to varnish over this conduct of Solomon by either state necessity or a divine command, is an enemy, in my mind, to the cause of God and truth. [But if Solomon had consented to Adonijah's claim, he would have acknowledged his right to the throne, the possession of the late king's harem being always regarded by the Easterns as the right of his successor.]

Verse 25. Solomon sent—Benaiah—and he fell upon him that he died.] Benaiah seems to have been the public state

Get thee to <sup>1</sup> Anathoth, unto thine own fields; for thou art <sup>2</sup> worthy of death: but I will not at this time put thee to death, <sup>3</sup> because thou barest the ark of the Lord God before David my father, and because <sup>4</sup> thou hast been afflicted in all wherein my father was afflicted.

27 So Solomon thrust out Abiathar from being priest unto the LORD; that he might <sup>5</sup> fulfil the word of the LORD, which he spake concerning the house of Eli in Shiloh.

28 Then tidings came to Joab: for Joab <sup>6</sup> had turned after Adonijah, though he turned not after Absalom. And Joab fled unto the tabernacle of the LORD, and <sup>7</sup> caught hold on the horns of the altar.

29 And it was told king Solomon that Joab was fled unto the tabernacle of the LORD; and, behold, he is by the altar. Then Solomon sent Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, saying, Go, fall upon him.

30 And Benaiah came to the tabernacle of the LORD, and said unto him, Thus saith the king, Come forth. And he said, Nay; but I will die here. And Benaiah brought the king word again, saying, Thus said Joab, and thus he answered me.

31 And the king said unto him, <sup>8</sup> Do as he hath said, and fall upon him, and bury him; <sup>9</sup> that thou mayest take away the innocent blood, which Joab shed, from me, and from the house of my father.

32 And the LORD <sup>10</sup> shall return his blood upon his own head, who fell upon two men more righteous <sup>11</sup> and better than he, and slew them with the sword, my father David not knowing thereof, to wit, <sup>12</sup> Abner the son of Ner, captain of the host of Israel, and <sup>13</sup> Amasa the son of Jether, captain of the host of Judah.

33 Their blood shall therefore return upon the head of Joab, and <sup>14</sup> upon the head of his seed for ever: <sup>15</sup> but upon David, and upon his seed, and upon his house, and upon his throne, shall there be peace for ever from the LORD.

34 So Benaiah the son of Jeholada went up, and executioner, and yet he was generalissimo of all the forces. That this was an act of cruelty towards Adonijah, needs no proof. He is suspected, condemned, and slain, without a hearing.

Verse 27. So Solomon thrust out Abiathar] God had told Eli that the priesthood should depart from his house; Abiathar was the last of the descendants of Ithamar, of which family was Eli the high-priest. Zadok, who was made priest in the stead of Abiathar, was of the family of Eliazar; and by this change the priesthood reverted to its ancient channel.

Verse 28. Tidings came to Joab] Fearing therefore for his personal safety, he takes refuge at the tabernacle, as claiming divine protection, and desiring to have his case decided by God alone; or perhaps a spark of remorse is now kindled; and, knowing that he must die, he wishes to die in the house of God, as it were under the shadow, that he might receive the mercy, of the Almighty.

Verse 30. Nay; but I will die here.] The altars were so sacred among all the people that, in general, even the vilest wretch found safety, if he once reached the altar. This led to many abuses, and the perversion of public justice; and at last it became a maxim that the guilty should be punished, should they even have taken refuge at the altars. God decreed that the presumptuous murderer who had taken refuge at the altar should be dragged thence, and put to death; see Exod. xxi. 14.

Verse 34. So Benaiah went up—and slew him] It ap-fell upon him, and slew him : and he was buried in his own house in the wilderness.

35 And the king put Benaiah the son of Jehoiada in his room over the host : and <sup>a</sup> Zadok the priest did the king put in the room of <sup>b</sup> Abiathar.

36 And the king sent and called for <sup>c</sup> Shimei, and said unto him, Build thee an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there, and go not forth thence any whither.

37 For it shall be, that on the day thou goest out, and passest over <sup>d</sup> the brook Kidron, thou shalt know for certain that thou shalt surely die : <sup>e</sup> thy blood shall be upon thine own head.

38 And Shimei said unto the king, The saying is good : as my lord the king hath said, so will thy servant do. And Shimei dwelt in Jerusalem many days.

39 And it came to pass at the end of three years, that two of the servants of Shimei ran away unto <sup>f</sup> Achish son of Maachah king of Gath. And they told Shimei, saying, Behold, thy servants be in Gath.

40 And Shimei arose, and saddled his ass, and went to Gath to Achish to see his servants : and Shimei went and brought his servants from Gath.

41 And it was told Solomon that Shimei had appears he slew him at the very altar. Joab must have been old and infirm at this time, and now he bleeds for Abner, he bleeds for Amasa, and he bleeds for Uriah.

Verse 36. Build thee an house] Thus he gave him the whole city for a prison, and this certainly could have reduced him to no hardships.

Verse 37. Thy blood shall be upon thine own head.] Solomon knew that Shimei was a seditious man, and he chose to keep him under his own eye ; for such a man at large, in favourable circumstances, might do much evil. His bitter revilings of David were a sufficient proof.

Verse 40. And Shimei—went to Gath] It is astonishing gone from Jerusalem to Gath, and was come again.

42 And the king sent and called for Shimei, and said unto him, Did I not make thee to swear by the LORD, and protested unto thee, saying, Know for a certain, on the day thou goest out, and walkest abroad any whither, that thou shalt surely die ? and thou saidst unto me, The word that I have heard is good.

43 Why then hast thou not kept the oath of the LORD, and the commandment that I have charged thee with ?

44 The king said moreover to Shimei, Thou knowest <sup>a</sup> all the wickedness which thine heart is privy to, that thou didst to David my father : therefore the LORD shall <sup>b</sup> return thy wickedness upon thine own head ;

45 And king Solomon shall be blessed, and <sup>c</sup> the throne of David shall be established before the LORD for ever.

46 So the king commanded Benaiah the son of Jehoiada ; which went out, and fell upon him, that he died. And the <sup>d</sup> kingdom was established in the hand of Solomon.

that with his eyes wide open he would thus run into the jaws of death.

Verse 45. King Solomon shall be blessed] He seems to think that, while such bad men remained unpunished, the nation could not prosper ; that it was an act of justice which God required him to perform, in order to the establishment and perpetuity of his throne.

Verse 46. And the kingdom was established] He had neither foes within nor without. He was either dreaded or loved universally. His own subjects were affectionately bound to him, and the surrounding nations did not think proper to make him their enemy.

CHAPTER III.

Solomon marries Pharaoh's daughter, 1, 2. He serves God ; and offers a thousand burnt-offerings upon one altar, at Gibeon, 3, 4. God appears to him in a dream at Gibeon ; and asks what He shall give him, 5. He asks wisdom ; with which God is well pleased, and promises to give him not only that, but also riches and honour ; and, if obedient, long life, 6-14. He comes back to Jerusalem ; and offers burnt-offerings and peace-offerings, and makes a feast for his servants, 15. His judgment between the two harlots, 16-27. He rises in the esteem of the people, 28.

Verse 1. Solomon made affinity with Pharaoh] This was no doubt a political measure in order to strengthen his kingdom, and on the same ground he continued his alliance with the king of Tyre ; and these were among the most powerful of his neighbours. But should political considerations prevail over express laws of God ? God had strictly forbidden his people to form alliances with heathenish women, lest they should lead their hearts away from him into idolatry ; Exod. xxxiv. 16 ; Deut. vii. 3, 4. Now Solomon acted in direct opposition to these laws ; and perhaps in this alliance were sown those seeds of apostasy from God and goodness in which he so long lived, and in which he so awfully died.

Those who are, at all hazards, his determinate apologists, assume, 1. That Pharaoh's daughter must have been a proselyte to the Jewish religion ; else Solomon would not have married her. 2. That God was not displeased with this match. 3. That the book of Canticles, which is supposed to have been his epithalamium, would not have found a place in the sacred canon, had the spouse, whom it all along celebrates, been at that time an idolatress. 4. That it is certain we nowhere in Scripture find Solomon blamed for this match.

Now to all this, I answer, 1. We have no evidence that the daughter of Pharaoh was a proselyte. It is no more likely that he sought a proselyte here than that he sought them among the Moabites, Hittites, &c., from whom he took many wives. 2. If God's law be positively against such matches, he could not positively be pleased with this breach of it in Solomon. 3. That the Book of Canticles, being found in the sacred canon is, according to some critics, neither a proof that the marriage pleased God, nor that the 2 *Only the people sacrificed in high places, because there was no house built unto the name of the LORD, until those days.

3 And Solomon <sup>b</sup>loved the LORD, <sup>c</sup>walking in the statutes of David his father; only he sacrificed and burnt incense in high places.

4 And <sup>d</sup>the king went to Gibeon to sacrifice there; <sup>e</sup>for that was the great high place: a thousand burnt-offerings did Solomon offer upon that altar.

5 <sup>f</sup>In Gibeon the LORD appeared to Solomon <sup>g</sup>in a dream by night: and God said, Ask what I shall give thee.

6 <sup>h</sup>And Solomon said, Thou hast shewed unto thy servant David my father great <sup>i</sup>mercy, according as he <sup>j</sup>walked before thee in truth, and in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart with thee; and thou hast kept for him this great kindness, that thou <sup>k</sup>hast given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day.

7 And now, O LORD my God, thou hast made thy servant king instead of David my father: <sup>l</sup>and I am but a little child: I know not <sup>m</sup>how <sup>n</sup>to go out or come in.

9 <sup>q</sup>Give therefore thy servant an <sup>r</sup>understanding heart <sup>s</sup>to judge thy people, that I may <sup>t</sup>discern between good and bad: for who is able to judge this thy so great a people?

10 And the speech pleased the LORD, that Solomon had asked this thing.

11 And God said unto him, Because thou hast asked this thing, and hast <sup>u</sup>not asked for thyself <sup>v</sup>long life; neither hast asked riches for thyself, nor hast asked the life of thine enemies; but hast asked for thyself understanding, <sup>w</sup>to discern judgment:

12 <sup>x</sup>Behold, I have done according to thy words: <sup>y</sup>lo, I have given thee a wise and an understanding heart; so that there was none like thee before thee, neither after thee shall any arise like unto thee.

13 And I have also <sup>z</sup>given thee that which thou hast not asked, both <sup>aa</sup>riches, and honour: so that there <sup>ab</sup>shall not be any among the kings like unto thee all thy days.

14 And if thou wilt walk in my ways, to keep my statutes and my commandments, <sup>ac</sup>as thy father David did walk, then I will <sup>ad</sup>lengthen thy days.

15 And Solomon <sup>ae</sup>awoke; and, behold, it was a dream. And he came to Jerusalem, and stood before the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and offered up burnt-offerings, and offered peace-offerings, and <sup>af</sup>made a feast to all his servants, be this: as the ark and tabernacle were still in being, it was not right to offer sacrifices but where they were; and wherever they were, whether on a high place or a plain, there sacrifices might be lawfully offered, previously to the building of the temple. And the tabernacle was now at Gibeon, 2 Chron. i. 3.

Verse 5. The Lord appeared to Solomon in a dream] This appears to have been supernatural.

And if Solomon received his wisdom by immediate inspiration from heaven, this was the kind of dream that he had; a dream by which that wisdom was actually communicated. But probably we need not carry this matter so much into miracle: God might be the author of his extraordinary wisdom, as he was the author of his extraordinary riches. In short, as God's especial blessing brought him riches through the medium of his own care and industry; so the inspiration of the Almighty gave him understanding, while he gave his heart to seek and search out, by his wisdom, concerning all things under the sun, Eccles. i. 13.

Verse 7. I know not how to go out or come in.] I am just like an infant learning to walk alone, and can neither go out nor come in without help.

Verse 9. Give an understanding heart to judge thy people] He did not ask wisdom in general, but the true science of government. This wisdom he sought, and this wisdom he obtained.

Verse 12. I have given thee a wise and an understanding heart] Was not all this conditional? If he should walk in his ways, and keep his statutes and commandments, ver. 14. Was it not to depend upon his proper use of initiatory inspirations? Did he ever receive all this wisdom? Did not his unfaithfulness prevent the fulfilment of the divine purpose? Instead of being the wisest of men, did he not become more brutish than any man? Did he not even lose the knowledge of his Creator, and worship the abominations of the Moabites, Zidonians, &c., &c.? And was not such idolatry a proof of the grossest stupidity? How few proofs does his life give that the gracious purpose of God was fulfilled in him! He received much; but he would have received much more, had he been faithful to the grace given. No character in the sacred writings disappoints us more than the character of Solomon.

book was written by divine inspiration; much less that it celebrates the love between Christ and his church, or is at all profitable for doctrine, for reproof, or for edification in righteousness. 4. That Solomon is most expressly reproved in Scripture for this very match. Now, although it be not expressly said that Pharaoh's daughter is here intended, yet there is all reasonable evidence that she is included; and, indeed, the words seem to intimate that she is especially referred to. In ver. 3 it is said Solomon loved the LORD, walking in the statutes of David; and Nohemiah says, Did not Solomon, king of Israel, sin by these things, who was beloved of his God; referring, most probably, to this early part of Solomon's history. But supposing that this is not sufficient evidence that this match is spoken against in Scripture, let us turn to chap. xi. 1, 2, of this book, where the cause of Solomon's apostasy is assigned; and there we read, But king Solomon loved many strange women, together with the daughter of Pharaoh, women of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonians, and Hittites: of the nations which the Lord said unto the children of Israel, Ye shall not go in unto them; neither shall they come in unto you; for surely they will turn away your heart after their gods: SOLOMON CLAVE UNTO THESE IN LOVE. Here the marriage with Pharaoh's daughter is classed most positively with the most exceptionable of his matrimonial and concubinal alliances; as it no doubt had its predisposing share in an apostasy the most unprecedented and disgraceful. [It must be noted, however, that Pharaoh's daughter is not named among the wives of Solomon who practised idolatry, and led the king into it, neither is there any trace of Egyptian idolatry in Judah during his reign. The passage in ch. xi. 1, 2 in reality distinguishes her from the strange women.]

Verse 2. The people sacrificed in high places] Could there be any sin in this, or was it unlawful till after the temple was built? for prophets, judges, the kings which preceded Solomon, and Solomon himself, sacrificed on high places, such as Gibeon, Gilgal, Shiloh, Hebron, Kirjath-jearim, &c. But after the temple was erected, it was sinful to offer sacrifices in any other place; yet here it is introduced as being morally wrong, and as an exceptionable trait in the character of Solomon. The explanation appears to 17 And the one woman said, O my lord, I and this woman dwell in one house; and I was delivered of a child with her in the house.

18 And it came to pass the third day after that I was delivered, that this woman was delivered also: and we were together; there was no stranger with us in the house, save we two in the house.

19 And this woman's child died in the night; because she overlaid it.

20 And she arose at midnight, and took my son from beside me, while thine handmaid slept, and laid it in her bosom, and laid her dead child in my bosom.

21 And when I rose in the morning to give my child suck, behold, it was dead: but when I had considered it in the morning, behold, it was not my son, which I did bear.

22 And the other woman said, Nay; but the living is my son, and the dead is thy son, And this said, No: but the dead is thy son, and the living is my son. Thus they spake before the king.

* Gen. xliii. 30. Isa. xlix. 15. Jer. xxxi. 20. Hos. xi. 8.

None like thee before thee] That is, no king, either in or among the nations, as the following verse explains.

Verse 16. Then came there two women—harlots] The word zonoth, which we here, and in some other places, improperly translate harlots, is by the Chaldee (the best judge in this case) rendered tavern-keepers. (See on Josh. ii. 1.) If these had been harlots, it is not likely they would have dared to appear before Solomon; and if they had been common women, it is not likely they would have had children; nor is it likely that such persons would have been permitted under the reign of David.

Verse 25. Divide the living child in two] This was apparently a very strange decision, and such as nothing could vindicate had it been carried into execution; but Solomon saw that the only way to find out the real mother was by the affection and tenderness which she would necessarily show to her offspring. He plainly saw that the real mother 23 Then said the king, The one saith, This is my son that liveth, and thy son is the dead: and the other saith, Nay; but thy son is the dead, and my son is the living.

24 And the king said, Bring me a sword. And they brought a sword before the king.

25 And the king said, Divide the living child in two, and give half to the one and half to the other.

26 Then spake the woman whose the living child was unto the king, for 'her bowels' yearned upon her son, and she said, O my lord, give her the living child, and in no wise slay it. But the other said, Let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it.

27 Then the king answered and said, Give her the living child, and in no wise slay it: she is the mother thereof.

28 And all Israel heard of the judgment which the king had judged; and they feared the king: for they saw that the 'wisdom of God was' in him, to do judgment.

would rather relinquish her claim to her child than see it hewn in pieces before her eyes, while it was probable the pretender would see this with indifference. This was a proof of his sound judgment, penetration, and acquaintance with human nature; but surely it is not produced as a proof of extraordinary and supernatural wisdom. We have several similar decisions even among heathens.

Verse 28. They feared the king] This decision proved that they could not impose upon him; and they were afraid to do those things which might bring them before his judgment-seat.

They saw that the wisdom of God was in him] They perceived that he was taught of God, judged impartially, and could not be deceived. What was done to the other woman we are not told: justice certainly required that she should be punished for her lies and fraud.

* Adoniram the son of Abda was over the tribute.

7 And Solomon had twelve officers over all Israel, which provided victuals for the king and his household: each man his month in a year made provision.

8 And these are their names: * The son of Hur, in Mount Ephraim:

9 * The son of Dekar, in Makaz, and in Shaalbim, and Beth-shemesh, and Elon-beth-hanan:

10 * The son of Hesei, in Aruboth: to him pertained Sochoh, and all the land of Hopher:

11 * The son of Abinadab, in all the region of Dor; which had Taphath the daughter of Solomon to wife;

12 Baana the son of Ahilud; to him pertained Taanach and Megiddo, and all Beth-shean, which is by Zartanah beneath Jezreel, from Bethshean to Abel-meholah, even unto the place that is beyond Jokneam:

13 * The son of Geber, in Ramoth-gilead; to him pertained the towns of Jair the son of Manasseh, which are in Gilead; to him also pertained the region of Argob, which is in Bashan, threescore great cities with walls and brasen bars:

14 Ahinadab the son of Iddo had Mahanaim:

15 Ahimaaz was in Naphtali; he also took Basmath the daughter of Solomon to wife:

16 Baanah the son of Hushai was in Asher and in Aloth:

17 Jehoshaphat the son of Paruah, in Issachar:

18 Shimei the son of Elah, in Benjamin;

19 Geber the son of Uri was in the country of Gilead, in the country of Sihon king of the Amorites, and of Og king of Bashan; and he was the only officer which was in the land.

20 Judah and Israel were many, as the sand which is by the sea in multitude, * eating and drinking, and making merry.

21 And Solomon reigned over all kingdoms from the river unto the land of the Philistines, and unto the border of Egypt: they brought presents, and served Solomon all the days of his life.

22 And Solomon's provision for one day was thirty measures of fine flour, and threescore measures of meal, 23 Ten fat oxen, and twenty oxen out of the pastures, and an hundred sheep, beside harts, and roebucks, and fallow-deer, and fatted fowl.

24 For he had dominion over all the region on this side of the river, from Tiphshah even to Azzah, over all the kings on this side the river: and he had peace on all sides round about him.

25 And Judah and Israel dwelt safely, every man under his vine and under his fig-tree, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, all the days of Solomon.

26 And Solomon had forty thousand stalls of horses for his chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen.

27 And those officers divided victual for king Solomon, and for all that came unto king Solomon's table, every man in his month: they lacked nothing.

28 Barley also and straw for the horses and dromedaries brought they unto the place where the officers were, every man according to his charge.

29 And God gave Solomon wisdom and understanding exceeding much, and largeness of heart, even as the sand that is on the sea-shore.

30 And Solomon's wisdom excelled the wisdom of all the children of the east country, and all the wisdom of Egypt.

31 For he was wiser than all men: * than Ethan

Verse 7. Twelve officers.] The business of these twelve officers was to provide daily, each for a month, those provisions which were consumed in the king's household: see verses 22 and 23. And the task for such a daily provision was not an easy one.

Verse 13. Threescore great cities with walls and brasen bars.] These were fortified cities; their gates and bars covered with plates of brass.

Verse 20. Eating and drinking, and making merry.] They were very comfortable, very rich, very merry, and very corrupt. And this full feeding and dissipation led to a total corruption of manners.

Verse 21. Solomon reigned over all kingdoms.] The meaning of this verse appears to be, that Solomon reigned over all the provinces from the river Euphrates to the land of the Philistines, even to the frontiers of Egypt. The Euphrates was on the east of Solomon's dominions; the Philistines were westward on the Mediterranean sea; and Egypt was on the south. Solomon had, therefore, as tributaries, the kingdoms of Syria, Damascus, Moab, and Ammon, which lay between the Euphrates and the Mediterranean. Thus he appears to have possessed all the land that God covenanted with Abraham to give to his posterity.

Verse 22. Solomon's provision for one day.] The cor or measure was the same as the homer, and contained nearly seventy-six gallons, wine measure, according to Bishop Cumberland.

Verse 23. Fatted fowl.] I suppose this means all the wild fowls in season during each month. Many have translated the word capons; but, query, was any such thing known among the ancient Jews?

But how immense must the number of men have been who were fed daily at the palace of the Israelitish king! Vilalpandus computes the number to be not less than forty-eight thousand, six hundred; and Calvisius makes, by estimation from the consumption of food, fifty-four thousand! These must have included all his guards, each of whom received a ration from the king's stores.

Verse 25. Every man under his vine.] They were no longer obliged to dwell in fortified cities for fear of their enemies; they spread themselves over all the country, which they every where cultivated; and had always the privilege of eating the fruits of their own labours.

Verse 26. Solomon had forty thousand stalls of horses—and twelve thousand horsemen.] In 2 Chron. ix. 25, instead of forty thousand stalls, we read four thousand; we may rest satisfied that there is a corruption in the numbers somewhere.

Verse 28. And dromedaries.] The original word seems to signify a very swift kind of horse, and race-horse or post-horse is probably its true meaning. To communicate with so many distant provinces, Solomon had need of many animals of this kind.

Verse 29. God gave Solomon wisdom, &c.] He gave him a capacious mind, and furnished him with extraordinary assistance to cultivate it.

Even as the sand that is on the sea-shore.] Lord Bacon observes on this: "As the sand on the sea-shore incloses a great body of waters, so Solomon's mind contained an ocean of knowledge." This is a happy and correct illustration.

Verse 30. The children of the east country.] That is, the Chaldeans, Persians, and Arabians, who, with the Egyptians, were famed for wisdom and knowledge through all the world.

Verse 31. He was wiser than all men.] He was wiser than any of those who were most celebrated in his time, among whom were the four after mentioned, viz., Ethan, Heman, Chalcol, and Darda. Ethan was probably the same as is mentioned in some of the Psalms, particularly Ps. lxxxix.

the Ezrahite, and Heman, * and Chalcol, and Darda, the sons of Mahol; and his fame was in all nations round about.

32 And <sup>b</sup> he spake three thousand proverbs; and his <sup>c</sup> songs were a thousand and five.

title; and among the singers in 1 Chron. vi. 42. There is a Heran mentioned in the title to Ps. lxxxviii. In 1 Chron. ii. 6 we have all the four names, but they are probably not the same persons, for they are there said to be the sons of Zeruh, and he flourished long before Solomon's time.

Some suppose that beney machol, "the sons of Mahol," should be rendered masters of dancing or music, as machol signifies, not only a dance or choir, but also an instrument of music of the pipe kind.

Verse 32. He spake three thousand proverbs] The Book of Proverbs, attributed to Solomon, contains only about nine hundred or nine hundred and twenty-three distinct proverbs; and if we grant with some that the first nine chapters are not the work of Solomon, then all that can be attributed to him is only about six hundred and fifty.

Of all his one thousand and five songs or poems we have only one, the Book of Canticles, remaining, unless we include Ps. cxxvii., Except the Lord build the house, &c., which in that is in Lebanon even unto the hyssop that springeth out of the wall; he spake also of beasts, and of fowl, and of creeping things, and of fishes.

the title is said to be by or for him, though it appears more properly to be a psalm of direction, left him by his father David, relative to the building of the temple. [Psalms lxii. and cxxxii. are attributed to him.]

Verse 33. He spake of trees—beasts—fowl—creeping things, and of fishes.] This is a complete system of natural history, as far as relates to the animal and vegetable kingdoms, and the first intimation we have of any thing of the kind. Solomon was probably the first natural historian in the world.

Verse 34. There came of all the people to hear the wisdom of Solomon] We learn from chap. x. that the queen of Sheba was one of those visitants, and perhaps the most remarkable, as we have the particulars of her visits, but not of the others.

The people that came from all kings of the earth were probably ambassadors, who came to form and maintain friendships between their sovereigns and the Israelitish king.

CHAPTER V.

Hiram, king of Tyre, sends to congratulate Solomon on his accession to the kingdom, 1. Solomon consults him on building a temple for the Lord, and requests his assistance, 2-6. Hiram is pleased, and specifies the assistance which he will afford, 7-9. He sends cedars and fir-trees, 10. The return made by Solomon, 11. They form a league, 12. Solomon makes a levy of men in Israel to prepare wood and stones, 13-18.

AND <sup>a</sup> Hiram king of Tyre sent his servants unto Solomon; for he had heard that they had anointed him king in the room of his father: <sup>b</sup> for Hiram was ever a lover of David.

2 And <sup>c</sup> Solomon sent to Hiram, saying,

3 Thou knowest how that David my father could not build an house unto the name of the LORD his God <sup>d</sup> for the wars which were about him on every side, until the LORD put them under the soles of his feet.

4 But now the LORD my God hath given me <sup>e</sup> rest on every side, so that there is neither adversary nor evil occurrent.

5 <sup>f</sup> And, behold, I <sup>g</sup> purpose to build an house unto the name of the LORD my God, <sup>h</sup> as the LORD spake unto David my father, saying, Thy son, whom I will set upon thy throne in thy room, he shall build an house unto my name.

6 Now therefore command thou that they hew me <sup>i</sup> cedar-trees out of Lebanon; and my servants shall be with thy servants: and unto thee will I give hire for thy servants according to all that thou shalt <sup>j</sup> appoint: for thou knowest that there is not among us any that can skill to hew timber like unto the Sidonians.

7 And it came to pass, when Hiram heard the words of Solomon, that he rejoiced greatly, and said, Blessed be the LORD this day, which hath given unto David a wise son over this great people.

8 And Hiram sent to Solomon, saying, I have <sup>k</sup> considered the things which thou sentest to me for: and I will do all thy desire concerning timber of cedar, and concerning timber of fir.

Verse 1. Hiram king of Tyre] Some suppose that the Hiram mentioned here is different from him who was the friend of David; but there seems no very solid reason for this supposition. As Hiram had intimate alliance with David, and built his palace, 2 Sam. v. 11, he wished to maintain the same good understanding with his son, of whose wisdom he had no doubt heard the most advantageous accounts; and he loved the son because he always loved the father, for Hiram was ever a lover of David.

Verse 2. Solomon sent to Hiram] Made an interchange of ambassadors and friendly greetings.

Verse 4. There is neither adversary] There is no satan—no opposer, nor any kind of evil; all is peace and quiet, both without and within. God has given me this quiet that I may build his temple.

Verse 5. An house unto the name of the Lord] The name of God is God himself. I purpose to build a house to that infinite and eternal Being called Jehovah.

Sam. vii. 18. 1 Chron. xvii. 12. xxii. 10.—<sup>i</sup> 2 Chron. ii. 8, 10.—<sup>j</sup> Heb. say.—<sup>k</sup> Heb. heard.

Verse 6. Any that can skill to hew timber] An obsolete and barbarous expression for any that know how to cut timber. They had neither sawyers, carpenters, joiners, nor builders among them equal to the Sidonians. Sidon was a part of the territories of Hiram, and its inhabitants appear to have been the most expert workmen.

Verse 7. Blessed be the Lord this day] From this, and indeed from every part of Hiram's conduct, it is evident that he was a worshipper of the true God: unless, as was the case with many of the heathens, he supposed that every country had its own god, and every god his own country, and he thanked the god of Israel that he had given so wise a prince to govern those whom he considered his friends and allies: but the first opinion seems to be the most correct.

9 My servants shall bring them down from Lebanon unto the sea: *and I will convey them by sea in floats unto the place that thou shalt <sup>b</sup>appoint me, and will cause them to be discharged there, and thou shalt receive them: and thou shalt accomplish my desire, <sup>c</sup>in giving food for my household.

10 So Hiram gave Solomon cedar-trees and firs-trees according to all his desire.

11 <sup>d</sup>And Solomon gave Hiram twenty thousand *measures of wheat for food to his household, and twenty measures of pure oil: thus gave Solomon to Hiram year by year.

12 And the LORD gave Solomon wisdom 'as he promised him: and there was peace between Hiram and Solomon; and they two made a league together.

13 And king Solomon raised a <sup>e</sup>levy out of all Israel; and the levy was thirty thousand men.

Verse 9. Shall bring them down from Lebanon unto the sea] As the river Adonis was in the vicinity of the forest of Lebanon, and emptied itself into the Mediterranean Sea, near Biblos, Hiram could transport the timber, cut so as to occupy the place it was intended for in the building, without any farther need of axe or saw. It might readily be sent down the coast on rafts, and landed at Joppa, or Jamnia, just opposite to Jerusalem, at the distance of about twenty-five miles. See 2 Chron. ii. 16.

Verse 11. And Solomon gave Hiram, &c.] The information in this verse of the annual stipend paid to Hiram, is deficient, and must be supplied out of 2 Chron. ii. 10. Here twenty thousand measures of wheat and twenty measures of pure oil is all that is promised; there, twenty thousand measures of beaten wheat, twenty thousand measures of barley, twenty thousand baths of wine, and twenty thousand baths of oil, is the stipulation; unless we suppose the first to be for Hiram's own family, the latter for his workmen.

Verse 13. The levy was thirty thousand men.] We find from the following verse that only ten thousand were employed at once, and those only for one month at a time; and having rested two months, they again resumed their 14 And he sent them to Lebanon, ten thousand <sup>a</sup>month by courses: a month they were in Lebanon and two months at home: and <sup>b</sup>Adoniram was over the levy.

15 <sup>c</sup>And Solomon had threescore and ten thousand that bare burdens, and fourscore thousand hewers in the mountains;

16 Beside the chief of Solomon's officers which were over the work, three thousand and three hundred, which ruled over the people that wrought in the work.

17 And the king commanded, and they brought great stones, costly stones, and <sup>d</sup>hewed stones, to lay the foundation of the house.

labour. These were the persons over whom Adoniram was superintendent, and were all Israelites.

Verse 15. Threescore and ten thousand that bare burdens] These were all strangers, or prosclytes, dwelling among the Israelites, as we learn from the parallel place, 2 Chron. ii. 17, 18.

Verse 16. Beside—three thousand and three hundred, which ruled over the people] In the parallel place, 2 Chron. ii. 18, it is three thousand six hundred. The Septuagint has here the same number.

Verse 17. Great stones] Stones of very large dimensions. Costly stones] Stones that cost much labour and time to cut them out of the rock.

Hewed stones] Every where squared and polished.

Verse 18. And the stone-squarers] Instead of stone-squarers the margin very properly reads Giblites; and refers to Ezek. xxvii. 9, where we find the inhabitants of Gabal celebrated for their knowledge in ship-building. Some suppose that these Giblites were the inhabitants of Biblos, at the foot of Mount Libanus, northward of Sidon, on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea; famous for its wines; and now called Gaeta.

CHAPTER VI.

*In the four hundred and eightieth year from the exodus, in the fourth year of Solomon's reign, and in the second month, he laid the foundations of the temple; the length sixty cubits, the breadth twenty, and the height thirty cubits; besides the porch, which was twenty cubits in length, and ten cubits in height, 1-3. AND 'it came to pass in the four hundred and eightieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of Solomon's reign over *2 Chron. iii. 1, 2.—<sup>a</sup> Acts vii. 47.

Verse 1. In the four hundred and eightieth year] The Septuagint has the four hundred and fortieth year.

The month Zif] This answers to a part of our April and May; and was the second month of the sacred year, but the eighth month of the civil year. Before the time of Solomon, the Jews do not appear to have had any names for their months, but mentioned them in the order of their consecutive occurrence, first month, second month, third month, &c. In this chapter, we find Zif and Bul; and in ch. viii. ver. 2, we find another, Ethanim; and these are supposed to be borrowed from the Chaldeans; and consequently this book was written after the Babylonish captivity. Before this time, we find only the word Abib mentioned as the name of Israel, in the month Zif, which is the second month, that <sup>b</sup>he <sup>c</sup>began to build the house of the LORD.

2 And <sup>d</sup>the house which king Solomon built for the LORD, the length thereof was threescore cubits, a month, Exod. xiii. 4. Whether there were any others at that time, or whether Abib were really intended as the name of a month, we cannot absolutely say. The present names of the Hebrew months are:—Tisri, answering to a part of September and October, Marchesvan, Cisleu, Tebeth, Shebat, Adar, Nisan, Ijar, Sivan, Tammuz, Ab, and Elul.

Verse 2. The length thereof was threescore cubits] A cubit, according to Bishop Cumberland, is 21 inches, and 888 decimals, or 1 foot, 9 inches, and 888 decimals.

According to this, the length, 60 cubits, was	Yds.	Ft.	Inch.
The breadth, 20 cubits, was	36	1	5 28
The height, 30 cubits, was	12	0	5 76
	18	0	8 64

and the breadth thereof twenty cubits, and the height thereof thirty cubits. *

3 And the porch before the temple of the house, twenty cubits was the length thereof, according to the breadth of the house; and ten cubits was the breadth thereof before the house.

4 And for the house he made *windows<sup>b</sup> of narrow lights.

5 And *against the wall of the house he built *chambers<sup>c</sup> round about, against the walls of the house round about, both of the temple<sup>d</sup> and of the oracle: and he made *chambers round about:

6 The nethermost chamber was five cubits broad, and the middle was six cubits broad; and the third was seven cubits broad: for without in the wall of the house he made<sup>e</sup> narrowed rests round about; that the beams should not be fastened in the walls of the house.

7 And<sup>f</sup> the house, when it was in building, was built of stone made ready before it was brought thither: so that there was neither hammer nor ax nor any tool of iron heard in the house, while it was in building.

8 The door of the middle chamber was in the right<sup>g</sup> side of the house: and they went up with winding stairs into the middle chamber; and out of the middle into the third.

9 *So he built the house, and finished it; and covered the house<sup>h</sup> with beams and boards of cedar.

10 And then he built chambers against all the house, five cubits high: and they rested on the house with timber of cedar.

11 And the word of the LORD came to Solomon, saying,

12 Concerning this house which thou art in building, *if thou wilt walk in my statutes, and execute my judgments, and keep all my commandments to walk in them; then will I perform my word with thee, *which I spake unto David thy father:

This constituted what was called the temple or house, the house of God, &c. But, besides this, there were courts and colonnades, where people might assemble to perform their devotions and assist at the sacrifices, without being exposed to the open air. The court surrounded the temple, or holy place, into which the priests alone entered. Sometimes the whole of the building is called the temple; at other times that, the measurement of which is given above. But as no proper account can be given of such a building in notes; and as there is a great variety of opinion concerning the temple, its structure, ornaments, &c., as mentioned in the Book of Kings and Chronicles, in Ezekiel, and by Josephus; and as modern writers have produced very different buildings, I think it best to hazard nothing on the subject, as I find I cannot give any thing as the likeness of Solomon's temple, which I could say, either in honour or conscience, bears any affinity to it.

Verse 4. Windows of narrow lights.] Probably latticed windows; windows through which a person within could see well; but a person without, nothing. We hear nothing of glass or any other diaphanous substance. Window, perhaps originally windore, a door to let the wind in, in order to ventilate the building, and through which external objects might be discerned.

Verse 7. The house—was built of stone.] It appears that every stone was hewn and squared, and its place in the building ascertained, before it came to Jerusalem: the timbers were fitted in like manner. On this account, that all was prepared at Mount Lebanon, there was neither ham-

13 And *I will dwell among the children of Israel, and will not forsake my people Israel.

14 *So Solomon built the house, and finished it.

15 And he built the walls of the house within with boards of cedar, *both the floor of the house, and the walls of the ceiling: and he covered them on the inside with wood, and covered the floor of the house with planks of fir.

16 And he built twenty cubits on the sides of the house, both the floor and the walls with boards of cedar: he even built them for it within, even for the oracle, even for the *most holy place.

17 And the house, that is, the temple before it, was forty cubits long.

18 And the cedar of the house within was carved with *knops and *open flowers: all was cedar; there was no stone seen.

19 And the oracle he prepared in the house within, to set there the ark of the covenant of the LORD.

20 And the oracle in the forepart was twenty cubits in length, and twenty cubits in breadth, and twenty cubits in the height thereof: and he overlaid it with *pure gold: and so covered the altar which was of cedar.

21 So Solomon overlaid the house within with pure gold: and he made a partition by the chains of gold before the oracle; and he overlaid it with gold.

22 And the whole house he overlaid with gold, until he had finished all the house; also *the whole altar that was by the oracle he overlaid with gold.

23 And within the oracle<sup>a</sup> he made two cherubims of *olive-tree, *each ten cubits high.

24 And five cubits was the one wing of the cherub, and five cubits the other wing of the cherub: from the uttermost part of the one wing unto the uttermost part of the other were ten cubits.

25 And the other cherub was ten cubits: both cherubims were of one measure and one size.

mer, ax, nor any tool of iron heard in the building; nothing except mallets to drive the tenons into the mortices, and drive in the pins to fasten them, was necessary: therefore there was no noise. But why is this so particularly marked? Is it not because the temple was a type of the kingdom of God; and the souls of men are to be prepared here for that place of blessedness? There, there is no preaching, exhortations, repentance, tears, cries, nor prayers; the stones must be all squared and fitted here for their place in the New Jerusalem; and, being living stones, must be built up a holy temple for an habitation of God through the Spirit.

Verse 9. Covered the house with beams and boards of cedar.] The eastern custom is very different from ours: we ceil with plaster and make our floors of wood; they make their floors of plaster or painted tiles, and make their ceilings of wood. But it may not be improper to observe that, in ancient times, our buildings were somewhat similar.

Verse 11. The word of the Lord came to Solomon.] Some think that this is the same revelation as that mentioned chap. ix. 2, &c., which took place after the dedication of the temple: but to me it appears different; it was a word to encourage him while building; to warn him against apostasy, and to assure him of God's continued protection of him and his family, if they continued faithful to the grace which God had given.

Verse 22. The whole house he overlaid with gold.] It is impossible to calculate this expense, or the quantity of gold employed in this sacred building.

26 The height of the one cherub was ten cubits, and so was it of the other cherub.

27 And he set the cherubims within the inner house: and <sup>a</sup>they <sup>b</sup>stretched forth the wings of the cherubims, so that the wing of the one touched the one wall, and the wing of the other cherub touched the other wall; and their wings touched one another in the midst of the house.

28 And he overlaid the cherubims with gold.

29 And he carved all the walls of the house round about with carved figures of cherubims and palm-trees and <sup>c</sup>open flowers, within and without.

30 And the floor of the house he overlaid with gold, within and without.

31 And for the entering of the oracle he made doors of olive-tree: the lintel and side posts were <sup>d</sup>a fifth part of the wall.

32 The <sup>e</sup>two doors also were of olive-tree; and he carved upon them carvings of cherubims and palm-trees and <sup>f</sup>open flowers, and overlaid them with gold,

Verse 26. The height of the one cherub was ten cubits] The height of each cherub was about eighteen feet and three inches.

Verse 36. Three rows of hewed stone, and a row of cedar beams] Does not this intimate that there were three courses of stone, and then one course of timber all through this wall? Three strata of stone and one stratum of timber, and so on. If so, could such a building be very durable? But it should be observed that this was in the inner court, and therefore the timber was not exposed to the weather. The outer court does not appear to have been built stratum super stratum of stone and wood.

Verse 38. In the eleventh year—was the house finished] It is rather strange that this house required seven years and and spread gold upon the cherubims, and upon the palm-trees.

33 So also made he for the door of the temple posts of olive-tree, <sup>g</sup>a fourth part of the wall.

34 And the two doors were of fir-tree: the <sup>h</sup>two leaves of the one door were folding, and the two leaves of the other door were folding.

35 And he carved thereon cherubims and palm-trees and open flowers: and covered them with gold fitted upon the carved work, 36 And he built the inner court with three rows of hewed stone, and a row of cedar beams.

37 <sup>i</sup>In the fourth year was the foundation of the house of the LORD laid, in the month Zif:

38 And in the eleventh year, in the month Bul, which is the eighth month, was the house finished <sup>j</sup>throughout all the parts thereof, and according to all the fashion of it. So was he <sup>k</sup>seven years in building it.

about six months to put all the stones and the timbers in their places, for we have already seen that they were all prepared before they came to Jerusalem; but the ornamenting, gilding, or overlaying with gold, making the carved work, cherubim, trees, flowers, &c., must have consumed a considerable time. The month Bul answers to a part of our October and November, as Zif, in which it was begun, answers to a part of April and May.

The dedication did not take place till the following year, the twelfth of Solomon, because then, according to Archbishop Usher, the jubilee happened.

So was he seven years in building it.] Properly seven years and six months; but the Scripture generally expresses things in round numbers,

CHAPTER VII.

Solomon builds his own house, and completes it in thirteen years, 1. He builds another, called the house of the forest of Lebanon; and a house for Pharaoh's daughter, 2-12. He brings Hiram, a copper-smith, out of Tyre, who makes much curious work for the temple, 13-20. He makes the two pillars Jachin and Boaz, 21, 22. The molten sea, and the twelve oxen that bare it, 23-26. And ten brazen bases, and the ten lavers, with pots, shovels, and basons, all of which he cast in the plain of Jordan, 27-46. The quantity of brass too great to be weighed; and the vessels of the temple were all of pure gold, 47-50. Solomon brings into the house the silver and gold which his father had dedicated, 51.

BUT Solomon was building his own house thirteen years, and he finished all his house.

2 He built also the house of the forest of Lebanon; the length thereof was an hundred cubits, and the breadth thereof fifty cubits, and the height thereof thirty cubits, upon four rows of cedar pillars, with cedar beams upon the pillars.

3 And it was covered with cedar above upon the <sup>b</sup>beams, that lay on forty-five pillars, fifteen in a row.

Verse 1. Building his own house] This house is said to have been situated in Jerusalem, and probably was, what some call it, his winter's residence. It is called the king's house, chap. ix. 10.

Verse 2. The house of the forest of Lebanon] It was not built in Lebanon, but is thought to have been on Mount

4 And there were windows in three rows, and <sup>c</sup>light was against light in three ranks.

5 And all the <sup>d</sup>doors and posts were square, with the windows: and light was against light in three ranks.

6 And he made a porch of pillars; the length thereof was fifty cubits, and the breadth thereof thirty cubits: and the porch was <sup>e</sup>before them: and the <sup>f</sup>other pillars and the thick beam were <sup>g</sup>before them.

7 Then he made a porch for the throne where he

Sion. And why it was called the house of the forest of Lebanon does not appear; probably it was because it was built almost entirely of materials brought from that place.

Verse 7. A porch for the throne] One porch appears to have been devoted to the purpose of administering judgment, which Solomon did in person.

might judge, even the porch of judgment : and it was covered with cedar * from one side of the floor to the other.

3 And his house where he dwelt had another court within the porch, which was of the like work. Solomon made also an house for Pharaoh's daughter, <sup>b</sup> whom he had taken to wife, like unto this porch.

9 All these were of costly stones, according to the measures of hewed stones, sawed with saws within and without, even from the foundation unto the coping, and so on the outside toward the great court.

10 And the foundation was of costly stones, even great stones, stones of ten cubits, and stones of eight cubits, 11 And above were costly stones, after the measures of hewed stones, and cedars.

12 And the great court round about was with three rows of hewed stones, and a row of cedar beams, both for the inner court of the house of the LORD, <sup>c</sup> and for the porch of the house.

13 And king Solomon sent and fetched <sup>d</sup> Hiram out of Tyre.

14 <sup>e</sup> He was <sup>f</sup> a widow's son of the tribe of Naphtali, and <sup>g</sup> his father was a man of Tyre, a worker in brass : and <sup>h</sup> he was filled with wisdom, and understanding, and cunning to work all works in brass. And he came to king Solomon, and wrought all his work.

15 For he <sup>i</sup> cast <sup>j</sup> two pillars of brass, of eighteen cubits high apiece : and a line of twelve cubits did compass either of them about.

16 And he made two chapters of molten brass, to set upon the tops of the pillars : the height of the one chapter was five cubits, and the height of the other chapter was five cubits :

17 And nets of checker work, and wreaths of chain work, for the chapters which were upon the top of the pillars : seven for the one chapter, and seven for the other chapter.

18 And he made the pillars, and two rows round about upon the one net-work, to cover the chapters that were upon the top, with pomegranates : and so did he for the other chapter.

19 And the chapters that were upon the top of the pillars were of lily work in the porch, four cubits.

20 And the chapters upon the two pillars had pomegranates also above, over against the belly which was by the net-work : and the pomegranates were <sup>k</sup> two hundred in rows round about upon the other chapter.

Verse 8. An house for Pharaoh's daughter] This appears to have been a third house ; probably the whole three made but one building, and were in the same place, but distinguished from each other ; the first as Solomon's palace, the second as a house of judgment, a court-house ; the third, the harem, or apartments for the women.

Verse 13. Solomon sent and fetched Hiram out of Tyre.] This was not the Tyrian king, mentioned before, but a very intelligent coppersmith, of Jewish extraction by his mother's side, who was probably married to a Tyrian. In 2 Chron. ii. 14, this woman is said to be of the daughters of Dan, but here of the tribe of Naphtali. She might have been of Naphtali by her father, and of Dan by her mother, and so be indif-

22 And upon the top of the pillars was lily work : so was the work of the pillars finished.

23 And he made <sup>o</sup> a molten sea, ten cubits <sup>p</sup> from the one brim to the other : it was round all about, and his height was five cubits : and a line of thirty cubits did compass <sup>q</sup> it round about.

24 And under the brim of it round about there were knops compassing it, ten in a cubit, <sup>r</sup> compassing the sea round about : the knops were cast in two rows, when it was cast.

25 It stood upon <sup>s</sup> twelve oxen, three looking toward the north, and three looking toward the west, and three looking toward the south, and three looking toward the east : and the sea was set above upon them, and all their hinder parts were inward.

26 And it was an hand breadth thick, and the brim thereof was wrought like the brim of a cup, with flowers of lilies : it contained <sup>t</sup> two thousand baths.

27 And he made ten bases of brass ; four cubits was the length of one base, and four cubits the breadth thereof, and three cubits the height of it.

28 And the work of the bases was on this manner : they had borders, and the borders were between the ledges :

29 And on the borders that were between the ledges were lions, oxen, and cherubims : and upon the ledges there was a base above : and beneath the lions and oxen were certain additions made of thin work.

30 And every base had four brazen wheels, and plates of brass : and the four corners thereof had undersetters : under the laver were undersetters molten, at the side of every addition.

31 And the mouth of it within the chapter and above was a cubit : but the mouth thereof was round after the work of the base, a cubit and an half : and also upon the mouth of it were gravings with their borders, four-square, not round.

32 And under the borders were four wheels ; and the axletrees of the wheels were <sup>u</sup> joined to the base : and the height of a wheel was a cubit and half a cubit.

33 And the work of the wheels was like the work of a chariot wheel ; their axletrees, and their naves, and their fellows, and their spokes, were all molten.

34 And there were four undersetters to the four corners of one base : and the undersetters were of the very base itself.

35 And in the top of the base was there a round compass of half a cubit high ; and on the top of the base the ledges thereof and the borders thereof were of the same.

36 For on the plates of the ledges thereof, and on ferently called of the tribe of Naphtali or of the daughters of Dan. This appears to be the best solution of the difficulty.

Verse 15. He cast two pillars—eighteen cubits high] That is, about thirty feet in English measure.

A line of twelve cubits] In circumference. It would be difficult even now to procure a founder who could cast such massive pillars, whether solid or hollow.

Verse 21. The right pillar—Jachin] That is, He shall establish. The left pillar—Boaz, that is, in strength. These were no doubt emblematical ; for notwithstanding their names, they seem to have supported no part of the building.

Verse 27. He made ten bases] That is, pedestals for the ten lavens to rest on.

the borders thereof, he graved cherubims, lions, and palm-trees, according to the 'proportion of every one, and additions round about.

37 After this manner he made the ten bases: all of them had one casting, one measure, and one size.

38 Then <sup>b</sup> made he ten lavers of brass: one laver contained forty baths: and every laver was four cubits: and upon every one of the ten bases one laver.

39 And he put five bases on the right 'side of the house, and five on the left side of the house: and he set the sea on the right side of the house eastward over against the south.

40 And <sup>d</sup> Hiram made the lavers, and the shovels, and the basons. So Hiram made an end of doing all the work that he made king Solomon for the house of the LORD:

41 The two pillars, and the two bowls of the chapiters that were on the top of the two pillars; and the two 'net-works, to cover the two bowls of the chapiters, that were upon the pillars;

42 And four hundred pomegranates for the two net-works, even two rows of pomegranates for one net-work, to cover the two bowls of the chapiters that were 'upon the pillars;

43 And the ten bases, and ten lavers on the bases;

44 And one sea, and twelve oxen under the sea;

Verse 38. Then made he ten lavers] These were set on the ten bases or pedestals, and were to hold water for the use of the priests in their sacred office, particularly to wash the victims that were to be offered as a burnt-offering, as we learn from 2 Chron. iv. 6, but the brazen sea was for the priests to wash in.

Verse 40. So Hiram made an end] It is truly surprising, that in so short a time one artist could design and execute works of such magnitude, taste, and variety, however numerous his assistants might be. The mere building of the house was a matter of little difficulty in comparison of these internal works.

45 <sup>a</sup> And the pots, and the shovels, and the basons: and all these vessels, which Hiram made to king Solomon for the house of the LORD, were of <sup>b</sup> bright brass.

48 And Solomon made all the vessels that pertained unto the house of the LORD: <sup>a</sup> the altar of gold and <sup>b</sup> the table of gold, whereupon <sup>c</sup> the shew-bread was,

49 And the candlesticks of pure gold, five on the right side, and five on the left, before the oracle, with the flowers, and the lamps, and the tongs of gold.

50 And the bowls, and the snuffers, and the basons, and the spoons, and the censers of pure gold; and the hinges of gold, both for the doors of the inner house, the most holy place, and for the doors of the house, to wit, of the temple.

51 So was ended all the work that king Solomon made for the house of the LORD. And Solomon brought in the <sup>a</sup> things <sup>a</sup> which David his father had dedicated; even the silver, and the gold, and the vessels, did he put among the treasures of the house of the LORD.

Verse 46. Cast them, in the clay ground] In this place he found that particular kind of clay that was proper for his purpose.

Verse 51. Solomon brought in the things] It has been a question whether Solomon, in the structure of the temple, used any of the gold and silver which David had provided? And here it seems answered in the negative; for after the house was finished, with all its utensils and ornaments, with its immense profusion of gold, it is here said that Solomon brought in the silver, and the gold, and the vessels, which David his father had dedicated.

CHAPTER VIII.

Solomon assembles the elders of Israel, and brings up the ark, and the holy vessels, and the tabernacle, out of the city of David, and places them in the temple; on which account a vast number of sheep and oxen are sacrificed, 1-8. There was nothing in the ark save the two tables of stone, which Moses put there at Horeb, 9. The cloud of God's glory fills the house, 10, 11. Solomon blesses the people, 12-21. His dedicatory prayer, 22-53. Afterwards he blesses and exhorts the people, 54-61. They offer a sacrifice of twenty-two thousand oxen, and one hundred and twenty thousand sheep, 62, 63. He hallows the middle of the court for offerings; as the brazen altar which was before the Lord was too little, 64. He holds the feast of the dedication for seven days; and for other seven days, the feast of the tabernacle; and on the eighth day blesses the people, and sends them away joyful, 65, 66.

Verse 1. Then Solomon assembled] It has already been observed that Solomon deferred the dedication of the temple

2 And all the men of Israel assembled themselves unto king Solomon at the <sup>a</sup> feast in the month Ethanim, which is the seventh month.

3 And all the elders of Israel came, <sup>a</sup> and the priests took up the ark.

4 And they brought up the ark of the LORD, <sup>a</sup> and to the following year after it was finished, because that year, according to Archbishop Usher, was a jubilee.

the tabernacle of the congregation, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle, even those did the priests and the Levites bring up.

5 And king Solomon, and all the congregation of Israel, that were assembled unto him, were with him before the ark, <sup>a</sup>sacrificing sheep and oxen, that could not be told nor numbered for multitude.

6 And the priests <sup>b</sup>brought in the ark of the covenant of the Lord unto <sup>c</sup>his place, into the oracle of the house, to the most holy place, even <sup>d</sup>under the wings of the cherubims.

7 For the cherubims spread forth their two wings over the place of the ark, and the cherubims covered the ark and the staves thereof above.

8 And they <sup>e</sup>drew out the staves, that the <sup>f</sup>ends of the staves were seen out in the <sup>g</sup>holy place before the oracle, and they were not seen without: and there they are unto this day.

9 <sup>h</sup>There was nothing in the ark <sup>i</sup>save the two tables of stone, which Moses <sup>j</sup>put there at Horeb, <sup>k</sup>when <sup>l</sup>the Lord made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt.

10 And it came to pass, when the priests were come out of the holy place, that the cloud <sup>m</sup>filled the house of the Lord.

11 So that the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud: for the glory of the Lord had filled the house of the Lord.

12 <sup>n</sup>Then spake Solomon, The Lord said that he would dwell <sup>o</sup>in the thick darkness.

13 <sup>p</sup>I have surely built thee an house to dwell in, <sup>q</sup>a settled place for thee to abide in for ever.

14 And the king turned his face about, and

15 And he said, <sup>s</sup>Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, which <sup>t</sup>spake with his mouth unto David my father, and hath with his hand fulfilled it, saying,

16 <sup>u</sup>Since the day that I brought forth my people Israel out of Egypt, I chose no city out of all the tribes of Israel to build an house that <sup>v</sup>my name might be therein; but I chose <sup>w</sup>David to be over my people Israel.

17 And <sup>x</sup>it was in the heart of David my father to build an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel.

18 <sup>y</sup>And the Lord said unto David my father, Whereas it was in thine heart to build an house unto my name, thou didst well that it was in thine heart.

19 Nevertheless <sup>z</sup>thou shalt not build the house; but thy son that shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build the house unto my name.

20 And the Lord hath performed his word that he spake, and I am risen up in the room of David my father, and sit on the throne of Israel, <sup>aa</sup>as the Lord promised, and have built an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel.

21 And I have set there a place for the ark, wherein <sup>ab</sup>is the covenant of the Lord, which he made with our fathers, when he brought them out of the land of Egypt.

22 And Solomon stood before <sup>ac</sup>the altar of the Lord in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and <sup>ad</sup>spread forth his hands toward heaven:

Verse 2. At the feast in the month Ethanim] The feast of tabernacles, which was celebrated in the seventh month of what is called the ecclesiastical year.

Verse 4. They brought up—the tabernacle] It is generally agreed that there were now two tabernacles, one at Gibeon, and the other in the city of David, which one David had constructed as a temporary residence for the ark, in the event of a temple being built. Which of these tabernacles was brought into the temple at this time, is not well known; some think both were brought in, in order to prevent the danger of idolatry. I should rather suppose that the tabernacle from Gibeon was brought in, and that the temporary one erected by David was demolished.

Verse 8. And there they are unto this day] This proves that the book was written before the destruction of the first temple, but how long before we cannot tell.

Verse 10. When the priests were come out] That is, after having carried the ark into the holy of holies, before any sacred service had yet commenced.

Verse 11. The glory of the Lord had filled the house] The cloud, the symbol of the divine glory and presence, appears to have filled, not only the holy of holies, but the whole temple, court and all, and to have become evident to the people; and by this Solomon knew that God ~~had~~ honoured the place with his presence, and taken it for his habitation in reference to the people of Israel.

Verse 12. The Lord said—he would dwell] It was under the appearance of a cloud that God showed himself present with Israel in the wilderness; see Exod. xiv. 19, 20. And at the dedication of the tabernacle in the wilderness, God manifested himself in the same way that he did here at the dedication of the temple; see Exod. xl. 34, 35.

Verse 13. I have surely built thee an house] He was now fully convinced that the thing pleased God, and that he had taken this place for his settled habitation.

Verse 14. Blessed all the congregation] Though this blessing is not particularly stated, yet we may suppose that it was such as the high-priest pronounced upon the people (Num. vi. 24-26). But he may have had in view more particularly the conduct of Moses, who, when he had seen that the people had done all the work of the tabernacle, as the Lord had commanded them, blessed them, Exod. xxxix. 43; and the conduct of his father David, who, when the ark had been brought into the city of David, and the burnt-offerings and peace-offerings completed, blessed the people in the name of the Lord; 2 Sam. vi. 18.

Verse 16. Since the day, &c.] Mention is here made, says Dr. Kennicott, of some one place and some one person preferred above all others; and the preference is that of Jerusalem to other places, and of David to other men. In consequence of this remark, we shall see the necessity of correcting this passage by its parallel in 2 Chron. vi. 5, 6, where the thirteen Hebrew words now lost in Kings are happily preserved.

I do not think these thirteen words ever made a part of Kings, and, consequently, are not lost from it; nor do they exist here in any of the Versions; but their being found in Chronicles helps to complete the sense.

Verse 21. Wherein is the covenant of the Lord] As it is said, ver. 9, that there was nothing in the ark but the two tables of stone, consequently these are called the Covenant, i.e. a sign of the covenant; as our Lord calls the cup the new covenant in his blood, that is, the sign of the new covenant: for This is my body implies, This is the sign or emblem of my body.

Verse 22. Stood] He ascended the brazen scaffold, five cubits long, and five cubits broad, and three cubits high, and then kneeled down upon his knees, with his hands spread up to heaven; see ver. 54, and 2 Chron. v. 12, 13.

And spread forth his hands toward heaven] This was a usual custom in all nations: in prayer the hands were stretched out to heaven, as if to invite and receive assistance

23 And he said, "LORD God of Israel, <sup>b</sup> there is no God like thee, in heaven above, or on earth beneath, <sup>c</sup> who keepest covenant and mercy with thy servants that <sup>d</sup> walk before thee with all their heart:

24 Who hast kept with thy servant David my father that thou promisedst him: thou spakest also with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it with thine hand, as it is this day.

25 Therefore now, LORD God of Israel, keep with thy servant David my father that thou promisedst him, saying, "There <sup>e</sup> shall not fail thee a man in my sight to sit on the throne of Israel; <sup>f</sup> so that thy children take heed to their way, that they walk before me as thou hast walked before me.

26 <sup>g</sup> And now, O God of Israel, let thy word, I pray thee, be verified, which thou spakest unto thy servant David my father.

27 But <sup>h</sup> will God indeed dwell on the earth? behold, the heaven and <sup>i</sup> heaven of heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house that I have built?

28 Yet have thou respect unto the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O LORD my God, to hearken unto the cry and to the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee to day:

29 That thine eyes may be open toward this house night and day, even toward the place of which thou hast said, <sup>k</sup> My name shall be there: that thou mayest hearken unto the prayer which thy servant shall make <sup>l</sup> toward <sup>m</sup> this place.

30 <sup>n</sup> And hearken thou to the supplication of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, when they shall pray <sup>o</sup> toward this place: and hear thou in heaven thy dwelling place: and when thou hearest, forgive.

31 If any man trespass against his neighbour, <sup>p</sup> and <sup>q</sup> an oath be laid upon him to cause him to swear, and the oath come before thine altar in this house:

32 Then hear thou in heaven, and do, and judge thy servants, <sup>r</sup> condemning the wicked, to bring his way upon his head; and justifying the righteous, to give him according to his righteousness.

33 <sup>s</sup> When thy people Israel be smitten down before the enemy, because they have sinned against thee; and <sup>t</sup> shall turn again to thee, and confess thy name, and pray; and make supplication unto thee <sup>u</sup> in this house:

34 Then hear thou in heaven, and forgive the sin of thy people Israel, and bring them again unto the land which thou gavest unto their fathers.

35 <sup>v</sup> When heaven is shut up, and there is no rain, because they have sinned against thee; if they pray toward this place, and confess thy name, and turn from their sin, when thou afflictest them:

36 Then hear thou in heaven, and forgive the sin of thy servants, and of thy people Israel, that thou <sup>w</sup> teach them <sup>x</sup> the good way wherein they should walk, and give rain upon thy land, which thou hast given to thy people for an inheritance.

Verse 24. Who has kept with thy servant David? This is in reference to 2 Sam. vii. 13, where God promises to David that Solomon shall build a house for the name of the Lord.

Verse 27. But will God indeed dwell on the earth? This expression is full of astonishment, veneration, and delight. He is struck with the immensity, dignity, and grandeur of the Divine Being, but especially at his condescension to dwell with men: and though he sees, by his filling the place, that he has come now to make his abode with them, yet he cannot help asking the question, How can such a God dwell in such a place, and with such creatures?

Behold, the heaven! The words are all in the plural number in the Hebrew: "the heaven, and the heaven of heavens." What do these words imply? That there are systems, and systems of systems, each possessing its sun, its primary and secondary planets, all extending beyond each other in unlimited space, in the same regular and graduated order which we find to prevail in what we call our solar system; which, probably, in its thousands of millions of miles in diameter, is, to some others, no more than the area of the lunar orbit to that of the Georgium Sidus.

Verse 29. My name shall be there! I will there shew forth my power and my glory by enlightening, quickening, pardoning, sanctifying, and saving all my sincere worshippers.

Verse 30. Toward this place! Both tabernacle and temple were types of our Lord Jesus, or of God manifested in the flesh; and he was and is the Mediator between God and man. All prayer, to be acceptable, and to be entitled to a hearing, must go to God through Him. The human nature of Christ is the temple in which dwell all the fulness of the Godhead bodily; therefore with propriety all prayer must be offered to God through Him.

Verse 31. If any man trespass against his neighbour! Solomon puts here seven cases, in all of which the mercy and intervention of God would be indispensably requisite; and he earnestly bespeaks that mercy and intervention on condition that the people pray towards that holy place, and with a feeling heart make earnest supplication.

The first case is one of doubtfulness; where a man has sustained an injury, and charges it on a suspected person, though not able to bring direct evidence of the fact, the accused is permitted to come before the altar of God, and purge himself by his personal oath. Solomon prays that God may not permit a false oath to be taken, but that he will discover the truth, so that the wicked shall be condemned, and the righteous justified.

Verse 33. When thy people Israel be smitten down, &c. The second case. When their enemies make inroads upon them, and defeat them in battle, and lead them into captivity, because God, being displeased with their transgressions, has delivered them up: then if they shall turn again; confess the name of God, which they had in effect denied, by either neglecting his worship, or becoming idolatrous; and pray and make supplication; then, says Solomon, hear thou in heaven—and bring them again into the land which thou gavest unto their fathers.

Verse 35. When heaven is shut up, and there is no rain! The third case. When, because of their sin, and their ceasing to walk in the good way in which they should have walked, God refuses to send the early and latter rain, so that the appointed weeks of harvest come in vain, as there is no crop: then, if they pray and confess their sin, hear thou in heaven, &c.

Verse 37. If there be in the land famine—pestilence! The fourth case includes several kinds of evils. All such cases were to be brought before the Lord, the persons having a deep sense of the wickedness which induced God thus to afflict, or permit them to be afflicted; for only those who knew the plagues of their own hearts (ver. 38)—the deep-rooted moral corruption of their nature, and the destructive nature and sinfulness of sin, were likely to pray in such a manner as to induce God to hear and forgive.

38 What prayer and supplication soever be made by any man or by all thy people Israel, which shall know every man the plague of his own heart, and spread forth his hands toward this house :

39 Then hear thou in heaven thy dwelling-place, and forgive, and do, and give to every man according to his ways, whose heart thou knowest ; (for thou, even thou only, knowest the hearts of all the children of men ;)

40 <sup>b</sup> That they may fear thee all the days that they live in the land which thou gavest unto our fathers.

41 Moreover, concerning a stranger that is not of thy people Israel, but cometh out of a far country for thy name's sake ;

42 (For they shall hear of thy great name, and of thy strong hand, and of thy stretched-out arm ;) when he shall come and pray toward this house ;

43 Hear thou in heaven thy dwelling-place, and do according to all that the stranger calleth to thee for : <sup>c</sup> that all people of the earth may know thy name, to <sup>d</sup> fear thee, as do thy people Israel ; and that they may know that <sup>e</sup> this house, which I have builded, is called by thy name.

44 If thy people go out to battle against their enemy, whithersoever thou shalt send them, and shall pray unto the LORD <sup>f</sup> toward the city which thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I have built for thy name :

45 Then hear thou in heaven their prayer and their supplication, and maintain their <sup>g</sup> cause.

46 If they sin against thee (<sup>h</sup> for there is no man that sinneth not,) and thou be angry with them, and deliver them to the enemy, so that they carry them away captives <sup>i</sup> unto the land of the enemy, far or near ;

47 <sup>k</sup> Yet if they shall <sup>l</sup> bethink themselves in the land whither they were carried captives, and repent, and make supplication unto thee in the land of them that carried them captives, <sup>m</sup> saying, We have sinned, and have done perversely, we have committed wickedness ;

48 And so <sup>n</sup> return unto thee with all their heart, and with all their soul, in the land of their enemies, which led them away captive, and <sup>o</sup> pray unto thee toward their land, which thou gavest unto their fathers, the city which thou hast chosen, and the house which I have built for thy name :

49 Then hear thou their prayer and their supplication in heaven thy dwelling-place, and maintain their <sup>p</sup> cause.

50 And forgive thy people that have sinned against thee, and all their transgressions wherein they have transgressed against thee, and <sup>q</sup> give them compassion before them who carried them captive, that they may have compassion on them :

51 For <sup>r</sup> they be thy people, and thine inheritance, which thou broughtest forth out of Egypt, <sup>s</sup> from the midst of the furnace of iron :

52 That thine eyes may be open unto the supplication of thy servant, and unto the supplication of thy people Israel, to hearken unto them in all that they call for unto thee.

53 For thou didst separate them from among all the people of the earth, to be thine inheritance, <sup>t</sup> as thou spakest by the hand of Moses thy servant, when thou broughtest our fathers out of Egypt, O Lord God.

54 And it was so, that when Solomon had made an end of praying all this prayer and supplication unto the LORD, he arose from before the altar of the LORD, from kneeling on his knees with his hands spread up to heaven.

55 And he stood, <sup>u</sup> and blessed all the congregation of Israel with a loud voice, saying, 56 Blessed be the LORD, that hath given rest unto his people Israel, according to all that he promised : <sup>v</sup> there hath not <sup>w</sup> failed one word of all his good promise, which he promised by the hand of Moses his servant.

57 The LORD our God be with us, as he was with our fathers : <sup>x</sup> let him not leave us, nor forsake us :

58 That he may <sup>y</sup> incline our hearts unto him, to walk in all his ways, and to keep his commandments,

Verse 41. Moreover, concerning a stranger] The FIFTH case relates to heathens coming from other countries with the design to become proselytes to the true religion ; that they might be received, blessed, and protected as the true Israelites, that the name of Jehovah might be known over the face of the earth.

Verse 44. If thy people go out to battle] The SIXTH case refers to wars undertaken by divine appointment : whithersoever thou shalt send them ; for in no other wars could they expect the blessing and concurrence of the Lord ; in none other could the God of truth and justice maintain their cause. There were such wars under the Mosaic dispensation, there are none such under the Christian dispensation : nor can there be any ; for the Son of man is come, not to destroy men's lives, but to save them. Except mere defensive war, all others are diabolic ; and if there were no provocations, would there be any attacks, and consequently any need of defensive wars ?

Verse 46. If they sin against thee] This SEVENTH case must refer to some general defection from truth, to some species of false worship, idolatry or corruption of the truth and ordinances of the Most High ; as for it they are here stated to be delivered into the hands of their enemies and carried away captives, which was the general punishment for idolatry, and what is called, verse 47, acting perversely and committing wickedness.

In ver. 46 we read, If they sin against thee, for there is no man that sinneth not. On this verse we may observe that the second clause, as it is here translated, renders the supposition in the first clause entirely nugatory ; for if there be no man that sinneth not, it is useless to say, if they sin ; but this contradiction is taken away by reference to the original, which should be translated if they shall sin against thee, or should they sin against thee ; for there is no man that MAY not sin ; i.e. there is no man impeccable, none infallible, none that is not liable to transgress. The truth is, the Hebrew has no mood to express words in the permissive or optative way, but to express this sense it uses the future tense of the conjugation kal.

This text has been a wonderful stronghold for all who believe that there is no redemption from sin in this life, that no man can live without committing sin, and that we cannot be entirely freed from it till we die. 1. The text speaks no such doctrine ; it only speaks of the possibility of every man sinning, and this must be true of a state of probation. 2. There is not another text in the divine records that is more to the purpose than this. 3. The doctrine is flatly in opposition to the design of the gospel ; for Jesus came to save his people from their sins, and to destroy the works of the devil. 4. It is a dangerous and destructive doctrine, and should be blotted out of every Christian's creed.

Verse 63. Two and twenty thousand oxen] This was the whole amount of the victims that had been offered during the fourteen days; i.e. the seven days of the dedication, and the seven days of the feast of tabernacles. In what way could they dispose of the blood of so many victims?

dren of Israel dedicated the house of the Lord.

65 And at that time Solomon held <sup>f</sup>a feast, and all Israel with him, a great congregation, from <sup>g</sup>the entering in of Hamath unto <sup>h</sup>the river of Egypt, before the Lord our God, <sup>i</sup>seven days and seven days, <sup>j</sup>even fourteen days.

66 <sup>k</sup>On the eighth day he sent the people away: and they <sup>l</sup>blessed the king, and went unto their tents joyful and glad of heart for all the goodness that the Lord had done for David his servant, and for Israel his people.

Verse 64. Did the king hallow the middle of the court] The great altar of burnt-offerings was not sufficient for the number of sacrifices which were then made; therefore the middle of the court was set apart, and an altar erected there for the same purpose.

Verse 65. From—Hamath] Supposed to be Antioch [or rather Epiphania] of Syria; unto the river of Egypt—to the Rhinocorura; the former being on the north, the latter on the south: i.e. from one extremity of the land to the other.

Verse 66. They blessed the king] Wished him all spiritual and temporal happiness. They were contented with their king, at peace among themselves, and happy in their God; so that they returned to their houses magnifying their God for all his bounty to them, their country, and their king.

CHAPTER IX.

The Lord appears a second time to Solomon, and assures him that he had heard his prayer; and that he would establish his worship for ever in that temple, and him and his successors on the throne of Israel, provided he and they would keep his statutes and judgments, 1-5; but if they should transgress and forsake the Lord, then they should be cast off, the temple itself abandoned, and their enemies permitted to prevail over them, 6-9. Solomon having finished the temple and the king's house, about which he was employed twenty years, and having received assistance from Hiram king of Tyre, he gave him in return twenty cities in Galilee, with which he was not pleased, 10-14. Solomon's levies, buildings, and the persons employed, 15-23. Pharaoh's daughter comes to the city of David, 24. He sacrifices thrice a year at the temple, 25. Solomon's navy, and the gold they brought from Ophir, 26-28.

AND <sup>a</sup>it came to pass, when Solomon had finished the building of the house of the Lord, <sup>b</sup>and the king's house, and <sup>c</sup>all Solomon's desire which he was pleased to do.

2 That the Lord appeared to Solomon the second time, <sup>d</sup>as he had appeared unto him at Gibeon.

3 And the Lord said unto him, <sup>e</sup>I have heard thy prayer and thy supplication, that thou hast made before me: I have hallowed this house, which thou hast built, <sup>f</sup>to put my name there for ever; <sup>g</sup>and mine eyes and mine heart shall be there perpetually.

4 And if thou wilt <sup>h</sup>walk before me, <sup>i</sup>as David Verse 2. The Lord appeared to Solomon] The design of this appearance, which was in a dream, as that was at Gibeon, was to assure Solomon that God had accepted his service, and had taken that house for his dwelling-place, and thy father walked in integrity of heart, and in uprightness, to do according to all that I have commanded thee, and wilt keep my statutes and my judgments:

5 Then I will establish the throne of thy kingdom upon Israel for ever, <sup>a</sup>as I promised to David thy father, saying, There shall not fail thee a man upon the throne of Israel.

6 <sup>b</sup>But if ye shall at all turn from following me, ye or your children, and will not keep my commandments, and my statutes which I have set before you, but go and serve other gods, and worship them:

ii. 4. vi. 12. 1 Chron. xxi. 10. Ps. cxxxii. 12.—<sup>a</sup> 2 Sam. vii. 14. 2 Chron. vii. 12, 20. Ps. lxxxix. 30, &c.

would continue it, and establish him and his descendants upon the throne of Israel for ever, provided they served him with an upright heart; but on the contrary, if they forsook him, he would abandon both them and his temple.

7 *Then will I cut off Israel out of the land which I have given them; and this house which I have hallowed <sup>b</sup> for my name, will I cast out of my sight; <sup>c</sup> and Israel shall be a proverb and a byword among all people:

8 And <sup>d</sup> at this house, which is high, every one that passeth by it shall be astonished, and shall hiss; and they shall say, <sup>e</sup> Why hath the LORD done thus unto this land, and to this house?

9 And they shall answer, Because they forsook the LORD their God, who brought forth their fathers out of the land of Egypt, and have taken hold upon other gods, and have worshipped them, and served them: therefore hath the LORD brought upon them all this evil.

10 And it came to pass at the end of twenty years, when Solomon had built the two houses, the house of the LORD, and the king's house;

11 (*Now Hiram the king of Tyre had furnished Solomon with cedar-trees and fir-trees, and with gold, according to all his desire,) that then king Solomon gave Hiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee.

12 And Hiram came out from Tyre to see the cities which Solomon had given him; and they <sup>f</sup> pleased him not.

13 And he said, What cities are these which thou hast given me, my brother? <sup>g</sup> And he called them the land of <sup>h</sup> Cabul unto this day.

14 And Hiram sent to the king six score talents of gold.

16 For Pharaoh king of Egypt had gone up and taken Gezer, and burnt it with fire, <sup>n</sup> and slain the Canaanites that dwelt in the city, and given it for a present unto his daughter, Solomon's wife.

17 And Solomon built Gezer, and <sup>o</sup> Beth-horon the nether, 18 And <sup>p</sup> Baalath, and Tadmor in the wilderness, in the land, 19 And all the cities of store that Solomon had, and cities for <sup>q</sup> his chariots, and cities for his horsemen, and <sup>r</sup> that which Solomon <sup>s</sup> desired to build in Jerusalem, and in Lebanon, and in all the land of his dominion.

20 *And all the people that were left of the Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites, which were not of the children of Israel,

22 But of the children of Israel did Solomon <sup>x</sup> make no bondmen: but they were men of war, and his servants, and his princes, and his captains, and rulers of his chariots, and his horsemen.

23 These were the chief of the officers that were over Solomon's work, <sup>y</sup> five hundred and fifty, which bare rule over the people that wrought in the work.

24 But <sup>z</sup> Pharaoh's daughter came up out of the city of David unto <sup>aa</sup> her house which Solomon had built for her: <sup>ab</sup> then did he build Millo.

25 * And three times in a year did Solomon offer burnt-offerings and peace-offerings upon the altar which he built unto the LORD, and he burnt incense <sup>ac</sup> upon the altar that was before the LORD. So he finished the house.

26 And <sup>ad</sup> king Solomon made a navy of ships in <sup>ae</sup> Ezion-geber, which is beside Eloth, on the <sup>af</sup> shore of the Red Sea, in the land of Edom.

Verse 7. A proverb and a byword among all people] And so they are to the present; the unbelieving Jews, the stubborn, stiff-necked Jews, are words still in common use.

Verse 9. Have taken hold upon other gods] When an indigent person claims the protection of a superior, he casts himself down before him, and lays hold of his feet; and this expression is frequently used when there is no prostration: I have taken hold of thy feet.

Verse 10. At the end of twenty years] He employed seven years and a half in building the temple, and twelve years and a half in building the king's house: see chap. vii. 1; 2 Chron. viii. 1.

Verse 11. Solomon gave Hiram twenty cities] It appears however that either Hiram did not accept them, or that, having received the produce till he was paid, he then restored them to Solomon; for in the parallel place, 2 Chron. viii. 2, it is said, The cities which Hiram had restored to Solomon. Solomon built them and caused the children of Israel to dwell there. Some think that they were heathen cities which Solomon had conquered, and therefore had a right to give them if he pleased, as they were not any part of the land given by promise to the Israelites.

Verse 13. Called them the land of Cabul] Whether this epithet was given to this land by Hiram as a mark of disapprobation, or what is its proper meaning, the learned are not agreed. There was a country of this name in the promised land in the time of Joshua; Josh. xix. 27.

Verse 14. Sixscore talents of gold.] This was the sum which Hiram had lent, and in order to pay this Solomon had laid a tax upon his people, as we afterwards learn. The whole is very darkly expressed. [Some suppose that this gold was not raw, but wrought.]

Verse 15. This is the reason of the levy] That is, in order to pay Hiram the sixscore talents of gold which he had borrowed from him (Hiram not being willing to take the Galilean cities mentioned above; or, having taken them, soon restored them again) he was obliged to lay a tax upon the people; and that this was a grievous and oppressive tax we learn from chap. xii. 1-4, where the elders of Israel came to Rehoboam, complaining of their heavy state of taxation, and entreating that their yoke might be made lighter. [But this levy was one of men, not money; and the reason of it seems to have been to provide labourers for building.]

And Millo] This is supposed to have been a deep valley between Mount Sion and what was called the city of Jebus, which Solomon filled up, and it was built on, and became a sort of fortified place, and a place for public assemblies.

Verse 16. Pharaoh, had gone up, and taken Gezer] This city Joshua had taken from the Canaanites, Josh. x. 83, and xii. 12, and it was divided by lot to the tribe of Ephraim, and was intended to be one of the Levitical cities; but it appears that the Canaanites had retaken it, and kept possession till the days of Solomon, when his father-in-law, Pharaoh king of Egypt, retook it, and gave it to Solomon in dowry with his daughter.

Verse 18. And Tadmor in the wilderness] This is almost universally allowed to be the same with the celebrated Palmyra, the ruins of which remain to the present day, and give us the highest idea of Solomon's splendour and magnificence. Palmyra stood upon a fertile plain surrounded by a barren desert, having the river Euphrates on the east.

Verse 19. And all the cities of store] Though, by the multitude and splendour of his buildings, Solomon must have added greatly to the magnificence of his reign; yet, however 27 * And Hiram sent in the navy his servants, shipmen that had knowledge of the sea, with the servants of Solomon.

* Ch. x. 11.

plenteous silver and gold were in his times, his subjects must have been greatly oppressed with the taxation necessary to defray such a vast public expenditure.

Verse 21. A tribute of bond-service] He made them do the most laborious part of the public works, the Israelites being generally exempt.

Verse 25. Three times in a year did Solomon offer] Those three times were: 1. The passover. 2. The feast of pentecost. 3. The feast of tabernacles.

Verse 26. A navy of ships] Literally, oni, a ship: in the parallel place, 2 Chron. viii. 17, it is said that Hiram sent him onyoth, ships; but it does not appear that Solomon in this case built more than one ship, and this was manned principally by the Tyrians. [Gesenius translates the Hebrew by "fleet."]

Verse 28. And they came to Ophir] No man knows certainly, to this day, where this Ophir was situated. There were two places of this name; one somewhere in India, beyond the Ganges, and another in Arabia, near the country of the Sabæans, mentioned by Job, chap. xxii. 24.

CHAPTER X.

The queen of Sheba visits Solomon, and brings rich presents; and tries him by hard questions, which he readily solves, 1-3. She expresses great surprise at his wisdom, his buildings, his court, &c.; and praises God for placing him on the Jewish throne, 4-9. She gives him rich presents, 10. What the navy of Hiram brought from Ophir, 11, 12. The queen of Sheba returns, 13. Solomon's annual revenue, 14, 15. He makes two hundred targets and three hundred shields of gold, 16, 17. His magnificent ivory throne, 18-20. His drinking-vessels all of gold, 21. What the navy of Tharshish brought every three years to Solomon, 22. His great riches, numerous chariots, and horsemen, 23-27. He brings chariots and horses out of Egypt, 28, 29.

AND when the *queen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon concerning the name of the Lord, she came <sup>b</sup> to prove him with hard questions.

2 And she came to Jerusalem with a very great train, with camels that bare spices, and very much gold, and precious stones: and when she was come to Solomon, she communed with him of all that was in her heart.

3 And Solomon told her all her * questions: there was not any thing hid from the king, which he told her not.

4 And when the queen of Sheba had seen all Solomon's wisdom, and the house that he had built,

5 And the meat of his table, and the sitting of his servants, and the <sup>d</sup> attendance of his ministers, and their apparel, and his <sup>e</sup> cup-bearers, <sup>f</sup> and his

6 And she said to the king, It was a true * report that I heard in mine own land of thy <sup>h</sup> acts and of thy wisdom.

7 Howbeit I believed not the words, until I came, and mine eyes have seen it: and, behold, the half was not told me: <sup>i</sup> thy wisdom and prosperity exceedeth the fame which I heard.

8 <sup>j</sup> Happy are thy men, happy are these thy servants, which stand continually before thee, and that hear thy wisdom.

9 <sup>k</sup> Blessed be the Lord thy God, which delighted in thee, to set thee on the throne of Israel: because the Lord loved Israel for ever, therefore he made thee king, <sup>l</sup> to do judgment and justice.

Verse 1. When the Queen of Sheba heard] As our Lord calls her queen of the south (Mat. xii. 42), it is likely the name should be written Saba, Azab, or Azaba, all of which signify the south. She is called Balkis by the Arabians, but by the Abyssinians Maqueda.

With hard questions.] With parables and riddles.

Verse 2. She came to Jerusalem with—spices, &c.] Those who contend that she was queen of the Sabæans, a people of Arabia Felix, towards the southern extremity of the Red Sea, find several proofs of their opinion:

1. That the Sabæans abounded in riches and spices.

2. All ancient authors speak, not only of their odoriferous woods, but of their rich gold and silver mines, and of their precious stones.

3. It is also well known that the Sabæans had queens for their sovereigns, and not kings.

Verse 3. Solomon told her all her questions] Riddles, problems, fables, apologues, &c., formed the principal part of the wisdom of the East; indeed they use and delight in them to the present day.

Verse 4. Had seen all Solomon's wisdom] By the answers which he gave to her subtle questions.

And the house that he had built] Most probably his own house.

added wisdom and goodness to the fame.—<sup>j</sup> Prov. viii. 34.—<sup>k</sup> Ch. v. 7.—<sup>l</sup> 2 Sam. viii. 15. Ps. lxxii. 2. Prov. viii. 15.—<sup>m</sup> Ps. lxxii. 10, 15.

Verse 5. The meat of his table] The immense supply of all kinds of food daily necessary for the many thousands which were fed at and from his table.

And the sitting of his servants] The various orders and distinctions of his officers. [Or rather their apartments.]

And their apparel] The peculiarity of their robes, and their splendour and costliness.

And his cup-bearers] The original mashkai may as well be applied to his beverage, or to his drinking utensils, as to his cup-bearers.

And his ascent by which he went up] It seems very strange that the steps to the temple should be such a separate matter of astonishment. The original has been translated by all the Versions, And the holocausts which he offered in the house of the Lord. [The passage, 2 Chron. ix. 1, and that in Ezek. xl. 22, seem to confirm the rendering of the English text.]

There was no more spirit in her.] She was overpowered with astonishment; she fainted. [The text does not warrant the conclusion that she fainted.]

Verse 8. Happy are thy men] All these are very natural expressions from a person in her state of mind.

Verse 10. An hundred and twenty talents of gold] The worth of these one hundred and twenty talents of gold is twenty talents of gold, and of spices very great store, and precious stones: there came no more such abundance of spices as these which the queen of Sheba gave to king Solomon.

11 *And the navy also of Hiram, that brought gold from Ophir, brought in from Ophir great plenty of <sup>b</sup>almug-trees, and precious stones.

12 *And the king made of the almag-trees <sup>a</sup>pillars *for the house of the LORD, and for the king's house, harps also and psalteries for singers: there came no such <sup>a</sup>almug-trees, nor were seen unto this day.

13 And king Solomon gave unto the queen of Sheba all her desire, whatsoever she asked, beside that which Solomon gave her *of his royal bounty. So she turned and went to her own country, she and her servants.

14 Now the weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year was six hundred threescore and six talents of gold.

15 Beside that he had of the merchantmen, and of the traffick of the spice merchants, and <sup>a</sup>of all the kings of Arabia, and of the <sup>1</sup>governors of the country.

16 And king Solomon made two hundred targets of beaten gold: six hundred shekels of gold went to one target.

17 And he made <sup>1</sup>three hundred shields of beaten gold; three pound of gold went to one shield: and the king put them in the <sup>a</sup>house of the forest of Lebanon.

18 Moreover the king made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with the best gold.

19 The throne had six steps, and the top of the throne was round <sup>a</sup>behind: and there were <sup>a</sup>stays on either side on the place of the seat, and two lions stood beside the stays.

equal to £843,905. 10s. 4½d. of our British sterling. But the spices and precious stones might have been yet of more value.

Verse 11. Great plenty of almag-trees. In the parallel place, 2 Chron. ix. 10, 11, these are called almug-trees; probably the latter is the more correct orthography. What the almug-trees were we do not exactly know. [It was probably red sandal-wood.]

Verse 13. All her desire, whatsoever she asked. Some imagine she desired progeny from the wise king of Israel; and all the traditions concerning her state that she had a son by Solomon called Menilek, who was brought up at the Israelitish court, succeeded his mother in the kingdom of Saba, and introduced among his subjects the Jewish religion.

Verse 14. The weight of gold—was six hundred threescore and six talents. This would amount in our money to £4,683,675. 12s. 8½d. sterling. This seems to be what he got annually of bullion; but independently of this, he had tribute of all the kings of Arabia, duties from merchantmen, and the traffic of spice merchants; see ver. 25.

Verse 16. Solomon made two hundred targets of beaten gold. I have already conjectured that the teinnah might resemble the Highland targe or target, with a dagger projecting from the umbo or centre.

Verse 17. He made three hundred shields. The magen was a large shield by which the whole body was protected.

Verse 19. The throne—was round behind; and there were stays on either side. This description seems to indicate that the throne was in the form of one of our ancient round topped, two-armed chairs. This throne or chair of state was raised on a platform, the ascent to which consisted of six steps. What we call stays is in the Hebrew yadoth, hands, which serves to confirm the conjecture above.

20 And twelve lions stood there on the one side and on the other upon the six steps: there was not <sup>a</sup>the like made in any kingdom.

21 *And all king Solomon's drinking vessels were of gold, and all the vessels of the house of the forest of Lebanon were of pure gold; <sup>a</sup>none were of silver: it was nothing accounted of in the days of Solomon.

22 For the king had at sea a navy of <sup>a</sup>Tharshish with the navy of Hiram; once in three years came the navy of Tharshish, bringing gold, and silver, <sup>a</sup>ivory, and apes, and peacocks.

23 So <sup>a</sup>king Solomon exceeded all the kings of the earth for riches and for wisdom.

24 And all the earth <sup>a</sup>sought to Solomon, to hear his wisdom, which God had put in his heart.

25 And they brought every man his present, vessels of silver, and vessels of gold, and garments, and armour, and spices, horses, and mules, a rate year by year.

26 *And Solomon <sup>a</sup>gathered together chariots and horsemen: and he had a thousand and four hundred chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen, whom he bestowed in the cities for chariots, and with the king at Jerusalem.

27 *And the king <sup>a</sup>made silver to be in Jerusalem as stones, and cedars made he to be as the sycamore-trees that are in the vale, for abundance.

28 *And <sup>a</sup>Solomon had horses brought out of Egypt, and <sup>bb</sup>linen yarn: the king's merchants received the linen yarn at a price.

29 And a chariot came up and went out of Egypt for six hundred shekels of silver, and an horse for an hundred and fifty: <sup>a</sup>and so for all the kings of the Hittites, and for the kings of Syria, did they bring them out <sup>aa</sup>by their means.

Verse 25. They brought every man his present. This means tribute; and it shows us of what sort that tribute was, viz., vessels of gold and silver, probably ingots; garments of very rich stuffs; armour, for little of this kind was ever made in Judea; spices, which doubtless sold well in that country; horses, which were very rare; and mules, the most necessary animal for all the purposes of life.

Verse 27. Made silver—as stones. He destroyed its value, by making it so exceedingly plenty.

As the sycamore-trees. He planted many cedars, and doubtless had much cedar-wood imported; so that it became as common as the sycamore-trees, which appear to have grown there in great abundance. This is considered to be a tree that partakes of the nature of the fig-tree, and of the mulberry.

Verse 28. Horses brought out of Egypt. It is thought that the first people who used horses in war were the Egyptians; and it is well known that the nations who knew the use of this creature in battle had greatly the advantage of those who did not. God had absolutely prohibited horses to be imported or used; but in many things Solomon paid little attention to the divine command.

And linen yarn. The original word is hard to be understood, if it be not indeed a corruption.

The Versions are all puzzled with it: the Vulgate and Septuagint make it a proper name: Coa or Tekoa. Some think it signifies a tribute: and some suppose that it signifies the string or cord by which one horse's head is tied to the string or tail of another; and that the meaning is, Solomon brought drives of horses, thus tied, out of Egypt.

Houbigant supposes the place to be corrupt, and that for milveh we should read mercabah, chariots. This makes a very good and consistent sense; but none of the Versions acknowledge it, nor is there any various reading here in any of the MSS. yet collated.

[Gesenius renders mikveh by "troop" or "company." Thus the passage would read: And a company of the king's merchants fetched the troop (of horses) at a fixed price.]

Verse 29. A chariot came up—for six hundred shekels]

This was the ordinary price of a chariot, as an hundred and fifty shekels were for a horse.

Kings of the Hittites] These must have been the remains of the original inhabitants of Canaan, who had gone to some other country, probably Syria, and formed themselves into a principality there. It seems that neither horses nor chariots came out of Egypt but by means of Solomon's servants.

CHAPTER XI.

Solomon's attachment to strange women, and consequent idolatry, 1, 2. Number of his wives and concubines, 3. In his old age they turn away his heart from God, 4. He builds temples to idols, burns incense and sacrifices to them, 5-8. The Lord is angry with him, and threatens to deprive him of the kingdom, but will leave one tribe for David's sake, 9-13. The Lord stirs up Hadad, the Edomite, to be his enemy; the history of this man, 14-22. He stirs up another adversary against him, Rezon the son of Eliadah. He and Hadad plague Israel, 23-25. Jeroboam also becomes his enemy, and the reason why, 26-28. Ahijah the prophet meets Jeroboam, and promises, in the name of the Lord, that God will rend Israel from the family of Solomon, and give him ten tribes, 29-39. Solomon hearing of this, seeks to put Jeroboam to death, who escapes to Egypt, where he continues till the death of Solomon, 40. Solomon dies, after having reigned over Israel forty years; and his son Rehoboam reigns in his stead, 41-43.

BUT <sup>a</sup>king Solomon loved <sup>b</sup>many strange women, <sup>c</sup>together with the daughter of Pharaoh, women of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonians, and Hittites;

2 Of the nations concerning which the LORD said unto the children of Israel, <sup>d</sup>"Ye shall not go in to them, neither shall they come in unto you: for surely they will turn away your heart after their gods: Solomon clave unto these in love.

3 And he had seven hundred wives, princesses, and three hundred concubines: and his wives turned away his heart.

4 For it came to pass, when Solomon was old, <sup>e</sup>that his wives turned away his heart after other gods: and his <sup>f</sup>heart was not perfect with the LORD his God, <sup>g</sup>as was the heart of David his father.

5 For Solomon went after <sup>h</sup>Ashtoreth the goddess of the Zidonians, and after <sup>i</sup>Milcom the abomination of the Ammonites.

6 And Solomon did evil in the sight of the LORD, and <sup>j</sup>went not fully after the LORD, as did David his father.

7 <sup>k</sup>Then did Solomon build an high place for <sup>l</sup>Chemosh, the abomination of Moab, in <sup>m</sup>the hill that is before Jerusalem, and for Molech, the abomination of the children of Ammon.

8 And likewise did he for all his strange wives, which burnt incense and sacrificed unto their gods.

9 And the LORD was angry with Solomon, because <sup>n</sup>his heart was turned from the LORD God of Israel, <sup>o</sup>which had appeared unto him twice,

10 And <sup>p</sup>had commanded him concerning this thing, that he should not go after other gods: but he kept not that which the LORD commanded.

11 Wherefore the LORD said unto Solomon, Forasmuch as this <sup>q</sup>is done of thee, and thou hast not kept my covenant and my statutes, which I have commanded thee, <sup>r</sup>I will surely rend the kingdom from thee, and will give it to thy servant.

12 Notwithstanding in thy days I will not do it

Verse 1. Many strange women] That is, idolaters; together with the daughter of Pharaoh: she was also one of those strange women and an idolater. But many think she became a proselyte to the Jewish religion; of this there is no evidence. [But see the parenthetical note, chap. iii., ver. 1.]

Verse 3. He had seven hundred wives, princesses] How he could get so many of the blood royal from the different surrounding nations, is astonishing; but probably the daughters of noblemen, generals, &c., may be included.

And three hundred concubines] These were wives of the second rank, who were taken according to the usages of those times: but their offspring could not inherit. Sarah was to Abraham what these seven hundred princesses were to Solomon; and the three hundred concubines stood in the same relation to the Israelitish king as Hagar and Keturah did to the patriarch.

Here then are one thousand wives to form this great bad man's harem! Was it possible that such a person could have any piety to God, who was absorbed by such a number of women? We may endeavour to excuse all this by saying, "It was a custom in the East to have a multitude of women, and that there were many of those whom Solomon probably never saw, &c., &c." But was there any of them whom he might not have seen? Was it for reasons of state, or merely court splendour, that he had so many? How then is it said that he loved many strange women?—that he clave to them in love? And did he not give them the utmost proofs of his attachment when he not only tolerated their iniquitous worship in the land, but built temples to their idols, and more, burnt incense to them himself? As we should not condemn what God justifies, so we should not justify what God condemns.

Verse 7. The hill that is before Jerusalem] This was the Mount of Olives.

Verse 9. The Lord was angry with Solomon] Had not this man's delinquency been strongly marked by the divine disapprobation, it would have had a fatal effect on the morals of mankind. Vice is vice, no matter who commits it. And God is as much displeased with sin in Solomon as he can be with it in the most profligate, uneducated wretch. And although God sees the same sin in precisely the same degree of moral turpitude as to the act itself, yet there may be circumstances which greatly aggravate the offence, and subject the offender to greater punishment. Solomon deserved more punishment for his worship of Ashtoreth than any of the Sidonians did, though they performed precisely the same acts. The Sidonians had never known the true God; Solomon had been fully acquainted with him.

Verse 11. Forasmuch as this is done of thee] Was not this another warning from the Lord? And might not Solomon have yet recovered himself? Was there not mercy in this message which he might have sought and found?

for David thy father's sake: but I will rend it out of the hand of thy son.

13 * Howbeit I will not rend away all the kingdom; but will give <sup>b</sup> one tribe to thy son for David my servant's sake, and for Jerusalem's sake <sup>c</sup> which I have chosen.

14 And the LORD stirred <sup>d</sup> up an adversary unto Solomon, Hadad the Edomite; he was of the king's seed in Edom.

15 * For it came to pass when David was in Edom, and Joab the captain of the host was gone up to bury the slain, <sup>e</sup> after he had smitten every male in Edom;

16 [For six months did Joab remain there with all Israel, until he had cut off every male in Edom:]

17 That Hadad fled, he and certain Edomites of his father's servants with him, to go into Egypt; Hadad being yet a little child.

18 And they arose out of Midian, and came to Paran: and they took men with them out of Paran, and they came to Egypt, unto Pharaoh, king of Egypt; which gave him an house, and appointed him victuals, and gave him land.

19 And Hadad found great favour in the sight of Pharaoh, so that he gave him to wife the sister of his own wife, the sister of Tahpenes the queen.

20 And the sister of Tahpenes bare him Genubath his son, whom Tahpenes weaned in Pharaoh's house: and Genubath was in Pharaoh's household among the sons of Pharaoh.

21 * And when Hadad heard in Egypt that David slept with his fathers, and that Joab the captain of the host was dead, Hadad said to Pharaoh. <sup>f</sup> Let me depart, that I may go to mine own country.

22 Then Pharaoh said unto him, But what hast thou lacked with me, that, behold, thou seekest to go to thine own country? and he answered, <sup>g</sup> Nothing: howbeit let me go in any wise.

23 And God stirred him up another adversary,

Verse 13. Will give one tribe—for David, my servant's sake] The line of the Messiah must be preserved. The prevailing lion must come out of the tribe of Judah: not only the tribe must be preserved, but the royal line and the regal right. All this must be done for the true David's sake: and this was undoubtedly what God had in view by thus miraculously preserving the tribe of Judah and the royal line in the midst of so general a defection.

And for Jerusalem's sake.] As David was a type of the Messiah, so was Jerusalem a type of the true church: therefore the old Jerusalem must be preserved in the hands of the tribe of Judah, till the true David should establish the new Jerusalem in the same land, and in the same city. And what a series of providences did it require to do all these things!

Verse 14. The Lord stirred up an adversary] A satan. When he sent to Hiram to assist him in building the temple of the Lord, he could say, There was no Satan, see chap. v. 4; and all his kingdom was in peace and security,—every man dwelt under his vine, and under his fig-tree, chap. iv. 25: but now that he had turned away from God, three satans rise up against him at once, Hadad, Rezon, and Jeroboam.

Verse 15. Was gone up to bury the slain] The slain Edomites; for Joab had in the course of six months exterminated all the males, except Hadad and his servants, who escaped to Egypt.

Verse 17. Hadad being yet a little child.] A little boy; one who was apprehensive of his danger, and could, with his father's servants, make his escape; not an infant.

Verse 18. They arose out of Midian] They at first retired

Rezon the son of Eliadah, which fled from his lord / Hadadezer king of Zobah:

24 And he gathered men unto him, and became captain over a band, <sup>h</sup> when David slew them of Zobah: and they went to Damascus, and dwelt therein, and reigned in Damascus.

25 And he was an adversary to Israel all the days of Solomon, beside the mischief that Hadad did: and he abhorred Israel, and reigned over Syria.

26 And <sup>i</sup> Jeroboam the son of Nebat, an Ephraimite of Zereda, Solomon's servant, whose mother's name was Zeruah, a widow woman, even he <sup>j</sup> lifted up his hand against the king.

27 And this was the cause that he lifted up his hand against the king: <sup>k</sup> Solomon built Millo, and <sup>l</sup> repaired the breaches of the city of David his father.

28 And the man Jeroboam was a mighty man of valour: and Solomon seeing the young man that he <sup>m</sup> was industrious, he made him ruler over all the <sup>n</sup> charge of the house of Joseph.

29 And it came to pass at that time when Jeroboam went out of Jerusalem, that the prophet <sup>o</sup> Ahijah the Shilonite found him in the way; and he had clad himself with a new garment: and they two were alone in the field:

30 And Ahijah caught the new garment that was on him, and <sup>p</sup> rent it in twelve pieces:

31 And he said to Jeroboam, Take thee ten pieces: for <sup>q</sup> thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel, Behold, I will rend the kingdom out of the hand of Solomon, and will give ten tribes to thee.

32 (But he shall have one tribe for my servant David's sake, and for Jerusalem's sake, the city which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel:)

33 * Because that they have forsaken me, and have worshipped Ashtoreth the goddess of the Zidonians, Chemosh the god of the Moabites, and Milcom the god of the children of Ammon, and have to Midian, which lay to the south-west of the Dead Sea. Not supposing themselves in safety there they went afterwards to Paran in the south of Idumea, and getting a number of persons to join them in Paran, they went straight to Egypt, where we find Hadad became a favourite with Pharaoh, who gave him his sister-in-law to wife; and incorporated him and his family with his own.

Verse 22. Let me go in any wise.] It does not appear that he avowed his real intention to Pharaoh; for at this time there must have been peace between Israel and Egypt, Solomon having married the daughter of Pharaoh.

Verse 24. And reigned in Damascus.] Rezon was one of the captains of Hadadezer, whom David defeated. It seems that at this time Rezon escaped with his men; and having lived, as is supposed, some time by plunder, he seized on Damascus, and reigned there till David took Damascus, when he subdued Syria, and drove out Rezon. But after Solomon's defection from God Rezon recovered Damascus; and joining with Hadad, harassed Solomon during the remaining part of his reign. But some think that Hadad and Rezon were the same person.

Verse 29. When Jeroboam went out of Jerusalem.] On what errand he was going out of Jerusalem, we know not.

Ahijah the Shilonite.] He was one of those who wrote the history of the reign of Solomon, as we find from 2 Chron. ix. 29, and it is supposed that it was by him God spoke twice to Solomon; and particularly delivered the message which we find in this chapter, ver. 11-18.

Verse 31. Take thee ten pieces] The garment was the symbol of the kingdom of Israel; the twelve pieces the symbol of the twelve tribes; the ten pieces given to Jeroboam not walked in my ways to do that which is right in mine eyes, and to keep my statutes and my judgments, as did David his father.

34 Howbeit I will not take the whole kingdom out of his hand: but I will make him prince all the days of his life for David my servant's sake, whom I chose, because he kept my commandments, and my statutes.

35 But <sup>a</sup> I will take the kingdom out of his son's hand, and will give it unto thee, even ten tribes.

36 And unto his son will I give one tribe, that <sup>b</sup> David my servant may have a <sup>c</sup> light alway before me in Jerusalem, the city which I have chosen me to put my name there.

37 And I will take thee, and thou shalt reign according to all that thy soul desireth, and shalt be king over Israel.

38 And it shall be, if thou wilt hearken unto all that I command thee, and wilt walk in my ways, of the ten tribes which should be given to him, and afterwards form the kingdom of Israel in Samaria, to distinguish it from the kingdom of Judah, ruling in Jerusalem.

Verse 36. That David my servant may have a light alway] That his posterity may never fail and the regal line never become extinct. This, as we have already seen, was in reference to the Messiah. He was not only David's light, but he was a light to enlighten the Gentiles.

Verse 37. According to all that thy soul desireth] It appears from this that Jeroboam had affected the kingdom, and was seeking for an opportunity to seize on the government. God now tells him, by his prophet what he shall have and what he shall not have, in order to prevent him from attempting to seize on the whole kingdom, to the prejudice of the spiritual seed of David.

Verse 38. And build thee a sure house] He would have continued his posterity on the throne of Israel, had he not by his wickedness forfeited the promises of God, and thrown himself out of the protection of the most High.

Verse 39. But not for ever] They shall be in affliction and distress till the Messiah come, who shall sit on the throne of David to order it and establish it in judgment and justice for ever. Jarchi says, on this verse, "When the Messiah comes, the kingdom shall be restored to the house of David."

Verse 40. Sought—to kill Jeroboam] He thought by this means to prevent the punishment due to his crimes.

Unto Shishak king of Egypt] This is the first time we meet with the proper name of an Egyptian king, Pharaoh being the common name of all the sovereigns of that country.

Some suppose that this Shishak was the Sesostris so renowned for his wars and his conquests. But it is likely that this king lived long before Solomon's time. [He was the first sovereign of the 22d Bubastite dynasty.]

Verse 41. The book of the acts of Solomon] These acts were written by Nathan the prophet, Ahijah the Shilonite, and Iddo the seer; as we learn from 2 Chron. ix. 29. Probably from these were the Books of Kings and Chronicles composed; but the original documents are long since lost.

Verse 42. Solomon reigned—forty years] Josephus says four score years, which is sufficiently absurd. Calmet supposes him to have been eighteen years old when he came to the throne, and that he died A.M. 3029, aged fifty-eight years; and, when we consider the excess in which he lived, and the criminal passions which he must have indulged among his thousand wives, and their idolatrous and impure worship, this life was as long as could be reasonably expected.

Verse 43. Solomon slept with his fathers] He died in almost the flower of his age, and, it appears, unregretted.

I. It may now be necessary to give a more distinct outline of the character of this king.

1. In his infancy and youth he had the high honour of being peculiarly loved by the Lord; and had a name given him by the express authority of God himself, which to him-and do that is right in my sight, to keep my statutes and my commandments, as David my servant did; that <sup>a</sup> I will be with thee, and <sup>b</sup> build thee a sure house, as I built for David, and will give Israel unto thee.

39 And I will for this afflict the seed of David, but not for ever.

40 Solomon sought therefore to kill Jeroboam. And Jeroboam arose, and fled into Egypt, unto Shishak king of Egypt, and was in Egypt until the death of Solomon.

41 And <sup>c</sup> the rest of the <sup>d</sup> acts of Solomon and all that he did, and his wisdom, are they not written in the book of the acts of Solomon?

42 <sup>e</sup> And the <sup>f</sup> time that Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel was forty years.

43 <sup>g</sup> And Solomon slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David his father: and <sup>h</sup> Rehoboam his son reigned in his stead.

self and others must ever call to remembrance this peculiar favour of the Most High. There is little doubt that he was a most amiable youth, and his whole conduct appeared to justify the high expectations that were formed of him.

2. He ascended the Israelitish throne at a time the most favourable for the cultivation of those arts so necessary to the comfort and improvement of life. Among all the surrounding nations Israel had not one open enemy; there was neither adversary, nor evil occurrent, chap. v. 4.

3. To the dying charge of his pious father relative to the building a temple for the Lord, he paid the most punctual attention.

4. That he improved the trade and commerce of his country is sufficiently evident: by his public buildings vast multitudes were employed; and knowledge in the most beneficial arts must have been greatly increased, and the spirit of industry highly cultivated.

5. I have intimated that Solomon was truly pious in his youth. Had we no other proof of this than his prayer for wisdom, and his prayer at the dedication of the temple, it would put the matter for ever beyond dispute, independently of the direct testimonies we have from God himself on the subject.

6. There can be no doubt that Solomon possessed the knowledge of governing well; of the importance of this knowledge he was duly aware, and this was the wisdom that he so particularly sought from God.

7. But the wisdom of Solomon was not confined to the art of government; he appears to have possessed a universal knowledge.

8. As a poet, Solomon stands deservedly high, though of his one thousand and five poems not one, except the Book of Canticles, remains. This ode alone, taken in a literary point of view, is sufficient to raise any man to a high degree of poetic fame.

9. His knowledge in natural history must have been very extensive; it is said, "He spake of trees, from the cedar that is in Lebanon even unto the hyssop that springeth out of the wall. He spake also of beasts, of fowls, of reptiles, of fishes;" chap. iv. 33.

10. As a moral philosopher the author of the Book of Ecclesiastes occupies no mean rank. At present we may consider this work as a production of Solomon, though this is disputed, and the question shall be considered in its proper place. This book contains such a fund of wisdom, applied to the regulation of life, and all referred to the proper end, that it most deservedly occupies a high place in Biblical ethics, and deserves the closest attention of every reader.

11. The proofs of Solomon's vast wisdom, as brought into practical effect, lie in a very small compass, because his history in the Bible is short, his own writings in general lost, and the annals of his reign, as compiled by Nathan the prophet, Ahijah the Shilonite, and Iddo the seer, long since perished. The decision between the two harlots is almost the only instance.

12. The wisdom of the East has ever been celebrated; and if we may believe their own best writers, much of what they possess has been derived from Solomon. Encomiums of his wisdom are every where to be met with in the Asiatic writers; and his name is famous in every part of the East.

II. Hitherto we have looked only at the bright side of Solomon's character: we must now take a much less satisfactory view of this singular man; one in whom every thing great, glorious, wise, and holy, and every thing little, mean, foolish, and impious, predominated by turns. He forsook the God of his mercies in a great variety of ways.

1. Whatever may be thought of the step in a political point of view, he most assuredly went out of the way of God's providence, and acted contrary to his law, in making affinity with Pharaoh's daughter.

2. His expensive buildings obliging him to have recourse to a system of oppressive taxation, was another flaw in his character.

3. He began his reign by an inauspicious act, the death of his brother Adonijah. This was a sin against God and nature: and no art of man can ever wash out its guilt. If state policy required it, which is very questionable, what had that to do with the feelings of humanity, and the love of God?

4. His inordinate love of women. He had no doubt formed matrimonial alliances with all kingdoms and neighbouring states, by taking their sisters and daughters to be his wives, to the fearful amount of no less than seven hundred! Politicians may endeavour to justify these acts by asserting, that in the Asiatic countries they were matters of a sound policy, rather than an argument of the prevalence of an irregular and unbridled passion. Let this stand for its value; but what can such apologists say for the additional three hundred concubines, for the taking of whom no such necessity can be pleaded?

5. He became an idolater. He did more: he built a temple to "all the gods of all his strange wives, which burned incense, and sacrificed unto their gods," chap. xi. 5-8.

6. By this time we may suppose that the light of God had entirely departed from his mind. He who knew so well the true God, now served him not; or, if he did, it was in conjunction with those idols, thus bringing the Supreme Being on a level with demons, or the figments of impure hearts and disordered fancies.

7. I have already hinted that Solomon's oppressive taxation laid the foundation of that discontent which shortly after his death produced the separation of Israel and Judah; also the long and ruinous wars which drenched these states in blood: and this was doubtless the cause that ten-twelfths of the Jewish people became idolaters; which crime was punished, by the just judgments of God, by the Babylonish captivity, which lasted seventy years; and by the carrying away of the ten Israelitish tribes by the Assyrians, who are lost from the map of the universe, and no longer numbered among the children of men!

8. What greatly aggravates the whole of this most dismal tale is, that this strange defection from God, truth, reason, and common sense, was persisted in to his old age.

9. This dismal account has a more dismal close still; for, in the same place in which we are informed of his apostasy, we are informed of his death, without the slightest intimation that he ever repented and turned to God. It is true that what is wanting in fact is supplied by conjecture; for it is firmly believed that "he did repent, and wrote the Book of Ecclesiastes after his conversion, which is a decided proof of his repentance." I am sorry I cannot strengthen this opinion; of which I find not the shadow of a proof. 1. The Book of Ecclesiastes, though it speaks much of the vanity of the creatures, yet speaks little or nothing of the vanity or sin of idolatry. 2. It is not the language of a man who was recovering from a state of the most awful backsliding. Is there any direct confession of sin in it? Is there any where to be heard in it the sighing of a broken heart, or strong crying and tears to deprecate the justice and implore the mercy of a deeply offended God? Excellent as it is in its kind, is it anything more than a valuable collection of experimental ethics, relative to the emptiness of the creature, and the folly of earthly pursuits and worldly anxieties? 3. Nor is it even past doubt that Solomon wrote this book: it certainly does in several places bear evidences of times posterior to those of Solomon. 4. It has been supposed, that, as Solomon was a type of Christ, it is not likely that he has finally perished. To this I answer, (1.) I know not that Solomon was a type of Christ. The reference to Cant. iii. 7, viii. 11, 12, is to me no proof whatever of the point. (2.) Were it even otherwise, this would be no proof of his repentance, when the scriptures are silent on the subject. Typical persons and typical things may perish as well as others: the antitype alone will infallibly remain. 5. Finally, there seems every evidence that he died in his sins. His crimes were greatly aggravated: he forsook the Lord, who had appeared to him twice; his wives turned away his heart in his old age: there is not a single testimony in the Old or New Testament that intimates he died in a safe state. That awful denunciation of divine justice stands point blank in the way of all contrary suppositions: "If thou forsake the Lord, he will cast thee off forever," 1 Chron. xxviii. 9. He did forsake the Lord; and he forsook him in his very last days; and there is no evidence that he ever again clave to him. Ergo,

Reader, let him that standeth take heed lest he fall; not only foully but finally. Certainly, unconditional final perseverance will find little support in the case of Solomon. He was once most incontrovertibly in grace. He lost that grace and sinned most grievously against God. He was found in this state in his old age. He died, as far as the scripture informs us, without repentance. Even the doubtfulness in which the bare letter of the scripture leaves the eternal state of this man, is a blast of lightning to the syren song of "Once in grace, and still in grace;" "Once a child, and a child for ever."

CHAPTER XII.

The people go to Shechem to make Rehoboam king, and send for Jeroboam out of Egypt, who, with the heads of the tribes, requests relief from the heavy burdens laid on them by Solomon, 1-4. He requires three days to consider their petition, 5. He rejects the counsel of the elders, who served his father, and follows that of young men, and returns the people a provoking answer, 6-15. The people therefore renounce the family of David, stone to death Adoram, who came to receive their tribute, and make Jeroboam king; none cleaving to Rehoboam but the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, 16-20. Rehoboam comes to Jerusalem, and assembles all the fighting men of Judah and Benjamin, and finds the number to be one hundred and eighty thousand; and with these he purposes to reduce the men of Israel to his allegiance, but is forbidden by the prophet Shemaiah, 21-24. Jeroboam builds Shechem in Mount Ephraim and Penuel, 25. And lest the people should be drawn away from their allegiance to him by going up to Jerusalem to worship, he makes two golden calves, and sets them up, one in Dan, the other in Beth-el, and the people worship them, 26-30. He makes priests of the lowest of the people, and establishes the fifteenth day of the eighth month as a feast to his new gods; makes offerings, and burns incense, 31-33.

AND <sup>a</sup>Rehoboam went to Shechem: for all Israel were come to Shechem to make him king.

2 And it came to pass, when <sup>b</sup>Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who was yet in <sup>c</sup>Egypt, heard of it, (for he was fled from the presence of king Solomon, and Jeroboam dwelt in Egypt;)

3 That they sent and called him. And Jeroboam and all the congregation of Israel came, and spake unto Rehoboam, saying,

4 Thy father made our <sup>d</sup>yoke grievous: now therefore make thou the grievous service of thy father, and his heavy yoke which he put upon us, lighter, and we will serve thee.

5 And he said unto them, Depart yet for three days, then come again to me. And the people departed.

6 And king Rehoboam consulted with the old men, that stood before Solomon his father while he yet lived, and said, How do ye advise that I may answer this people?

7 And they spake unto him, saying, <sup>e</sup>If thou wilt be a servant unto this people this day, and wilt serve them, and answer them, and speak good words to them, then they will be thy servants for ever.

8 But he forsook the counsel of the old men, which they had given him, and consulted with the young men that were grown up with him, and which stood before him.

9 And he said unto them, What counsel give ye that we may answer this people, who have spoken to me, saying, Make the yoke which thy father did put upon us lighter?

10 And the young men that were grown up with him spake unto him, saying, Thus shalt thou speak unto this people that spake unto thee, saying, Thy father made our yoke heavy, but make thou <sup>f</sup>it lighter unto us; thus shalt thou say unto them,

Verse 1. Rehoboam went to Shechem] Rehoboam was probably the only son of Solomon; for although he had a thousand wives, he had not the blessing of a numerous offspring; and though he was the wisest of men himself, his son was a poor unprincipled fool.

Verse 4. The grievous service—and—heavy yoke] They seem here to complain of two things—excessively laborious service, and a heavy taxation. At first it is supposed Solomon employed no Israelite in drudgery; afterwards, when he forsook the God of compassion, he seems to have used them as slaves, and to have revived the Egyptian bondage.

Verse 7. If thou wilt be a servant unto this people] This is a constitutional idea of a king: he is the servant, but not the slave, of his people; every regal act of a just king is an act of service to the state. The king is not only the fountain of law and justice; but as he has the appointment of all officers and judges, consequently he is the executor of the laws; and all justice is administered in his name.

They will be thy servants for ever.] The way to insure the obedience of the people is to hold the reins of empire with a steady and impartial hand: let the people see that the king lives for them, and not for himself; and they will obey, love, and defend him. The state is maintained on the part of the ruler and the ruled by mutual acts of service and benevolence. A good king has no self-interest; and such a king will ever have obedient and loving subjects. The haughty proud tyrant will have a suspicious and jealous people, hourly ripening for revolt. The king is made for the people, not the people for the king.

Verse 10. And the young men that were grown up with him] It was a custom in different countries to educate with the heir to the throne young noblemen of nearly the same age.

My little finger shall be thicker] As much as the thigh

My little finger shall be thicker than my father's loins.

11 And now, whereas my father did lade you with a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke: my father hath chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions.

12 So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the third day, as the king had appointed, saying, Come to me again the third day.

13 And the king answered the people <sup>g</sup>roughly, and forsook the old men's counsel that they gave him;

14 And spake to them after the counsel of the young men, saying, My father made your yoke heavy, and I will add to your yoke: my father <sup>h</sup>also chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions.

15 Wherefore the king hearkened not unto the people; <sup>i</sup>for the cause was from the LORD, that he might perform his saying, which the LORD <sup>j</sup>spake by Ahijah the Shilonite unto Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

16 So when all Israel saw that the king hearkened not unto them; the people answered the king, saying, <sup>k</sup>What portion have we in David? neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse: to your tents, O Israel: now see to thine own house, David. So Israel departed unto their tents.

17 But <sup>l</sup>as for the children of Israel which dwelt in the cities of Judah, Rehoboam reigned over them.

18 Then king Rehoboam <sup>m</sup>sent Adoram, who was over the tribute; and all Israel stoned him with stones, that he died. Therefore king Rehoboam <sup>n</sup>made speed to get him up to his chariot, to flee to Jerusalem.

19 So <sup>o</sup>Israel <sup>p</sup>rebelled against the house of David unto this day.

20 And it came to pass, when all Israel heard surpasses the little finger in thickness, so much does my power exceed that of my father; and the use that I shall make of it, to employ and tax it, shall be in proportion.

Verse 11. Chastise you with scorpions.] Should you rebel, or become disaffected, my father's whip shall be a scorpion in my hand. His was chastisement, mine shall be punishment.

Verse 15. The cause was from the Lord] God left him to himself, and did not incline his heart to follow the counsel of the wise men. This is making the best of our present version; but if we come to inquire into the meaning of the cause of all this confusion and anarchy, we shall find it was Rehoboam's folly, cruelty, and despotic tyranny: and was this from the Lord? But does the text speak this bad doctrine? No: it says sibbah, the revolution, was from the Lord. This is consistent with all the declarations which went before. God stirred up the people to revolt from a man who had neither skill nor humanity to govern them.

Verse 16. So Israel departed unto their tents.] That is, the ten tribes withdrew their allegiance from Rehoboam; only Judah and Benjamin, frequently reckoned one tribe, remaining with him.

Verse 18. King Rehoboam sent Adoram] The sending of Adoram to collect the taxes, when the public mind was in such a state of fermentation, was another proof of Rehoboam's folly and incapacity to govern. [He was not sent to collect the taxes, but to treat with the insurgents.]

Verse 20. Made him king over all Israel] What is called Israel here was twelfthths of the whole nation; and had they a right to call another person to the throne? They had not,—they had neither legal nor constitutional right. Jeroboam was not of the blood royal; he had no affinity to the kingdom. Nothing could justify this act, but the just judgment of God. God thus punished a disobedient and that Jeroboam was come again, that they sent and called him unto the congregation, and made him king over all Israel: there was none that followed the house of David, but the tribe of Judah * only.

21 And when <sup>b</sup> Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he assembled all the house of Judah, with the tribe of Benjamin, an hundred and fourscore thousand chosen men, which were warriors, to fight against the house of Israel, to bring the kingdom again to Rehoboam the son of Solomon.

22 But <sup>c</sup> the word of God came unto Shemaiah the man of God, saying,

23 Speak unto Rehoboam the son of Solomon, king of Judah, and unto all the house of Judah and Benjamin, and to the remnant of the people, saying,

24 Thus saith the LORD, Ye shall not go up, nor fight against your brethren the children of Israel: return every man to his house; <sup>d</sup> for this thing is from me. They hearkened therefore to the word of the LORD, and returned to depart, according to the word of the LORD.

25 Then Jeroboam <sup>e</sup> built Shechem in Mount Ephraim, and dwelt therein; and went out from thence, and built <sup>f</sup> Penuel.

26 And Jeroboam said in his heart, Now shall the kingdom return to the house of David:

27 If this people <sup>g</sup> go up to do sacrifice in the house of the LORD at Jerusalem, then shall the heart of this people turn again unto their lord, even unto Rehoboam king of Judah, and they shall kill me, and go again to Rehoboam king of Judah.

28 Whereupon the king took counsel, and <sup>h</sup> made two calves of gold, and said unto them, It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem: <sup>i</sup> behold thy gods, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

29 And he set the one in <sup>j</sup> Beth-el, and the other put he in <sup>k</sup> Dan.

30 And this thing became <sup>l</sup> a sin; for the people went to worship before the one, even unto Dan.

31 And he made an <sup>m</sup> house of high places, <sup>n</sup> and made priests of the lowest of the people, which were not of the sons of Levi.

32 And Jeroboam ordained a feast in the eighth month, on the fifteenth day of the month, like unto <sup>o</sup> the feast that is in Judah, and he <sup>p</sup> offered upon the altar. So did he in Beth-el, <sup>q</sup> sacrificing unto the calves that he had made; and <sup>r</sup> he placed in Beth-el the priests of the high places which he had made.

33 So he <sup>s</sup> offered upon the altar which he had made in Beth-el the fifteenth day of the eighth month, even in the month which he had <sup>t</sup> devised of his own heart; and ordained a feast unto the children of Israel: and he offered upon the altar, <sup>u</sup> and burnt <sup>v</sup> incense.

gainsaying people; and especially Solomon's family, whose sins against the Lord were of no ordinary magnitude.

Verse 24. For this thing is from me.] That is, the separation of the ten tribes from the house of David.

They—returned to depart] This was great deference, both in Rehoboam and his officers, to relinquish, at the demand of the prophet, a war which they thought they had good grounds to undertake. The remnant of the people heard the divine command gratefully, for the mass of mankind are averse from war. No nations would ever rise up against each other, were they not instigated to it or compelled by their rulers.

Verse 27. And they shall kill me] He found he had little cause to trust this fickle people; though they had declared for him it was more from caprice, desire of change, and novelty, than from any regular and praiseworthy principle.

Verse 28. Made two calves of gold] He invented a political religion, instituted feasts in his own times different from those appointed by the Lord, gave the people certain objects of devotion, and pretended to think it would be both inconvenient and oppressive to them to have to go up to Jerusalem to worship.

Verse 29. One in Beth-el, and the other—in Dan] One at the southern and the other at the northern extremity of the land. Solomon's idolatry had prepared the people for Jeroboam's abominations!

Verse 31. An house of high places] A temple of temples; he had many high places in the land, and to imitate the temple at Jerusalem, he made one chief over all the rest, where he established a priesthood of his own ordination. Probably a place of separate appointment, where different idols were set up and worshipped; so it was a sort of pantheon.

Made priests of the lowest of the people] Any priests would do well enough for such gods. But those whom he took seem to have been worthless, good-for-nothing fellows who had neither piety nor good sense. Probably the sons of Levi had grace enough to refuse to sanction this new priesthood, and idolatrous worship.

Verse 32. Ordained a feast] The Jews held their feast of tabernacles on the fifteenth day of the seventh month; Jeroboam, who would meet the prejudices of the people as far as he could, appointed a similar feast on the fifteenth of the eighth month; thus appearing to hold the thing while he subverted the ordinance.

Verse 33. He offered upon the altar] Jeroboam probably performed the functions of high-priest himself, that he might in his own person condense the civil and ecclesiastical power.

CHAPTER XIII.

A man of God prophesies against Jeroboam's altar, and foretells the destruction of that altar, and of its idolatrous priests by Josiah; and gives Jeroboam a sign that the prophecy should be accomplished, 1-3. Jeroboam is enraged, and orders the man of God to be seized, and stretching out his hand for this purpose, his arm dries up, 4. The altar is rent, and the ashes poured out, according to the sign given by the man of God; and at his intercession Jeroboam's arm is restored, 5, 6. Jeroboam wishes to engage him in his service, but he refuses, and tells him that he was ordered by God not even to eat or drink in that place; and he accordingly departs, 7-10. An old prophet that dwelt at Beth-el, hearing of this, rides after the man of God; deceives him; brings him back to his house, and persuades him to eat and drink, 11-19. While he is eating, the word of the Lord comes to the old prophet, and he foretells the death of the man of God; who departing is met by a lion, and slain, 20-25. On hearing this, the old prophet goes to the place, finds the carcass, brings it home, buries it, and mourns over it, charging his sons to bury him, when dead, in the same grave, 26-32. Notwithstanding these warnings, Jeroboam continues in his idolatry, 33, 34.

AND, behold, there came a man of God out of Judah by the word of the Lord unto Beth-el: and Jeroboam stood by the altar to burn incense.

2 And he cried against the altar in the word of the Lord, and said, O altar, altar, thus saith the Lord; Behold, a child shall be born unto the house of David, Josiah by name; and upon thee shall he offer the priests of the high places that burn incense upon thee, and men's bones shall be burnt upon thee.

3 And he gave a sign the same day, saying, This is the sign which the Lord hath spoken; Behold, the altar shall be rent, and the ashes that are upon it shall be poured out.

4 And it came to pass, when king Jeroboam heard the saying of the man of God, which he cried against the altar in Beth-el, that he put forth his hand from the altar, saying, Lay hold on him. And his hand, which he put forth against him, dried up, so that he could not pull it in again to him.

5 The altar also was rent, and the ashes poured out from the altar, according to the sign which the man of God had given by the word of the Lord.

6 And the king answered and said unto the man of God, Entreat now the face of the Lord thy God, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored me again. And the man of God besought the Lord, and the king's hand was restored to him again, and became as it was before.

7 And the king said unto the man of God, Come home with me, and refresh thyself, and I will give thee a reward.

8 And the man of God said unto the king, If thou wilt give me half thine house, I will not go in with thee, neither will I eat bread nor drink water in this place:

9 For so was it charged me by the word of the Lord, saying, Eat no bread, nor drink water, nor turn again by the same way that thou camest.

10 So he went another way, and returned not by the way that he came to Beth-el.

11 Now there dwelt an old prophet in Beth-el: and his sons came and told him all the works that the man of God had done that day in Beth-el: the words which he had spoken unto the king, them they told also to their father.

12 And their father said unto them, What way went he? For his sons had seen what way the man of God went, which came from Judah, 13 And he said unto his sons, Saddle me the ass. So they saddled him the ass: and he rode thereon.

14 And went after the man of God, and found him sitting under an oak: and he said unto him, Art thou the man of God that camest from Judah? And he said, I am.

Verse 1. There came a man of God] Who this was we know not. Some have thought it was Shemaiah, others Joel, and others Iddo. It could not have been the latter, for he wrote the acts of Jeroboam, 2 Chron. ix. 29, and the prophet was killed before he returned home; but conjecture is idle on such a subject.

Jeroboam stood by the altar] Like gods, like priest; he made himself high-priest, and he took of the lowest of the people, and made them priests of the high places; they proved themselves to be fools by worshipping calves.

Verse 2. He cried against the altar] He denounced the destruction of this idolatrous system.

A child shall be born—Josiah by name] This is one of the most remarkable and most singular prophecies in the Old Testament. It here most circumstantially foretells a fact which took place three hundred and forty years after the prediction; a fact which was attested by the two nations, The Jews, in whose behalf this prophecy was delivered, would guard it most sacredly; and it was the interest of the Israelites, against whom it was levelled, to impugn its authenticity, and expose its falsehood, had this been possible. This prediction not only showed the knowledge of God, but his power. He gave, as it were, this warning to idolatry, that it might be on its guard, and defend itself against this Josiah whenever a person of that name should be found sitting on the throne of David; and no doubt it was on the alert, and took all prudent measures for its own defence; but all in vain, for Josiah, in the eighteenth year of his reign, literally accomplished this prophecy, as we may read, 2 Kings, chap. xxiii. 15-20. And from this latter place we find that the prophecy had three permanent testimonials of its truth. 1. The house of Israel; 2. The house of Judah; and 3. The tomb of the prophet who delivered this prophecy, who, being slain by a lion, was brought back and buried at Beth-el, the superscription on whose tomb remained till the day on which Josiah destroyed that altar, and burnt dead men's bones upon it.

Verse 3. And he gave a sign] A miracle to prove that the prophecy should be fulfilled in its season.

the face of the Lord.—b 1 Sam. ix. 7. 2 Kings v. 15.—c So Num. xxi. 18. xxiv. 13.—d 1 Cor. v. 11.—e Heb. son.

Verse 4, Lay hold on him.] No doubt stretching out his own hand at the same time, through rage, pride, and haste, to execute his own orders.

And his hand—dried up] The whole arm became suddenly rigid; the nerves no longer communicated their influence, and the muscles ceased to obey the dictates of the will.

Verse 5. The altar was also rent] It split or clave of its own accord; and, as the split parts would decline at the top from the line of their perpendicular, so the ashes and coals would fall off, or be poured out.

Verse 6. Entreat—the face of the Lord thy God] The face of God is his favour, as we see in many parts of the sacred writings. He says, thy God; for Jeroboam knew that he was not his God, for he had no portion in the God of Jacob.

And the king's hand was restored] Both miracles were wrought to show the truth of the Jewish religion, and to convince this bold innovator of his wickedness, and to reclaim him from the folly and ruinous tendency of his idolatry.

Verse 7. Come home with me—and I will give thee a reward.] Come and be one of my priests, and I will give thee a proper salary. [This does not appear from the text.]

Verse 9. For so was it charged me—Eat no bread, &c.] He was charged also not to return by the way that he came; probably lest he should suffer inconveniences, either by persecution from the idolaters, or from curious people delaying him, in order to cause him to give an account of the transactions which took place at Beth-el. This is a reason why he should not return by the same way; but what the reason of this part of the charge was, if not the above, is not easy to see.

Verse 11. An old prophet] Probably once a prophet of the Lord, who had fallen from his steadfastness, and yet not so deeply as to lose the knowledge of the true God, and join with Jeroboam in his idolatries.

Verse 14. And went after the man of God] I can hardly think that this was with any evil design. He wished to have a particular acquaintance with him, in order that he might get farther information relative to the solemn import of the 15 Then he said unto him, Come home with me, and eat bread.

16 And he said, "I may not return with thee, nor go in with thee: neither will I eat bread nor drink water with thee in this place:

17 For<sup>b</sup> it was said to me<sup>c</sup> by the word of the LORD, Thou shalt eat no bread nor drink water there, nor turn again to go by the way that thou camest.

18 He said unto him, I am a prophet also as thou art; and an angel spake unto me by the word of the LORD, saying, Bring him back with thee into thine house, that he may eat bread and drink water. But he lied unto him.

19 So he went back with him, and did eat bread in his house, and drank water.

20 And it came to pass, as they sat at the table, that the word of the LORD came unto the prophet that brought him back:

21 And he cried unto the man of God that came from Judah, saying, Thus saith the LORD, Forasmuch as thou hast disobeyed the mouth of the LORD, and hast not kept the commandment which the LORD thy God commanded thee, 22 But camest back, and hast eaten bread and drunk water in the place,<sup>d</sup> of the which the LORD did say to thee, Eat no bread, and drink no water; thy carcase shall not come unto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

23 And it came to pass, after he had eaten bread, and after he had drunk, that he saddled for him the ass, to wit, for the prophet whom he had brought back.

24 And when he was gone, a lion met him by the way, and slew him: and his carcase was cast in the way, and the ass stood by it, the lion also stood by the carcase.

25 And, behold, men passed by, and saw the carcase cast in the way, and the lion standing by the carcase: and they came and told it in the city where the old prophet dwelt.

26 And when the prophet that brought him back from the way heard thereof, he said, It is the man of God, who was disobedient unto the word of the LORD: therefore the LORD hath delivered him unto the lion, which hath torn him, and slain him, according to the word of the LORD, which he spake unto him.

27 And he spake to his sons, saying, Saddle me the ass. And they saddled him.

28 And he went and found his carcase cast in the way, and the ass and the lion standing by the carcase; the lion had not eaten the carcase, nor torn the ass.

29 And the prophet took up the carcase of the man of God, and laid it upon the ass, and brought it back: and the old prophet came to the city, to mourn and to bury him.

30 And he laid his carcase in his own grave: and they mourned over him, saying, Alas, my brother!

31 And it came to pass, after he had buried him, that he spake to his sons, saying, When I am dead, prophecy which he had denounced against the idolatry at Beth-el.

Verse 18. An angel spake unto me] That he lied unto him is here expressly asserted, and is amply proved by the event. But why should he deceive him? The simple principle of curiosity was sufficient to induce such a person to get the intelligence he wished by any means. We may add to this, that, as he found the man of God sitting under an oak, probably faint with fatigue and fasting, for he had had no refreshment, his humanity might have led him to practise this deception, in order to persuade him to take some refreshment. Having fallen from God, as I have supposed, his own tenderness of conscience was gone; and he would not scruple to do a moral evil, if even a temporal good could come of it. Again, is it not possible that the old prophet was himself deceived? for, though he lied unto him, it is possible that he was not conscious of his lie, for Satan, as an angel of light, might have deceived him in order to lead him to deceive the other. He does not say, as the man of God did, It was said to me by the word of the Lord; no: but, An angel spake unto me by the word of the Lord. And I think it very likely that an angel did appear to him on the occasion; an angel of darkness and idolatry, in the garb of an angel of light, who wished to use him as an instrument to bring discredit on the awful transactions which had lately taken place, and to destroy him who had foretold the destruction of his power and influence.

Verse 19. So he went back with him] He permitted himself to be imposed on; he might have thought, as he had accomplished every purpose for which God sent him, and had actually begun to return by another way, God, who had given him the charge, had authority to say, "As thy purpose was to obey every injunction, even to the letter, I now permit thee to go with this old prophet, and take some refreshment." Now God might as well have dispensed with this part of the injunction, as he did in the case of Abraham, when he dispensed with the actual offering of Isaac, and accepted a ram in his stead. Thus much may be said in vindication of the man of God: but, if this be so, why should he be punished with death, for doing what he had reason and precedent to believe might be the will of God? I answer: He should not have taken a step back till he had remission of the clause from the same authority which gave him the general message. He should have had it from the word of the Lord to himself, in both cases, as Abraham had; and not taken an apparent contradiction of what was before delivered unto him, from the mouth of a stranger, who only professed to have it from an angel, who pretended to speak unto him by the word of the Lord. In this, and in this alone, lay the sinfulness of the act of the man of God, who came out of Judah.

Verse 20. The word of the Lord came unto the prophet that brought him back] Josephus expressly asserts that the sentence was declared by God to the true prophet. The Arabic asserts the same.

Verse 21. And he] That is, if the above interpretation be correct, the voice of God from heaven addressing the man of God, the old prophet having nothing to do in this business. [The Hebrew text is incapable of this rendering.]

Verse 22. Thy carcase shall not come] This intimated to him that he was to die an untimely death, but probably did not specify by what means.

Verse 24. A lion met him—and slew him] By permitting himself to be seduced by the old prophet, when he should have acted only on the expressly declared counsel of God, he committed the sin unto death; that is, such a sin as God will punish with the death of the body, while he extends mercy to the soul.

From the instance here related we see, as in various other cases, that often judgment begins at the house of God. If this was severity to the man of God, it was mercy to the others.

Verse 28. The lion had not eaten the carcase, nor torn the ass.] All here was preternatural. The lion, though he had killed the man, does not devour him; the ass stands quietly by, not fearing the lion; and the lion does not attempt to tear the ass: both stand as guardians of the fallen prophet.

Verse 30. Alas, my brother!] This lamentation is very simple, very short, and very pathetic. Perhaps the old prophet said it as much in reference to himself, who had been the cause of this untimely death, as in reference to the man of God, whose corpse he now committed to the tomb.

Verse 31. Lay my bones beside his bones] This argues a strong conviction in the mind of the old prophet, that the deceased was a good and holy man of God; and he is willing to have place with him in the general resurrection.

then bury me in the sepulchre wherein the man of God is buried; * lay my bones beside his bones:

Verse 32. In the cities of Samaria] It is most certain that Samaria was not built at this time. We are expressly told that Omri, king of Israel, founded this city on the hill which he bought for two talents of silver, from a person of the name of Shemer, after whom he called the city Samaria (see chap. xvi. 24); and this was fifty years after the death of Jeroboam. How then could the old prophet speak of Samaria, not then in existence, unless he did it by the spirit of prophecy, calling things that are not as though they were; as the man of God called Josiah by name three hundred years before he was born? Some suppose that the historian adds these words because Samaria existed in his time, and he well knew that it did not exist in the time of the old prophet; for himself, in the sixteenth chapter, gives us the account of its foundation by Omri.

Verse 33. Jeroboam returned not from his evil way] There is something exceedingly obstinate and perverse, as well as blinding and infatuating, in idolatry.

Made—the lowest of the people priests] Among the worst of heathens, the priesthood was filled with respectable men; but Jeroboam took of the lowest of the people, and put them in that office.

Verse 34. And this thing became sin] These abominations were too glaring, and too insulting to the Divine from his evil way, but * made again of the lowest of the people priests of the high places: whosoever would, he <sup>c</sup> consecrated him, and he became one of the priests of the high places.

Majesty to be permitted to last; therefore his house was cut off and destroyed from the face of the earth.

A holy priesthood, a righteous ministry, is a blessing to any state, because it has a most powerful effect on the morals of the community; on the contrary, the profligacy of the clergy, and false principles of religion, are the most likely to unsettle a kingdom, and to bring about destructive revolutions in the state. This is the principle on which all national establishments of religion were originally formed. Where the religion of the country is pure, founded solely on the oracles of God, it deserves the utmost sanction of the state, as well as the attention of every individual. A Christian state has surely authority to enact, The Christian religion is and shall be the religion of this land; and, prejudice apart, should not the laws provide for the permanence of this system? Is the form of Christianity likely to be preserved in times of general profligacy, if the laws do not secure its permanence? What would our nation have been if we had not had a version of the sacred writings established by the authority of the laws; and a form of sound words for general devotion established by the same authority? Whatever the reader may do, the writer thanks God for the religious establishment of his country. For abuses in church or state, he is the last to contend

CHAPTER XIV.

Abijah, the son of Jeroboam, falls sick, 1. Jeroboam sends his wife disguised to Ahijah the prophet, and, with her a present, to inquire concerning her son, 2-4. Ahijah discovers her by a divine intimation, and delivers to her a heavy message concerning the destruction of Jeroboam's house, and the death of her son, 5-16. The child dies, according to the prediction of Ahijah, 17. Jeroboam's reign and death, 18-20. Rehoboam's bad reign, and the apostasy of Judah, 21-24. Shishak, king of Egypt, invades Judea, spoils the temple, and takes away the golden shields made by Solomon; instead of which Rehoboam makes others of brass, 25-28. Rehoboam's reign and death, 29-31.

AT that time Abijah the son of Jeroboam fell sick.

2 And Jeroboam said to his wife, Arise,

I pray thee, and disguise thyself, that thou be not known to be the wife of Jeroboam; and get thee to Shiloh: behold, there is Ahijah the prophet, which told me that * I should be king over this people.

3 <sup>b</sup> And take <sup>c</sup> with thee ten loaves, and <sup>d</sup> cracknels, and a <sup>e</sup> cruse of honey, and go to him: he shall tell thee what shall become of the child.

4 And Jeroboam's wife did so, and arose, and went to Shiloh, and came to the house of Ahijah. But Ahijah could not see; for his eyes <sup>f</sup> were set by reason of his age.

Verse 1. Abijah—fell sick.] This was but a prelude to the miseries which fell on the house of Jeroboam; but it was another merciful warning, intended to turn him from his idolatry and wickedness.

Verse 3. Ten loaves] Probably common or household bread.

Cracknels] Spotted or perforated bread; thin cakes, pierced through with many holes, the same as is called Jew's

5 And the LORD said unto Ahijah, Behold, the wife of Jeroboam cometh to ask a thing of thee for her son; for he is sick: thus and thus shalt thou say unto her: for it shall be, when she cometh in, that she shall feign herself to be another woman.

6 And it was so, when Ahijah heard the sound of her feet, as she came in at the door, that he said, Come in, thou wife of Jeroboam; why feignest thou thyself to be another? for I am sent to thee with <sup>b</sup> heavy tidings.

7 Go, tell Jeroboam, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, <sup>c</sup> Forasmuch as I exalted thee from among the people, and made thee prince over my people Israel,

8 And <sup>d</sup> rent the kingdom away from the house bread to the present day, and used by them at the pass-over.

Verse 5. Feign herself to be another woman.] It would have been discreditable to Jeroboam's calves, if it had been known that he had consulted a prophet of Jehovah.

Verse 8. And rent the kingdom away from the house of David] That is, permitted it to be rent, because of the folly and insolence of Rehoboam.

of David, and gave it thee: and yet thou hast not been as my servant David, who kept my commandments, and who followed me with all his heart, to do that only which was right in mine eyes:

9 But hast done evil above all that were before thee: for thou hast gone and made thee other gods, and molten images, to provoke me to anger, and hast cast me behind thy back:

10 Therefore, behold, I will bring evil upon the house of Jeroboam, and will cut off from Jeroboam him that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut up and left in Israel, and will take away the remnant of the house of Jeroboam, as a man taketh away dung, till it be all gone.

11 Him that dieth of Jeroboam in the city shall the dogs eat; and him that dieth in the field shall the fowls of the air eat: for the LORD hath spoken it.

12 Arise thou therefore, get thee to thine own house: and when thy feet enter into the city, the child shall die.

13 And all Israel shall mourn for him, and bury him: for he only of Jeroboam shall come to the grave, because in him there is found some good thing toward the LORD God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam.

14 Moreover the LORD shall raise him up a king over Israel, who shall cut off the house of Jeroboam that day: but what? even now.

15 For the LORD shall smite Israel, as a reed is shaken in the water, and he shall root up Israel out of this good land, which he gave to their fathers, and shall scatter them beyond the river, because they have made their groves, provoking the LORD to anger.

16 And he shall give Israel up because of the sins of Jeroboam, who did sin, and who made Israel to sin.

17 And Jeroboam's wife arose, and departed, and came to Tirzah: and when she came to the threshold of the door, the child died;

18 And they buried him; and all Israel mourned for him, according to the word of the LORD, which he spake by the hand of his servant Ahijah the prophet.

19 And the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, how he warred, and how he reigned, behold, they are Verse 11. Shall the dogs eat] They shall not have an honourable burial; and shall not come into the sepulchres of their fathers.

Verse 13. In him there is found some good thing] Far be it from God to destroy the righteous with the wicked; God respects even a little good, because it is a seed from himself.

Verse 15. For the Lord shall smite Israel] See this prophecy fulfilled, chap. xv. 28-30, when Baasha destroyed all the house and posterity of Jeroboam.

Verse 19. The rest of the acts of Jeroboam—are written in the chronicles] For some important particulars relative to this reign, see 2 Chron. xiii. 1-20.

written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

20 And the days which Jeroboam reigned were two and twenty years: and he slept with his fathers, and Nadab his son reigned in his stead.

21 And Rehoboam the son of Solomon reigned in Judah. Rehoboam was forty and one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city which the LORD did choose out of all the tribes of Israel, to put his name there. And his mother's name was Naamah an Ammonitess.

22 And Judah did evil in the sight of the LORD, and they provoked him to jealousy with their sins which they had committed, above all that their fathers had done.

23 For they also built them high places, and images, and groves, on every high hill, and under every green tree.

24 And there were also sodomites in the land: and they did according to all the abominations of the nations which the LORD cast out before the children of Israel.

25 And it came to pass in the fifth year of king Rehoboam, that Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem:

26 And he took away the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house; he even took away all: and he took away all the shields of gold which Solomon had made.

27 And king Rehoboam made in their stead brassen shields, and committed them unto the hands of the chief of the guard, which kept the door of the king's house.

28 And it was so, when the king went into the house of the LORD, that the guard bare them, and brought them back into the guard chamber.

29 Now the rest of the acts of Rehoboam, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

30 And there was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam all their days.

31 And Rehoboam slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. And his mother's name was Naamah an Ammonitess. And Abijam his son reigned in his stead.

Verse 26. He took away the treasures] A booty the most immense ever acquired in one place.

All the shields of gold which Solomon had made.] These were three hundred in number, and were all made of beaten gold.

Verse 31. Naamah an Ammonitess] He was born of a heathen mother, and begotten of an apostate father. From such an impure fountain could sweet water possibly spring?

Abijam his son reigned in his stead.] Though righteousness cannot be propagated, because it is supernatural, yet unrighteousness may, for that is a genuine offspring of nature. Grace may be grafted on a crab stock; but let none do evil that good may come of it. A bad stock will produce bad fruit.

CHAPTER XV.

Abijam's wicked reign, and death, 1-8. Asa succeeds him in the kingdom of Judah, and rules well, 9-15. He makes a league with the king of Syria against Baasha king of Israel, who is obliged to desist in his attempts against Judah, 16-22. He is diseased in his feet and dies, and is succeeded by his son Jehoshaphat, 23-25. Nadab, son of Jeroboam, reigns over Israel; but is slain by Baasha, who reigns in his stead, 26-28. Baasha destroys all the house of Jeroboam, according to the prediction of Ahijah, 29, 30. Baasha continues the idolatry of Jeroboam, 31-34.

NOW <sup>a</sup>in the eighteenth year of king Jeroboam the son of Nebat reigned Abijam over Judah.

<sup>7</sup> <sup>k</sup>Now the rest of the acts of Abijam, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? And there was war between Abijam and Jeroboam.

Verse 1. Reigned Abijam over Judah.] Sec 2 Chron. xii., where many particulars are added.

Verse 3. His heart was not perfect] He was an idolater, or did not support the worship of the true God. This appears to be the general meaning of the heart not being perfect with God.

Verse 4. The Lord—give him a lamp] That is, a son to succeed him; see chap. xi. 86.

Verse 5. Save only in the matter of Uriah] Properly speaking, this is the only flagrant fault or crime in the life of David. It was a horrible offence, or rather a whole system of offences.

Verse 6. There was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam] This was mentioned in the preceding chapter, ver. 80, and it can mean no more than this: there was a continual spirit of hostility kept up between the two kingdoms, and no doubt frequent skirmishing between bordering parties; but it never broke out into open war, for this was particularly forbidden. Hostility did exist, and no doubt frequent skirmishes; but open war and pitched battles there were none.

But why is this circumstance repeated, and the history of Abijam interrupted by the repetition? There is some reason to believe that Rehoboam is not the true reading, and that it should be Abijam: "Now there was war between Abijam and Jeroboam all the days of his life." [The authority for this change is weak, and it is not at all necessary to the sense.]

Verse 10. His mother's name] Our translators thought that grandmother was likely to be the meaning, and therefore have put it in the margin.

The daughter of Abishalom.] The scriptures give the name of daughter indifferently to the niece, the grand-daughter and great-granddaughter.

<sup>15</sup> And he brought in the <sup>x</sup>things which his father had dedicated, and the things which himself had dedicated, into the house of the Lord, silver, and gold, and vessels.

<sup>17</sup> <sup>y</sup>And <sup>z</sup>Baasha king of Israel went up against Judah, and built <sup>aa</sup>Ramah, <sup>ab</sup>that he might not suffer any to go out or come in to Asa king of Judah.

Verse 12. The sodomites] Literally, the holy or consecrated ones.

Verse 13. She had made an idol in a grove] The original word is variously understood.

It is pretty evident, however, that the image was a mere Priapus, or something of the same nature, and that Maachah had an assembly in the grove where this image was set up, and doubtless worshipped it with the most impure rites.

Verse 14. The high places were not removed] He was not able to make a thorough reformation; this was reserved for his son Jehoshaphat.

Asa's heart was perfect] He worshipped the true God, and zealously promoted his service; see on ver. 8. And even the high places which he did not remove were probably those where the true God alone was worshipped; for that there were such high places the preceding history amply proves, and Jerchi intimates that these were places which individuals had erected for the worship of Jehovah.

Verse 15. Which his father had dedicated] On what account he and his father dedicated the things mentioned below we know not; but it appears that Asa thought himself bound by the vow of his father.

Verse 16. There was war] There was no open war till the thirty-sixth year of Asa, when Baasha, king of Israel, began to build Ramah, that he might prevent all communication between Israel and Judah; see 2 Chron. xv. 19, and xvi. 1. But this does not agree with what is said here, chap. xvi. 8, 9, that Elah, the son and successor of Baasha, was killed by Zimri, in the twenty-sixth year of the reign of Asa. Chronologers endeavour to reconcile this by saying that the years should be reckoned, not from the beginning of the reign of Asa, but from the separation of the kingdoms of Israel and 18 Then Asa took all the silver and the gold that were left in the treasures of the house of the Lord, and the treasures of the king's house, and delivered them into the hand of his servants: and king Asa sent them to <sup>a</sup> Ben-hadad, the son of Tabrimon, the son of Hezion, king of Syria, that dwelt at <sup>b</sup> Damascus, saying,

19 There is a league between me and thee, and between my father and thy father: behold, I have sent unto thee a present of silver and gold; come and break thy league with Baasha king of Israel, that he may <sup>c</sup> depart from me.

20 So Ben-hadad hearkened unto king Asa, and sent the captains of the host which he had against the cities of Israel, and smote <sup>d</sup> Ijon, and <sup>e</sup> Dan, and <sup>f</sup> Abel-beth-maachah, and all Cinueroth, with all the land of Naphtali.

21 And it came to pass, when Baasha heard thereof, that he left off building of Ramah, and dwelt in Tirzah.

22 <sup>g</sup> Then king Asa made a proclamation throughout all Judah, none was <sup>h</sup> exempted: and they took away the stones of Ramah, and the timber thereof, wherewith Baasha had builded; and king Asa built with them <sup>i</sup> Geba of Benjamin, and <sup>j</sup> Mizpah.

23 The rest of all the acts of Asa, and all his might, and all that he did, and the cities which he built, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah? Nevertheless <sup>k</sup> in the time of his old age he was diseased in his feet.

24 And Asa slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David his father: <sup>l</sup> and <sup>m</sup> Jehoshaphat his son reigned in his stead.

Judah. We must either adopt the mode of solution given by chronologists, or grant that there is a mistake in some of the numbers; most likely in the parallel places in Chronicles, but which we have no direct means of correcting.

Verse 17. And Baasha—built Ramah] Ramah was probably a hill (commanding a defile through which lay the principal road to Jerusalem), which Baasha fortified in order to prevent all intercourse with the kingdom of Judah, lest his subjects should cleave to the house of David. Ramah was about two leagues northward of Jerusalem.

Verse 18. Asa took all the silver] Shishak, king of Egypt, had not taken the whole; or there had been some treasures brought in since that time.

Ben-hadad] This was the grandson of Rezon, called here Hezion, who founded the kingdom of Damascus.

Verse 19. There is a league between me and thee] Or, Let there be a league between me and thee; as there was between my father and thy father. There was no reason why Asa should have emptied his treasures at this time to procure the aid of the Syrian king; as it does not appear that there was any danger which himself could not have turned aside. He probably wished to destroy the kingdom of Israel; and to effect this purpose, even robbed the house of the Lord.

Verse 20. Ijon, and Dan, &c.] He appears to have attacked and taken those towns which constituted the principal strength of the kingdom of Israel.

Verse 21. Dwelt in Tirzah.] This seems to have been the 25 And Nadab the son of Jeroboam <sup>a</sup> began to reign over Israel in the second year of Asa king of Judah, and reigned over Israel two years.

26 And he did evil in the sight of the Lord, and walked in the way of his father, and in <sup>b</sup> his sin wherewith he made Israel to sin.

27 <sup>c</sup> And Baasha the son of Ahijah, of the house of Issachar, conspired against him; and Baasha smote him at <sup>d</sup> Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines; for Nadab and all Israel laid siege to Gibbethon.

28 Even in the third year of Asa king of Judah did Baasha slay him, and reigned in his stead.

29 And it came to pass, when he reigned, that he smote all the house of Jeroboam; he left not to Jeroboam any that breathed, until he had destroyed him, according unto <sup>e</sup> the saying of the Lord, which he spake by his servant Ahijah the Shilonite:

30 <sup>f</sup> Because of the sins of Jeroboam which he sinned, and which he made Israel sin, by his provocation wherewith he provoked the Lord God of Israel to anger.

31 Now the rest of the acts of Nadab, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

32 <sup>g</sup> And there was war between Asa and Baasha king of Israel all their days.

royal city; and in this Baasha was probably obliged to shut himself up.

Verse 22. None was exempted] Every man was obliged to go and help to dismantle the fortress at Ramah which Baasha had built.

Verse 23. And the cities which he built] Such as Geba and Mizpah, which he built out of the spoils of Ramah.

He was diseased in his feet.] Probably he had a strong rheumatic affection, or the gout. This took place in the thirty-ninth year of his reign, three years before his death.

Verse 24. Asa slept with his fathers] Of his splendid and costly funeral we read 1 Chron. xvi. 14.

Verse 25. Nadab—began to reign over Israel] He began his reign in the second year of the reign of Asa, and reigned two years.

Verse 27. Smote him at Gibbethon] This was a city in the tribe of Dan, and generally in the possession of the Philistines.

Verse 29. He smote all the house of Jeroboam] This was according to Ahijah's prophetic declarations; see chap. xiv. 10, 14. Thus God made use of one wicked man to destroy another.

Verse 34. Walked in the way of Jeroboam] The entail of iniquity cannot be cut off but by a thorough conversion of the soul to God; and of this, these bad kings seem to have had no adequate notion. The wicked followed the steps of the wicked, and became still more wicked; sin gathers strength by exercise and age.

CHAPTER XVI.

Jehu the prophet denounces the destruction of Baasha, 1-7. Zimri conspires against him, and slays him and his family, and reigns seven days, 8-15. The people make Omri king, and besiege Zimri in Tirzah; who, finding no way to escape, sets fire to his palace, and consumes himself in it, 16-20. The people are divided, half following Tibni, and half Omri; the latter faction overcomes the former, Tibni is slain, and Omri reigns alone, 21-23. He founds Samaria, 24. His bad character and death, 25-28. Ahab reigns in his stead; marries Jezebel, restores idolatry, and exceeds his predecessors in wickedness, 29-33. Hiel the Beth-elite rebuilds Jericho, 34.

THEN the word of the LORD came to *Jehu the son of Hanani against Baasha, saying,

2 <sup>b</sup> Forasmuch as I exalted thee out of the dust, and made thee prince over my people Israel; and *thou hast walked in the way of Jeroboam, and hast made my people Israel to sin, to provoke me to anger with their sins;

3 Behold, I will *take away the posterity of Baasha, and the posterity of his house; and will make thy house like *the house of Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

4 *Him that dieth of Baasha in the city shall the dogs eat; and him that dieth of his in the fields shall the fowls of the air eat.

5 Now the rest of the acts of Baasha, and what he did, and his might, *are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

6 So Baasha slept with his fathers, and was buried in <sup>b</sup> Tirzah: and Elah his son reigned in his stead.

7 And also by the hand of the prophet *Jehu the son of Hanani came the word of the LORD against Baasha, and against his house, even for all the evil that he did in the sight of the LORD, in provoking him to anger with the work of his hands, in being like the house of Jeroboam: and because <sup>c</sup> he killed him.

8 In the twenty and sixth year of Asa king of Judah began Elah the son of Baasha to reign over Israel in Tirzah, two years.

9 *And his servant Zimri, captain of half his chariots, conspired against him, as he was in Tirzah, drinking himself drunk in the house of Arza, <sup>d</sup> steward of his house in Tirzah.

10 And Zimri went in and smote him, and killed him, in the twenty and seventh year of Asa king of Judah, and reigned in his stead.

11 And it came to pass, when he began to reign, as soon as he sat on his throne, that he slew all the house of Baasha: he left him *not one that pisseth against a wall, *neither of his kinsfolks, nor of his friends.

12 Thus did Zimri destroy all the house of Baasha, *according to the word of the LORD, which he spake against Baasha *by <sup>e</sup> Jehu the prophet, 13 For all the sins of Baasha, and the sins of Elah his son, by which they sinned, and by which they made Israel to sin, in provoking the LORD God of Israel to anger *with their vanities.

14 Now the rest of the acts of Elah, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

15 In the twenty and seventh year of Asa king of Judah did Zimri reign seven days in Tirzah. And the people were encamped *against Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines.

16 And the people that were encamped heard say, Zimri hath conspired, and hath also slain the king: wherefore all Israel made Omri, the captain of the host, king over Israel that day in the camp.

17 And Omri went up from Gibbethon, and all Israel with him, and they besieged Tirzah.

18 And it came to pass, when Zimri saw that the city was taken, that he went into the palace of the king's house, and burnt the king's house over him with fire, and died.

19 For his sins which he sinned in doing evil in the sight of the LORD, *in walking in the way of Jeroboam, and in his sin which he did, to make Israel to sin.

20 Now the rest of the acts of Zimri, and his treason that he wrought, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

21 Then were the people of Israel divided into two parts: half of the people followed Tibni the son of Ginath, to make him king; and half followed Omri.

Verse 1. Then the word of the Lord came to Jehu Of this prophet we know nothing but from this circumstance. It appears from 2 Chron. xvi. 7-10, that his father Hanani was also a prophet, and suffered imprisonment in consequence of the faithful discharge of his ministry to Asa.

Verse 2. Made thee prince over my people That is, in the course of my providence, I suffered thee to become king; for it is impossible that God should make a rebel, a traitor, and a murderer, king over his people, or over any people. God is ever represented in Scripture as doing those things which, in the course of his providence, he permits to be done.

Verse 7. And because he killed him This the Vulgate understands of Jehu the prophet, put to death by Baasha. Some think Baasha is intended, others Jeroboam, and others Nadab the son of Jeroboam. [The reference seems to be to the house of Jeroboam: the pronoun should be it, not him.]

Verse 9. Captain of half his chariots It is probable that Zimri, and some other who is not here named, were commanders of the cavalry.

Verse 11. He slew all the house of Baasha He endeavoured to exterminate his race, and blot out his memory; and the Jews say, when such a matter is determined, they not only destroy the house of the person himself, but the five neighbouring houses, that the memory of such a person may perish from the earth.

Verse 13. For all the sins of Baasha Baasha was a grievous offender, and so also was his son Elah; and they caused the people to sin; and they provoked God to anger by their idolatries.

Verse 21. Divided into two parts Why this division took place we cannot tell; the people appear to have been for Tibni, the army for Omri; and the latter prevailed.

22 But the people that followed Omri prevailed against the people that followed Tibni the son of Ginath: so Tibni died, and Omri reigned.

23 In the thirty and first year of Asa king of Judah began Omri to reign over Israel, twelve years: six years reigned he in Tirzah.

24 And he bought the hill Samaria of Shemer for two talents of silver, and built on the hill, and called the name of the city which he built, after the name of Shemer, owner of the hill, <sup>a</sup> Samaria.<sup>b</sup>

25 But <sup>c</sup>Omri wrought evil in the eyes of the LORD, and did worse than all that were before him.

26 For he <sup>d</sup>walked in all the way of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and in his sin wherewith he made Israel to sin, to provoke the LORD God of Israel to anger with their <sup>e</sup>vanities.

27 Now the rest of the acts of Omri which he did, and his might that he shewed, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

28 So Omri slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria: and Ahab his son reigned in his stead.

Verse 23. In the thirty and first year of Asa. There must be a mistake here in the number thirty-one; for, in ver. 10 and 15, it is said that Zimri slew his master, and began to reign in the twenty-seventh year of Asa; and as Zimri reigned only seven days, and Omri immediately succeeded him, this could not be in the thirty-first, but in the twenty-seventh year of Asa, as related above.

Verse 24. He bought the hill Samaria of Shemer. At first the kings of Israel dwelt at Shechem, and then at Tirzah: but this place having suffered much in the civil broils, and the palace having been burnt down by Zimri, Omri purposed to found a new city, to which he might transfer the seat of government. He fixed on a hill that belonged to a person of the name of Shomer; and bought it from him for two talents of silver, about £707 8s. 9d. Shomeron, or, as it is corruptly written, Samaria, is situated in the midst of the tribe of Ephraim, not very far from the coast of the Mediterranean Sea, and about mid-way between Dan and Beersheba; thus Samaria became the capital of the ten tribes, the metropolis of the kingdom of Israel, and the residence of its kings.

Samaria endured several sieges; Ben-hadad, king of Syria, besieged it twice, chap. xx. 1, &c.; and it cost Shalmaneser a siege of three years to reduce it, 2 Kings xvii. 6, &c. After the death of Alexander the Great, it became the property of the kings of Egypt; but Antiochus the Great took it from the Egyptians; and it continued in the possession of the kings of Syria till the Asmoneans took and razed it to the very foundation. Gabinus, pro-consul of Syria, partially rebuilt it, and called it Gabiniana. Herod the Great restored it to its ancient splendour, and placed in it a colony of six thousand men, and gave it the name of Sebaste, in honour of Augustus. It is now a place of little consequence.

Verse 25. Did worse than all—before him. Omri was, 1. An idolater in principle; 2. An idolater in practice; 3. He led the people to idolatry by precept and example; and, which was that in which he did worse than all before him, 4. He made statutes in favour of idolatry, and obliged the people by law to commit it.

Verse 31. He took to wife Jezebel. This was the head and chief of his offending; he took to wife, not only a heathen, but one whose hostility to the true religion was well known, and carried to the utmost extent.

Notwithstanding Ahab had built a temple, and made an altar for Baal, and set up the worship of Asherah, the Sidonian Venus, which we, ver. 33, have transformed into a grove;

29 And in the thirty and eighth year of Asa king of Judah began Ahab the son of Omri to reign over Israel; and Ahab the son of Omri reigned over Israel in Samaria twenty and two years.

30 And Ahab the son of Omri did evil in the sight of the LORD above all that were before him.

31 And it came to pass, <sup>a</sup>as if it had been a light thing for him to walk in the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, <sup>b</sup>that he took to wife Jezebel the daughter of Ethbaal king of the <sup>c</sup>Zidonians, <sup>d</sup>and went and served Baal, and worshipped him.

32 And he reared up an altar for Baal in <sup>e</sup>the house of Baal, which he had built in Samaria.

33 <sup>f</sup>And Ahab made a grove; and Ahab <sup>g</sup>did more to provoke the LORD God of Israel to anger than all the kings of Israel that were before him.

34 In his days did Hiel the Beth-elite build Jericho: he laid the foundation thereof in Abiram his first-born, and set up the gates thereof in his youngest son Segub, <sup>h</sup>according to the word of the LORD, which he spake by Joshua the son of Nun.

26. 2 Kings x. 18. xvii. 16.—2 Kings x. 21, 26. 27.—2 Kings xiii. 6. xvii. 10. xxi. 3. Jer. xvii. 2.—Ver. 30. Ch. xxi. 23.—<sup>a</sup> Josh. vi. 26.

yet so well known was the hostility of Jezebel to all good, that his marrying her was esteemed the highest pitch of vice, and an act the most provoking to God, and destructive to the prosperity of the kingdom.

Verse 33. Ahab made a grove. Asherah, Astarte, or Venus; what the Syriac calls an idol, and the Arabic a tail tree; probably meaning, by the last, an image of Priapus, the obscene keeper of groves, orchards, and gardens.

Verse 34. Did Hiel the Beth-elite build Jericho. See Josh. vi. 26. This prediction was delivered upwards of five hundred years before this event; and though it was most circumstantially fulfilled, yet we know not the precise meaning of some of the terms used in the original execration, and in this place, where its fulfilment is mentioned. There are three opinions on the words, lay the foundation in his first-born, and set up the gates in his youngest son.

1. It is thought that when he laid the foundation of the city, his eldest son, the hope of his family, died by the hand and judgment of God, and that all his children died in succession; so that when the doors were ready to be hung, his youngest and last child died, and thus, instead of securing himself a name, his whole family became extinct.

2. These expressions signify only great delay in the building; that he who should undertake it should spend nearly his whole life in it; all the time in which he was capable of procreating children; in a word, that if a man laid the foundation when his first-born came into the world, his youngest and last son should be born before the walls should be in readiness to admit the gates to be set up in them; and that the expression is of the proverbial kind, intimating greatly protracted labour, occasioned by multitudinous hindrances and delays.

3. That he who rebuilt this city should, in laying the foundation, slay or sacrifice his first-born, in order to consecrate it, and secure the assistance of the objects of his idolatrous worship; and should slay his youngest at the completion of the work, as a gratitude-offering for the assistance received.

Which of these opinions is the right one, or whether any of them be correct, is more than I can pretend to state. A curse seems to rest still upon Jericho: it is not yet blotted out of the map of Palestine, but it is reduced to a miserable village, consisting of about thirty wretched cottages, and the governor's dilapidated castle; nor is there any ruin there to indicate its former splendour.

CHAPTER XVII.

Elijah's message to Ahab, concerning the three years' drought, 1. He is commanded to go to the brook Cherith; where he is fed by ravens, 2-7. He afterwards goes to a widow's house at Zarephath, and miraculously multiplies her meal and oil, 8-16. Her son dies, and Elijah restores him to life, 17-24.

AND *Elijah the Tishbite, who was of the inhabitants of Gilead, said unto Ahab, <sup>b</sup>As the LORD God of Israel liveth, <sup>c</sup>before whom I stand, <sup>d</sup>there shall not be dew nor rain <sup>e</sup>these years, but according to my word.

2 And the word of the LORD came unto him, saying,

3 Get thee hence, and turn thee eastward, and hide thyself by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan.

4 And it shall be, that thou shalt drink of the brook; and I have commanded the ravens to feed thee there.

5 So he went and did according unto the word of the LORD: for he went and dwelt by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan.

6 And the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning, and bread and flesh in the evening; and he drank of the brook.

7 And it came to pass <sup>f</sup>after a while, that the brook dried up, because there had been no rain in the land.

8 And the word of the LORD came unto him, saying,

9 Arise, get thee to <sup>g</sup>Zarephath, which belongeth to Zidon, and dwell there: behold, I have commanded a widow woman there to sustain thee.

10 So he arose and went to Zarephath. And when he came to the gate of the city, behold, the widow woman was there gathering of sticks: and he called to her, and said, Fetch me, I pray thee, a little water in a vessel, that I may drink.

11 And as she was going to fetch it, he called to her, and said, Bring me, I pray thee, a morsel of bread in thine hand.

12 And she said, As the LORD thy God liveth, I have not a cake, but an handful of meal in a barrel, and a little oil in a cruse: and, behold, I am gathering two sticks, that I may go in and dress it for me and my son, that we may eat it, and die.

13 And Elijah said unto her, Fear not; go and do as thou hast said: but make me thereof a little cake first, and bring it unto me, and after make for thee and for thy son.

14 For thus saith the LORD God of Israel, The barrel of meal shall not waste, neither shall the cruse of oil fail, until the day that the LORD <sup>h</sup>sendeth rain upon the earth.

15 And she went and did according to the saying of Elijah; and she, and he, and her house did eat <sup>i</sup>many days.

16 And the barrel of meal wasted not, neither did the cruse of oil fail, according to the word of the LORD, which he spake <sup>j</sup>by Elijah.

17 And it came to pass after these things, that the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, fell sick; and his sickness was so sore, that there was no breath left in him.

18 And she said unto Elijah, <sup>k</sup>What have I to do with thee, O thou man of God? art thou come unto Verse 1. Elijah the Tishbite] The history of this great man is introduced very abruptly: his origin is enveloped in perfect obscurity. He is here said to be a Tishbite. Tishbeh, says Calmet, is a city beyond Jordan, in the tribe of Gad, and in the land of Gilead. Who was his father, or from what tribe he sprang, is not intimated: he seems to have been the prophet of Israel peculiarly, as we never find him prophesying in Judah. [Probably the word Tishbite is to be understood, not as the name of a place, but as "a stranger."]

Verse 3. Hide thyself by the brook Cherith] This brook, and the valley through which it ran, are supposed to have been on the western side of Jordan, and not far from Samaria. Others suppose it to have been on the eastern side, because the prophet is commanded to go eastward, ver. 8. [Robinson identifies it with the Wady Kelt, and Von de Velde with the Wady Fasacl, which are on the west of the river.]

Verse 4. I have commanded the ravens to feed thee] Thou shalt not lack the necessities of life; thou shalt be supplied by an especial providence.

Verse 6. And the ravens brought him bread and flesh] This is the first account we have of flesh-meat breakfasts and flesh-meat suppers; and as this was the food appointed by the Lord for the sustenance of the prophet, we may naturally conjecture that it was the food of the people at large.

Verse 7. The brook dried up] Because there had been no rain in the land for some time, God having sent this drought as a testimony against the idolatry of the people: see Deut. xi. 16, 17.

Verse 9. Get thee to Zarephath] This was a town between Tyre and Sidon, but nearer to the latter, and is therefore called in the text Zarephath, which belongeth to Sidon; or, as the Vulgate and other Versions express it, Sarepta of the Sidonians. Sarepta is the name by which it goes in the New Testament; but its present name is Sarphan. [Travellers give to this village the name of Sarphand, Sarphen, and Sarufend.]

Verse 12. An handful of meal in a barrel] The word is to be understood as implying an earthen jar; not a wooden vessel or barrel of any kind. In the East they preserve their corn and meal in such vessels; without which precaution the insects would destroy them.

The word cruse signifies what in our tongue is expressed by bottle.

Verse 13. But make me thereof a little cake first] This was certainly putting the widow's faith to an extraordinary trial: to take and give to a stranger, of whom she knew nothing, the small pittance requisite to keep her child from perishing, was too much to be expected.

Verse 16. The barrel of meal wasted not] She continued to take out of her jar and out of her bottle the quantity of meal and oil requisite for the consumption of her household; and without carefully estimating what was left, she went with confidence each time for a supply, and was never disappointed.

Verse 17. There was no breath left in him] He ceased to breathe, and died.

Verse 18. To call my sin to remembrance] She seems to be now conscious of some secret sin, which she had either forgotten or too carelessly passed over; and to punish this she supposes the life of her son was taken away. It is mostly in times of adversity that we duly consider our moral state; outward afflictions often bring deep searchings of heart.

me to call my sin to remembrance, and to slay my son?

19 And he said unto her, Give me thy son. And he took him out of her bosom, and carried him up into a loft, where he abode, and laid him upon his own bed.

20 And he cried unto the LORD, and said, O LORD my God, hast thou also brought evil upon the widow with whom I sojourn, by slaying her son?

21 And he stretched himself upon the child three times, and cried unto the LORD, and said, O

Verse 21. Stretched himself upon the child three times] It is supposed that he did this in order to communicate some natural warmth to the body of the child, in order to dispose it to receive the departed spirit. Elisha, his disciple, did the same, in order to restore the dead child of the Shunammite, 2 Kings iv. 34. And St. Paul appears to have stretched himself on Eutychus in order to restore him to life, Acts xx. 10.

Let this child's soul come into him again.] Surely this means more than the breath. Though the word nephesh may sometimes signify the life, yet does not this imply that the spirit must take possession of the body in order to produce and maintain the flame of animal life? The expressions here are singular; Let his soul come into the midst of him.

Verse 22. And the soul] Did he not become alive from the circumstance of the immaterial principle coming again into him?

The words and mode of expression here appear to me a strong proof, not only of the existence of an immortal and immaterial spirit in man, but also that that spirit can and does exist in a separate state from the body. It is here represented as being in the midst of the child, like a spring in the centre of a machine, which gives motion to every part, and without which the whole would stand still.

Verse 24. The word of the Lord in thy mouth is truth.] Three grand effects were produced by this temporary affliction; 1. The woman was led to examine her heart, and try her ways; 2. The power of God became highly manifest in the resurrection of the child; 3. She was convinced that the word of the Lord was truth, and that not one syllable of it could fall to the ground. Through a little suffering all this good was obtained.

The subject in the fourth verse of this chapter deserves a more particular consideration.

I have commanded the ravens to feed thee.—It is contended that if we consider orebim to signify ravens, we shall find any interpretation on this ground to be clogged with difficulties. The raven is an unclean bird; Lev. xi. 13-15. Is it therefore likely that God would employ this most unclean bird to feed his prophet? Besides, where could the ravens get any flesh that was not unclean? Carrion is their food; and would God send any thing of this kind to his prophet? Again: If the flesh was clean which God sent, where could ravens get it? Here must be at least three miracles: one, to bring from some table the flesh to the ravens; another, to induce the ravenous bird to give it up; and the third, to conquer its timidity towards man, so that it could come to the prophet without fear. Now, although God might employ a fowl that would naturally strive to prey on the flesh, and oblige it, contrary to its nature, to give it up; yet it is by no means likely that he would employ a bird that his own law had pronounced abominable. Again, he could not have employed this means without working a variety of miracles at the same time, in order to accomplish one simple end; and this is never God's method: his plan is ever to accomplish the greatest purposes by the simplest means.

The original word orebim has been considered by some as meaning merchants, persons occasionally trading through that country, whom God directed, by inspiration, to supply

LORD my God, I pray thee, let this child's soul come into him again.

22 And the LORD heard the voice of Elijah; and the soul of the child came into him again, and he revived.

23 And Elijah took the child, and brought him down out of the chamber into the house, and delivered him unto his mother: and Elijah said, See, thy son liveth.

24 And the woman said to Elijah, Now by this I know that thou art a man of God, and that the word of the LORD in thy mouth is truth.

his inward parts.—<sup>d</sup> Heb. xi. 35.—<sup>e</sup> John iii. 2. xvi. 30.

the prophet with food. To get a constant supply from such hands in an extraordinary way was miracle enough; it showed the superintendence of God, and that the hearts of all men are in his hands.

But in answer to this it is said that the "original word never signifies merchants; and that the learned Bochart has proved this." I have carefully read over the Hieroicon of this author, where he discusses this subject; and think that he has never succeeded less than in his attempt to prove that ravens are meant in this passage. He allows that the Tyrian merchants are described by this periphrasis, the occupiers of thy merchandise, Ezek. xxvii. 27; and asserts that orebim, "by itself, never signifies merchants." Now, with perfect deference to so great an authority, I assert that orebey, the contracted form of orebim, does signify merchants, both in Ezek. xxvii. 9 and xxvii. 27, and that maarab signifies a place for merchandise, the market-place or bazaar, in Ezek. xxvii. 9, 13, 17, 19; as also the goods sold in such places, Ezek. xxvii. 33; and therefore that orebim may, for aught proved to the contrary, signify merchants in the text.

As to Bochart's objection, that the place of his retreat would be known, if any traders or merchants supplied his wants, I think there is no weight in it; for the men might be as well bound by the secret inspiration of God not to discover the place of his retreat, as they were to supply his wants; besides, they might have been of the number of those seven thousand men who had not bowed their knees to the image of Baal, and consequently would not inform Ahab and Jezebel of their prophet's hiding-place.

Some have supposed that the original means Arabians; but Bochart contends that there were no Arabians in that district: this is certainly more than he or any other man can prove. But there was a town or city of the name of Orbo, that was not far from the place where Elijah was commanded to hide himself. "The Orbim, inhabitants of a town in the confines of the Arabs, gave nourishment to Elijah." It is therefore most likely that the inhabitants of Oreb or Orbo, as mentioned above, furnished the aliment by which the prophet was sustained; and that they did this being specially moved thereto by the Spirit of the Lord.

It is contended that those who think the miracle is lost if the ravens be not admitted, are bound to show, 1. With what propriety the raven, an unclean animal, could be employed? 2. Why the dove, or some such clean creature, was not preferred? 3. How the ravens could get properly dressed flesh to bring to the prophet? 4. From whose table it was taken; and by what means? 5. Whether it be consistent with the wisdom of God, and his general conduct, to work a tissue of miracles where one was sufficient? 6. And whether it be not best, in all cases of this kind, to adopt that mode of interpretation which is most simple; the wisdom, goodness, and providence of God being as equally apparent as in those cases where a multitude of miracles are resorted to in order to solve difficulties? [The above interpretation is not tenable. Reland has clearly proved that the town of Oreb or Orbo never existed. The word oreb never signifies a merchant, by itself. It cannot refer to Arabians, the vowels being quite different. Even the Rationalists have abandoned all these theories, and have relegated the entire story to the realm of myths.]

CHAPTER XVIII.

Elijah is commanded by the Lord to show himself to Ahab, 1, 2. Ahab, and Obadiah his steward, search the land to find provender for the cattle, 3-8. Obadiah meets Elijah, who commands him to inform Ahab that he is ready to present himself before him, 7-15. Elijah and Ahab meet, 16-18. Elijah proposes that the four hundred and fifty priests of Baal should be gathered together at Mount Carmel; that they should offer a sacrifice to their god, and he to Jehovah; and the God who should send down fire to consume the sacrifice should be acknowledged as the true God, 19-24. The proposal is accepted, and the priests of Baal call in vain upon their god through the whole day, 25-29. Elijah offers his sacrifice, prays to God, and fire comes down from heaven and consumes it; whereupon the people acknowledge Jehovah to be the true God, and slay all the prophets of Baal, 30-40. Elijah promises Ahab that there shall be immediate rain; it comes accordingly, and Ahab and Elijah comes to Jezreel, 41-46.

AND it came to pass after * many days, that the word of the LORD came to Elijah in the third year, saying, Go, shew thyself unto Ahab; and <sup>b</sup> I will send rain upon the earth.

2 And Elijah went to shew himself unto Ahab. And there was a sore famine in Samaria.

3 And Ahab called <sup>c</sup> Obadiah, which was <sup>d</sup> the governor of his house. (Now Obadiah feared the LORD greatly:

4 For it was so, when <sup>e</sup> Jezebel cut off the prophets of the LORD, that Obadiah took a hundred prophets, and hid them by fifty in a cave, and fed them with bread and water.)

5 And Ahab said unto Obadiah, Go into the land, unto all fountains of water, and unto all brooks: peradventure we may find grass to save the horses and mules alive, <sup>f</sup> that we lose not all the beasts.

6 So they divided the land between them to pass throughout it: Ahab went one way by himself, and Obadiah went another way by himself.

7 And as Obadiah was in the way, behold, Elijah met him: and he knew him, and fell on his face, and said, Art thou that my lord Elijah?

8 And he answered him, I am: go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here.

9 And he said, What have I sinned, that thou wouldest deliver thy servant into the hand of Ahab, to slay me?

10 As the LORD thy God liveth, there is no nation or kingdom, whither my lord hath not sent to seek thee! and when they said, He is not there; he took an oath of the kingdom and nation, that they found thee not.

11 And now thou sayest, Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here.

12 And it shall come to pass, as soon as I am gone from thee, that <sup>g</sup> the Spirit of the LORD shall carry thee whither I know not; and so when I come and tell Ahab, and he cannot find thee, he shall slay me: but I thy servant fear the LORD from my youth.

13 Was it not told my lord what I did when Jezebel slew the prophets of the LORD, how I hid an hundred men of the LORD's prophets by fifty in a cave, and fed them with bread and water?

14 And now thou sayest, Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here: and he shall slay me.

15 And Elijah said, As the LORD of hosts liveth, before whom I stand, I will surely shew myself unto him to day.

16 So Obadiah went to meet Ahab, and told him; and Ahab went to meet Elijah.

17 And it came to pass, when Ahab saw Elijah, that Ahab said unto him, <sup>h</sup> Art thou he that <sup>i</sup> troubleth Israel?

18 And he answered, I have not troubled Israel: but thou, and thy father's house, <sup>j</sup> in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the LORD, and thou hast followed Baalim.

19 Now therefore send, and gather to me all Israel unto Mount <sup>k</sup> Carmel, and the prophets of Baal four hundred and fifty, <sup>l</sup> and the prophets of the groves four hundred, which eat at Jezebel's table.

He took an oath] Ahab must have had considerable power and authority among the neighbouring nations to require and exact this, and Elijah must have kept himself very secret to have shunned such an extensive and minute search.

Verse 12. The Spirit of the Lord shall carry thee] Obadiah supposed that the Spirit of the Lord had carried him to some strange country during the three years and a half of the drought; and he took for granted that as soon as he should come into danger, so soon would the Spirit of the Lord carry him away, or direct him to some hiding-place.

Verse 13. When Jezebel slew the prophets] This persecution was probably during the dearth, for as this bad woman would attribute the public calamity to Elijah, not being able to find him, she would naturally wreak her vengeance on the prophets of Jehovah who were within her reach.

Verse 14. I have not troubled Israel] Here the cause of the dearth is placed on its true ground: the king and the people had forsaken the true God, and God shut up the heavens that there was no rain. Elijah was only the minister whom God used to dispense this judgment.

Verse 19. Gather to me all Israel] The heads of tribes and families; the rulers of the people.

The prophets of Baal four hundred and fifty—the prophets of the groves four hundred] The king and queen had differ-

Verse 1. After many days—in the third year] We learn from our Lord, Luke iv. 25, that the drought which brought on the famine in Israel lasted three years and six months. St. James v. 17, gives it the same duration. Probably Elijah spent six months at the brook Cherith, and three years with the widow at Sarepta.

I will send rain upon the earth.] The word should be translated the ground or the land, as it is probable that this drought did not extend beyond the land of Judea.

Verse 3. Obadiah feared the Lord greatly] He was a sincere and zealous worshipper of the true God, and his conduct towards the persecuted prophets was the full proof both of his piety and humanity.

Verse 4. Fed them with bread and water.] By these are signified the necessities of life, of whatsoever kind.

Verse 5. Unto all fountains of water] All marshy or well-watered districts, where grass was most likely to be preserved.

Verse 10. There is no nation or kingdom] He had sent through all his own states and to the neighbouring governments to find out the prophet, as he knew, from his own declaration, that both rain and drought were to be the effect of his prayers. Had he found him, he no doubt intended to oblige him to procure rain, or punish him for having brought on this drought.

20 So Ahab sent unto all the children of Israel, and gathered the prophets together unto Mount Carmel.

21 And Elijah came unto all the people, and said, How long halt ye between two opinions? if the LORD be God, follow him: but if Baal, then follow him. And the people answered him not a word.

22 Then said Elijah unto the people, I, even I only, remain a prophet of the LORD; but Baal's prophets are four hundred and fifty men.

23 Let them therefore give us two bullocks; and let them choose one bullock for themselves, and cut it in pieces, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under: and I will dress the other bullock, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under,

24 And call ye on the name of your gods, and I will call on the name of the LORD: and the God that answereth by fire, let him be God. And all the people answered and said, It is well spoken.

25 And Elijah said unto the prophets of Baal, Choose you one bullock for yourselves, and dress it first; for ye are many; and call on the name of your gods, but put no fire under.

26 And they took the bullock which was given them, and they dressed it, and called on the name of Baal from morning even until noon, saying, O Baal, hear us. But there was no voice, nor any that answered. And they leaped upon the altar which was made.

27 And it came to pass at noon, that Elijah mocked them, and said, Cry aloud: for he is a god; either he is talking, or he is pursuing, or he is in a journey, or peradventure he sleepeth, and must be awaked.

28 And they cried aloud, and cut themselves after their manner with knives and lancets, till the blood gushed out upon them.

29 And it came to pass, when midday was past, and they prophesied until the time of the offering of the evening sacrifice, that there was neither voice, nor any to answer, nor any that regarded.

30 And Elijah said unto all the people, Come near unto me. And all the people came near unto him. And he repaired the altar of the LORD that was broken down.

31 And Elijah took twelve stones, according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, unto whom the word of the LORD came, saying, Israel shall be thy name:

32 And with the stones he built an altar in the name of the LORD: and he made a trench about the altar, as great as would contain two measures of seed.

33 And he put the wood in order, and cut the ent religious establishments; the king and his servants worshipped Baal, the supreme lord and master of the world, the sun. For this establishment four hundred and fifty priests were maintained. The queen and her women worshipped Asherah, Astarte, or Venus; and for this establishment four hundred priests were maintained. These latter were in high honour; they ate at Jezebel's table; they made a part of her household.

Verse 21. How long halt ye between two opinions? Literally, "How long hop ye about upon two boughs?" This is a metaphor taken from birds hopping about from bough to bough, not knowing on which to settle. Perhaps the idea of limping through lameness should not be overlooked.

Verse 22. I only, remain a prophet of the Lord That is, I am the only prophet of God present, and can have but the influence of an individual; while the prophets of Baal are four hundred and fifty men! It appears that the queen's prophets, amounting to four hundred, were not at this great assembly; and these are they whom we meet with chap. xxii. 6, and whom the king consulted relative to the battle at Ramoth-gilead.

Verse 24. The God that answereth by fire Elijah gave them every advantage when he granted that the God who answered by fire should be acknowledged as the true God; for as the Baal who was worshipped here was incontestably Apollo, or the sun, he was therefore the god of fire, and had only to work in his own element.

Verse 25. For ye are many And therefore shall have the preference, and the advantage of being first in your application to the deity, Verse 26. From morning even until noon It seems that the priests of Baal employed the whole day in their desperate rites.

And they leaped upon the altar] Perhaps it will be more correct to read with the margin, they leaped up and down at the altar; they danced round it with strange and hideous cries and gesticulations, tossing their heads to and fro, with a great variety of bodily contortions.

Verse 27. At noon—Elijah mocked them Had not Elijah been conscious of the divine protection he certainly would not have used such freedom of speech while encompassed by his enemies.

Cry aloud] Make a great noise; oblige him by your vociferations to attend to your suit.

For he is a god] Ki Elohim hu, he is the supreme God, you worship him as such, he must needs be such, and no doubt jealous of his own honour and the credit of his votaries! A strong irony.

He is talking] He may be giving audience to some others; let him know that he has other worshippers, and must not give too much of his attention to one. Perhaps the word should be interpreted as in the margin, he meditates; he is in a profound reverie; he is making some god-like projects; he is considering how he may best keep up his credit in the nation. Shout! let him know that all is now at stake.

He is pursuing] He may be taking his pleasure in hunting, and may continue to pursue the game in heaven, till he have lost all his credit and reverence on earth. Or, he is on some special business. Therefore, cry aloud!

He is in a journey] He has left his audience-chamber, and is making some excursions; call aloud to bring him back, as his all is at stake.

Peradventure he sleepeth] Among Asiatic idolaters their gods have different functions to fulfil, and require sleep and rest.

Verse 28. They cried aloud The poor fools acted as they were bidden.

And cut themselves after their manner] This was done according to the rites of that barbarous religion; if the blood of the bullock would not move him, they thought their own blood might; and with it they smeared themselves and their sacrifices. This was not only the custom of the idolatrous Israelites, but of the Syrians, Persians, Greeks, Indians, and in short of all the heathen world.

Verse 29. They prophesied They made incessant prayer and supplication; a farther proof that to pray or supplicate is the proper ideal meaning of the word naba, which we constantly translate to prophesy, when even all the circumstances of the time and place are against such a meaning.

Verse 30. He repaired the altar of the Lord There had been an altar of Jehovah in that place, called, even among the heathens, the altar of Carmel, probably built in the time of the Judges, or, as the rabbins imagine, by Saul.

Verse 31. Took twelve stones He did this to show that all the twelve tribes of Israel should be joined in the worship of Jehovah.

Verse 32. He made a trench This was to detain the water that might fall down from the altar when the barrels should be poured upon it, ver. 35.

Verse 33. Fill four barrels This was done to prevent any kind of suspicion that there was fire concealed under the altar. This very precaution has for ever put this miracle beyond the reach of suspicion.

bullock in pieces, and laid him on the wood, and said, Fill four barrels with water, and *pour it on the burnt-sacrifice, and on the wood.

34 And he said, Do it the second time. And they did it the second time. And he said, Do it the third time. And they did it the third time.

35 And the water <sup>b</sup> ran round about the altar; and he filled <sup>c</sup> the trench also with water.

36 And it came to pass at the time of the offering of the evening sacrifice, that Elijah the prophet came near, and said, LORD <sup>d</sup> God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, *let it be known this day that thou art God in Israel, and that I am thy servant, and that <sup>e</sup> I have done all these things at thy word.

37 Hear me, O LORD, hear me, that this people may know that thou art the LORD God, and that thou hast turned their heart back again.

38 Then <sup>f</sup> the fire of the LORD fell, and consumed the burnt-sacrifice, and the wood, and the stones, and the dust, and licked up the water that was in the trench.

39 And when all the people saw it, they fell on their faces: and they said, <sup>g</sup> The LORD, he is the God; the LORD, he is the God.

40 And Elijah said unto them, <sup>h</sup> Take the prophets of Baal; let not one of them escape. And they took them: and Elijah brought them down to the brook Kishon, and <sup>i</sup> slew them there.

41 And Elijah said unto Ahab, Get thee up, eat and drink; for there is <sup>j</sup> a sound of abundance of rain.

42 So Ahab went up to eat and to drink. And Elijah went up to the top of Carmel; <sup>k</sup> and he cast himself down upon the earth, and put his face between his knees, 43 And said to his servant, Go up now, look toward the sea. And he went up, and looked, and said, There is nothing. And he said, go again seven times.

44 And it came to pass at the seventh time, that he said, Behold, there ariseth a little cloud out of the sea, like a man's hand. And he said, Go up, say unto Ahab, <sup>l</sup> Prepare thy chariot, and get thee down, that the rain stop thee now.

45 And it came to pass in the mean while, that the heaven was black with clouds and wind, and there was a great rain. And Ahab rode, and went to Jezreel.

46 And the hand of the LORD was on Elijah: and he <sup>m</sup> girded up his loins, and ran before Ahab <sup>n</sup> to the entrance of Jezreel.

Verse 36. Lord God of Abraham] He thus addressed the Supreme Being, that they might know, when the answer was given, that it was the same God whom the patriarchs and their fathers worshipped, and thus have their hearts turned back again to the true religion of their ancestors.

Verse 38. Then the fire of the Lord fell] It did not burst out from the altar; this might still, notwithstanding the water, have afforded some ground for suspicion that fire had been concealed, after the manner of the heathens, under the altar.

Consumed the burnt-sacrifice] 1. The fire came down from heaven. 2. The pieces of the sacrifice were first consumed. 3. The wood next, to show that it was not even by means of the wood that the flesh was burnt. 4. The twelve stones were also consumed, to show that it was no common fire, but one whose agency nothing could resist. 5. The dust, the earth of which the altar was constructed, was burnt up. 6. The water that was in the trench was, by the action of this fire, entirely evaporated. 7. The action of this fire was in every case downward, contrary to the nature of all earthly and material fire. Nothing can be more simple and artless than this description, yet how amazingly full and satisfactory is the whole account!

Verse 39. Fell on their faces] Struck with awe and reverence at the sight of this incontestable miracle.

And they said] We should translate the words thus: JEHOVAH, He is the God! JEHOVAH, He is the God!

Verse 40. Let not one of them escape] They had committed the highest crime against the state and the people by introducing idolatry, and bringing down God's judgments upon the land; therefore their lives were forfeited to that law which had ordered every idolater to be slain. It seems also that Ahab, who was present, consented to this act of impartial justice.

Verse 41. Get thee up, eat and drink] It appears most evidently that Ahab and the prophet were now on good terms, and this is a farther evidence that the slaying of the false prophets was by the king's consent.

Verse 42. Put his face between his knees] He kneeled down, and then bowed his head to the earth, so that, while his face was between his knees, his forehead touched the ground.

Verse 43. Look toward the sea] From the top of Mount Carmel, the Mediterranean Sea was full in view.

Verse 44. There ariseth a little cloud out of the sea, like a man's hand] In the form of the hand bent, the concave side downward.

Verse 46. Ran before Ahab] Many think that Elijah ran before the king in order to do him honour; these entirely mistake the writer's meaning. The hand of the Lord, or as the Targum says, the spirit of strength, came upon Elijah, and he girded up his loins, that is, tucked up his long garments in his girdle, and ran; and notwithstanding the advantage the king had by means of his chariot, the prophet reached Jezreel before him. All this was intended to show that he was under the peculiar influence and inspiration of the Almighty, that the king might respect and fear him, and not do or permit to be done to him any kind of outrage.

CHAPTER

Ahab tells Jezebel what Elijah had done; she is enraged, and threatens to take away his life, 1, 2. He leaves Jezreel, and comes to Beer-sheba, and thence to the wilderness, where he is fed and encouraged by an angel, 3-9. His complaint, and the vision by which God instructs him, 10-14. He is sent to Damascus, in order to anoint Hazael king over Syria, and Jehu king over Israel, 15-18. He meets with Elisha, who becomes his servant, 19-21.

AND Ahab told Jezebel all that Elijah had done, and withal how he had "slain all the prophets with the sword.

2 Then Jezebel sent a messenger unto Elijah, saying, <sup>b</sup>So let the gods do to me, and more also, if I make not thy life as the life of one of them by to morrow about this time.

3 And when he saw that, he arose, and went for his life, and came to Beer-sheba, which belongeth to Judah, and left his servant there.

4 But he himself went a day's journey into the wilderness, and came and sat down under a juniper-tree: and he <sup>c</sup>requested <sup>d</sup>for himself that he might die; and said, It is enough; now, O LORD, take away my life; for I am not better than my fathers.

5 And as he lay and slept under a juniper-tree, behold, then an angel touched him, and said unto him, Arise, and eat.

6 And he looked, and, behold, there was a cake baken on the coals, and a cruse of water at his <sup>e</sup>head. And he did eat and drink, and laid him down again.

7 And the angel of the LORD came again the second time, and touched him, and said, Arise and eat; because the journey is too great for thee.

8 And he arose, and did eat and drink, and went in the strength of that meat <sup>f</sup>forty days and forty nights unto <sup>g</sup>Horeb the mount of God.

9 And he came thither unto a cave, and lodged there; and, behold, the word of the LORD came to Verse 1. Ahab told Jezebel] Probably with no evil design against Elijah.

Verse 2. So let the gods do] If I do not slay thee, let the gods slay me with the most ignominious death.

Verse 3. He arose, and went for his life] He saw it was best to give place to this storm, and go to a place of safety. He probably thought that the miracle at Carmel would have been the means of effecting the conversion of the whole court and of the country, but, finding himself mistaken, he is greatly discouraged.

To Beer-sheba] This being at the most southern extremity of the promised land, and under the jurisdiction of the king of Judah, he might suppose himself in a place of safety.

Left his servant there.] Being alone, he would be the more unlikely to be discovered; besides, he did not wish to risk the life of his servant.

Verse 4. A day's journey into the wilderness] Probably in his way to Mount Horeb.

Juniper-tree] A tree that afforded him a shade from the scorching sun. [The "broom" of the desert.]

It is enough] I have lived long enough; I can do no more good among this people; let me now end my days.

Verse 5. As he lay and slept] Excessive anguish of mind frequently induces sleep, as well as great fatigue of body.

An angel touched him] He needed refreshment, and God sent an angel to bring him what was necessary.

Verse 6. A cake baken on the coals] All this seems to have been supernaturally provided.

Verse 7. The journey is too great for thee.] From Beer-sheba to Horeb was about one hundred and fifty miles. [It was nearer two hundred.]

Verse 8. Forty days and forty nights] So he fasted just the same time as Moses did at Horeb, and as Christ did in the wilderness.

Verse 9. He came thither unto a cave] Conjectured by some to be the same cave in which God put Moses that he might give him a glimpse of his glory. [The tradition rests on a very narrow basis.]

What doest thou here, Elijah?] Is this a reproach for having fled from the face of Jezebel, through what some call unbelieving fears, that God would abandon him to her rage?

him, and he said unto him, What doest thou here, Elijah?

10 And he said, <sup>a</sup>I have been very <sup>b</sup>jealous for the LORD God of hosts: for the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant, thrown down thine altars, and <sup>c</sup>slain thy prophets with the sword; and <sup>d</sup>I, even I only, am left; and they seek my life, to take it away.

11 And he said, Go forth, and stand upon <sup>e</sup>the mount before the LORD. And, behold, the LORD passed by, and <sup>f</sup>a great and strong wind rent the mountains, and brake in pieces the rocks before the LORD; but the LORD was not in the wind: and after the wind an earthquake: but the LORD was not in the earthquake:

12 And after the earthquake a fire, but the LORD was not in the fire: and after the fire a still small voice.

13 And it was so, when Elijah heard it, that <sup>g</sup>he wrapped his face in his mantle, and went out, and stood in the entering in of the cave. <sup>h</sup>And, behold, there came a voice unto him, and said, What doest thou here, Elijah?

14 <sup>i</sup>And he said, I have been very jealous for the LORD God of hosts: because the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant, thrown down thine altar, and slain thy prophets with the sword; and I, even I only, am left; and they seek my life, to take it away.

Verse 10. I have been very jealous for the LORD] The picture which he draws here of apostate Israel is very affecting.

Verse 11. Stand upon the mount before the LORD.] God was now treating Elijah nearly in the same way that he treated Moses; and it is not unlikely that Elijah was now standing on the same place where Moses stood, when God revealed himself to him in the giving of the law.

The Lord passed by] It appears that the passing by of the LORD occasioned the strong wind, the earthquake, and the fire; but in none of these was God to make a discovery of himself unto the prophet; yet these, in some sort, prepared his way, and prepared Elijah to hear the still small voice. The apparatus, indicating the presence of the Divine Majesty, is nearly the same as that employed to minister the law to Moses; and many have supposed that God intended these things to be understood thus: that God intended to display himself to mankind, not in judgment, but in mercy; and that as the wind, the earthquake, and the fire were only the forerunners of the still small voice, which proclaimed the benignity of the Father of spirits; so the law and all its terrors were only intended to introduce the mild spirit of the gospel of Jesus, proclaiming glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace and good-will unto men. Others think that all this was merely natural; and that a real earthquake and its accompaniments are described. However, it seems evident that what took place at this time was out of the ordinary course of nature; and although the things, as mentioned here, may often be the accompaniments of an earthquake that has nothing supernatural in it; yet here, though every thing is produced in its natural order, yet the exciting cause of the whole is supernatural. Perhaps the whole of this is intended to give an emblematical representation of the various displays of divine providence and grace.

Verse 13. Wrapped his face in his mantle] Covering the face was a token of respect among the Asiatics, as uncovering the head is among the Europeans.

Verse 15. To the wilderness of Damascus] He does not desire him to take a road by which he might be likely to meet Jezebel or any other of his enemies.

Anoint Hazeel] God was about to bring his judgments upon the land, and especially on the house of Ahab. This thy way to the wilderness of Damascus: *and when thou comest, anoint Hazael to be king over Syria:

16 And <sup>b</sup> Jehu the son of Nimshi shalt thou anoint to be king over Israel: and <sup>c</sup> Elisha the son of Shaphat of Abelmeholah shalt thou anoint to be prophet in thy room.

17 And <sup>d</sup> it shall come to pass, that him that escapeth the sword of Hazael shall Jehu slay: and him that escapeth from the sword of Jehu <sup>e</sup> shall Elisha slay.

18 ' Yet <sup>f</sup> I have left me seven thousand in Israel, all the knees which have not bowed unto Baal, <sup>g</sup> and every mouth which hath not kissed him.

he exterminated by means of Jehu; and Jehu himself was a scourge of the Lord to the people. Hazael also grievously afflicted Israel; see the accomplishment of these purposes, 2 Kings viii. and ix.

Verse 17. Shall Elisha slay.] We do not find that Elisha either used the sword, or commissioned it to be used, though he delivered solemn prophecies against this disobedient people: and this is probably the sense in which this should be understood, as Elisha was prophet before Hazael was king, and Hazael was king before Jehu; and the heavy famine which he brought on the land took place before the reign either of Jehu or Hazael. The meaning of the prophecy may be this: Hazael, Jehu, and Elisha shall be the ministers of my vengeance against the disobedient and rebellious people. The order of time here is not to be regarded.

Verse 18. Seven thousand in Israel.] That is, many thousands; for seven is a number of perfection, as we have often seen. The court and multitudes of the people had gone after Baal; but perhaps the majority of the common people still worshipped in secret the God of their fathers.

Every mouth which hath not kissed him.] Idolaters often kissed their hand in honour of their idols; and hence the origin of adoration—bringing the hand to the mouth after touching the idol, if it were within reach; and if not, kissing the right hand in token of respect and subjection.

Verse 19. Twelve yoke of oxen.] Elisha must have had a considerable estate, when he kept twelve yoke of oxen to till the ground. If, therefore, he obeyed the prophetic call, he did it to considerable secular loss.

He with the twelfth.] Every owner of an inheritance among the Hebrews, and indeed among the ancients in general, was a principal agent in its cultivation.

Cast his mantle upon him.] Either this was a ceremony used in a call to the prophetic office, or it indicated that he was called to be the servant of the prophet. The mantle or pallium was the peculiar guard of the prophet, as we may learn from Zech. xiii. 4; and this was probably made of skin dressed with the hair on. It is likely, therefore, that Elijah threw his mantle on Elisha to signify to him that he was called to the prophetic office.

19 So he departed thence, and found Elisha the son of Shaphat, who was plowing with twelve yoke of oxen before him, and he with the twelfth: and Elijah passed by him, and cast his mantle upon him.

20 And he left the oxen, and ran after Elijah, and said, ' Let me, I pray thee, kiss my father and my mother, and then I will follow thee. And he said unto him, ' Go back again: for what have I done to thee ?

21 And he returned back from him, and took a yoke of oxen, and slew them, and <sup>h</sup> boiled their flesh with the instruments of the oxen, and gave unto the people, and they did eat. Then he arose, and went after Elijah, and ministered unto him.

Verse 20. Let me—kiss my father and my mother.] Elisha fully understood that he was called by this ceremony to the prophetic office: and it is evident that he conferred not with flesh and blood, but resolved, immediately resolved, to obey; only he wished to bid farewell to his relatives.

What have I done to thee ?] Thy call is not from me, but from God: to him, not to me, art thou accountable for thy use or abuse of it.

Verse 21. He returned back.] He went home to his house; probably he yet lived with his parents, for it appears he was a single man: and he slew a yoke of the oxen—he made a feast for his household, having boiled the flesh of the oxen with his agricultural implements; probably in token that he had abandoned secular life: then having bidden them an affectionate farewell, he arose, went after Elijah, who probably still awaited his coming in the field, or its vicinity, and ministered unto him.

On the call of Elisha, I may make a few remarks.

1. Elijah is commanded, ver. 16, to anoint Elisha prophet in his room. This is the only instance on record where a prophet is commanded to be anointed; and even this case is problematical, for it does not appear that Elijah did anoint Elisha. It is probable that the word anoint here signifies no more than the call to the office, accompanied by the simple rite of having the prophet's mantle thrown over his shoulders.

2. A call to the ministerial office, though it completely sever from all secular occupations, yet never supersedes the duties of filial affection.

3. We do not find any attempt on the part of his parents to hinder him from obeying the divine call: they had too much respect for the authority of God, and they left their son to the dictates of his conscience. Woe to those parents who strive, for filthy lucre's sake, to prevent their son from embracing a call to preach Jesus to their fellow-countrymen or to the heathen, because they see that the life of a true evangelist is a life of comparative poverty, and they had rather he should gain money than save souls.

CHAPTER XX.

Ben-hadad, king of Syria, and thirty-two kings, besiege Samaria, 1. He sends an insulting message to Ahab, and insists on pillaging the whole city, 2-7. The elders of Israel counsel the king not to submit to such shameful conditions, 8. He sends a refusal to Ben-hadad; who, being enraged, vows revenge, 9-12. A prophet comes to Ahab, and promises him victory, and gives him directions how he should order the battle, 13-19. The Syrians are discomfited, and Ben-hadad scarcely escapes, 20-21. The prophet warns Ahab to be on his guard, for the Syrians will return next year, 22. The counsellors of the king of Syria instructs him how he may successfully invade Israel, 23-25. He leads an immense army to Aphek, to fight with Ahab, 26, 27. A man of God encourages Ahab, who attacks the Syrians and kills one hundred thousand of them, 28, 29. They retreat to Aphek, where twenty-seven thousand of them are slain by a casualty, 30. Ben-hadad and his courtiers, being closely besieged in Aphek, and unable to escape, surrender themselves with sackcloth on their loins, and halters on their heads; the king of Israel receives them in a friendly manner, and makes a covenant with Ben-hadad, 31-34. A prophet, by a symbolical action, shows him the impolicy of his conduct in permitting Ben-hadad to escape, and predicts his death and the slaughter of Israel, 35-43.

AND Ben-hadad the king of Syria gathered all his host together: and there were thirty and two kings with him, and horses, and chariots: and he went up and besieged Samaria, and warred against it.

2 And he sent messengers to Ahab king of Israel into the city, and said unto him, Thus saith Ben-hadad,

3 Thy silver and thy gold is mine: thy wives also and thy children, even the goodliest are mine.

4 And the king of Israel answered and said, My lord, O king, according to thy saying, I am thine, and all that I have.

5 And the messengers came again, and said, Thus speaketh Ben-hadad, saying, Although I have sent unto thee, saying, Thou shalt deliver me thy silver, and thy gold, and thy wives, and thy children;

6 Yet I will send my servants unto thee to-morrow about this time, and they shall search thine house, and the houses of thy servants; and it shall be, that whatsoever is pleasant in thine eyes, they shall put it in their hand, and take it away.

7 Then the king of Israel called all the elders of the land, and said, Mark, I pray you, and see how this man seeketh mischief: for he sent unto me for my wives, and for my children, and for my silver, and for my gold; and I denied him not.

8 And all the elders and all the people said unto him, Harken not unto him, nor consent.

9 Wherefore he said unto the messengers of Ben-hadad, Tell my lord the king, All that thou didst send to thy servant at the first I will do: but this thing I may not do. And the messengers departed, and brought him word again.

10 And Ben-hadad sent unto him, and said, The gods do so unto me, and more also, if the dust of Samaria shall suffice for handfuls for all the people that follow me.

11 And the king of Israel answered and said, Tell him, Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off.

12 And it came to pass, when Ben-hadad heard this message, as he was drinking, he and the kings in the pavilions, that he said unto his servants, Set yourselves in array. And they set themselves in array against the city.

13 And, behold, there came a prophet unto Ahab king of Israel, saying, Thus saith the LORD, Hast thou seen all this great multitude? behold I will deliver it into thine hand this day; and thou shalt know that I am the LORD.

14 And Ahab said, By whom? And he said, Thus saith the LORD, Even by the young men of the princes of the provinces. Then he said, Who shall order the battle? And he answered, Thou.

15 Then he numbered the young men of the princes of the provinces, and they were two hundred and thirty-two: and after them he numbered all the people, even all the children of Israel, being seven thousand.

16 And they went out at noon. But Ben-hadad was drinking himself drunk in the pavilions, he and the kings, the thirty and two kings that helped him.

17 And the young men of the princes of the provinces went out first; and Ben-hadad sent out, and they told him, saying, There are men come out of Samaria.

18 And he said, Whether they be come out for peace, take them alive; or whether they be come out for war, take them alive.

19 So these young men of the princes of the Verse 11. Let not him that girdeth on] This was no doubt a proverbial mode of expression.

Verse 12. In the pavilions] This word comes from papilio, a butterfly, because tents, when pitched or spread out, resembled such animals; partly because of the mode of their expansion, and partly because of the manner in which they were painted.

Set yourselves in array.] The original word is probably a military term for Begin the attack, Invest the city, Every man to his post, or some such like expression.

Verse 13. There came a prophet] Who this was we cannot tell. It is strange that on such an occasion we hear nothing of Elijah or Elisha. Is it not possible that this was one of them disguised?

Verse 14. By the young men of the princes of the provinces.] These were probably some chosen persons out of the militia of different districts, raised by the princes of the provinces; the same as we would call lord-lieutenants of counties. [The young men were armour-bearers.]

Verse 15. Two hundred and thirty-two] These were probably the king's life or body guards; not all the militia, but two hundred and thirty of them who constituted the royal guard in Samaria. They were therefore the king's own regiment, and he is commanded by the prophet to put himself at their head.

Seven thousand.] How low must the state of Israel have been at this time!

Verse 18. Take them alive.] He was confident of victory. Do not slay them; bring them to me, they may give us some useful information.

Verse 1. Ben-hadad] Several MSS., and some early printed editions, have Ben-hadar, or the son of Hadar, as the Septuagint. He is supposed to be the same whom Asa stirred up against the king of Israel, chap. xv. 18; or, as others, his son or grandson.

Thirty and two kings] Tributary chieftains of Syria and the adjacent countries. In former times every town and city had its independent chieftain.

Verse 4. I am thine, and all that I have.] He probably hoped by this humiliation to soften this barbarous king, and perhaps to get better conditions.

Verse 6. Whatsoever is pleasant in thine eyes] It is not easy to discern in what this second requisition differed from the first; for surely his silver, gold, wives, and children, were among his most pleasant or desirable things. It is, however, evident that Ben-hadad meant to sack the whole city, and after having taken the royal treasures, and the wives and children of the king, to deliver up the whole to be pillaged by his soldiers.

Verse 8. Harken not unto him] The elders had every thing at stake, and they chose rather to make a desperate defence than tamely to yield to such degrading and ruinous conditions.

Verse 10. If the dust of Samaria shall suffice] This is variously understood. "If the dust of Shomeron shall be sufficient for the soles of the feet of the people that shall accompany me;" i.e. I shall bring such an army that there will scarcely be room for them to stand in Samaria and its vicinity.

provinces came out of the city, and the army which followed them.

20 And they slew every one his man: and the Syrians fled; and Israel pursued them: and Ben-hadad the king of Syria escaped on an horse with the horsemen.

21 And the king of Israel went out, and smote the horses and chariots, and slew the Syrians with a great slaughter, 22 And the prophet came to the king of Israel, and said unto him, Go, strengthen thyself, and mark, and see what thou doest: * for at the return of the year the king of Syria will come up against thee.

23 And the servants of the king of Syria said unto him, Their gods are gods of the hills; therefore they were stronger than we; but let us fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they.

24 And do this thing, Take the kings away, every man out of his place, and put captains in their rooms:

25 And number thee an army, like the army <sup>b</sup> that thou hast lost, horse for horse, and chariot for chariot: and we will fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they. And he hearkened unto their voice, and did so.

26 And it came to pass at the return of the year, that Ben-hadad numbered the Syrians, and went up to <sup>c</sup> Aphek, <sup>d</sup> to fight against Israel.

27 And the children of Israel were numbered, and <sup>e</sup> were all present, and went against them; and the children of Israel pitched before them like two little flocks of kids; but the Syrians filled the country.

28 And there came a man of God, and spake unto the king of Israel, and said, Thus saith the LORD, Because the Syrians have said, The LORD is God of the hills, but he is not God of the valleys, therefore 'will I deliver all this great multitude into thine hand, and ye shall know that I am the LORD.

29 And they pitched one over against the other seven days. And so it was, that in the seventh day the battle was joined: and the children of Israel slew of the Syrians an hundred thousand footmen in one day.

30 But the rest fled to Aphek, into the city; and there a wall fell upon twenty and seven thousand of the men that were left. And Ben-hadad fled, and came into the city, <sup>f</sup> into <sup>h</sup> an inner chamber.

31 And his servants said unto him, Behold now, we have heard that the kings of the house of Israel are merciful kings: let us, I pray thee, <sup>i</sup> put sackcloth on our loins, and ropes upon our heads, and go out to the king of Israel; peradventure he will save thy life.

32 So they girded sackcloth on their loins, and put ropes on their heads, and came to the king of Israel, and said, Thy servant Ben-hadad saith, I pray thee, let me live. And he said, Is he yet alive? he is my brother.

33 Now the men did diligently observe whether any thing would come from him, and did hastily catch it; and they said, Thy brother Ben-hadad. Then he said, Go ye, bring him. Then Ben-hadad came forth to him; and he caused him to come up into the chariot.

34 And Ben-hadad said unto him, <sup>j</sup> The cities, which my father took from thy father, I will restore; and thou shalt make streets for thee in Damascus, as my father made in Samaria. Then said Ahab, I will send thee away with this covenant. So he made a covenant with him, and sent him away.

35 And a certain man of <sup>k</sup> the sons of the prophets said unto his neighbour <sup>l</sup> in the word of the LORD, Smite me, I pray thee. And the man refused to smite him.

Verse 20, The Syrians fled] They were doubtless panic-struck.

Verse 23, Their gods are gods of the hills] It is very likely that the small Israelitish army availed itself of the heights and uneven ground, that they might fight with greater advantage against the Syrian cavalry, for Ben-hadad came up against Samaria with horses and chariots, ver. 1. These therefore must be soon thrown into confusion when charging in such circumstances; indeed, the chariots must be nearly useless.

It was a general belief in the heathen world that each district had its tutelary and protecting deity, who could do nothing out of his own sphere.

Verse 24, Take the kings away] These were not acquainted with military affairs, or they had not competent skill. Put experienced captains in their place, and fight not but on the plains, and you will be sure of victory.

Verse 26, Ben-hadad numbered the Syrians, and went up to Aphek] There were several towns of this name. It is supposed that the town mentioned here was situated in Libanus, upon the river Adonis, between Heliopolis and Biblos. [Others place it in the plain of Jezreel.]

Verse 28, Because the Syrians have said] God resents their blasphemy, and is determined to punish it.

Verse 29, Slew an hundred thousand footmen in one day.] This number is enormous; but the MSS. and Versions give no various reading.

Verse 30, A wall fell upon twenty and seven thousand] Perhaps the hand of God was more immediately in this disaster; probably a burning wind is meant. [Dr. Clarke has an elaborate note from Kennicott to prove that the Syrians were destroyed, not by the falling of a wall, but by a burning wind. The assumption has no solid foundation, and indeed does violence to the original.]

to chamber.—<sup>h</sup> Heb. into a chamber within a chamber. Ch. xxii. 25.—<sup>i</sup> Gen. xxxvii. 34.—<sup>j</sup> Ch. xv. 20.—<sup>k</sup> 2 Kings iii. 5, 7, 15.—<sup>l</sup> Ch. xiii. 17, 18.

Came into the city, into an inner chamber.] However the passage above may be understood, the city was now, in effect, taken; and Ben-hadad either betook himself with his few followers to the citadel or to some secret hiding-place, where he held the council with his servants immediately mentioned.

Verse 31, Put sackcloth on our loins, and ropes upon our heads] Let us show ourselves humbled in the deepest manner, and let us put ropes about our necks, and go submitting to his mercy, and deprecating his wrath.

Verse 32, Thy servant Ben-hadad] See the vicissitude of human affairs! A little before he was the haughtiest of all tyrants, and Ahab calls him his lord; now, so much is he humbled, that he will be glad to be reputed Ahab's slave!

Verse 33, Did hastily catch it] They were watching to see if any kind word should be spoken by him, from which they might draw a favourable omen; and when they heard him use the word brother, it gave them much encouragement.

Verse 34, Thou shalt make streets for thee in Damascus] It appears that it was customary for foreigners to have a place assigned to them, particularly in maritime towns, where they might deposit and vend their merchandise.

He made a covenant with him] According to the words recited above, putting him under no kind of disabilities whatsoever.

Verse 35, In the word of the Lord] By the word or command of the Lord; that is, God has commanded thee to smite me. Refusing to do it, this man forfeited his life, as we are informed in the next verse.

By this emblematical action he intended to inform Ahab that, as the man forfeited his life who refused to smite him when he had the Lord's command to do it; so he (Ahab) had forfeited his life, because he did not smite Ben-hadad when he had him in his power.

I. KINGS.

36 Then said he unto him, Because thou hast not obeyed the voice of the Lord, behold, as soon as thou art departed from me, a lion shall slay thee. And as soon as he was departed from him, <sup>a</sup>a lion found him, and slew him.

37 Then he found another man, and said, Smite me, I pray thee. And the man smote him, <sup>b</sup>so that in smiting he wounded him.

38 So the prophet departed, and waited for the king by the way, and disguised himself with ashes upon his face.

39 And <sup>c</sup>as the king passed by, he cried unto the king: and he said, Thy servant went out into the midst of the battle; and, behold, a man turned aside, and brought a man unto me, and said, Keep this man: if by any means he be missing, then <sup>d</sup>shall thy life be for his life, or else thou shalt <sup>e</sup>pay a talent of silver.

40 And as thy servant was busy here and there, <sup>f</sup>he was gone. And the king of Israel said unto him, So shall thy judgment be; thyself hast decided it.

41 And he hasted, and took the ashes away from his face; and the king of Israel discerned him that he was of the prophets.

42 And he said unto him, Thus saith the Lord, <sup>g</sup>Because thou hast let go out of thy hand a man whom I appointed to utter destruction, therefore thy life shall go for his life, and thy people for his people.

43 And the king of Israel <sup>h</sup>went to his house heavy and displeased, and came to Samaria.

Verse 36. A lion found him, and slew him.] This seems a hard measure, but there was ample reason for it. This person was also one of the sons of the prophets, and he knew that God frequently delivered his counsels in this way, and should have immediately obeyed, for the smiting could have had no evil in it when God commanded it, and it could be no outrage or injury to his fellow when he himself required him to do it.

Verse 38. Disguised himself with ashes upon his face.] It does not immediately appear how putting ashes upon his face could disguise him. Instead of apher, dust, Houbigant conjectures that it should be aphad, a fillet or bandage. That bandage, not dust, was the original reading, seems pretty evident from its remains in two of the oldest Versions, the Septuagint and the Chaldee; the former has, "And he bound his eyes with a fillet." The latter has, "And he covered his eyes with a cloth." [There is no need for Houbigant's suggested emendation. The original, as it stands in the text, signifies a bandage.]

Verse 39. Keep this man] The drift of this is at once seen; but Ahab, not knowing it, was led to pass sentence on himself.

Verse 41. Took the ashes away] He took the bandage from off his eyes. It was no doubt of thin cloth, through which he could see, while it served for a sufficient disguise.

Verse 42. Thy life shall go for his life] This was fulfilled at the battle of Ramoth-gilead, where he was slain by the Syrians; see chap. xxii. 34, 35.

Verse 43. Heavy and displeased] Heavy or afflicted, because of these dreadful tidings; and displeased with the prophet for having announced them. Had he been displeased with himself, and humbled his soul before God, even those judgments, so circumstantially foretold, might have been averted.

CHAPTER XXI.

Ahab covets the vineyard of Naboth, and wishes to have it either by purchase or exchange, 1, 2. Naboth refuses to alienate it on any account, because it was his inheritance from his fathers, 3. Ahab becomes disconsolate, takes to his bed, and refuses to eat, 4. Jezebel, finding out the cause, promises to give him the vineyard, 5-7. She writes to the nobles of Jezreel to proclaim a fast, to accuse Naboth of blasphemy, carry him out, and stone him to death, which is accordingly done, 8-14. She then tells Ahab to go and take possession of the vineyard; he goes, and is met by Elijah, who denounces on him the heaviest judgments, 15-24. Ahab's abominable character, 25, 26. He humbles himself; and God promises not to bring the threatened public calamities in his days, but in the days of his son, 27-29.

AND it came to pass after these things, that Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard, which was in Jezreel, hard by the palace of Ahab king of Samaria.

2 And Ahab spake unto Naboth, saying, Give

Verse 1. After these things] This and the twentieth chapter are transposed in the Septuagint; this preceding the account of the Syrian war with Ben-hadad. Josephus gives the history in the same order.

Verse 2. Give me thy vineyard] The request of Ahab seems at first view fair and honourable. Naboth's vineyard was nigh to the palace of Ahab, and he wished to add it to his own for a kitchen garden, or perhaps a grass-plot; and he offers to give him either a better vineyard for it, or to give him its worth in money. Naboth rejects the proposal with horror: The Lord forbid it me, that I should give the inheritance of my fathers to thee. No man could finally alienate any part of the parental inheritance; it might be sold or mortgaged till the jubilee, but at that time it must me thy <sup>a</sup>vineyard, that I may have it for a garden of herbs, because it is near unto my house: and I will give thee for it a better vineyard than it; or, if it <sup>b</sup>seem good to thee, I will give thee the worth of it in money.

revert to its original owner, if not redeemed before; for this God had particularly enjoined, Lev. xxv. 14-17, 25-28. Ahab most evidently wished him to alienate it finally, and this is what God's law had expressly forbidden; therefore he could not, consistently with his duty to God, indulge Ahab; and it was high iniquity in Ahab to tempt him to do it; and to covet it showed the depravity of Ahab's soul. But we see farther that, despotic as those kings were, they dared not seize on the inheritance of any man. This would have been a flagrant breach of the law and constitution of the country; and this indeed would have been inconsistent with the character which they sustained, viz., the Lord's viceregents. The Jewish kings had no authority either to alter the old laws, or to make new ones.

8 And Naboth said to Ahab, The LORD forbid it me, *that I should give the inheritance of my fathers unto thee.

4 And Ahab came into his house heavy and displeased, because of the word which Naboth the Jezreelite had spoken to him: for he had said, I will not give thee the inheritance of my fathers. And he laid him down upon his bed, and turned away his face, and would eat no bread.

5 But Jezebel his wife came to him, and said unto him, Why is thy spirit so sad, that thou eatest no bread.

6 And he said unto her, Because I spake unto Naboth the Jezreelite, and said unto him, Give me thy vineyard for money; or else, if it please thee, I will give thee another vineyard for it: and he answered, I will not give thee my vineyard.

7 And Jezebel his wife said unto him, Dost thou now govern the kingdom of Israel? arise, and eat bread, and let thine heart be merry: and I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite.

8 So she wrote letters in Ahab's name, and sealed them with his seal, and sent the letters unto the elders and to the nobles that were in his city, dwelling with Naboth.

9 And she wrote in the letters, saying, Proclaim a fast, and set Naboth <sup>b</sup> on high among the people:

10 And set two men, sons of Belial, before him, to bear witness against him saying, Thou didst <sup>c</sup> blaspheme God and the king. And then carry him out, and <sup>d</sup> stone him, that he may die.

11 And the men of his city, even the elders and the nobles who were the inhabitants in his city, did as Jezebel sent unto them, and as it was written in the letters which she had sent unto them.

12 *They proclaimed a fast, and set Naboth on high among the people.

13 And there came in two men, children of Belial, and sat before him: and the men of Belial witnessed against him, even against Naboth, in the presence of the people, saying, Naboth did blaspheme God and the king, 'Then they carried him forth out of the city, and stoned him with stones, that he died.

14 Then they sent to Jezebel, saying, Naboth is stoned, and is dead.

15 And it came to pass, when Jezebel heard that Naboth was stoned, and was dead, that Jezebel said to Ahab, Arise take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refused to give thee for money: for Naboth is not alive, but dead.

16 And it came to pass, when Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, that Ahab rose up to go down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, to take possession of it.

17 * And the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying,

18 Arise, go down to meet Ahab king of Israel, <sup>b</sup> which is in Samaria; behold he is in the vineyard of Naboth, whither he is gone down to possess it.

19 And thou shalt speak unto him, saying, Thus saith the LORD, Hast thou killed, and also taken possession? And thou shalt speak unto him, saying, Thus saith the LORD, 'In the place where dogs licked the blood of Naboth shall dogs lick thy blood, even thine.

20 And Ahab said to Elijah, 'Hast thou found me, O mine enemy? And he answered, I have found thee: because <sup>k</sup> thou hast sold thyself to work evil in the sight of the LORD.

21 Behold, 'I will bring evil upon thee, and will take away thy posterity, and will cut off from Ahab <sup>m</sup> him that pisseth against the wall, and <sup>n</sup> him that is shut up and left in Israel, 22 And will make thine house like the house of <sup>o</sup> Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and like the house of <sup>p</sup> Baasha the son of Ahijah, for the provocation wherewith thou hast provoked me to anger, and made Israel to sin.

Verse 4. He laid him down upon his bed] Poor soul! he was lord over ten-twelfths of the land, and became miserable because he could not get a poor man's vineyard added to all that he possessed! It is a true saying, "That soul in which God dwells not, has no happiness; and he who has God has a satisfying portion."

Verse 7. Dost thou now govern the kingdom of Israel?] Naboth, not Ahab, is king. If he have authority to refuse, and thou have no power to take, he is the greater man of the two. This is the vital language of despotism and tyranny.

Verse 8. She wrote letters in Ahab's name] She counterfeited his authority by his own consent; and he lent his signet to stamp that authority.

Verse 9. Proclaim a fast] Intimate that there is some great calamity coming upon the nation, because of some evil tolerated in it.

Set Naboth on high] Bring him to a public trial.

Verse 10. Set two men] For life could not be attained but on the evidence of two witnesses at least.

Sons of Belial] Men who will not scruple to tell lies, and take a false oath.

Thou didst blaspheme God and the king.] Thou art an atheist and a rebel. The words literally are, Naboth hath blessed God and the king; or, as Parkhurst contends, "Thou hast blessed the false gods and Molech." And though Jezebel herself was an abominable idolatress; yet, as the law of Moses still continued in force, she seems to have been wicked enough to have destroyed Naboth upon the false accusation of blessing the heathen Asteim and Molech, which subjected him to death by Deut. xii. 6; xvii. 2-7. The first meaning appears the most simple.

Verse 13. And stoned him with stones] As they pretended to find him guilty of treason against God and the king, it is likely they destroyed the whole of his family; and then the king seized on his grounds as confiscated, or as escheated to the king, without any heir at law. That his family was destroyed appears strongly intimated, 2 Kings ix. 26.

Verse 15. Arise, take possession] By what rites or in what forms this was done, we do not know.

Verse 18. Go down to meet Ahab] This was the next day after the murder, as we learn from the above quotation, 2 Kings ix. 26.

Verse 19. In the place where dogs licked, &c.] It is in vain to look for a literal fulfilment of this prediction. Thus it would have been fulfilled, but the humiliation of Ahab induced the merciful God to say, I will not bring the evil in his days, but in the days of his son, ver. 20. Now dogs did lick the blood of Ahab; but it was at the pool of Samaria where his chariot and his armour were washed, after he had received his death-wound at Ramoth-gilead; but some think this was the place where Naboth was stoned: see chap. xxii. 38. And how literally the prediction concerning his son was fulfilled, see 2 Kings ix. 25, where we find that the body of Jehoram his son, just then slain by an arrow that had passed through his heart, was thrown into the portion of the field of Naboth the Jezreelite; and there, doubtless, the dogs licked his blood, if they did not even devour his body.

Verse 20. Thou hast sold thyself to work evil] Thou hast totally abandoned thyself to the service of sin. Satan is become thy absolute master, and thou his undivided slave.

23 And * of Jezebel also spake the LORD, saying, The dogs shall eat Jezebel by the <sup>b</sup> wall of Jezreel.

24 <sup>c</sup> Him that dieth of Ahab in the city the dogs shall eat: and him that dieth in the field shall the fowls of the air eat.

25 But <sup>d</sup> there was none like unto Ahab, which did sell himself to work wickedness in the sight of the LORD, <sup>e</sup> whom Jezebel his wife <sup>f</sup> stirred up.

26 And he did very abominably in following idols, according to all things <sup>g</sup> as did the Amorites, whom the LORD cast out before the children of Israel.

Verse 23. The dogs shall eat Jezebel] This was most literally fulfilled; see 2 Kings ix. 36.

Verse 25. Did sell himself to work wickedness] He hired himself to the devil for this very purpose, that he might work wickedness. This was to be his employment, and at this he laboured.

In the sight of the Lord, whom Jezebel his wife stirred up.] A good wife is from the Lord; a bad wife is from the devil: Jezebel was of this kind; and she has had many successors.

Verse 27. He rent his clothes] He was penetrated with sorrow, and that evidently unfeigned.

Put sackcloth upon his flesh] He humbled himself before God and man.

And fasted] He afflicted his body for his soul's benefit.
Lay in sackcloth] Gave the fullest proof that his repentance was real.

27 And it came to pass, when Ahab heard those words, that he rent his clothes, and <sup>a</sup> put sackcloth upon his flesh, and fasted, and lay in sackcloth, and went softly.

28 And the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying,

29 Seest thou how Ahab humbleth himself before me? because he humbleth himself before me, I will not bring the evil in his days: but <sup>b</sup> in his son's days will I bring the evil upon his house.

And went softly.] Walked barefooted; so the Chaldee, Syriac, and Arabic. [Or rather, went slowly.] All these things prove that Ahab's repentance was genuine; and God's approbation of it puts it out of doubt.

Verse 29. Seest thou how Ahab humbleth himself] He did abuse himself; he did truly repent him of his sins, and it was such a repentance as was genuine in the sight of God: He humbleth himself BEFORE ME.

The penitent heart ever meets the merciful eye of God; repentance is highly esteemed by the Father of compassion, even where it is comparatively shallow and short-lived. Any measure of godly sorrow has a proportionate measure of God's regards; where it is deep and lasting, the heart of God is set upon it. He that mourns shall be comforted; thus hath God spoken, and though repentance for our past sins can purchase no favour, yet without it God will not grant us his salvation.

CHAPTER XXII.

Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and Ahab king of Israel, unite against the Syrians, in order to recover Ramoth-gilead.

1-4. They inquire of false prophets, who promise them success. Micaiah, a true prophet, foretells the disasters of the war, 5-17. A lying spirit in the mouths of Ahab's prophets persuades Ahab to go up against Ramoth, 18-29. The confederate armies are routed, and the king of Israel slain, 30-36. Death and burial of Ahab, 37-40. Character of Jehoshaphat, 41-47. He makes a fleet in order to go to Ophir for gold, which is wrecked at Ezion-geber, 48. His death, 49. He is succeeded by his son Jehoram, 50. Ahaziah succeeds his father Ahab, and reigns wickedly, 51, 52.

AND they continued three years without war between Syria and Israel.

2 And it came to pass in the third year, that <sup>a</sup> Jehoshaphat the king of Judah came down to the king of Israel.

3 And the king of Israel said unto his servants, Know ye that <sup>b</sup> Ramoth in Gilead is ours, and we be <sup>c</sup> still, and take it not out of the hand of the king of Syria?

4 And he said unto Jehoshaphat, Wilt thou go with me to battle to Ramoth-gilead? And Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, <sup>d</sup> I am as thou art, my people as thy people, my horses as thy horses.

Verse 1. Three years without war] That is, from the time that Ahab made the covenant with Ben-hadad, mentioned chap. xx. 34. And probably in that treaty it was stipulated that Ramoth-gilead should be restored to Israel; which not being done, Ahab formed a confederacy with Judah, and determined to take it by force.

Verse 4. Wilt thou go with me] We find that there was a good understanding between Jehoshaphat and Ahab, which no doubt was the consequence of a matrimonial alliance between the son of the former, Jehoram, and the daughter of the latter, Athaliah; see 2 Chron. xviii. 1, 2 Kings viii. 18.

5 And Jehoshaphat said unto the king of Israel, Inquire, I pray thee, at the word of the LORD to day.

6 Then the king of Israel <sup>a</sup> gathered the prophets together, about four hundred men, and said unto them, Shall I go against Ramoth-Gilead to battle, or shall I forbear? And they said, Go up; for the LORD shall deliver it into the hand of the king.

7 And <sup>b</sup> Jehoshaphat said, Is there not here a prophet of the LORD besides, that we might inquire of him?

8 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, There is yet one man, Micaiah the son of Imlah, by taking it.—<sup>a</sup> 2 Kings iii. 7.—<sup>b</sup> Ch. xviii. 19.—<sup>c</sup> 2 Kings iii. 11.

This coalition did not please God, and Jehoshaphat is severely reproved for it by Jehu the seer, 2 Chron. xix. 1-3.

Verse 6. About four hundred men] These were probably the prophets of Asherath or Venus, maintained by Jezebel, who were not present at the contention on Mount Carmel.

Verse 8. Micaiah the son of Imlah] The Jews suppose that it was this prophet who reproved Ahab for dismissing Ben-hadad, chap. xi. 85, &c. And that it was because of the judgments with which he had threatened him that Ahab hated him.

whom we may inquire of the LORD: but I hate him; for he doth not prophesy good concerning me, but evil. And Jehoshaphat said, Let not the king say so.

9 Then the king of Israel called an <sup>a</sup> officer, and said, Hasten hither Micaiah the son of Imlah.

10 And the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah sat each on his throne, having put on their robes, in a <sup>b</sup> void place in the entrance of the gate of Samaria; and all the prophets prophesied before them.

11 And Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah made him horns of iron: and he said, Thus saith the LORD, With these shalt thou push the Syrians, until thou have consumed them.

12 And all the prophets prophesied so, saying, Go up to Ramoth-gilead, and prosper: for the LORD shall deliver it into the king's hand.

13 And the messenger that was gone to call Micaiah spake unto him, saying, Behold now, the words of the prophets declare good unto the king with one mouth: let thy word, I pray thee, be like the word of one of them, and speak that which is good.

14 And Micaiah said, As the LORD liveth, what the LORD saith unto me, that will I speak.

15 So he came to the king. And the king said unto him, Micaiah, shall we go against Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall we forbear? And he answered him, Go, and prosper: for the LORD shall deliver it into the hand of the king.

16 And the king said unto him, How many times shall I adjure thee that thou tell me nothing but that which is true in the name of the LORD?

17 And he said, I saw all Israel <sup>d</sup> scattered upon the hills, as sheep that have not a shepherd: and the LORD said, These have no master: let them return every man to his house in peace.

18 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, Did I not tell thee that he would prophesy no good concerning me, but evil?

19 And he said, Hear thou therefore the word of the LORD: <sup>e</sup> I saw the LORD sitting on his throne, and all the host of heaven standing by him on his right hand and on his left:

20 And the LORD said, Who shall <sup>f</sup> persuade Ahab, that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead? And one said on this manner, and another said on that manner.

21 And there came forth a spirit, and stood before the LORD, and said, I will persuade him.

22 And the LORD said unto him, Wherewith? And he said, I will go forth, and I will be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. And he said, <sup>h</sup> Thou shalt persuade him, and prevail also: go forth, and do so.

23 <sup>i</sup> Now therefore, behold, the LORD hath put a lying spirit in the mouth of all these thy prophets, and the LORD hath spoken evil concerning thee.

24 But Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah went near, and smote Micaiah on the cheek, and said, <sup>j</sup> Which way went the Spirit of the LORD from me to speak unto thee?

25 And Micaiah said, Behold, thou shalt see in that day, when thou shalt go <sup>k</sup> into <sup>l</sup> an inner chamber to hide thyself.

26 And the king of Israel said, Take Micaiah, and carry him back unto Amon the governor of the city, and to Joash the king's son;

27 And say, Thus saith the king, Put this fellow in the prison, and feed him with bread of affliction and with water of affliction, until I come in peace.

28 And Micaiah said, If thou return at all in peace, <sup>m</sup> the LORD hath not spoken by me. And he said, Hearken, O people, every one of you.

29 So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah went up to Ramoth-gilead.

30 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, <sup>n</sup> I will disguise myself, and enter into the battle; but put thou on thy robes. And the king of Israel <sup>o</sup> disguised himself, and went into the battle.

31 But the king of Syria commanded his thirty

Verse 9. The king of Israel called an officer] Literally, a eunuch; probably a foreigner, for it was not lawful to disgrace an Israelite by reducing him to such a state.

Verse 11. Zedekiah—made him horns of iron] This was in imitation of that sort of prophecy which instructed by significative actions.

Verse 13. The words of the prophets declare good] What notion could these men have of prophecy, when they supposed it was in the power of the prophet to model the prediction as he pleased, and have the result accordingly?

Verse 15. Go and prosper] This was a strong irony; as if he had said, All your prophets have predicted success; you wish me to speak as they speak. These were the precise words of the false prophets (see ver. 6 and 12), and were spoken by Micaiah in such a tone and manner as at once showed to Ahab that he did not believe them; hence the king adjures him, ver. 16, that he would speak to him nothing but truth; and on this the prophet immediately relates to him the prophetic vision which pointed out the disasters which ensued.

Verse 17. These have no master] Here the prophet foretells the defeat of Israel, and the death of the king; they were as sheep that had not a shepherd, people that had no master, the political shepherd and master (Ahab) shall fall in battle.

Verse 19. I saw the Lord sitting on his throne] This is a mere parable, and only tells, in figurative language, what was in the womb of providence, the events which were shortly to take place, the agents employed in them, and the permission on the part of God for these agents to act.

Verse 22. Go forth, and do so.] This is no more than "God has permitted the spirit of lying to influence the whole of thy prophets; and he now, by my mouth, apprises thee of this, that thou mayest not go and fall at Ramoth-gilead." Never was a man more circumstantially and fairly warned; he had counsels from the God of truth and counsels from the spirit of falsity; he obstinately forsook the former and followed the latter.

Verse 23. The Lord hath put a lying spirit] He hath permitted or suffered a lying spirit to influence thy prophets.

Verse 24. Which way went the Spirit of the Lord from me] This is an expression of as great insolence as the act was of brutal aggression.

Verse 25. When thou shalt go into an inner chamber] It is probable that this refers to some divine judgment which fell upon this deceiver. Hearing of the tragical result of the battle, he no doubt went into a secret place to hide himself from the resentment of Jezebel and the Israelitish courtiers; and there it is probable he perished; but how, when, or where is not mentioned.

Verse 27. Feed him with bread of affliction] Deprive him of all the conveniences and comforts of life; treat him severely; just keep him alive, that he may see my triumph.

Verse 30. I will disguise myself] Probably he had heard of the orders given by Ben-hadad to his thirty-two captains; and two captains that had rule over his chariots, saying, Fight neither with small nor great, save only with the king of Israel.

32 And it came to pass, when the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, that they said, Surely it is the king of Israel. And they turned aside to fight against him: and Jehoshaphat cried out.

33 And it came to pass, when the captains of the chariots perceived that it was not the king of Israel, that they turned back from pursuing him.

34 And a certain man drew a bow at a venture, and smote the king of Israel between the joints of the harness: wherefore he said unto the driver of his chariot, Turn thine hand, and carry me out of the host; for I am wounded.

35 And the battle increased that day; and the king was stayed up in his chariot against the Syrians, and died at even: and the blood ran out of the wound into the midst of the chariot.

36 And there went a proclamation throughout the host about the going down of the sun, saying, Every man to his city, and every man to his own country.

37 So the king died, and was brought to Samaria; and they buried the king in Samaria.

38 And one washed the chariot in the pool of Samaria; and the dogs licked up his blood; and they washed his armour; according unto the word of the Lord which he spake.

39 Now the rest of the acts of Ahab, and all that he did, and the ivory house which he made, and all the cities that he built, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

40 So Ahab slept with his fathers; and Ahaziah his son reigned in his stead.

to fight with the king of Israel only; and therefore he disguised himself that he might not be known.

But put thou on thy robes.] The Septuagint gives the clause a different and more intelligible turn: "I will cover (conceal) myself, and enter into the battle; but put thou on my robes." And does it not appear that he did put on Ahab's robes? And was it not this that caused the Syrians to mistake him for the king of Israel? ver. 32.

Verse 34. Drew a bow at a venture] The word which we translate in his simplicity, has been variously understood; in his integrity, his uprightness; in his perfection; i.e., to the utmost of his skill and strength. This is most probably the meaning; and may imply both aim and power, having his butt full in view.

Between the joints of the harness] "Between the cuirass and the lower part of the helmet;" and then the arrow must pass through the neck, just above the breast: or "between the cuirass and the cuissarts;" and then the arrow must pass through the abdomen, or just where the armour of the thighs joins to that which covers the breast and belly.

Verse 35. The king was stayed up] He did not wish his misfortune should be known, lest his troops should be discouraged.

Verse 36. Every man to his city] It appears that the Israelites and Jews maintained the fight the whole of the day; but when at evening the king died, and this was known, there was a proclamation made, probably with the consent of both Syrians and Israelites, that the war was over. Ahab being dead, his subjects did not choose to contend for Ramoth-gilead; so the Israelites went to their own cities, and the Syrians to their own country.

Verse 38. The dogs licked up his blood] Some of the rabbins think that this was in the very place where Naboth was stoned; see on chap. xxi. 19.

Verse 39. Ivory house] A royal palace which he built in Samaria, decorated with ivory, and hence called the ivory 41 And Jehoshaphat the son of Asa began to reign over Judah in the fourth year of Ahab king of Israel.

42 Jehoshaphat was thirty and five years old when he began to reign: and he reigned twenty and five years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Azubah the daughter of Shilhi.

43 And he walked in all the ways of Asa his father; he turned not aside from it, doing that which was right in the eyes of the Lord: nevertheless the high places were not taken away; for the people offered and burned incense yet in the high places.

44 And Jehoshaphat made peace with the king of Israel.

45 Now the rest of the acts of Jehoshaphat, and his might that he shewed, and how he warred, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

46 And the remnant of the sodomites, which remained in the days of his father Asa, he took out of the land.

47 There was then no king in Edom: a deputy was king.

48 Jehoshaphat made ships of Tharshish to go to Ophir for gold: but they went not; for the ships were broken at Ezion-geber.

49 Then said Ahaziah the son of Ahab unto Jehoshaphat, Let my servants go with thy servants in the ships. But Jehoshaphat would not.

50 And Jehoshaphat slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David his father: and Jehoram his son reigned in his stead.

51 Ahaziah the son of Ahab began to reign over Israel in Samaria the seventeenth year of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and reigned two years over Israel.

house. Amos the prophet speaks against this luxury, chap. iii. 15.

Verse 43. The high places were not taken away] In 2 Chron. xvii. 6, it is expressly said, that he did take away the high places. Allowing that the text is right in 2 Chron., the two places may be easily reconciled. There were two kinds of high places in the land: 1. Those used for idolatrous purposes. 2. Those that were consecrated to God, and were used before the temple was built. The former he did take away; the latter he did not. But some think the parallel place in 2 Chron. xvii. 6 is corrupted, and that, instead of "and moreover he took away," we should read, "and he did not take away."

Verse 46. The remnant of the sodomites] Of the consecrated persons; or it may rather apply here to the system of pollution, effeminacy, and debauch. He destroyed the thing itself; the abominations of Priapus, and the rites of Venus, Baal, and Ashtaroth. No more of that impure worship was to be found in Judah.

Verse 47. There was then no king in Edom] It is plain that the compiler of this book lived after the days of Jehoshaphat, in whose time the Edomites revolted; see 2 Kings viii. 22. This note is introduced by the writer to account for Jehoshaphat's building ships at Ezion-geber, which was in the territory of the Edomites, and which showed them to be at that time under the Jewish yoke.

Verse 48. Ships of Tharshish to go to Ophir for gold] Some translate, instead of ships of Tharshish, ships of burden.

Verse 49. But Jehoshaphat would not.] It appears from the above-cited place in Chronicles that Jehoshaphat did join in making and sending ships to Tharshish, and it is possible that what is here said is spoken of a second expedition, in which Jehoshaphat would not join Ahaziah. But, instead of velo abah, "he would not," perhaps we should read velo abah, "he consented to him;" two words pronounced exactly in the same way, and differing but in one letter.

THE SECOND BOOK

OF THE

KINGS,

OTHERWISE CALLED THE FOURTH BOOK OF THE KINGS.

CHAPTER I.

Ahaziah, being hurt by a fall, sends messengers to Baal-zebul to inquire whether he shall recover, 1, 2. They are met by Elijah, who sends them back with the information that he shall surely die, 3-8. The king sends a captain and fifty men, to bring Elijah to Samaria, on which fire comes down from heaven, and destroys both him and his men, 9, 10. Another captain and fifty men are sent, who are likewise destroyed, 11, 12. A third is sent, who behaves himself humbly, and Elijah is commanded to accompany him; he obeys, comes to the king, reproves his idolatry, and announces his death, 13-16. Ahaziah dies, and Jehoram reigns in his stead, 17, 18.

THEN Moab <sup>a</sup> rebelled against Israel <sup>b</sup> after the death of Ahab.

2 And Ahaziah fell down through a lattice in his upper chamber that was in Samaria, and was sick: and he sent messengers, and said unto them, Go, inquire of Baal-zebul the god of <sup>c</sup> Ekron whether I shall recover of this disease.

3 But the angel of the LORD said to Elijah the Tishbite, Arise, go up to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say unto them, Is it not because there is not a God in Israel, that ye go to inquire of Baal-zebul the god of Ekron?

4 Now therefore thus saith the LORD, <sup>d</sup> Thou shalt not come down from that bed on which thou art gone up, but shalt surely die. And Elijah departed.

5 And when the messengers turned back unto him, he said unto them, Why are ye now turned back?

6 And they said unto him, There came a man up to meet us, and said unto us, Go, turn again unto the king that sent you, and say unto him, Thus

Verse 1. Moab rebelled] After the division of the two kingdoms, the Moabites fell partly under the dominion of Israel, and partly under that of Judah, until the death of Ahab, when they arose and shook off this yoke. Jehoram confederated with the king of Judah and the king of Edom, in order to reduce them.

Verse 2. Fell down through a lattice] Perhaps either through the flat roof of his house, or over or through the balustrades with which the roof was surrounded.

Go, inquire of Baal-zebul] He was the tutelary god of Ekron, and probably was used at first as a kind of tessem, to drive away flies. He became afterwards a very respectable devil, and was supposed to have great power and influence. In the New Testament Beelzebub is a common name for Satan himself, or the prince of devils.

Verse 4. But shalt surely die.] The true God tells you this; he in whose hands are both life and death, who can kill and make alive. Baal-zebul can do nothing; God has determined that your master shall die.

Verse 6. He was an hairy man] That is, he wore a saith the LORD, Is it not because there is not a God in Israel, that thou sendest to inquire of Baal-zebul the god of Ekron? therefore thou shalt not come down from that bed on which thou art gone up, but shalt surely die.

7 And he said unto them, <sup>a</sup> What manner of man was he which came up to meet you, and told you these words?

8 And they answered him, He was <sup>a</sup> an hairy man, and girt with a girdle of leather about his loins. And he said, It is Elijah the Tishbite.

9 Then the king sent unto him a captain of fifty with his fifty. And he went up to him: and, behold, he sat on the top of an hill. And he spake unto him, Thou man of God, the king hath said, Come down.

10 And Elijah answered and said to the captain of fifty, If I be a man of God, then <sup>a</sup> let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty. And there came down fire from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty.

11 Again also he sent unto him another captain

rough garment, either made of camel's hair, as his successor John Baptist's was: or he wore a skin dressed with the hair on. Some think that the meaning is, he had very long hair and a long beard.

Verse 9. A captain of fifty with his fifty.] It is impossible that such a man as Ahaziah, in such circumstances, could have had any friendly design in sending a captain and fifty soldiers for the prophet; and the manner in which they are treated shows plainly that they went with a hostile intent.

And he spake unto him, Thou man of God] Thou prophet of the Most High.

Verse 10. And there came down fire] Some have blamed the prophet for destroying these men, by bringing down fire from heaven upon them. But they do not consider that it was no more possible for Elijah to bring down fire from heaven than for them to do it. God alone could send the fire; and as he is just and good, he would not have destroyed these men had there not been a sufficient cause to justify the act. It was not to please Elijah, or to gratify any vindictive humour in him, that God thus acted; but to show his own of fifty with his fifty. And he answered and said unto him, O man of God, thus hath the king said, Come down quickly.

12 And Elijah answered and said unto them, If I be a man of God, let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty. And the fire of God came down from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty.

13 And he sent again a captain of the third fifty with his fifty. And the third captain of fifty went up, and came and fell on his knees before Elijah, and besought him, and said unto him, O man of God, I pray thee, let my life, and the life of these fifty thy servants, be precious in thy sight.

14 Behold, there came fire down from heaven, and burnt up the two captains of the former fifties with their fifties; therefore let my life now be precious in thy sight.

power and justice. Elijah's words were only declarative, and not imprecatory.

Verse 15. And the Angel of the Lord said—Go down with him] This is an additional proof that Elijah was then acting under particular inspirations: he had neither will nor design of his own.

And he arose, and went down] He did not even regard his personal safety or his life: he goes without the least hesitation to the king, though he had reason to suppose he would be doubly irritated by his prediction and the death of one hundred of his men. But with all these consequences he had nothing to do; he was the ambassador of the King eternal, and his honour and life were in the hands of his Master.

Verse 17. And Jehoram reigned in his stead] There were two Jehorams who were contemporary: the first, the son of Ahab, brother to Ahaziah, and his successor in the kingdom of Israel; the second, the son of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, who succeeded his father in Judah. But there is a 15 And the angel of the Lord said unto Elijah, Go down with him: be not afraid of him. And he arose, and went down with him unto the king.

16 And he said unto him, Thus saith the Lord, Forasmuch as thou hast sent messengers to inquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron, is it not because there is no God in Israel to inquire of his word? therefore thou shalt not come down off that bed on which thou art gone up, but shalt surely die.

17 So he died according to the word of the Lord which Elijah had spoken. And Jehoram reigned in his stead, in the second year of Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat king of Judah; because he had no son.

18 Now the rest of the acts of Ahaziah which he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

*The second year that Jehoram was Prorex, and the eighteenth of Jehoshaphat. Ch. iii. 1.

difficulty here: "How is it that Jehoram, the brother of Ahaziah, began to reign in the second year of Jehoram, son of Jehoshaphat, seeing that, according to chapter iii. 1, he began his reign in the 18th year of the reign of Jehoshaphat; and, according to chap. viii. 16, Jehoram, son of Jehoshaphat, began to reign in the fifth year of Jehoram, king of Israel?" Dr. Lightfoot supposes that the reason why both their sons came thus into their thrones in their lifetime, and both in the same year, was because their fathers, Jehoshaphat and Ahab, were both engaged in the war against the Syrians about Ramoth-gilead; and while they were providing for it, and carrying it on, they made their sons viceroys, and set them to reign in their stead, while they were absent or employed upon that expedition. This is very probable, and seems well supported by the above texts, and would solve all the difficulties with which many have been puzzled and not a few stumbled, had we sufficient evidence for the viceregency here mentioned.

CHAPTER II.

Elijah, about to be taken up to heaven, goes in company with Elisha from Gilgal to Beth-el, 1, 2. Thence to Jericho, 3-5. And thence to Jordan, 6, 7. Elijah smites the waters with his mantle; they divide, and he and Elisha pass over on dry ground, 8. Elijah desires Elisha to ask what he should do for him; who requests a double portion of his spirit, which is promised on a certain condition, 9, 10. A chariot and horses of fire descend; and Elijah mounts, and ascends by a whirlwind to heaven, 11. Elisha gets his mantle, comes back to Jordan, smites the waters with it, and they divide, and he goes over, 12-14. The sons of the prophets see that the spirit of Elijah rests on Elisha, 15. They propose to send fifty men to seek Elijah, supposing the spirit of the Lord might have cast him on some mountain or valley; after three days' search, they return, not having found him, 16-18. The people of Jericho apply to Elisha to heal their unwholesome water, 19. He casts salt into the spring in the name of Jehovah, and the water becomes wholesome, 20-22. Forty-two young persons of Beth-el, mocking him, are slain by two she-bears, 23, 24. He goes to Carmel, and returns to Samaria, 25.

AND it came to pass, when the Lord would take up Elijah into heaven by a whirlwind, that Elijah went with Elisha from Gilgal.

2 And Elijah said unto Elisha, Tarry here, I pray thee; for the Lord hath sent me to Beth-el. And Elisha said unto him, As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. So they went down to Beth-el.

3 And the sons of the prophets that were at Beth-el came forth to Elisha, and said unto him, Knowest thou that the Lord will take away thy master from thy head to day? And he said, Yea, I know it; hold ye your peace.

*1 Sam. i. 26. Ver. 4, 6. Ch. iv. 30.—1 Kings xx. 85. Ver. 6, 7, 15. Ch. iv. 1, 38. ix. 1.

Verse 1. When the Lord would take up Elijah] It appears that God had revealed this intended translation, not only to Elijah himself, but also to Elisha, and to the schools of the prophets, both at Beth-el and Jericho, so that they were all expecting this solemn event.

Verse 2. Tarry here, I pray thee] He either made these requests through humility, not wishing any person to be witness of the honour conferred on him by God, or with the desire to prove the fidelity of Elisha, whether he would continue to follow and serve him.

Verse 3. Knowest thou that the Lord] Thus we see that it was a matter well known to all the sons of the prophets.

4 And Elijah said unto him, Elisha, tarry here, I pray thee; for the LORD hath sent me to Jericho. And he said, As the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. So they came to Jericho.

5 And the sons of the prophets that were at Jericho came to Elisha, and said unto him, Knowest thou that the LORD will take away thy master from thy head to day? And he answered, Yea, I know it; hold ye your peace.

6 And Elijah said unto him, Tarry, I pray thee, here; for the LORD hath sent me to Jordan. And he said, As the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. And they two went on.

7 And fifty men of the sons of the prophets went, and stood <sup>a</sup>to view afar off: and they two stood by Jordan.

8 And Elijah took his mantle, and wrapped it together, and smote the waters, and <sup>b</sup>they were divided hither and thither, so that they two went over on dry ground.

9 And it came to pass, when they were gone over, that Elijah said unto Elisha, Ask what I shall do for thee, before I be taken away from thee. And Elisha said, I pray thee, let a double portion of thy spirit be upon me.

10 And he said, <sup>c</sup>Thou hast asked a hard thing: nevertheless, if thou see me when I am taken from thee, it shall be so unto thee; but if not, it shall not be so.

11 And it came to pass, as they still went on, and talked, that, behold, there appeared <sup>d</sup>a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder; and <sup>e</sup>Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven.

Verse 7. Fifty men of the sons of the prophets] They fully expected this extraordinary event, and they could have known it only from Elijah himself, or by a direct revelation from God.

Verse 8. Took his mantle] The skins of beasts, dressed with the hair on, were formerly worn by prophets and priests as the simple insignia of their office.

They were divided hither and thither] This was a most astonishing miracle, and could be performed only by the almighty power of God.

Verse 9. A double portion of thy spirit be upon me.] This is in reference to the law, Deut. xxi. 17. Elisha considered himself the only child or first-born of Elijah, as the disciples of eminent teachers were called their children; so here he claims a double portion of his spiritual influence, any other disciples coming in for a single share only. Sons of the prophets means no more than the disciples or scholars of the prophets.

Verse 10. A hard thing] This is what is not in my power, God alone can give this; yet if thou see me taken away from thee, it shall be so. Perhaps this means no more than, "If thou continue with me till I am translated, God will grant this to thee;" for on the mere seeing or not seeing him in the moment in which he was taken away, this divine gift could not depend.

Verse 11. A chariot of fire, and horses of fire] That is, a chariot and horses of the most resplendent glory, which manifesting itself in coruscations or shooting rays, seemed to be like blazing fire, or like the sun in his strength. [It was not in the chariot that Elijah was caught up. The fierce wind of the tempest bore him away, and the fire severed him from his follower.]

Elijah went up—into heaven.] He was truly translated.

Verse 12. The chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.] The Chaldee translates these words thus: "My master, my master! who, by thy intercession, wast of more use to Israel than horses and chariots." This is probably the sense.

12 And Elisha saw it, and he cried, 'My father, my father, the chariot of Israel and the horsemen thereof. And he saw him no more: and he took hold of his own clothes, and rent them in two pieces.

13 He took up also the mantle of Elijah that fell from him, and went back, and stood by the <sup>a</sup>bank of Jordan:

14 And he took the mantle of Elijah that fell from him, and smote the waters, and said, Where is the LORD God of Elijah? And when he also had smitten the waters, <sup>b</sup>they parted hither and thither: and Elisha went over.

15 And when the sons of the prophets which were <sup>c</sup>to view at Jericho saw him, they said, The spirit of Elijah doth rest on Elisha. And they came to meet him, and bowed themselves to the ground before him.

16 And they said unto him, Behold now, there be with thy servants fifty <sup>d</sup>strong men; let them go, we pray thee, and seek thy master: <sup>e</sup>lest peradventure the spirit of the LORD hath taken him up, and cast him upon <sup>f</sup>some mountain, or into some valley. And he said, Ye shall not send.

17 And when they urged him till he was ashamed, he said, Send. They sent therefore fifty men; and they sought three days, but found him not.

18 And when they came again to him, (for he tarried at Jericho,) he said unto them, Did I not say unto you, Go not?

19 And the men of the city said unto Elisha, Behold, I pray thee, the situation of this city is pleasant, as my lord seeth: but the water is naught, and the ground <sup>g</sup>barren.

—<sup>a</sup> Ver. 8.—<sup>b</sup> Ver. 7.—<sup>c</sup> Heb. sons of strength.—<sup>d</sup> See 1 Kings xviii. 12. Ezek. viii. 3. Bel and Dragon 36. Acts viii. 39.—<sup>e</sup> Heb. one of the mountains.—<sup>f</sup> Heb. causing to miscarry.

And rent them in two pieces] As a sign of sorrow for having lost so good and glorious a master.

Verse 13. He took—the mantle] The same with which he had been called by Elijah to the prophetic office, and the same by which Elijah divided Jordan. His having the mantle was a proof that he was invested with the authority and influence of his master.

Verse 14. Where is the Lord God of Elijah?] The act of striking the waters seems to be twice repeated in the verse, though we get rid of the second striking by rendering the second clause, when he also had smitten the waters: which has the same Hebrew words as the first, and which we translate, he smote the waters. The Vulgate supposes he smote once in vain, perhaps confiding too much in his own strength; and then, having invoked the God of Elijah, he succeeded.

Verse 15. The spirit of Elijah doth rest on Elisha.] This was a natural conclusion, from seeing him with the mantle, and working the same miracle. This disposed them to yield the same obedience to him they had done to his master.

Verse 16. Fifty strong men] Probably the same fifty who are mentioned ver. 7, and who saw Elijah taken up in the whirlwind.

Cast him upon some mountain] Though they saw him taken up towards heaven, yet they thought it possible that the Spirit of the Lord might have descended with him, and left him on some remote mountain or valley.

Ye shall not send.] He knew that he was translated to heaven, and that therefore it would be useless.

Verse 17. Till he was ashamed] He saw they would not be satisfied unless they made the proposed search: he felt therefore that he could not, with any good grace, resist their importunity any longer.

Verse 19. The water is naught, and the ground barren.] The barrenness of the ground was the effect of the badness of the water.

Verse 21. And cast the salt in there] What Elisha did on

II. KINGS.

20 And he said, Bring me a new cruse, and put salt therein. And they brought it to him.

21 And he went forth unto the spring of the waters, and cast the salt in there, and said, Thus saith the LORD, I have healed these waters; there shall not be from thence any more death or barren land.

22 So the waters were healed unto this day, according to the saying of Elisha which he spake.

23 And he went up from thence unto Bethel:

* See Exod. xv. 25. Ch. iv. 41. vi. 6. John ix. 6.

this occasion, getting the new cruse and throwing in the salt, was only to make the miracle more conspicuous. If the salt could have had any natural tendency to render the water salubrious, it could have acted only for a short time, and only on that portion of the stream which now arose from the spring; and in a few moments its effects must have disappeared. But the miracle here was permanent: the death of men and cattle, which had been occasioned by the insalubrity of the waters; ceased; the land was no longer barren; and the waters became permanently fit for all agricultural and domestic uses.

Verse 23. There came forth little children out of the city] These were probably the school of some celebrated teacher; but under his instruction they had learned neither piety nor good manners.

Go up, thou bald head; go up, thou bald head.] Does not this imply the grossest insult? Ascend, thou empty skull, to heaven, as it is pretended thy master did! This was blasphemy against God; and their punishment (for they were Beth-elite idolaters) was only proportioned to their guilt. Elisha cursed them, i.e. pronounced a curse upon them, in the name of the Lord, by the name or authority of Jehovah. The spirit of their offence lies in their ridiculing a miracle of the Lord: the offence was against Him, and He punished it.

and as he was going up by the way, there came forth little children out of the city, and mocked him, and said unto him, Go up, thou bald head; go up, thou bald head.

24 And he turned back, and looked on them, and cursed them in the name of the LORD. And there came forth two she-bears out of the wood, and tare forty and two children of them.

25 And he went from thence to Mount Carmel, and from thence he returned to Samaria.

"But was it not a cruel thing to destroy forty-two little children, who, in mere childishness, had simply called the prophet bare skull, or bald head?" I answer, Elisha did not destroy them; he had no power by which he could bring two she-bears out of the wood to destroy them. It was evidently either accidental, or a divine judgment; and if a judgment, God must be the sole author of it. Elisha's curse must be only declaratory of what God was about to do. See on chap. i. 10. "But then, as they were little children, they could scarcely be accountable for their conduct; and consequently, it was cruelly to destroy them." But were they little children? for here the strength of the objection lies. Now I suppose the objection means children from four to seven or eight years old; for so we use the word; but the original may mean young men, for katon signifies to be young, in opposition to old, and is so translated in various places in our Bible; and naar signifies, not only a child, but a young man, a servant, or even a soldier, or one fit to go out to battle; and is so translated in a multitude of places in our common English version. [Dr. Clarke's rendering "empty skull" is not correct. The mockery had reference to the closely shaven head of Elisha, as in contrast with the rough, shaggy locks of his predecessor.]

CHAPTER III.

The reign and idolatry of Jehoram, king of Israel, 1-3. Mesha, king of Moab, rebels against Israel, 4, 5. Jehoram, Jehoshaphat, and the king of Edom join against the Moabites, and are brought into great distress for want of water, 6-10. The three kings go to Elisha to inquire of the Lord; who promises them water, and a complete victory, 11-19. Water comes the next morning, and fills the trenches which these kings had made in the valley, 20. The Moabites arm against them; and suppose, when they see the sun slinking upon the waters, which look like blood, that the confederate kings have fallen out, and slain each other: and that they have nothing to do but take the spoil, 21-23. The Israelites attack and completely rout them, beat down their cities, and mar their land, 24, 25. The king of Moab, having made an unsuccessful attack on the king of Edom, takes his eldest son, and offers him for a burnt-offering upon the wall; and there is great indignation against Israel, 26, 27.

NOW Jehoram the son of Ahab began to reign over Israel in Samaria the eighteenth year of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and reigned twelve years.

2 And he wrought evil in the sight of the LORD; but not like his father, and like his mother: for he put away the image of Baal that his father had made.

3 Nevertheless he cleaved unto the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, which made Israel to sin; he departed not therefrom.

4 And Mesha king of Moab was a sheepmaster, and rendered unto the king of Israel an hundred thousand lambs, and an hundred thousand rams, with the wool.

5 But it came to pass, when Ahab was dead, that the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel.

6 And king Jehoram went out of Samaria the same time, and numbered all Israel.

7 And he went and sent to Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, saying, The king of Moab hath rebelled against me: wilt thou go with me against Moab to battle? And he said, I will go up: I am as thou art, my people as thy people, and my horses as thy horses.

Verse 2. He put away the image of Baal] He abolished this worship; but he continued that of the calves at Dan and Beth-el.

Verse 4. Was a sheepmaster] The original signifies one who marks or brands, probably from the marking of sheep.

He fed many sheep, &c., and had them all marked in a particular way in order to ascertain his property.

Verse 7. My people as thy people] We find that Jehoshaphat maintained the same friendly intercourse with the son as he did with the father.

8 And he said, Which way shall we go up? And he answered, The way through the wilderness of Edom.

9 So the king of Israel went, and the king of Judah, and the king of Edom: and they fetched a compass of seven days' journey: and there was no water for the host, and for the cattle * that followed them:

10 And the king of Israel said, Alas! that the LORD hath called these three kings together, to deliver them into the hand of Moab!

11 But <sup>b</sup> Jehoshaphat said, Is there not here a prophet of the LORD, that we may inquire of the LORD by him? And one of the king of Israel's servants answered and said, Here is Elisha the son of Shaphat, which poured water on the hands of Elijah.

12 And Jehoshaphat said, The word of the LORD is with him. So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat and the king of Edom * went down to him.

13 And Elisha said unto the king of Israel, What have I to do with thee? * get thee to 'the prophets of thy father, and to the prophets of thy mother. And the king of Israel said unto him, Nay: for the LORD hath called these three kings together, to deliver them into the hand of Moab.

14 And Elisha said, As the LORD of hosts liveth, before whom I stand, surely, were it not that I regard the presence of Jehoshaphat the king of Judah, I would not look toward thee, nor see thee.

15 But now bring me a <sup>b</sup> minstrel. And it came to pass, when the minstrel played, that <sup>b</sup> the hand of the LORD came upon him.

Verse 8. Through the wilderness of Edom.] Because he expected the king of Edom to join them, as we find he did; for, being tributary to Judah, he was obliged to do it.

Verse 9. A compass of seven days' journey.] By taking a circuitous route, to go round the southern part of the Dead Sea, they probably intended to surprise the Moabites; but it appears their journey was ill-planned, as they at last got into a country in which it was impossible to obtain water, and they were brought in consequence to the utmost extremity.

Verse 10. The Lord hath called these three kings together.] That is, This is a divine judgment; God has judiciously blinded us, and permitted us to take this journey to our destruction.

Verse 11. Is there not here a prophet of the Lord.] The kings of Judah still acknowledged the true God, and him only.

Poured water on the hands of Elijah.] That is, was his constant and confidential servant.

Verse 12. The word of the Lord is with him.] He has the gift of prophecy.

Verse 13. Get thee to the prophets of thy father.] This was a just but cutting reproof.

Verse 14. Were it not that I regard the presence of Jehoshaphat.] He worshipped the true God; Jehoram was an idolater.

Verse 15. Bring me a minstrel.] A person who played on the harp. The rabbins and many Christians suppose that Elisha's mind was considerably irritated and grieved by the bad behaviour of the young men at Beth-el and their tragical end, and by the presence of the idolatrous king of Israel; and therefore called for divine psalmody, that it might calm his spirits, and render him more susceptible of the prophetic influence. To be able to discern the voice of God and the operation of his hand, it is necessary that the mind be calm and the passions all in harmony under the direction of reason; that reason may be under the influence of the Divine Spirit.

The hand of the Lord came upon him.] The playing of the harper had the desired effect; his mind was calmed, and the power of God descended upon him. This effect of music was generally acknowledged in every civilized nation.

16 And he said, Thus saith the LORD, <sup>i</sup> Make this valley full of ditches.

17 For thus saith the LORD, Ye shall not see wind, neither shall ye see rain: yet that valley shall be filled with water, that ye may drink, both ye, and your cattle, and your beasts.

18 And this is but a light thing in the sight of the LORD: he will deliver the Moabites also into your hand.

19 And ye shall smite every fenced city, and every choice city, and shall fell every good tree, and stop all wells of water, and <sup>b</sup> mar every good piece of land with stones.

20 And it came to pass in the morning, when <sup>i</sup> the meat-offering was offered, that, behold, there came water by the way of Edom, and the country was filled with water.

21 And when all the Moabites heard that the kings were come up to fight against them, they <sup>a</sup> gathered all that were able to <sup>a</sup> put on armour and upward, and stood in the border.

22 And they rose up early in the morning, and the sun shone upon the water, and the Moabites saw the water on the other side as red as blood:

23 And they said, This is blood: the kings are surely <sup>a</sup> slain, and they have smitten one another: now, therefore, Moab, to the spoil.

24 And when they came to the camp of Israel, the Israelites rose up and smote the Moabites, so that they fled before them: but <sup>a</sup> they went forward smiting the Moabites, even in their country.

Verse 16. Make this valley full of ditches.] The word nachal may be translated brook, as it is by the Vulgate and Septuagint. There probably was a river here, but it was now dry; and the prophet desires that they would enlarge the channel and cut out various canals from it and reservoirs, where water might be collected for the refreshment of the army and of the cattle; and these were to be made so wide, that the reflection of the sun's rays from this water might be the means of confounding and destroying the Moabites.

Verse 17. Ye shall not see wind.] There shall be no wind to collect vapours, and there shall be no showers, and yet the whole bed of this river, and all the new made canals, shall be filled with water.

Verse 19. Shall fell every good tree.] Every tree by which your enemies may serve themselves for fortifications, &c. But surely fruit-trees are not intended here; for this was positively against the law of God, Deut. xx. 19, 20. [It would seem, rather, that in the case of the Moabites the law was to be suspended; the original certainly refers to fruit-trees.]

Stop all wells of water.] In those hot countries this would lead sooner than any thing else to reduce an enemy.

Mar every good piece of land with stones.] Such a multitude of men, each throwing a stone on a good field as they passed, would completely destroy it.

Verse 20. When the meat-offering was offered.] This was the first of all offerings, and was generally made at sunrise.

There came water.] This supply was altogether miraculous, for there was neither wind nor rain, nor any other natural means by which it could be supplied.

Verse 22. Saw the water on the other side as red as blood.] This might have been an optical deception. The Moabites had never seen that valley full of water, and therefore did not suspect that their eyes deceived them, but took it for the blood of the confederate hosts, who they thought might have fallen into confusion in the darkness of night and destroyed each other, as the Midianites had formerly done, Judg. vii. 22; and the Philistines lately, 1 Sam. xiv. 20.

Verse 23. Therefore, Moab, to the spoil.] Thus they came 25 And they beat down the cities, and on every good piece of land cast every man his stone, and filled it; and they stopped all the wells of water, and felled all the good trees: <sup>a</sup> only in <sup>b</sup> Kir-haraseh left they the stones thereof; howbeit the slingers went about it, and smote it.

26 And when the king of Moab saw that the battle was too sore for him, he took with him seven on in a disorderly manner, and fell an easy prey to their enemies.

Verse 25. On every good piece of land] On all cultivated ground, and especially fields that were sown.

Only in Kir-haraseh] This was the royal city of the Moabites, and, as we learn from Scripture, exceedingly strong; so that it is probable the confederate armies could not easily reduce it. The slingers, we are informed, went about the wall, and smote all the men that appeared on it, hundred men that drew swords, to break through even unto the king of Edom: but they could not.

27 Then <sup>c</sup> he took his eldest son that should have reigned in his stead, and offered him for a burnt-offering upon the wall. And there was great indignation against Israel: <sup>d</sup> and they departed from him, and returned to their own land.

<sup>b</sup> Isa. xvi. 7, 11.—<sup>c</sup> Amos ii. 1.—<sup>d</sup> Ch. viii. 20.

while no doubt the besieging army was employed in sapping the foundations.

Verse 26. Seven hundred men] These were no doubt the choice of all his troops.

There was great indignation] The Lord was displeased with them for driving things to such an extremity; or the surrounding nations held them in abomination on the account; and they were so terrified themselves at this most horrid sacrifice, that they immediately raised the siege and departed.

widow of one of the prophets, oppressed by a merciless creditor, applies to Elisha, who multiplies her oil; by a part of which she pays her debt, and subsists on the rest, 1-7. His entertainment at the house of a respectable woman in Shunem, 8-10. He foretells to his hostess the birth of a son, 11-17. Verse 1. Now there cried a certain woman] This woman, according to the Chaldee, Jarchi, and the rabbins, was the wife of Obadiah.

Sons of the prophets] "Disciples of the prophets."

To take unto him my two sons to be bondmen] Children, according to the laws of the Hebrews, were considered the property of their parents, who had a right to dispose of them for the payment of their debts. And in cases of poverty the law permitted them expressly to sell both themselves and their children; Exod. xxi. 7, and Lev. xxv. 39. It was by an extension of this law, and by virtue of another, which authorized them to sell the thief who could not make restitution, Exod. xxii. 3, that creditors were permitted to take the children of their debtors in payment. Although the law has not determined any thing precisely on this point, we see by this passage, and by several others, that this custom was common among the Hebrews.

Verse 2. Save a pot of oil] Oil was used as aliment, for anointing the body after bathing, and to anoint the dead. Some think that this pot of oil was what this widow had kept for her burial: see Mat. xxvi. 12.

Verse 6. And the oil stayed] While there was a vessel to fill, there was oil sufficient; and it only ceased to flow when door upon thee and upon thy sons, and shalt pour out into all those vessels, and thou shalt set aside that which is full.

5 So she went from him, and shut the door upon her and upon her sons, who brought the vessels to her; and she poured out.

6 And it came to pass, when the vessels were full, that she said unto her son, Bring me yet a vessel. And he said unto her, There is not a vessel more. And the oil stayed.

7 Then she came and told the man of God, And he said, Go, sell the oil, and pay thy <sup>a</sup> debt, and live thou and thy children of the rest.

8 And 'it fell on a day, that Elisha passed to

there was no vessel to receive it. This is a good emblem of the grace of God. While there is an empty, longing heart, there is a continual overflowing fountain of salvation. We find fault with the dispensations of God's mercy, and ask, Why were the former days better than these? Were we as much in earnest for our salvation as our forefathers were for theirs, we should have equal supplies, and as much reason to sing aloud of divine mercy.

Verse 7. Go, sell the oil, and pay thy debt] He does not inveigh against the cruelty of this creditor, because the law and custom of the country gave him the authority on which he acted; and rather than permit a poor honest widow to have her children sold, or that even a Philistine should suffer loss who had given credit to a genuine Israelite, he would work a miracle to pay a debt which, in the course of Providence, it was out of her power to discharge.

Verse 8. Elisha passed to Shunem] This city was in the tribe of Issachar, to the south of the brook Kishon, and at the foot of Mount Tabor.

Instead of great woman, the Chaldee has, a woman fearing sin; the Arabic, a woman eminent for piety before God. This made her truly great.

<sup>a</sup>Shunem, where was a great woman; and she <sup>b</sup>constrained him to eat bread. And so it was, that as oft as he passed by, he turned in thither to eat bread.

9 And she said unto her husband, Behold now, I perceive that this is an holy man of God, which passeth by us continually.

10 Let us make a little chamber, I pray thee, on the wall; and let us set for him there a bed, and a table, and a stool, and a candlestick: and it shall be, when he cometh to us, that he shall turn in thither.

11 And it fell on a day, that he came thither, and he turned into the chamber, and lay there.

12 And he said to Gehazi his servant, Call this Shunammite. And when he had called her, she stood before him.

13 And he said unto him, Say now unto her, Behold, thou hast been careful for us with all this care; what is to be done for thee? wouldst thou be spoken for to the king, or to the captain of the host? And she answered, I dwell among mine own people.

14 And he said, What then is to be done for her? And Gehazi answered, Verily she hath no child, and her husband is old.

15 And he said, Call her. And when he had called her, she stood in the door.

16 And he said, <sup>c</sup>About this <sup>d</sup>season, according to the time of life, thou shalt embrace a son. And she said, Nay, my lord, thou man of God, <sup>e</sup>do not lie unto thine handmaid.

17 And the woman conceived, and bare a son at that season that Elisha had said unto her, according to the time of life.

Verse 9. This is an holy man of God] That is, a prophet, as the Chaldees interpret it.

Which passeth by us continually.] It probably lay in his way to some school of the prophets that he usually attended.

Verse 10. Let us make a little chamber] As the woman was convinced that Elisha was a prophet, she knew that he must have need of more privacy than the general state of her house could afford; and therefore she proposes what she knew would be a great acquisition to him, as he could live in this little chamber in as much privacy as if he were in his own house. The bed, the table, the stool, and the candlestick, were really every thing he could need, by way of accommodation, in such circumstances.

Verse 12. Gehazi his servant] This is the first time we hear of this very indifferent character.

Verse 13. Wouldst thou be spoken for to the king] Jehoram had reason to believe that the prophet, under God, was the sole cause of his success; and therefore he could have no doubt that the king would grant him any reasonable request.

Or to the captain of the host?] As if he had said, Wilt thou that I should procure thee and thy husband a place at court, or get any of thy friends a post in the army?

I dwell among mine own people.] I am perfectly satisfied and contented with my lot in life; I live on the best terms with my neighbours, and am here encompassed with my kindred, and feel no disposition to change my connexions or place of abode.

How few are there like this woman on the earth! Who is so contented with what he has as not to desire more? How few are there that will not sacrifice every thing—peace, domestic comfort, their friends, their conscience, and their God—for money, honours, grandeur, and parade?

Verse 14. What then is to be done for her?] It seems that the woman retired as soon as she had delivered the answer mentioned in the preceding verse.

Verse 16. Thou shalt embrace a son.] This promise and the circumstances of the parties, are not very dissimilar to that relative to the birth of Isaac, and those of Abraham and Sarah.

18 And when the child was grown, it fell on a day that he went out to his father to the reapers.

19 And he said unto his father, My head, my head. And he said to a lad, Carry him to his mother.

20 And when he had taken him, and brought him to his mother, he sat on her knees till noon, and then died.

21 And she went up, and laid him on the bed of the man of God, and shut the door upon him, and went out.

22 And she called unto her husband, and said, Send me, I pray thee, one of the young men, and one of the asses, that I may run to the man of God, and come again.

23 And he said, Wherefore wilt thou go to him to day? it is neither new moon, nor sabbath. And she said, It shall be well.

24 Then she saddled an ass, and said to her servant, Drive, and go forward; <sup>a</sup>slack not thy riding for me, except I bid thee.

25 So she went and came unto the man of God <sup>b</sup>to Mount Carmel. And it came to pass, when the man of God saw her afar off, that he said to Gehazi his servant, Behold, yonder is that Shunammite:

26 Run now, I pray thee, to meet her, and say unto her, Is it well with thee? is it well with thy husband? is it well with the child? And she answered, It is well.

27 And when she came to the man of God to the hill, she caught <sup>c</sup>him by the feet: but Gehazi came near to thrust her away. And the man of God said, Let her alone; for her soul is vexed within her: and the Lord hath hid it from me, and hath not told me.

Do not lie] That is, Let thy words become true; or, as the rabbins understand it, Do not mock me by giving me a son that shall soon be removed by death; but let me have one that shall survive me.

Verse 18. When the child was grown] We know not of what age he was, very likely four or six, if not more years; for he could go out to the reapers in the harvest field, converse, &c.

Verse 19. My head, my head.] Probably affected by the sun stroke, which might, in so young a subject, soon occasion death, especially in that hot country.

Verse 21. Laid him on the bed of the man of God] She had no doubt heard that Elijah had raised the widow's son of Zarephath to life; and she believed that he who had obtained this gift from God for her, could obtain his restoration to life.

Verse 23. Wherefore wilt thou go] Though the religion of the true God was not the religion of the state, yet there were no doubt multitudes of the people who continued to worship the true God alone, and were in the habit of going, as is here intimated, on new moons and sabbaths, to consult the prophet.

Verse 24. Drive, and go forward] It is customary in the East for a servant to walk alongside or drive the ass his master rides. Sometimes he walks behind, and goads on the beast; and when it is to turn, he directs its head with the long pole of the goad.

Verse 26. It is well.] How strong was her faith in God and submission to his authority! Though the heaviest family affliction that could befall her and her husband had now taken place; yet, believing it was a dispensation of Providence which was in itself neither unwise nor unkind, she said, It is well with me, with my husband, and with my child. We may farther remark that, in her days, the doctrine of reprobate infants had not disgraced the pure religion of the God of endless compassion.

Verse 27. The Lord hath hid it from me, and hath not told me.] In reference to this point he had not now the discernment of spirits. This, and the gift of prophecy, were influences which God gave and suspended as his infinite wisdom saw good.

28 Then she said, Did I desire a son of my lord? <sup>a</sup>did I not say, Do not deceive me?

29 Then he said to Gehazi, <sup>b</sup>Gird up thy loins, and take my staff in thine hand, and go thy way: if thou meet any man, <sup>c</sup>salute him not; and if any salute thee, answer him not again: and <sup>d</sup>lay my staff upon the face of the child.

30 And the mother of the child said, <sup>e</sup>As the LORD liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. And he arose, and followed her.

31 And Gehazi passed on before them, and laid the staff upon the face of the child; but <sup>f</sup>there was neither voice, nor <sup>g</sup>hearing. Wherefore he went again to meet him, and told him, saying, The child is <sup>h</sup>not awakened.

32 And when Elisha was come into the house, behold, the child was dead, and laid upon his bed.

33 He <sup>i</sup>was in therefore, and shut the door upon them twain, <sup>j</sup>and prayed unto the LORD.

34 And he went up, and lay upon the child, and put his mouth upon his mouth, and his eyes upon his eyes, and his hands upon his hands: and <sup>k</sup>he stretched himself upon the child; and the flesh of the child waxed warm.

35 Then he returned, and walked in the house <sup>l</sup>to and fro; and went up <sup>m</sup>and stretched himself upon him: and <sup>n</sup>the child sneezed seven times, and the child opened his eyes.

36 And he called Gehazi, and said, Call this Shunammite. So he called her. And when she was come in unto him, he said, Take up thy son.

Verse 28. Did I desire a son of my lord? I expressed no such wish to thee; I was contented and happy; and when thou didst promise me a son, did I not say, Do not deceive me? Do not mock me with a child which shall grow up to be attractive and engaging, but of whom I shall soon be deprived by death.

Verse 29. Salute him not. Make all the haste thou possibly canst, and lay my staff on the face of the child; he probably thought that it might be a case of mere suspended animation or a swoon, and that laying the staff on the face of the child might act as a stimulus to excite the animal motions. [This is scarcely likely. The prophet rather desired to show that he or his staff could not work the miracle. God must work, and that in answer to prayer.]

Verse 30. I will not leave thee. The prophet, it seems, had no design to accompany her; he intended to wait for Gehazi's return; but as the woman was well assured the child was dead, she was determined not to return till she brought the prophet with her.

Verse 32. Behold, the child was dead. The prophet then saw that the body and spirit of the child were separated.

Verse 33. Prayed unto the Lord. He had no power of his own by which he could restore the child.

Verse 34. Lay upon the child. Endeavoured to convey a portion of his own natural warmth to the body of the child; and probably endeavoured, by blowing into the child's mouth, to inflate the lungs, and restore respiration. He uses every natural means in his power to restore life, while praying to the Author of it to exert a miraculous influence. Natural means are in our power; those that are supernatural belong to God. We should always do our own work, and beg of God to do his.

Verse 35. Walked in the house to and fro. In order, no doubt, that he might recover that natural warmth which was absorbed by the cold body of the child, that he might, by again taking it in his arms, communicate more warmth.

Verse 35. The child sneezed seven times. That is, it sneezed abundantly. Most people, as well as philosophers 37 Then she went in, and fell at his feet, and bowed herself to the ground, and <sup>a</sup>took up her son, and went out.

38 And Elisha came again to <sup>b</sup>Gilgal: and <sup>c</sup>there was a <sup>d</sup>dearth in the land; and the sons of the prophets <sup>e</sup>were <sup>f</sup>sitting before him: and he said unto his servant, Set on the great pot, and seethe pottage for the sons of the prophets.

39 And one went out into the field to gather herbs, and found a wild vine, and gathered thereof wild gourds his lap full, and came and shred them into the pot of pottage: for they knew <sup>g</sup>them not.

40 So they poured out for the men to eat. And it came to pass, as they were eating of the pottage, that they cried out, and said, <sup>h</sup>O thou man of God, <sup>i</sup>there is <sup>j</sup>death in the pot. And they could not eat thereof.

41 But he said, Then bring meal. And <sup>k</sup>he cast <sup>l</sup>it into the pot; and he said, Pour out for the people, that they may eat. And <sup>m</sup>there was no <sup>n</sup>harm in the pot.

42 And there came a man from <sup>o</sup>Baal-shalisha, <sup>p</sup>and brought the man of God bread of the first-fruits, twenty loaves of barley, and full ears of corn <sup>q</sup>in the husk thereof. And he said, Give unto the people that they may eat.

43 And his servitor said, <sup>r</sup>What, should I set this before an hundred men? He said again, Give the people, that they may eat: for thus saith the LORD, <sup>s</sup>They shall eat, and shall leave <sup>t</sup>thereof.

44 So he set <sup>u</sup>it before them, and they did eat, <sup>v</sup>and left <sup>w</sup>thereof, according to the word of the LORD.

and physicians, have remarked how beneficial sneezings are to the removal of obstructions in the head.

Verse 37. She went in, and fell at his feet. Few can enter into the feelings of this noble woman. What suspense must she have felt during the time that the prophet was employed in the slow process referred to above! for slow in its own nature it must have been, and exceedingly exhausting to the prophet himself.

Verse 38. Came again to Gilgal. He had been there before with his master, a short time prior to his translation.

Set on the great pot, and seethe pottage for the sons of the prophets. It was in a time of dearth, and all might now stand in need of refreshment; and it appears that the prophet was led to put forth the power he had from God to make a plentiful provision for those who were present.

Verse 39. Wild gourds. This is generally thought to be the colocynthis, the fruit of a plant of the same name, about the size of a large orange. It is brought hither from the Levant, and is often known by the name of the bitter apple; both the seeds and pulp are intensely bitter, and violently purgative. It ranks among vegetable poisons, as all intense bitters do; but, judiciously employed, it is of considerable use in medicine.

Verse 40. There is death in the pot. As if they had said, "We have here a deadly mixture; if we eat of it, we shall all die."

Verse 41. Bring meal. Though this might, in some measure, correct the strong acid and purgative quality; yet it was only a miracle which could make a lapful of this fruit shred into pottage salutary.

Verse 42. Bread of the first-fruits. This was an offering to the prophet, as the first fruits themselves were an offering to God.

Corn in the husk. Probably parched corn, or corn to be parched, a very frequent food in the East; full ears, before they are ripe, parched on the fire.

Verse 43. Thus saith the Lord, They shall eat, and shall leave thereof. It was God, not the prophet, who fed one hundred men with these twenty loaves, &c. This is something like our Lord's feeding the multitude miraculously. Indeed, there are many things in this chapter similar to facts in our Lord's history: and this prophet might be more aptly considered a type of our Lord than most of the other persons in the Scriptures who have been thus honoured.

CHAPTER V.

The history of Naaman, captain of the host of the king of Syria, a leper; who was informed by a little Israelitish captive maid that a prophet of the Lord, in Samaria, could cure him, 1-4. The king of Syria sends him, with a letter and rich presents, to the king of Israel, that he should recover him of his leprosy, 5, 6. On receiving the letter, the king of Israel is greatly distressed, supposing that the Syrian king designed to seek a quarrel with him, in desiring him to cleanse a leper, when it was well known that none could cure that disorder but God, 7. Elisha, hearing this, orders Naaman to be sent to him, 8. He comes to Elisha's house in great state, 9. And the prophet sends a messenger to him, ordering him to wash in Jordan seven times, and he should be made clean, 10. Naaman is displeased that he is received with so little ceremony, and departs in a rage, 11, 12. His servants reason with him; he is persuaded, goes to Jordan, washes, and is made clean, 13, 14. He returns to Elisha; acknowledges the true God; and offers him a present which the prophet refuses, 15, 16. He asks directions, promises never to sacrifice to any other god, and is dismissed, 17-19. Gehazi runs after him, pretends he is sent by his master for a talent of silver and two changes of raiment; which he receives, brings home, and hides, 20, 24. Elisha questions him; convicts him of his wickedness; pronounces a curse of leprosy upon him, with which he is immediately afflicted; and departs from his master a leper, as white as snow, 25-27.

NOW <sup>a</sup>Naaman, captain of the host of the king of Syria, was <sup>b</sup>a great man <sup>c</sup>with his master, and <sup>d</sup>honourable, <sup>e</sup>because by him the Lord had given <sup>f</sup>deliverance unto Syria: he was also a mighty man in valour, but he was a leper.

2 And the Syrians had gone out by companies, and had brought away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid; and she <sup>g</sup>waited on Naaman's wife.

3 And she said unto her mistress, Would God my lord were <sup>h</sup>with the prophet that is in Samaria! for he would <sup>i</sup>recover him of his leprosy.

4 And one went in, and told his lord, saying,

Ch.

Verse 1. Naaman, captain of the host] Of Naaman we know nothing more than is related here.

King of Syria] The Hebrew is king of Aram; which is followed by the Chaldee and Arabic. If the king of Syria be meant, it must be Ben-hadad; and the contemporary king of Israel was Jehoram.

A great man] He was held in the highest esteem.

And honourable] He had the peculiar favour and confidence of his master; and was promoted to the highest trusts.

A mighty man in valour] He was a giant, and very strong, according to the Arabic. He had, in a word, all the qualifications of an able general.

But he was a leper.] God often, in the course of his providence, permits great defects to be associated with great eminence, that he may hide pride from man; and cause him to think soberly of himself and his acquirements.

Verse 2. The Syrians had gone out by companies] They had gone out in marauding parties; and on such occasions, they bring away grain, cattle, and such of the inhabitants as are proper to make slaves.

A little maid] Who, it appears, had pious parents, who brought her up in the knowledge of the true God. Behold the goodness and the severity of the Divine Providence! affectionate parents are deprived of their promising daughter by a set of lawless freebooters, without the smallest prospect that she should have any lot in life but that of misery, infamy, and woe.

Waited on Naaman's wife.] If God permitted the parents to be deprived of their pious child by the hands of ruffians, he did not permit the child to be without a guardian. In such a case, were even the father and mother to forsake her, God would take her up.

Thus and thus said the maid that is of the land of Israel.

5 And the king of Syria said, Go to, go, and I will send a letter unto the king of Israel. And he departed, and <sup>j</sup>took <sup>k</sup>with him ten talents of silver, and six thousand <sup>l</sup>pieces of gold, and ten changes of raiment.

6 And he brought the letter to the king of Israel, saying, Now when this letter is come unto thee, behold, I have <sup>m</sup>therewith sent Naaman my servant to thee, that thou mayest recover him of his leprosy.

7 And it came to pass, when the king of Israel had read the letter, that he rent his clothes, and said, Am I <sup>n</sup>God, to kill and to make alive, that this viii. 8, 9.—<sup>h</sup> Heb. in his hand.—<sup>i</sup> Gen. xxx. 2. Deut. xxii. 38. 1 Sam. ii. 6.

Verse 3. Would God my lord] I wish; or, as the Chaldee, Syriac, and Arabic have, "Happy would it be for my master if he were with the prophet," &c.

Here the mystery of the divine providence begins to develop itself. By the captivity of this little maid, one Syrian family at least, and that one of the most considerable in the Syrian empire, is brought to the knowledge of the true God.

Verse 4. Thus and thus said the maid] So well had this little pious maid conducted herself, that her words are credited; and credited so fully, that an embassy from the king of Syria to the king of Israel is founded upon them!

Verse 5. The king of Syria said] He judged it the best mode of proceeding to send immediately to the king, under whose control he supposed the prophet must be, that he would order the prophet to cure his general.

Ten talents of silver] This, at £358 lls. 10s. 4d. the talent, would amount to £3585 lls. 9s.

thousand pieces of gold] If shekels are here meant, as the Arabic has it, then the six thousand shekels, at £1 lls. 5s. 10d. will amount to £10,925; and the whole, to £14,460 lls. 9s. 10d. sterling: besides the value of the ten captives, or changes of raiment. This was a princely present, and shows us at once how high Naaman stood in the esteem of his master.

Verse 7. Am I God, to kill and to make alive] He spoke thus under the conviction that God alone could cure the leprosy; which, indeed, was universally acknowledged: and must have been as much a maxim among the Syrians as among the Israelites, for the disorder was equally prevalent in both countries; and in both equally incurable. And it was this that led the king of Israel to infer that the Syrian man doth send unto me to recover a man of his leprosy? wherefore consider, I pray you, and see how he seeketh a quarrel against me.

8 And it was so, when Elisha the man of God had heard that the king of Israel had rent his clothes, that he sent to the king, saying, Wherefore hast thou rent thy clothes? let him come now to me, and he shall know that there is a prophet in Israel.

9 So Naaman came with his horses and with his chariot, and stood at the door of the house of Elisha.

10 And Elisha sent a messenger unto him, saying, Go and wash in Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean.

11 But Naaman was wroth, and went away, and said, Behold, I thought he will surely come out to me, and stand, and call on the name of the Lord his God, and strike his hand over the place, and recover the leper.

12 Are not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? may I not wash in them, and be clean? So he turned and went away in a rage.

13 And his servants came near, and spake unto him, and said, My father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldest thou not have done it? how much rather then, when he saith to thee, Wash, and be clean?

14 Then went he down, and dipped himself seven times in Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God: and his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, and he was clean.

15 And he returned to the man of God, he and all his company, and came, and stood before him: and he said, Behold, now I know that there is no God in all the earth, but in Israel: now therefore, I pray thee, take a blessing of thy servant.

16 But he said, As the Lord liveth, before whom I stand, I will receive none. And he urged him to take it, but he refused.

17 And Naaman said, Shall there not then, I pray thee, be given to thy servant two mules' burden of earth? for thy servant will henceforth offer neither his cleansing; and came back to acknowledge, in the most public way, his obligation to God and his servant.

Stood before him. He was now truly humbled, and left all his state behind him. Naaman, the leper, was more proud and dictatorial than he was when cleansed of his leprosy.

There is no God in all the earth. Those termed gods are no gods; the God of Israel is sole God in all the earth.

Take a blessing. Accept a present. Take an expiatory gift.—Arabic. He desired to offer something for his cleansing. He thought it right thus to acknowledge the hand from which he had received his healing, and thus honour the Lord by giving something to his servant.

Verse 16, I will receive none. It was very common to give presents to all great and official men; and among these, prophets were always included; but as it might have appeared to the Syrians that he had taken the offered present as a remuneration for the cure performed, he refused; for as God alone did the work, he alone should have all the glory.

Verse 17, Shall there not then, I pray thee. This verse is understood two different ways. I will give them both in a paraphrase:—

1. Shall there not then be given unto thy servant [viz., Naaman] two mules' burden of this Israelitish earth, that I may build an altar with it, on which I may offer sacrifices to the God of Israel?

2. Shall there not be given to thy [Elisha's] servant [Gehazi] two mules' burden of this earth? i.e. the gold and silver which he brought with him; and which he esteemed as earth or dust in comparison of the cure he received. For thy servant [Naaman] will henceforth, &c.

Each of these interpretations has its difficulties. Why Naaman should ask for two mules' burden of earth, which he might have taken up any where on the confines of the land without any such liberty, is not easy to see. As to the prophet's permission, though the boon was ever so small, it was not his to give; only the king of Israel could give such a permission: and what sort of an altar could he build with two mules' burden of earth, carried from Samaria to Damascus? If this be really the meaning of the place, the request was exceedingly foolish, and never could have come from a person enjoying the right use of his reason. The second opinion, not without its difficulties, seems less embarrassed than the former. It was natural for Naaman to wish to give something to the prophet's servant, as the master had refused his present. Again, impressed with the vast importance of the cure he had received, to take away all feeling of obligation, he might call two or ten talents of silver by the name of earth.

Should it be said, The gold and silver could not be two mules' burden; I answer, Let the quantity that Naaman brought with him be only considered, and it will be found king sought a quarrel with him, in desiring him to do a work which God only could do; and then declaring war upon him because he did not do it.

Verse 8. Let him come now to me. Do not be afflicted; the matter belongs to me, as the prophet of the Most High; send him to me, and he shall know that I am such.

Verse 9. Came with his horses and with his chariot. In very great pomp and state. Closely inspected, this was preposterous enough; a leper sitting in state, and affecting it!

Verse 10. Sent a messenger. Did not come out to speak with him: he had got his orders from God, and he transmitted them to Naaman by his servant.

Wash in Jordan seven times. The waters of Jordan had no tendency to remove this disorder, but God chose to make them the means by which he would convey his healing power.

Verse 11. Naaman was wroth. And why? Because the prophet treated him without ceremony; and because he appointed him an expenseless and simple mode of cure.

Behold, I thought. Naaman expected to be treated with great ceremony; and instead of humbling himself before the Lord's prophet, he expected the prophet of the Lord to humble himself before him!

Verse 12. Are not Abana and Pharpar. At present these rivers do not exist by these names; and where they are we know not; nor whether they were the Orontes and Chrysorroes. [Probably identical with the Barada (the ancient Chrysorroes) and the Awaj.]

May I not wash in them, and be clean? No, for God has directed thee to Jordan, and by its waters, or none, shalt thou be cleansed. Abana and Pharpar may be as good as Jordan; and in respect to thy cleansing, the simple difference is, God will convey his influence by the latter, and not by the former.

Verse 13. My father. A title of the highest respect and affection.

Had bid thee do some great thing. If the prophet had appointed thee to do something very difficult in itself, and very expensive to thee, wouldest thou not have done it? With much greater reason shouldst thou do what will occupy little time, be no expense, and is easy to be performed.

Verse 14. Then went he down. He felt the force of this reasoning, and made a trial, probably expecting little success.

Like unto the flesh of a little child. The loathsome scurf was now entirely removed; his flesh assumed the appearance and health of youth; and the whole mass of his blood and other juices became purified, refined, and exalted! How mighty is God! What great things can he do by the simplest and feeblest of means!

Verse 15. He returned to the man of God. He saw that the hand of the Lord was upon him; he felt gratitude for burnt-offering nor sacrifice unto other gods, but unto the LORD.

18 In this thing the LORD pardon thy servant, that when my master goeth into the house of Rimmon to worship there, and * he leaneth on my hand, and I bow myself in the house of Rimmon: when I bow down myself in the house of Rimmon, the LORD pardon thy servant in this thing.

19 And he said unto him, Go in peace. So he departed from him <sup>b</sup> a little way.

20 But Gehazi, the servant of Elisha the man of God, said, Behold, my master hath spared Naaman this Syrian, in not receiving at his hand that which he brought: but, as the LORD liveth, I will run after him, and take somewhat of him.

21 So Gehazi followed after Naaman. And when Naaman saw him running after him, he lighted down from the chariot to meet him, and he said, <sup>c</sup> Is all well?

22 And he said, All is well. My master hath sent me, saying, Behold, even now there be come to me from Mount Ephraim two young men of the sons of the prophets: give them, I pray thee, a talent of silver, and two changes of garments.

to be as much, when put into two bags, as could be well lifted upon the backs of two mules, or as those beasts could conveniently carry. Should it be objected that, taken in this sense, there is no visible connexion between the former and latter clauses of the verse; I answer that there is as much connexion between the words taken in this sense as in the other, for something must be brought in to supply both; besides, this makes a more complete sense than the other: "Shall there not, I pray thee, be given to thy servant two mules' burden of this silver and gold [to apply it as he may think proper; I regard it not], for thy servant will henceforth offer neither burnt-offering nor sacrifice unto other gods [for the cure he has now received; or by way of worship at any time]; but unto Jehovah." The reader may choose which of these interpretations he pleases. [The former interpretation is adopted by the best critics, ancient and modern.]

Verse 18. In this thing the Lord pardon thy servant] By no rule of right reasoning, nor by any mode of interpretation, can it be stated that Naaman is asking pardon for offences which he may commit, or that he could ask, or the prophet grant, indulgence to bow himself in the temple of Rimmon, thus performing a decided act of homage, the very essence of that worship which immediately before he solemnly assured the prophet he would never practise. The original may legitimately be read, and ought to be read, in the past, and not in the future, tense.

To admit the common interpretation is to admit, in effect, the doctrine of indulgences; and that we may do evil that good may come of it; that the end sanctifies the means; and that for political purposes we may do unlawful acts.

Verse 20. My master hath spared—this Syrian] He has neither taken any thing from him for himself, nor permitted him to give any thing to me.

Verse 21. He lighted down from the chariot] He treats even the prophet's servant with the profoundest respect, alights from his chariot, and goes to meet him.

Is all well? Is it peace, or prosperity?
Verse 22. And he said] It is peace; all is right. This was a common mode of address and answer.

There be come to me from Mount Ephraim] There was probably a school of the prophets at this mount.

Verse 23. He—bound two talents of silver] It required two servants to carry these two talents, for, according to the computation above, each talent was about 120 lbs. weight.

Verse 24. When he came to the tower] The Chaldee, Septuagint, Syriac, and Arabic understand the word which we translate tower, as signifying a secret, dark, or hiding place. He was doing a deed of darkness, and he sought darkness to conceal it. [The original word means "the hill." The Septuagint rendering is a mistake.]

23 And Naaman said, Be content, take two talents. And he urged him, and bound two talents of silver in two bags, with two changes of garments, and laid them upon two of his servants; and they bare them before him.

24 And when he came to the <sup>d</sup> tower, he took them from their hand, and bestowed them in the house: and he let the men go, and they departed.

25 But he went in, and stood before his master. And Elisha said unto him, Whence comest thou, Gehazi? And he said, Thy servant went <sup>e</sup> no whither.

26 And he said unto him, Went not mine heart with thee, when the man turned again from his chariot to meet thee? Is it a time to receive money, and to receive garments, and oliveyards, and vineyards, and sheep, and oxen, and men-servants and maid-servants?

27 The leprosy therefore of Naaman <sup>f</sup> shall cleave unto thee, and unto thy seed for ever. And he went out from his presence <sup>g</sup> as a leper as white as snow.

* Heb. not hither or thither.—<sup>f</sup> 1 Tim. vi. 10.—<sup>g</sup> Exod. iv. 6.
Num. xii. 10. Ch. xv. 5.

Verse 27. The leprosy—of Naaman shall cleave unto thee] Gehazi is not the last who has got money in an unlawful way, and has got God's curse with it.

A leper as white as snow.] The moment the curse was pronounced, that moment the signs of the leprosy began to appear. The white shining spot was the sign that the infection had taken place.

1. Some have thought, because of the prophet's curse, The leprosy of Naaman shall cleave unto thee and thy seed for ever, that there are persons still alive who are this man's real descendants, and afflicted with this horrible disease. To me it appears absurd; the denunciation took place in the posterity of Gehazi till it should become extinct, and under the influence of this disorder this must soon have taken place. The for ever implies as long as any of his posterity should remain.

2. The god Rimmon, mentioned ver. 18, we meet with nowhere else in the Scriptures. Selden thinks that Rimmon is the same with Eilion, a god of the Phœnicians, borrowed undoubtedly from the Eilion, the Most High, of the Hebrews, one of the names of the supreme God, which attribute became a god of the Phœnicians.

3. Let us not suppose that the offence of Gehazi was too severely punished. 1. Look at the principle, covetousness.

2. Pride and vanity; he wished to become a great man.

3. His lying, in order to impose on Naaman: Behold, even now there be come to me, &c. 4. He in effect sells the cure of Naaman for so much money; for if Naaman had not been cured, could he have pretended to ask the silver and raiment?

5. It was an act of theft; he applied that to his own use which Naaman gave him for his master. 6. He dishonoured his master by getting the money and raiment in his name, who had before so solemnly refused it. 7. He closed the whole by lying to his master, denying that he had gone after Naaman, or that he had received any thing from him. But was it not severe to extend the punishment of his crimes to his innocent posterity? I answer, It does not appear that any of Gehazi's children, if he had any prior to this, were smitten with the leprosy; and as to those whom he might beget after this time, their leprosy must be the necessary consequence of their being engendered by a leprous father.

4. We have already remarked the apparently severe and manifestly kind Providence of God in this business. What was severe to the parents of the little maid was most kind to Naaman and his family; and the parents lost their child only a little time, that they might again receive her with honour and glory for ever. And see the benefits of a religious education! Had not this little maid been brought up in the knowledge of the true God, she had not been the instrument of so great a salvation.

CHAPTER VI.

The sons of the prophets wish to enlarge their dwelling-place, and go to the banks of Jordan to cut down wood, when one of them drops his axe into the water, which Elisha causes to swim, 1-7. Elisha, understanding all the secret designs of the king of Syria against Israel, informs the king of Israel of them, 8-10. The king of Syria finding that Elisha had thus penetrated his secrets and frustrated his attempts, sends a great host to Dothan, to take the prophet; the Lord strikes them with blindness; and Elisha leads the whole host to Samaria, and delivers them up to the king of Israel, 11-19. The Lord opens their eyes, and they see their danger, 20. But the king of Israel is prevented from destroying them; and, at the order of the prophet, gives them meat and drink, and dismisses them to their master, 21-23. Ben-hadad besieges Samaria, and reduces the city to great distresses, of which several instances are given, 24-30. The king of Israel vows the destruction of Elisha, and sends to have him beheaded, 31-33.

AND <sup>a</sup>the sons of the prophets said unto Elisha, Behold now, the place where we dwell with thee is too strait for us.

2 Let us go, we pray thee, unto Jordan, and take thence every man a beam, and let us make us a place there, where we may dwell. And he answered, Go ye.

3 And one said, Be content, I pray thee, and go with thy servants. And he answered, I will go.

4 So he went with them. And when they came to Jordan, they cut down wood.

5 But as one was felling a beam, the <sup>b</sup>ax head fell into the water: and he cried, and said, Alas, master! for it was borrowed.

6 And the man of God said, Where fell it? And he shewed him the place. And <sup>c</sup>he cut down a stick, and cast it in thither; and the iron did swim.

7 Therefore said he, Take it up to thee. And he put out his hand, and took it.

8 Then the king of Syria warred against Israel, and took counsel with his servants, saying, In such a place <sup>d</sup>shall be my camp.

9 And the man of God sent unto the king of Israel, saying, Beware that thou pass not such a place; for thither the Syrians are come down.

10 And the king of Israel sent to the place which the man of God told him and warned him of, and saved himself there, not once nor twice.

11 Therefore the heart of the king of Syria was

Verse 1. The place—is too strait for us.] Notwithstanding the general proficacy of Israel, the schools of the prophets increased. This was no doubt owing to the influence of Elisha.

Verse 2. Every man a beam] They made a sort of log-houses with their own hands.

Verse 5. Alas, master! for it was borrowed.] Ah, ah, my master; and it has been sought. It has fallen in, and I have sought it in vain. [The Hebrew word does not mean borrowed, but begged.]

Verse 6. He cut down a stick] This had no natural tendency to raise the iron; it was only a sign or ceremony which the prophet chose to use on the occasion.

The iron did swim.] This was a real miracle; for the gravity of the metal must have for ever kept it at the bottom of the water.

Verse 8. The king of Syria warred against Israel] This was probably the same Ben-hadad who is mentioned ver. 24. What is the real or pretended cause of this war we cannot tell.

In such and such a place] The Syrian king had observed, from the disposition of the Israelitish army, in what direction it was about to make its movements; and therefore laid ambuscades where he might surprise it to the greatest advantage.

Verse 9. Beware that thou pass not such a place] Elisha must have had this information by immediate revelation from heaven.

sore troubled for this thing; and he called his servants, and said unto them, Will ye not shew me which of us is for the king of Israel?

12 And one of his servants said, None, my lord, O king: but Elisha, the prophet that is in Israel, telleth the king of Israel the words that thou speakest in thy bed-chamber.

13 And he said, Go and spy where he is, that I may send and fetch him. And it was told him, saying, Behold, he is in Dothan.

14 Therefore sent he thither horses, and chariots, and a great host: and they came by night, and compassed the city about.

15 And when the servant of the man of God was risen early, and gone forth, behold, an host compassed the city both with horses and chariots. And his servant said unto him, Alas, my master! how shall we do?

16 And he answered, Fear not: for they that be with us are more than they that be with them.

17 And Elisha prayed, and said, Lord, I pray thee, open his eyes, that he may see. And the Lord opened the eyes of the young man; and he saw: and, behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha.

18 And when they came down to him, Elisha prayed unto the Lord, and said, Smite this people, I pray thee, with blindness. And he smote them with blindness according to the word of Elisha.

Verse 10. Sent to the place] To see if it were so. But the Vulgate gives it quite a different turn. "The king of Israel sent previously to the place, and took possession of it;" and thus the Syrians were disappointed. This is very likely, though it is not expressed in the Hebrew text.

Verse 13. Behold, he is in Dothan.] This is supposed to be the same place as that mentioned in Gen. xxxvii. 17. It lay about twelve miles from Samaria.

Verse 14. Sent he thither horses] It is strange he did not think that he who could penetrate his secrets with respect to the Israelitish army, could inform himself of all his machinations against his own life.

Verse 16. For they that be with us are more, &c.] What astonishing intercourse had this man with heaven! It seems the whole heavenly host had it in commission to help him.

Verse 17. Lord—open his eyes] Where is heaven? Is it not above, beneath, around us? And were our eyes open, as were those of the prophet's servants, we should see the heavenly host in all directions. The horses and chariots of fire were there before the eyes of Elisha's servant were opened.

Verse 18. Smite this people—with blindness] Confound their sight, so that they may not know what they see, and so mistake one place for another.

Verse 19. I will bring you to the man whom ye seek.] And he did so; he was their guide to Samaria, and showed himself to them fully in that city.

19 And Elisha said unto them, This is not the way, neither is this the city: <sup>a</sup> follow me, and I will bring you to the man whom ye seek. But he led them to Samaria.

20 And it came to pass, when they were come into Samaria, that Elisha said, LORD, open the eyes of these men, that they may see. And the LORD opened their eyes, and they saw; and, behold, they were in the midst of Samaria.

21 And the king of Israel said unto Elisha, when he saw them, My father, shall I smite them? shall I smite them?

22 And he answered, Thou shalt not smite them: wouldst thou smite those whom thou hast taken captive with thy sword and with thy bow? <sup>b</sup> set bread and water before them, that they may eat and drink, and go to their master.

23 And he prepared great provision for them: and when they had eaten and drunk, he sent them away, and they went to their master. So <sup>c</sup> the bands of Syria came no more into the land of Israel.

24 And it came to pass after this, that Ben-hadad king of Syria gathered all his host, and went up, and besieged Samaria.

25 And there was a great famine in Samaria: and, behold, they besieged it, until an ass's head was sold for fourscore pieces of silver, and the fourth part of a cab of dove's dung for five pieces of silver.

26 And as the king of Israel was passing by upon the wall, there cried a woman unto him, saying, Help, my lord, O king.

Verse 20. Open the eyes of these men] Take away their confusion of vision, that they may discern things as they are, and distinguish where they are.

Verse 21. My father, shall I smite] This was dastardly; the utmost he could have done with these men, when thus brought into his hand, was to make them prisoners of war.

Verse 22. Whom thou hast taken captive] Those who in open battle either lay down their arms, or are surrounded, and have their retreat cut off, are entitled to their lives; much more those who are thus providentially put into thy hand, without having been in actual hostility against thee.

Verse 23. He prepared great provision for them] These, on the return to their master, could tell him strange things about the power of the God of Israel and the magnanimity of its king.

So the bands of Syria came no more] And it is very likely that for some considerable time after this, there was no war between these two nations. What is mentioned in the next verse was more than a year afterwards.

Verse 25. And, behold, they besieged it] They had closed it on every side, and reduced it to the greatest necessity.

An ass's head was sold for fourscore pieces of silver] I suppose we are to take the ass's head literally; and if the head sold for so much, what must other parts sell for, which were much to be preferred? The famine must be great that could oblige them to eat any part of an animal that was proscribed by the law; and it must be still greater that could oblige them to purchase so mean a part of this unclean animal at so high a price. The piece of silver was probably the drachm, worth about seven pence three farthings of our money; the whole amounting to about two pounds nine shillings.

And the fourth part of a cab of dove's dung] Whether this means pigeon's dung literally, or a kind of pulse, has been variously disputed by learned men.

Dove's dung is of great value in the East for its power in 27 And he said, <sup>a</sup> If the LORD do not help thee, whence shall I help thee? out of the barn-floor, or out of the wine-press?

28 And the king said unto her, What aileth thee? And she answered, This woman said unto me, Give thy son, that we may eat him to day, and we will eat my son to morrow.

29 So <sup>b</sup> we boiled my son, and did eat him: and I said unto her on the <sup>c</sup> next day, Give thy son, that we may eat him: and she hath hid her son.

30 And it came to pass, when the king heard the words of the woman, that he <sup>d</sup> rent his clothes; and he passed by upon the wall, and the people looked, and, behold, he had sackcloth within upon his flesh.

31 Then he said, <sup>e</sup> God do so and more also to me, if the head of Elisha the son of Shaphat shall stand on him this day.

32 But Elisha sat in his house, and <sup>f</sup> the elders sat with him; and the king sent a man from before him; but ere the messengers came unto him, he said to the elders, <sup>g</sup> See ye how this son of <sup>h</sup> a murderer hath sent to take away mine head? look, when the messenger cometh, shut the door, and hold him fast at the door: is not the sound of his master's feet behind him?

33 And while he yet talked with them, behold, the messenger came down unto him: and he said, Behold, this evil is of the LORD; <sup>i</sup> what should I wait for the LORD any longer?

producing cucumbers, melons, &c.; which has induced many learned men to take the words literally. Bochart has exhausted this subject, and concludes that a kind of pulse is meant. Most learned men are of his opinion.

Verse 27. If the Lord do not help thee] Some read this as an imprecation, May God save thee not! how can I save thee?

Verse 29. So we boiled my son] This is horrible; but for the sake of humanity we must allow that the children died through hunger, and then became food for their starved, desperate parents.

This very evil Moses had foretold should come upon them if they forsook God; see Deut. xxvii. 53, 57. The same evil came upon this wretched people when besieged by Nebuchadnezzar; see Ezek. v. 10. And also when Titus besieged Jerusalem.

Verse 30. He had sackcloth within upon his flesh] The king was in deep mourning for the distresses of the people.

Verse 31. If the head of Elisha—shall stand on him] Either he attributed these calamities to the prophet, or else he thought he could remove them, and yet would not. The miserable king was driven to desperation.

Verse 32. This son of a murderer] Jehoram, the son of Ahab and Jezebel. But Ahab is called a murderer because of the murder of Naboth.

Shut the door] He was obliged to make use of this method for his personal safety, as the king was highly incensed.

The sound of his master's feet behind him] That is, King Jehoram is following his messenger, that he may see him take off my head.

Verse 33. Behold, this evil is of the Lord] It is difficult to know whether it be the prophet, the messenger, or the king, that says these words. It might be the answer of the prophet from within to the messenger who was without, and who sought for admission, and gave his reason. [More probably the king was the speaker.]

CHAPTER VII.

Elisha foretells abundant relief to the besieged inhabitants of Samaria, 1. One of the lords questions the possibility of it; and is assured that he shall see it on the morrow, but not taste of it, 2. Four lepers, perishing with hunger, go to the camp of the Syrians to seek relief, and find it totally deserted, 3-5. How the Syrians were alarmed, and fled, 6, 7. The lepers begin to take the spoil, but at last resolve to carry the good news to the city, 8-11. The king, suspecting some treachery, sends some horsemen to scour the country, and see whether the Syrians are not some where concealed; they return and confirm the report that the Syrians are totally fled, 12-15. The people go out and spoil the camp, in consequence of which provisions become as plentiful as Elisha had foretold, 16. The unbelieving lord, having the charge of the gate committed to him, is trodden to death by the crowd, 17-20.

THEN Elisha said, Hear ye the word of the LORD; Thus saith the LORD, "To morrow about this time shall a measure of fine flour be sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, in the gate of Samaria."

2 <sup>b</sup> Then <sup>c</sup> a lord on whose hand the king leaned answered the man of God, and said, Behold, <sup>d</sup> if the LORD would make windows in heaven, might this thing be? And he said, Behold, thou shalt see it with thine eyes, but shalt not eat thereof.

3 And there were four leprous men <sup>e</sup> at the entering in of the gate: and they said one to another, Why sit we here until we die?

4 If we say, we will enter into the city, then the famine is in the city, and we shall die there: and if we sit still here, we die also. Now therefore come, and let us fall unto the host of the Syrians: if they save us alive, we shall live; and if they kill us, we shall but die.

5 And they rose up in the twilight, to go unto the camp of the Syrians: and when they were come to the uttermost part of the camp of Syria, behold, there was no man there.

6 For the LORD had made the host of the Syrians <sup>f</sup> to hear a noise of chariots, and a noise of horses, even the noise of a great host: and they said one to another, Lo, the king of Israel hath hired against us <sup>g</sup> the kings of the Hittites, and the kings of the Egyptians, to come upon us.

7 Wherefore they <sup>h</sup> arose and fled in the twilight, and left their tents, and their horses, and their asses, even the camp as it was, and fled for their life.

Verse 1. To-morrow, about this time] This was in reply to the corresponding language of the king, and to vindicate himself from the charge of being author of this calamity.

A measure of fine flour—for a shekel] A seah of fine flour: the seah was about two gallons and a half; the shekel, two shillings and fourpence at the lowest computation.

Verse 2. Then a lord] This word, as a name of office, occurs often, and seems to point out one of the highest offices in the state. So unlikely was this prediction to be fulfilled, that he thought God must pour out wheat and barley from heaven before it could have a literal accomplishment.

But shalt not eat thereof.] This was a mere prediction of his death, but not as a judgment for his unbelief; any person in his circumstances might have spoken as he did. He stated in effect that nothing but a miracle could procure the plenty predicted, and by a miracle alone was it done; and any person in his place might have been trodden to death by the crowd in the gate of Samaria. [In the original, the language of the lord involves more than incredulosity. His words are scoffing and contemptuous.]

Verse 8.—At the entering in of the gate] They were not permitted to mingle in civil society.

8 And when these lepers came to the uttermost part of the camp, they went into one tent, and did eat and drink, and carried thence silver, and gold, and raiment, and went and hid it; and came again, and entered into another tent, and carried thence also, and went and hid it.

9 Then they said one to another, We do not well: this day is a day of good tidings, and we hold our peace: if we tarry till the morning light, <sup>i</sup> some mischief will come upon us: now therefore come, that we may go and tell the king's household.

10 So they came and called unto the porter of the city: and they told them, saying, We came to the camp of the Syrians, and, behold, there was no one there, neither voice of man, but horses tied, and asses tied, and the tents as they were.

11 And he called the porters; and they told it to the king's house within.

12 And the king arose in the night, and said unto his servants, I will now show you what the Syrians have done to us. They know that we be hungry; therefore are they gone out of the camp to hide themselves in the field, saying, When they come out of the city, we shall catch them alive, and get into the city.

13 And one of his servants answered and said, Let some take, I pray thee, five of the horses that remain, which are left <sup>j</sup> in the city, (behold, they are as all the multitude of Israel that are left in it: behold, I say, they are even as all the multitude of the Israelites that are consumed:) and let us send and see.

14 They took therefore two chariot horses; and

Verse 5. The uttermost part of the camp] Where the Syrian advanced guards should have been.

Verse 6. The Lord had made the—Syrians to hear a noise] This drew them into confusion; they imagined that they were about to be attacked by powerful auxiliaries which the king of Israel had hired against them.

Verse 12. The king arose in the night] This king had made a noble defence; he seems to have shared in all the sufferings of the besieged, and to have been ever at his post. Even in vile Ahab there were some good things!

Verse 18. And one of his servants answered] This is a very difficult verse, and the great variety of explanations given of it cast but little light on the subject. I am inclined to believe, with Dr. Kennicott, that there is an interpolation here which puzzles, if not destroys, the sense. [There is no need for assuming an interpolation or accidental repetition of words. The sense is that if the horses and men sent into the camp should be slain by the Syrians, they would not meet with a worse fate than that of those who were left to starve.]

That are consumed] The words should be translated, which are perfect; i.e. fit for service.

the king sent after the host of the Syrians, saying, Go and see.

15 And they went after them unto Jordan: and, lo, all the way was full of garments and vessels, which the Syrians had cast away in their haste. And the messengers returned and told the king.

16 And the people went out, and spoiled the tents of the Syrians. So a measure of fine flour was sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, "according to the word of the LORD.

17 And the king appointed the lord on whose hand he leaned to have the charge of the gate: and the people trode upon him in the gate, and he died,

Verse 14. They took—two chariot horses] They had at first intended to send five; probably they found on examination that only two were effective. But if they sent two chariots, each would have two horses, and probably a single horse for crossing the country.

Verse 15. All the way was full of garments and vessels] as the man of God had said, who spake when the king came down to him.

18 And it came to pass, as the man of God had spoken to the king, saying, "Two measures of barley for a shekel, and a measure of fine flour for a shekel, shall be to morrow about this time in the gate of Samaria:

19 And that lord answered the man of God, and said, Now, behold, if the LORD should make windows in heaven, might such a thing be? And he said, Behold, thou shalt see it with thine eyes, but shalt not eat thereof.

20 And so it fell out unto him: for the people trode upon him in the gate, and he died.

* Ver. 1.

A manifest proof of the hurry and precipitancy with which they fled.

Verse 17. And the people trode upon him] This also was foreseen by the spirit of prophecy. The literal and exact fulfilment of such predictions must have acquired the prophet a great deal of credit in Israel.

CHAPTER VIII.

Account of the sojourning of the Shunammite in the land of the Philistines, during the seven years' famine, 1, 2. She returns, and solicits the king to let her have back her land; which, with its fruits, he orders to be restored to her, 3-6. Elisha comes to Damascus, and finds Ben-hadad sick; who sends his servant Hazael to the prophet to inquire whether he shall recover, 7-9. Elisha predicts his death, tells Hazael that he shall be king, and shows him the atrocities he will commit, 10-14. Hazael returns, stifles his master with a wet cloth, and reigns in his stead, 15. Jehoram son of Jehoshaphat becomes king over Judah: his bad reign, 16-19. Edom and Libnah revolt, 20-22. Jehoram dies, and his son Ahaziah reigns in his stead, 23, 24. His bad reign, 25-27. He joins with Joram the son of Ahab against Hazael; Joram is wounded by the Syrians, and goes to Jezreel to be healed, 28, 29.

THEN spake Elisha unto the woman, "whose son he had restored to life, saying, Arise and go thou and thine household, and sojourn wheresoever thou canst sojourn: for the LORD <sup>b</sup> hath called for a famine; and it shall also come upon the land seven years.

2 And the woman arose, and did after the saying of the man of God: and she went with her household, and sojourned in the land of the Philistines seven years.

3 And it came to pass at the seven years' end, that the woman returned out of the land of the Philistines: and she went forth to cry unto the king for her house and for her land.

* Ch. iv. 35.—<sup>b</sup> Ps. cv. 16. Hag. i. 11.—<sup>c</sup> Ch. v. 27.

Verse 1. Then spake Elisha] As this is the relation of an event far past, the words should be translated, "But Elisha had spoken unto the woman whose son he had restored unto life; and the woman had arisen, &c." What is mentioned in these two verses happened several years before the time specified in the third verse.

Verse 4. The king talked with Gehazi] This is supposed to have happened before the cleansing of Naaman, for is it likely that the king would hold conversation with a leprous man; or that, knowing Gehazi had been dismissed with the highest disgrace from the prophet's service, he could hold any conversation with him concerning his late master, relative to whom he could not expect him to give either a true or impartial account?

Some think that this conversation might have taken place

4 And the king talked with "Gehazi the servant of the man of God, saying, Tell me, I pray thee, all the great things that Elisha hath done.

5 And it came to pass, as he was telling the king how he had <sup>c</sup> restored a dead body to life, that, behold, the woman, whose son he had restored to life, cried to the king for her house and for her land. And Gehazi said, My lord, O king, this is the woman, and this is her son, whom Elisha restored to life.

6 And when the king asked the woman, she told him. So the king appointed unto her a certain "officer, saying, Restore all that was hers, and all the fruits of the field since the day that she left the land, even until now.

* Ch. iv. 35.—<sup>c</sup> Or, sunsh.

after Gehazi became leprous; the king having an insatiable curiosity to know the private history of a man who had done such astonishing things: and from whom could he get this information, except from the prophet's own confidential servant?

Verse 5. This is the woman, and this is her son, whom Elisha restored to life.] The relation given by Gehazi was now corroborated by the woman herself; the king was duly affected, and gave immediate orders for the restoration of her land.

Verse 8. Take a present in thine hand] But what an immense present was this—forty camels' burden of every good thing of Damascus! The prophet would need to have a very large establishment at Damascus to dispose of so much property. [The present was probably one of fruits: the 7 And Elisha came to Damascus; and Ben-hadad the king of Syria was sick; and it was told him, saying, The man of God is come hither.

8 And the king said unto 'Hazeal, 'Take a present in thine hand, and go, meet the man of God, and 'inquire of the LORD by him, saying, Shall I recover of this disease?

9 So Hazeal went to meet him, and took a present 'with him, even of every good thing of Damascus, forty camels' burden, and came and stood before him, and said, Thy son Ben-hadad king of Syria hath sent me to thee, saying, Shall I recover of this disease?

10 And Elisha said unto him, Go, say unto him, Thou mayest certainly recover: howbeit the LORD hath shewed me that 'he shall surely die.

11 And he settled his countenance 'stedfastly, until he was ashamed: and the man of God 'wept.

12 And Hazeal said, Why weepeth my lord? And he answered, Because I know 'the evil that thou wilt do unto the children of Israel: their strongholds wilt thou set on fire, and their young men wilt thou slay with the sword, and 'wilt dash their children, and rip up their women with child.

13 And Hazeal said, But what, 'is thy servant a dog, that he should do this great thing? And Elisha answered, 'The LORD hath shewed me that thou shalt be king over Syria.

14 So he departed from Elisha, and came to his master; who said to him, What said Elisha to thee? And he answered, He told me that thou shouldst surely recover.

15 And it came to pass on the morrow, that he took a thick cloth, and dipped it in water, and spread it on his face, so that he died: and Hazeal reigned in his stead.

16 And in the fifth year of Joram the son of Ahab king of Israel, Jehoshaphat being then king of Judah, 'Jehoram the son of Jehoshaphat king of Judah 'began to reign.

17 'Thirty and two years old was he when he began to reign, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem.

18 And he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as did the house of Ahab: for 'the daughter of Ahab was his wife: and he did evil in the sight of the LORD.

19 Yet the LORD would not destroy Judah for David his servant's sake, 'as he promised him to give him alway a 'light, and to his children.

20 In his days 'Edom revolted from under the hand of Judah, 'and made a king over themselves.

21 So Joram went over to Zair, and all the chariots with him: and he rose by night, and smote the Edomites which compassed him about and the captains of the chariots: and the people fled into their tents.

22 'Yet Edom revolted from under the hand of Judah unto this day. 'Then Libnah revolted at the same time.

23 And the rest of the acts of Joram, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

24 And Joram slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David: and 'Ahaziah 'his son reigned in his stead.

25 In the twelfth year of Joram the son of Ahab king of Israel did Ahaziah the son of Jehoram king of Judah begin to reign.

26 'Two and twenty years old was Ahaziah when he began to reign; and he reigned one year in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Athaliah, the 'daughter of Omri king of Israel.

27 'And he walked in the way of the house of Ahab, and did evil in the sight of the LORD, as did forty camels were mainly for display, according to eastern custom.]

Verse 10. Thou mayest certainly recover: howbeit the Lord hath shewed me that he shall surely die. That is, God has not determined thy death, nor will it be a necessary consequence of the disease by which thou art now afflicted; but this wicked man will abuse the power and trust thou hast reposed in him, and take away thy life. Even when God has not designed, nor appointed the death of a person, he may nevertheless die, though not without the permission of God. This is a farther proof of the doctrine of contingent events: he might live for all his sickness, but thou wilt put an end to his life.

Verse 11. He settled his countenance stedfastly. Of whom does the author speak? Of Hazeal, or of Elisha? Several apply this action to the prophet: he had a murderer before him, and he saw the bloody acts he was about to commit, and was greatly distressed; but he endeavoured to conceal his feelings: at last his face reddened with anguish, his feelings overcame him, and he burst out and wept.

Verse 18. But what, is thy servant a dog that he should do this great thing? It is generally understood that Hazeal was struck with horror at the prediction; and yet, so little did he know his own heart, that when he got power, and had opportunity, he did the whole with a willing heart and a ready hand. On the contrary, I think he was delighted at the prospect; and his question rather implies a doubt whether a person so inconsiderable as he is shall ever have it in his power to do such great, not such evil things; for, in his sight, they had no turpitude.

Verse 15. A thick cloth. The Versions, in general, understand this of a hairy or woollen cloth.

Verse 16. In the fifth year of Joram. It is certain that Jehoshaphat reigned twenty-five years, and that Jehoram his son reigned but eight; 1 Kings xxii. 42; 2 Kings viii. 17; 2 Chron. xx. 31, and xxi. 5. So that he could not have reigned during his father's life without being king twenty years, and eight years! It is supposed that Jehoshaphat associated his son with him in the kingdom; and that the fifth year in this place only regards Joram king of Israel, and not Jehoshaphat king of Judah.

Verse 17. He reigned eight years in Jerusalem. Beginning with the fifth year of Joram, king of Israel. He reigned three years with Jehoshaphat his father, and five years alone.

Verse 18. The daughter of Ahab was his wife. This was the infamous Athaliah; and through this marriage Jehoshaphat and Ahab were confederates; and this friendship was continued after Ahab's death.

Verse 19. To give him alway a light. To give him a successor in his own family.

Verse 21. Joram went over to Zair. This is the same as Seir, a chief city of Idumea. [There is no evidence of this.]

Smote the Edomites. It appears that the Israelites were surrounded by the Idumeans; and that in the night Joram and his men cut their way through them, and so got every man to his tent, for they were not able to make any farther head against these enemies; and therefore it is said, that Edom revolted from under the hand of Judah unto this day.

Verse 26. Two and twenty years old was Ahaziah when he the house of Ahab : for he was the son in law of the house of Ahab.

28 And he went <sup>a</sup> with Joram the son of Ahab to the war against Hazael king of Syria in Ramoth-gilead ; and the Syrians wounded Joram.

began to reign.] In 2 Chron. xxii. 2, it is said, forty and two years old was Ahaziah when he began to reign; this is a heavy difficulty ; it makes the son two years older than his own father ! for his father began to reign when he was thirty-two years old, and reigned eight years, and so died, being forty years old ; see ver. 17.

I am satisfied the reading in 2 Chron. xxii. 2, is a mistake ;

Jezreel of the wounds <sup>c</sup> which the Syrians had given him at <sup>d</sup> Ramah, when he fought against Hazael king of Syria. <sup>e</sup> And Ahaziah the son of Jehoram king of Judah went down to see Joram the son of Ahab in Jezreel, because he was <sup>f</sup> sick.

and that we should read there, as here, twenty-two instead of forty-two years ; see the note there.

Verse 29. Went back to be healed in Jezreel] And there he continued till Jehu conspired against and slew him there. And thus the blood of the innocents, which had been shed by Ahab and his wife Jezebel, was visited on them in the total extinction of their family.

CHAPTER IX.

Elisha sends one of the disciples of the prophets to Ramoth-gilead, to anoint Jehu king of Israel, 1-3. He acts according to his orders, and informs Jehu that he is to cut off the whole house of Ahab, 4-10. Jehu's captains proclaim him king, 11-14. He goes against Jezreel ; where he finds Joram, and Ahaziah king of Judah, who had come to visit him ; he slays them both : the former is thrown into the portion of Naboth ; the latter, having received a mortal wound, flees to Megiddo, and dies there, and is carried to Jerusalem, and buried in the city of David, 15-29. He commands Jezebel to be thrown out of her window ; and he treads her under the feet of his horses : and the dogs eat her, according to the word of the Lord, 30-37.

AND Elisha the prophet called one of <sup>a</sup> the children of the prophets, and said unto him, <sup>b</sup> Gird up thy loins, and take this box of oil in thine hand, <sup>c</sup> and go to Ramoth-gilead.

2 And when thou comest thither, look out there Jehu the son of Jehoshaphat the son of Nimshi, and go in, and make him arise up from among <sup>d</sup> his brethren, and carry him to an <sup>e</sup> inner chamber ;

3 Then <sup>f</sup> take the box of oil, and pour it on his head, and say, Thus saith the Lord, I have anointed thee king over Israel. Then open the door, and flee, and tarry not.

4 So the young man, even the young man the prophet, went to Ramoth-gilead.

5 And when he came, behold, the captains of the host were sitting ; and he said, I have an errand to thee, O captain. And Jehu said, Unto which of all us ? And he said, To thee, O captain.

6 And he arose, and went into the house ; and he poured the oil on his head, and said unto him,

Verse 1. One of the children of the prophets] The Jews say that this was Jonah the prophet, the son of Amittai.

Gird up thy loins] What thou hast to do requires the utmost dispatch.

Verse 4. The young man the prophet] This should be translated, The servant of the prophet ; that is, the servant which Elisha now had in place of Gehazi.

Verse 6. King over the people of the Lord] This pointed out to Jehu that he was to rule that people according to God's law ; and consequently, that he was to restore the pure worship of the Most High in Israel.

Verse 7. Thou shalt smite the house of Ahab] For their most cruel murders they have forfeited their own lives, according to that immutable law, "He that sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed."

Verse 10. The dogs shall eat Jezebel] How most minutely was this prophecy fulfilled !

<sup>g</sup> Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, I have anointed thee king over the people of the Lord, even over Israel.

7 And thou shalt smite the house of Ahab thy master, and thou shalt avenge the blood of my servants the prophets, and the blood of all the servants of the Lord, <sup>h</sup> at the hand of Jezebel.

8 For the whole house of Ahab shall perish : and <sup>i</sup> I will cut off from Ahab <sup>j</sup> him that pisseth against the wall, and <sup>k</sup> him that is shut up and left in Israel :

9 And I will make the house of Ahab like the house of <sup>l</sup> Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and like the house of <sup>m</sup> Baasha the son of Ahijah :

10 <sup>n</sup> And the dogs shall eat Jezebel in the portion of Jezreel, and there shall be none to bury her. And he opened the door, and fled.

11 Then Jehu came forth to the servants of his lord : and one said unto him, Is all well ? wherefore came <sup>o</sup> this mad fellow to thee ? And he said unto them, Ye know the man, and his communication.

12 And they said, It is false ; tell us now, And he Verse 11. Wherefore came this mad fellow to thee ?] Was it because he was a holy man of God that he was reputed by a club of irreligious officers to be a madman ? In vain do such pretend that they fight for religion, and are the guardians of the public welfare and morals, if they persecute religion and scoff at holy men.

Ye know the man, and his communication.] Ye know that he is a madman, and that his message must be a message of folly. Jehu did not appear willing to tell them what had been done, lest it should promote jealousy and envy.

Verse 12. They said, It is false] Or, as the Chaldees has it, Thou liest. Or, perhaps, it might be thus understood, "We know he has said nothing but folly and lies ; nevertheless, let us hear what he has said."

Verse 13. Took every man his garment] This was a ceremony by which they acknowledged him as king ; and it was by such a ceremony that the multitudes acknowledged Jesus said, Thus and thus spake he to me, saying, Thus saith the LORD, I have anointed thee king over Israel.

13 Then they hasted, and took every man his garment, and put it under him on the top of the stairs, and blew with trumpets, saying, Jehu is king.

14 So Jehu the son of Jehoshaphat the son of Nimshi conspired against Joram. (Now Joram had kept Ramoth-gilead, he and all Israel, because of Hazael king of Syria.)

15 But king Joram was returned to be healed in Jezreel of the wounds which the Syrians had given him, when he fought with Hazael king of Syria. And Jehu said, If it be your minds, then let none go forth nor escape out of the city to go to tell it in Jezreel.

16 So Jehu rode in a chariot, and went to Jezreel: for Joram lay there. And Ahaziah king of Judah was come down to see Joram.

17 And there stood a watchman on the tower in Jezreel, and he spied the company of Jehu as he came, and said, I see a company. And Joram said, Take an horseman, and send to meet them, and let him say, Is it peace?

18 So there went one on horseback to meet him, and said, Thus saith the king, Is it peace? And Jehu said, What hast thou to do with peace? turn thee behind me. And the watchman told, saying, The messenger came to them, but he cometh not again.

19 Then he sent out a second on horseback, which came to them, and said, Thus saith the king, Is it peace? And Jehu answered, What hast thou to do with peace? turn thee behind me.

20 And the watchman told, saying, He came even unto them, and cometh not again: and the driving is like the driving of Jehu the son of Nimshi; for he driveth furiously.

21 And Joram said, Make ready. And his chariot was made ready. And Joram king of Israel and Ahaziah king of Judah went out, each in his chariot, and they went out against Jehu, and met him in the portion of Naboth the Jezreelite.

22 And it came to pass, when Joram saw Jehu, that he said, Is it peace, Jehu? And he answered, What peace, so long as the whoredoms of thy mother Jezebel and her witchcrafts are so many?

23 And Joram turned his hands, and fled and said to Ahaziah, There is treachery, O Ahaziah.

24 And Jehu drew a bow with his full strength, and smote Jehoram between his arms, and the arrow went out at his heart, and he sunk down in his chariot.

25 Then said Jehu to Bidkar his captain, Take up, and cast him in the portion of the field of Naboth the Jezreelite: for remember how that, when I and thou rode together after Ahab his father, the LORD laid this burden upon him;

26 Surely I have seen yesterday the blood of Naboth, and the blood of his sons, saith the LORD; and I will requite thee in this plat, saith the LORD. Now therefore take and cast him into the plat of ground, according to the word of the LORD.

27 But when Ahaziah the king of Judah saw this, he fled by the way of the garden house. And Jehu followed after him, and said, Smite him also in the chariot. And they did so at the going up to Gur, which is by Ibleam. And he fled to Megiddo, and died there.

28 And his servants carried him in a chariot to Christ for the Messiah and king of Israel a little before his passion.

On the top of the stairs] The Chaldee, the rabbins, and several interpreters understand this of the public synagogue; which, in those ancient times, was formed of steps like stairs, each step serving to indicate, by its shadow, one hour, or such division of time as was commonly used in that country. This synagogue was, no doubt, in the most public place; and upon the top of it, or on the platform on the top, would be a very proper place to set Jehu while they blew their trumpets and proclaimed him king.

Verse 14. Joram had kept Ramoth-gilead] The confederate armies appear to have taken this city; but they were obliged to watch their conquest, as they perceived that Hazael was determined to retake it if possible.

Verse 16. Jehu went to Jezreel; for Joram lay there.] Neither Joram nor Ahaziah knew any thing of the conspiracy in Ramoth-gilead, because Jehu and his captains took care to prevent any person from leaving the city.

Verse 17. A watchman on the tower] These watchmen, fixed on elevated places, and generally within hearing of each other, served as a kind of telegraphs, to communicate intelligence through the whole country. But, in some cases, it appears that the intelligence was conveyed by a horseman to the next stage, as in the case before us.

Verse 18. What hast thou to do with peace? "What is it to thee whether there be peace or war? Join my company, and fall into the rear."

Verse 20. He driveth furiously.] Jehu was a bold, daring, prompt, and precipitate general. In his various military operations he had established his character; and now it was almost proverbial.

Verse 21. Joram and Ahaziah went out] They had no suspicion of what was done at Ramoth-gilead; else they would not have ventured their persons as they now did.

* 1 Kings xxi. 29.—<sup>a</sup> Heb. bloods.—<sup>b</sup> 1 Kings xxi. 19.—<sup>c</sup> Or, portion.—<sup>d</sup> In the kingdom of Samaria, 2 Chron. xxii. 9. Then he began to reign as viceroy to his father in his sickness, 2 Chron. xxi. 18, 19. But in Joram's 12th year he began to reign alone, ch. viii. 25.

Verse 22. What peace, so long as the whoredoms] Though the words whoredom, adultery, and fornication are frequently used to express idolatry and false religion in general; yet here they may be safely taken in their most common and most obvious sense, as there is much reason to believe that Jezebel was the patroness and supporter of a very impure system of religion; and to this Jehu might refer, rather than to the cali-worship, to which he himself was most favourably disposed.

Verse 23. There is treachery, O Ahaziah.] This was the first intimation he had of it: he feels for the safety of his friend Ahaziah, and now they fly for their lives.

Verse 24. Drew a bow with his full strength] The marginal reading is correct: He filled his hand with a bow. That is, "He immediately took up his bow, set his arrow, and let fly." This is the only meaning of the passage.

Between his arms] That is, between his shoulders; for he was now turned, and was flying from Jehu.

Verse 26. The blood of Naboth and the blood of his sons] We are not informed in 1 Kings xxi. that any of Naboth's family was slain but himself: but as the object both of Ahab and Jezebel was to have Naboth's vineyard entirely, and for ever, it is not likely that they would leave any of his posterity, who might at a future time reclaim it as their inheritance. Again, to secure this point, Jezebel had Naboth convicted of treason and atheism; in order that his whole family might be involved in his ruin.

Verse 27. Flew by the way of the garden] The account of the death of Ahaziah, as given in 2 Chron. xxii. 8, 9, is very different from that given here. The story in the text is shorter than that in Chronicles, but it does not actually differ.]

Verse 29. In the eleventh year of Joram] The note in our margin contains as good an account of this chronological difficulty as can be reasonably required: Then he began to Jerusalem, and buried him in his sepulchre with his fathers in the city of David.

29 And in the eleventh year of Joram the son of Ahab began Ahaziah to reign over Judah.

30 And when Jehu was come to Jezreel, Jezebel heard of it; and she painted her face, and tired her head, and looked out at a window.

31 And as Jehu entered in at the gate, she said, Had Zimri peace, who slew his master?

32 And he lifted up his face to the window, and said, Who is on my side: who? And there looked out to him two or three eunuchs.

33 And he said, Throw her down. So they threw her down: and some of her blood was sprinkled on the wall, and on the horses: and he trod her under foot.

reign as viceroy to his father in his sickness; 2 Chron. xxi. 18, 19. But in Joram's twelfth year he began to reign alone; chap. viii. 26.

Verse 30. She painted her face, and tired her head. She endeavoured to improve the appearance of her complexion by paint, and the general effect of her countenance by a tiara or turban head-dress. The staining of the eye with stibium and painting was a universal custom, not only in Asiatic countries, but also in all those that bordered on them, or had connexions with them.

Verse 31. Had Zimri peace, who slew his master? The words are understood by most of the Versions thus: Health to Zimri, the slayer of his master!

Verse 33. So they threw her down. What a terrible death! She was already, by the fall, almost dashed to pieces; and the brutal Jehu trampled her already mangled body under his horse's feet!

Verse 34. She is a king's daughter. Jezebel was certainly a woman of a very high lineage. She was daughter of the 34 And when he was come in, he did eat and drink and said, Go, see now this cursed woman, and bury her; for she is a king's daughter.

35 And they went to bury her: but they found no more of her than the skull, and the feet, and the palms of her hands.

36 Wherefore they came again, and told him. And he said, This is the word of the LORD, which he spake by his servant Elijah the Tishbite, saying, In the portion of Jezreel shall dogs eat the flesh of Jezebel:

37 And the carcase of Jezebel shall be as dung upon the face of the field in the portion of Jezreel; so that they shall not say, This is Jezebel.

king of Tyre; wife of Ahab, king of Israel; mother of Joram, king of Israel; mother-in-law of Joram, king of Judah; and grandmother of Ahaziah, king of Judah.

Verse 35. The skull—the feet, and the palms of her hands. How literally was the prediction delivered in the preceding book (1 Kings xxi. 23) fulfilled! And how dearly did she and her husband Ahab pay for the murder of the innocent Naboth!

Verse 37. And the carcase of Jezebel shall be as dung. As it was not buried under the earth, but was eaten by the dogs, this saying was also literally fulfilled.

They shall not say, This is Jezebel. As she could not be buried, she could have no funeral monument. Though so great a woman by her birth, connexions, and alliances, she had not the honour of a tomb! There was not even a solitary stone to say, Here lies Jezebel! not even a mound of earth to designate the place of her sepulture! Judgment is God's strange work; but when he contends, how terrible are his judgments! and when he ariseth to execute judgment, who shall stay his hand?

CHAPTER X.

Jehu sends an ironical letter to the elders of Samaria, telling them to choose one of the best of their master's sons, and put him on the throne; to which they return a submissive answer, 1-6. He writes a second letter, and orders them to send him the heads of Ahab's seventy sons; they do so, and they are laid in two heaps at the gate of Jezreel, 7, 8. Jehu shows them to the people, and excuses himself, and states that all is done according to the word of the Lord, 9, 10. He destroys all the kindred of Ahab that remained in Jezreel, 11. He also destroys forty-two men, the brethren of Ahaziah, king of Judah, 12-14. He meets with Jehonadab, and takes him with him in his chariot, 15, 16. He comes to Samaria, and destroys all that were of the kindred of Ahab there, ... together, under the pretence of a grand sacrifice, and slays them all, 18-25. He burns Baal's images, and makes his temple a draught house, 26-28. But he does not depart from the sins of Jeroboam, and does not prosper, 29-31. Hazael vexes Israel, 32, 33. Jehu dies, having reigned over Israel, in Samaria, twenty-eight years, 34-36.

AND Ahab had seventy sons in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters, and sent to Samaria, unto the rulers of Jezreel, to the elders, and to them that brought up Ahab's children, saying, * Heb.

Verse 1. Ahab had seventy sons. The Israelites, from the earliest part of their history, were remarkably fruitful, And as to the individuals of whose families we have an account, they are quite remarkable: Rehoboam had thirty-eight sons; Abdon had forty; Tola had thirty; Ahab, seventy; and Gideon, seventy-one.

Unto the rulers of Jezreel. It certainly should be unto the rulers of Samaria; for to them and to that city the whole context shows us the letters were sent. [The proposed emendation is not needed. The officers of Ahab might have been called the chief men of Jezreel because Ahab often held his court there.]

To them that brought up Ahab's children. It appears that the royal children of Israel and Judah were intrusted to the care of the nobles, and were brought up by them (see ver. 6); and to these, therefore, Jehu's letters are directed.

master's sons, and set him on his father's throne, and fight for your master's house.

4 But they were exceedingly afraid, and said, Behold, two kings stood not before him: how then shall we stand?

5 And he that was over the house, and he that was over the city, the elders also, and the bringers up of the children, sent to Jehu, saying, We are thy servants, and will do all that thou shalt bid us; we will not make any king: do thou that which is good in thine eyes.

6 Then he wrote a letter the second time to them, saying, If ye be mine, and if ye will hearken unto my voice, take ye the heads of the men your master's sons, and come to me to Jezreel by to-morrow this time. Now the king's sons, being seventy persons, were with the great men of the city, which brought them up.

7 And it came to pass, when the letter came to them, that they took the king's sons, and slew seventy persons, and put their heads in baskets, and sent him them to Jezreel.

8 And there came a messenger, and told him, saying, They have brought the heads of the king's sons. And he said, Lay ye them in two heaps at the entering in of the gate until the morning.

9 And it came to pass in the morning, that he went out, and stood, and said to all the people, Ye be righteous; behold, I conspired against my master, and slew him: but who slew all these?

10 Know now that there shall fall unto the earth nothing of the word of the LORD which the LORD spake concerning the house of Ahab: for the LORD hath done that which he spake by his servant Elijah.

Verse 2. A fenced city also] All here seems to refer to Samaria alone; in it were the magazines and implements of war, &c. No reader need be told that these letters were all ironical. It was the same as if he had said, "Ye have no means of defence; Israel is with me: if you yield not up yourselves and the city, I will put you all to the sword."

Verse 4. Two kings stood not before him] That is, Joram and Ahaziah.

Verse 5. He that was over the house, &c.] Thus all the constituted authorities agreed to submit.

Will do all that thou shalt bid us] They made no conditions, and stood pledged to commit the horrid murders which this most execrable man afterwards commanded.

Verse 6. Come to me to Jezreel] Therefore the letters were not written to Jezreel, but from Jezreel to Samaria.

Verse 7. Put their heads in baskets] What cold-blooded wretches were the whole of these people!

Verse 8. Lay ye them in two heaps] It appears that the heads of these princes had arrived at Jezreel in the night time: Jehu ordered them to be left at the gate of the city, a place of public resort, that all the people might see them, and be struck with terror, and conclude that all resistance to such authority and power would be vain.

Verse 9. Ye be righteous] Another irony; intended partly to excuse himself, and to involve them in the odium of this massacre, and at the same time to justify the conduct of both, by showing that all was done according to the commandment of the Lord.

Verse 11. Jehu slew all] So it appears that the great men who had so obsequiously taken off the heads of Ahab's seventy sons, fell also a sacrifice to the ambition of this incomparably bad man.

Verse 12. The shearing-house] Probably the place where the shepherds met for the annual sheep-shearing.

Verse 13. The brethren of Ahaziah] The relatives of his family; for it does not appear that he had any brethren, properly so called: but the term brethren among the Jews

11 So Jehu slew all that remained of the house of Ahab in Jezreel, and all his great men, and his kinsfolks, and his priests, until he left him none remaining.

12 And he arose and departed, and came to Samaria. And as he was at the shearing-house in the way, 13 Jehu met with the brethren of Ahaziah king of Judah, and said, Who are ye? And they answered, We are the brethren of Ahaziah; and we go down to salute the children of the king and the children of the queen.

14 And he said, Take them alive. And they took them alive, and slew them at the pit of the shearing-house, even two and forty men; neither left he any of them.

15 And when he departed thence, he lighted on Jehonadab the son of Rechab, coming to meet him: and he saluted him, and said, Is thine heart right, as my heart is with thy heart? and Jehonadab answered, It is. If it be, give me thine hand. And he gave him his hand; and he took him up to him into the chariot.

16 And he said, Come with me, and see my zeal for the LORD. So they made him ride in his chariot.

17 And when he came to Samaria, he slew all that remained unto Ahab in Samaria, till he had destroyed him, according to the saying of the LORD, which he spake to Elijah.

18 And Jehu gathered all the people together, and said unto them, Ahab served Baal a little; but Jehu shall serve him much.

19 Now therefore call unto me all the prophets of Baal, all his servants, and all his priests; let none be wanting: for I have a great sacrifice to do to signified the relatives of the same family, and especially brothers' and sisters' children; and that these were such, see 2 Chron. xxii. 8.

We go down to salute, &c.] So promptly had Jehu executed all his measures, that even the nearest relatives of the murdered kings had not heard of their death, and consequently had no time to escape. They were all taken as in a net.

Verse 14. The pit of the shearing-house] Probably the place where they washed the sheep previously to shearing, or the fleeces after they were shorn off.

Verse 15. Jehonadab the son of Rechab] For particulars concerning this man, his ancestry and posterity, see the notes on Jer. xxxv.

Is thine heart right? With me, in the prosecution of a reform in Israel; as my heart is with thy heart in the true religion of Jehovah and the destruction of Baal?

It is.] I wish a reform in the religion of the country; I am his friend who shall endeavour to promote it.

Give me thine hand.] This has been generally considered as exacting a promise from Jehonadab; but does it mean any more than his taking him by the hand, to help him to step into the chariot in which Jehu was then sitting? Jehonadab was doubtless a very honourable man in Israel; and by carrying him about with him in his chariot, Jehu endeavoured to acquire the public esteem.

Verse 16. Come with me, and see my zeal for the Lord.] O thou ostentatious and murderous hypocrite! He who can call another to witness his zeal for religion, or his works of charity, has as much of both as serves his own turn.

Verse 18. Ahab served Baal a little] Jehu had determined to have no worship in Israel but that of the golden calves at Dan and Beth-el; therefore he purposes to destroy all the worshippers of Baal: and that he may do it without suspicion, he proclaims a great sacrifice; and that he may do it the more easily he gathers them all together into one place.

Baal; whosoever shall be wanting, he shall not live. But Jehu did it in subtilty, to the intent that he might destroy the worshippers of Baal.

20 And Jehu said, <sup>a</sup> Proclaim a solemn assembly for Baal. And they proclaimed it.

21 And Jehu sent through all Israel: and all the worshippers of Baal came, so that there was not a man left that came not. And they came into the <sup>b</sup> house of Baal; and the house of Baal was <sup>c</sup> full from one end to another.

22 And he said unto him that was over the vestry, Bring forth vestments for all the worshippers of Baal. And he brought them forth vestments.

23 And Jehu went, and Jehonadab the son of Rechab, into the house of Baal, and said unto the worshippers of Baal, Search, and look that there be here with you none of the servants of the Lord, but the worshippers of Baal only.

24 And when they went in to offer sacrifices and burnt-offerings, Jehu appointed fourscore men without, and said, If any of the men whom I have brought into your hands escape, he that letteth him go, <sup>d</sup> his life shall be for the life of him.

25 And it came to pass, as soon as he had made an end of offering the burnt-offerings, that Jehu said to the guard and to the captains, Go in, and slay them; let none come forth. And they smote them with the <sup>e</sup> edge of the sword; and the guard and the captains cast them out, and went to the city of the house of Baal.

26 And they brought forth the <sup>f</sup> images <sup>g</sup> out of the house of Baal, and burned them.

27 And they brake down the image of Baal and Verse 19. Whosoever shall be wanting, he shall not live. Because as he will thereby show himself without zeal for the service of his God, he will justly forfeit his life. All this was done in the very spirit of deceit.

Verse 22. He said unto him that was over the vestry The word vestry comes from vestiarium, and that from vestes, garments, from vestio, I clothe; and signifies properly the place where the sacerdotal robes and pontifical ornaments are kept. The priests of Baal had their robes as well as the priests of the Lord; but the garments were such that one could be easily distinguished from the other.

Verse 23. None of the servants of the Lord Though he was not attached to that service, yet he would tolerate it; and as he was led to suppose that he was fulfilling the will of Jehovah in what he was doing, he would of course treat his worship and worshippers with the more respect.

Verse 25. As soon as he had made an end of offering Had Jehu been a man of any conscientious principle in religion, he would have finished the tragedy before he offered the burnt-offering; but to a man of no religion the worship of Jehovah and of Baal are alike.

To the guard and to the captains To the couriers or runners, and the shalashim, the men of the third rank; brake down the house of Baal, <sup>h</sup> and made it a draught house unto this day.

28 Thus Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel.

29 Howbeit from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin, Jehu departed not from after them, to wit, the golden calves that were in Beth-el, and that were in Dan.

30 And the Lord said unto Jehu, Because thou hast done well in executing that which is right in mine eyes, and hast done unto the house of Ahab according to all that was in mine heart, <sup>i</sup> thy children of the fourth generation shall sit on the throne of Israel.

31 But Jehu <sup>k</sup> took no heed to walk in the law of the Lord God of Israel with all his heart: for he departed not from <sup>l</sup> the sins of Jeroboam, which made Israel to sin.

32 In those days the Lord began <sup>m</sup> to cut Israel short: and <sup>n</sup> Hazael smote them in all the coasts of Israel;

33 From Jordan <sup>o</sup> eastward, all the land of Gilead, the Gadites, and the Reubenites, and the Manassites, from Arzer, which is by the river Arnon, <sup>p</sup> even <sup>q</sup> Gilead and Bashan.

34 Now the rest of the acts of Jehu, and all that he did, and all his might, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

35 And Jehu slept with his fathers: and they buried him in Samaria. And Jehoahaz his son reigned in his stead.

36 And <sup>r</sup> the time that Jehu reigned over Israel in Samaria was twenty and eight years.

those officers who were next to the nobles, the king and these being only their superiors. The runners were probably a sort of light infantry.

The city of the house of Baal. A place separated from the temple of Baal, as the holy of holies in the temple of Jehovah was separated from what was called the holy place.

Verse 27. Made it a draught house Nothing could be more degrading than this; he made it a public necessary.

Verse 30. Thy children of the fourth generation These four descendants of Jehu were Jehoahaz, Jehoash, Jeroboam the second, and Zechariah; see chap. xiv. and xv. This was all the compensation Jehu had in either world as a recompence of his zeal for the Lord.

Verse 31. Jehu took no heed It neither suited his disposition nor his politics.

Verse 32. The Lord began to cut Israel short The marginal reading is best: The Lord cut off the ends; and this he did by permitting Hazael to seize on the coasts, to conquer and occupy the frontier towns.

Verse 34. Are they not written in the book of the chronicles We have no chronicles in which there is any thing farther spoken of this bad man. His reign was long, twenty-eight years; and yet we know nothing of it but the commencement.

CHAPTER XI.

Athaliah destroys all that remain of the seed royal of Judah, 1. Jehoshaphat hides Josiah the son of Ahaziah, and he remains hidden in the house of the Lord six years; and Athaliah reigns over the land, 2, 3. Jehoiada, the high-priest, calls the nobles privately together into the temple, shows them the king's son, takes an oath of them, arms them, places guards around the temple, and around the young king's person; they anoint and proclaim him, 4-12. Athaliah is alarmed, comes into the temple, is seized, carried forth, and slain, 13-16. Jehoiada causes the people to enter into a covenant with the Lord; they destroy Baal's house, priest and images, 17-18. Joash is brought to the king's house, reigns, and all the land rejoices, 19-21.

AND when <sup>a</sup> Athaliah <sup>b</sup> the mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, she arose and destroyed all the <sup>c</sup> seed royal.

2 But <sup>d</sup> Jehoshabea, the daughter of king Joram, sister of Ahaziah, took <sup>e</sup> Joash the son of Ahaziah, and stole him from among the king's sons which were slain; and they hid him, even him and his nurse, in the bed-chamber from Athaliah, so that he was not slain.

3 And he was with her hid in the house of the LORD six years. And Athaliah did reign over the land.

4 And <sup>f</sup> the seventh year Jehoiada sent and fetched the rulers over hundreds, with the captains and the guard, and brought them to him into the house of the LORD, and made a covenant with them, and took an oath of them in the house of the LORD, and shewed them the king's son.

5 And he commanded them, saying, This is the thing that ye shall do; a third part of you that enter in <sup>g</sup> on the sabbath shall even be keepers of the watch of the king's house;

6 And a third part shall be at the gate of Sur; and a third part at the gate behind the guard: so shall ye keep the watch of the house, <sup>h</sup> that it be not broken down.

7 And two <sup>i</sup> parts <sup>j</sup> of all you that go forth on the sabbath, even they shall keep the watch of the house of the LORD about the king.

8 And ye shall compass the king round about, every man with his weapons in his hand: and he that cometh within the ranges, let him be slain: and be ye with the king as he goeth out and as he cometh in.

9 <sup>k</sup> And the captains over the hundreds did according to all things that Jehoiada the priest commanded: and they took every man his men that were to come in on the sabbath, with them that should go out on the sabbath, and came to Jehoiada the priest.

10 And to the captain over hundreds did the priest give king David's spears and shields, that were in the temple of the LORD.

11 And the guard stood, every man with his weapons in his hand, round about the king, from the right <sup>l</sup> corner of the temple to the left corner of the temple, along by the altar and the temple.

12 And he brought forth the king's son, and put the crown upon him, and gave him the testimony; and they made him king, and anointed him; and they clapped their hands, and said, <sup>m</sup> God <sup>n</sup> save the king.

13 <sup>o</sup> And when Athaliah heard the noise of the guard and of the people, she came to the people into the temple of the LORD.

14 And when she looked, behold, the king stood by <sup>p</sup> a pillar, as the manner was, and the princes and the trumpeters by the king, and all the people of the land rejoiced, and blew with trumpets: and Athaliah rent her clothes, and cried, Treason, Treason.

15 But Jehoiada the priest commanded the captains of the hundreds, and officers of the host, and said unto them, Have her forth without the ranges: and him that followeth her kill with the sword. For the priest had said, Let her not be slain in the house of the LORD.

16 And they laid hands on her; and she went by the way by the which the horses came into the king's house: and there was she slain.

17 <sup>q</sup> And Jehoiada made a covenant between the LORD and the king and the people, that they should Verse 1. Athaliah] This woman was the daughter of Ahab, and granddaughter of Omri, and wife to Joram, king of Judah, and mother of Ahaziah.

Destroyed all the seed royal.] All that she could lay her hands on whom Jehu had left; in order that she might get undisturbed possession of the kingdom.

How dreadful is the lust of reigning! it destroys all the charities of life; and turns fathers, mothers, brothers, and children into the most ferocious savages!

Verse 2. Daughter of Joram, sister of Ahaziah] It is not likely that Jehoshabea was the daughter of Athaliah; she was sister, we find, to Ahaziah, the son of Athaliah, but probably by a different mother. The mother of Jehoash was Zibiah of Beer-sheba; see chap. xii. 1.

Verse 3. He was—hid in the house of the Lord] This might be readily done, because none had access to the temple but the priests; and the high-priest himself was the chief manager of this business.

Verse 4. And the seventh year Jehoiada sent] He had certainly sounded them all, and brought them into the interests of the young king, before this time; the plot having been laid, and now ripe for execution, he brings the chief officers of the army and those of the body guard into the temple, and there binds them by an oath of secrecy, and shows them the king's son, in whose behalf they are to rise.

Verse 5. That enter in on the sabbath] It appears that Jehoiada chose the sabbath day to proclaim the young king, because as that was a day of public concourse, the gathering together of the people who were in this secret would not be noticed; and it is likely that they all came unarmed, and were supplied by Jehoiada with the spears and shields which David had laid up in the temple, ver. 10.

Verse 10. King David's spears and shields] Josephus expressly says that David had provided an arsenal for the temple, out of which Jehoiada took those arms.

Verse 12. Put the crown upon him] This was a diadem or golden band that went round the head.

And—the testimony] Probably the book of the law, written on a roll of vellum. This was his sceptre. Some think that it was placed upon his head, as well as the diadem. The diadem, the testimony, and the anointing oil, were essential to his consecration.

They clapped their hands] This I believe is the first instance on record of clapping the hands as a testimony of joy.

God save the king] May the king live! So the words should be translated wherever they occur.

Verse 14. The king stood by a pillar] Stood on a pillar or tribunal; the place or throne on which they were accustomed to put the kings when they proclaimed them.

Treason, Treason.] A conspiracy, A conspiracy! from kashar, to bind, unite together.

Verse 15. Have her forth] She had pressed in among the guards into the temple.

And him that followeth] The person who takes her part, let him instantly be slain.

Verse 16. By the way—which the horses came] They probably brought her out near the king's stables.

Verse 17. Jehoiada made a covenant] A general covenant was first made between the Lord the Supreme King, the be the LORD's people; *between the king also and the people.

18 And all the people of the land went into the <sup>b</sup>house of Baal, and brake it down; his altars and his images <sup>c</sup>brake they in pieces thoroughly, and slew Mattan the priest of Baal before the altars. And <sup>d</sup>the priest appointed <sup>e</sup>officers over the house of the LORD.

19 And he took the rulers over hundreds, and the captains, and the guard, and all the people of the king his viceroy, and the people, that they should all be the LORD's people; each being equally bound to live according to the divine law.

Then, secondly, a particular covenant was made between the king and the people, by which the king was bound to rule according to the laws and constitution of the kingdom, and to watch and live for the safety of the public. And the people were bound, on their part, to love, honour, succour, and obey the king.

Verse 18. His altars and images brake they in pieces] It is probable that Athaliah had set up the worship of Baal in land; and they brought down the king from the house of the LORD, and came by the way of the gate of the guard to the king's house. And he sat on the throne of the kings.

20 And all the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was in quiet: and they slew Athaliah with the sword beside the king's house.

Judah, as Jezebel had done in Israel; or probably it had never been removed since the days of Solomon.

Verse 20. The people—rejoiced] They were glad to get rid of the tyranny of Athaliah.

And the city was in quiet] She had no partisans to rise up and disturb the king's reign.

Verse 21. Seven years old was Jehoash] The first instance on record of making a child seven years old the king of any nation, and especially of such a nation as the Jews, who were at all times very difficult to be governed.

CHAPTER XII.

Jehoash reigns well under the instructions of Jehoiada the priest, 1-3. He directs the repairing of the temple; the account of what was done, 4-16. Hazael takes Gath; and, proceeding to besiege Jerusalem, is prevented by Jehoash, who gives him all the treasures and hallowed things of the house of the Lord, 17, 18. The servants of Jehoash conspire against and slay him, 19-21.

IN the seventh year of Jehu *Jehoash began to reign; and forty years reigned he in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Zibiah of Beer-sheba.

2 And Jehoash did that which was right in the sight of the LORD all his days wherein Jehoiada the priest instructed him.

3 But <sup>b</sup>the high places were not taken away: the people still sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places.

4 And Jehoash said to the priests, *All the money of the <sup>d</sup>dedicated <sup>e</sup>things that is brought into the house of the LORD, even <sup>f</sup>the money of every one that passeth the account, <sup>g</sup>the money that every man is set at, and all the money that <sup>h</sup>cometh<sup>i</sup>

Verse 2. Jehoash did—right in the sight of the Lord] While Jehoiada the priest, who was a pious, holy man, lived, Jehoash walked uprightly; but it appears from 2 Chron. xxiv. 17, 18 that he departed from the worship of the true God after the death of this eminent high-priest, lapsed into idolatry, and seems to have had a share in the murder of Zechariah, who testified against his transgressions, and those of the princes of Judah.

Oh, how few of the few who begin to live to God continue unto the end!

Verse 3. The high places were not taken away] Without the total destruction of these there could be no radical reform. Jehoiada did not use his influence as he might have done; for as he had the king's heart and hand with him, he might have done what he pleased.

Verse 4. All the money of the dedicated things] From all this account we find that the temple was in a very ruinous state; the walls were falling down, some had perhaps actually fallen, and there was no person so zealous for the pure into any man's heart to bring into the house of the LORD.

5 Let the priests take it to them, every man of his acquaintance: and let them repair the breaches of the house, wheresoever any breach shall be found.

6 But it was so, that <sup>i</sup>in the three and twentieth year of king Jehoash <sup>k</sup>the priests had not repaired the breaches of the house.

7 <sup>l</sup>Then king Jehoash called for Jehoiada the priest, and the other priests, and said unto them, Why repair ye not the breaches of the house? now therefore receive no more money for your acquaintance, but deliver it for the breaches of the house.

8 And the priests consented to receive no more upon the heart of a man.—<sup>m</sup> Exod. xxxv. 5. 1 Chron. xxix. 9.—<sup>n</sup> Heb. in the twentieth year and third year.—<sup>o</sup> 2 Chron. xxiv. 5.—<sup>p</sup> 2 Chron. xxiv. 8.

worship of God, as to exert himself to shore up the falling temple!

The repairs were made from the following sources: 1. The things which pious persons had dedicated to the service of God. 2. The free-will offerings of strangers who had visited Jerusalem: the money of every one that passeth. 3. The half-shekel which the males were obliged to pay from the age of twenty years (Exod. xxx. 12) for the redemption of their souls, that is their lives, which is here called the money that every man is set at.

Verse 6. In the three and twentieth year] In what year Jehoash gave the orders for these repairs we cannot tell; but the account here plainly intimates that they had been long given, and that nothing was done, merely through the inactivity and negligence of the priests; see 2 Chron. xxiv. 5.

Verse 7. Jehoiada—took a chest] This chest was at first set beside the altar, as is here mentioned; but afterwards, for the convenience of the people, it was set without the gate; see 2 Chron. xxiv. 8.

money of the people neither to repair the breaches of the house.

9 But Jehoiada the priest took <sup>a</sup> a chest, and bored a hole in the lid of it, and set it beside the altar, on the right side as one cometh into the house of the LORD: and the priests that kept the <sup>b</sup> door put therein all the money that was brought into the house of the LORD.

10 And it was so, when they saw that there was much money in the chest, that the king's <sup>c</sup> scribe and the high-priest came up, and they <sup>d</sup> put up in bags, and told the money that was found in the house of the LORD.

11 And they gave the money, being told, into the hands of them that did the work, that had the oversight of the house of the LORD: and they <sup>e</sup> laid it out to the carpenters and builders, that wrought upon the house of the LORD,

12 And to masons and hewers of stone, and to buy timber and hew stone to repair the breaches of the house of the LORD, and for all that <sup>f</sup> was laid out for the house to repair it.

13 Howbeit <sup>g</sup> there were not made for the house of the LORD bowls of silver, snuffers, basons, trumpets, any vessels of gold, or vessels of silver, of the money that was brought into the house of the LORD.

14 But they gave that to the workmen, and repaired therewith the house of the LORD.

Verse 10. The king's scribe and the high-priest] It was necessary to associate with the high-priest some civil authority and activity, in order to get the neglected work performed.

Verse 13. Howbeit there were not made—bowls, &c.] That is, there were no vessels made for the service of the temple till all the outward repairs were completed.

Verse 15. They reckoned not with the men] They placed great confidence in them, and were not disappointed, for they dealt faithfully.

Verse 17. Hazael—fought against Gath, and took it] This city, with its satrapy or lordship, had been taken from the Philistines by David; and it had continued in the possession of the kings of Judah till this time. On what pretence Hazael seized it we cannot tell.

Verse 18. Took all the hallowed things] He dearly bought a peace which was of short duration, for the next year Hazael returned, and Jehoash, having no more treasures, was obliged to hazard a battle, which he lost, with the principal part of his nobility, so that Judah was totally ruined, 15 Moreover <sup>a</sup> they reckoned not with the men into whose hands they delivered the money to be bestowed on workmen: for they dealt faithfully.

16 <sup>b</sup> The trespass money and sin money was not brought into the house of the LORD: <sup>c</sup> it was the priests'.

17 Then <sup>d</sup> Hazael king of Syria went up, and fought against Gath, and took it: and <sup>e</sup> Hazael set his face to go up to Jerusalem.

18 And Jehoash king of Judah <sup>f</sup> took all the hallowed things that Jehoshaphat, and Jehoram, and Ahaziah, his fathers, kings of Judah, had dedicated, and his own hallowed things, and all the gold that was found in the treasures of the house of the LORD, and in the king's house, and sent it to Hazael king of Syria: and he <sup>g</sup> went away from Jerusalem.

19 And the rest of the acts of Joash, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

20 And <sup>h</sup> his servants arose and made a conspiracy, and slew Joash in <sup>i</sup> the house of Millo, which goeth down to Silla.

21 For <sup>j</sup> Jozachar the son of Shimeath, and Jeho-zabad the son of <sup>k</sup> Shomer, his servants, smote him, and he died: and they buried him with his fathers in the city of David: and <sup>l</sup> Amaziah his son reigned in his stead.

and Jehoash shortly after slain in his bed by his own servants; 2 Chron. xxiv. 23.

Verse 19. The rest of the acts of Joash] We have already seen that this man, so promising in the beginning of his reign, apostatized, became an idolater, encouraged idolatry among his subjects, and put the high-priest Zechariah, the son of Jehoiada, his benefactor, to death; and now God visited that blood upon him by the hands of the tyrannous king of Syria and by his own servants.

Verse 20. The house of Millo] Was a royal palace, built by David; and Silla is supposed to be the name of the road or causeway that led to it. Millo was situated between the old city of Jerusalem and the city of David.

Verse 21. For Jozachar] This person is called Zabad in 2 Chron. xxiv. 26.

They buried him with his fathers in the city of David] But they did not bury him in the sepulchres of the kings; this is supposed to express the popular disapprobation of his conduct.

CHAPTER XIII.

Jehoahaz reigns in Israel seventeen years; his various acts, and wars with the Syrians, 1-8. He dies, and Joash reigns in his stead, and does evil in the sight of the Lord, 9-13. Elisha's last sickness, he foretells a three-fold defeat of the Syrians, and dies, 14-20. A dead man raised to life by touching the bones of Elisha, 21. Hazael dies, having long oppressed Israel; but Jehoash recovers many cities out of the hands of Ben-hadad, his successor, and defeats him three times, 22-25.

IN <sup>a</sup> the three and twentieth year of Joash the son of Ahaziah king of Judah Jehoahaz the son of Jehu began to reign over Israel in Samaria, and reigned seventeen years.

<sup>a</sup> Heb. the twentieth year and third year.

Verse 1. In the three and twentieth year of Joash] The chronology here is thus accounted for; Jehoahaz began his reign at the commencement of the twenty-third year of

2 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, and <sup>b</sup> followed the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, which made Israel to sin; he departed not therefrom.

<sup>b</sup> Heb. walked after.

Joash, and reigned seventeen years, fourteen alone, and three years with his son Joash; the fourteenth year was but just begun.

3 And <sup>a</sup>the anger of the LORD was kindled against Israel, and he delivered them into the hand of <sup>b</sup>Hazael king of Syria, and into the hand of Ben-hadad the son of Hazael, all their days.

4 And Jehoahaz <sup>c</sup>besought the LORD, and the LORD hearkened unto him: for <sup>d</sup>he saw the oppression of Israel, because the king of Syria oppressed them.

5 (<sup>e</sup>And the LORD gave Israel a saviour, so that they went out from under the hand of the Syrians: and the children of Israel dwelt in their tents, <sup>f</sup>as beforetime.

6 Nevertheless they departed not from the sins of the house of Jeroboam, who made Israel sin, <sup>g</sup>but <sup>h</sup>walked therein: <sup>i</sup>and there <sup>j</sup>remained the grove also in Samaria.)

7 Neither did he leave of the people to Jehoahaz but fifty horsemen, and ten chariots, and ten thousand footmen; for the king of Syria had destroyed them, <sup>k</sup>and had made them like the dust by threshing.

8 Now the rest of the acts of Jehoahaz, and all that he did, and his might, <sup>l</sup>are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

9 And Jehoahaz slept with his fathers; and they buried him in Samaria: and <sup>m</sup>Joash his son reigned in his stead <sup>n</sup>.

10 In the thirty and seventh year of Joash king of Judah began <sup>o</sup>Jehoash the son of Jehoahaz to reign over Israel in Samaria, and reigned sixteen years.

11 And he did <sup>p</sup>that which was evil in the sight of the LORD; he departed not from all the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel sin: <sup>q</sup>but he walked therein.

12 <sup>r</sup>And the rest of the acts of Joash, and <sup>s</sup>all that he did, and <sup>t</sup>his might wherewith he fought against Amaziah king of Judah, <sup>u</sup>are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

13 And Joash slept with his fathers; and Jeroboam sat upon his throne; and Joash was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel.

14 Now Elisha was fallen sick of his sickness whereof he died. And Joash the king of Israel came down unto him, and wept over his face, and said, O my father, my father, <sup>v</sup>the chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof.

15 And Elisha said unto him, Take bow and arrows. And he took unto him bow and arrows.

16 And he said to the king of Israel, <sup>w</sup>Put thine hand upon the bow. And he put his hand upon it: and Elisha put his hands upon the king's hands.

17 And he said, Open the window eastward. And he opened it. Then Elisha said, Shoot. And he shot. <sup>x</sup>And he said, The arrow of the LORD's deliverance, and the arrow of deliverance from Syria: for thou shalt smite the Syrians in <sup>y</sup>Aphek, till thou have consumed them.

18 And he said, Take the arrows. And he took them. And he said unto the king of Israel, Smite upon the ground. And he smote thrice, and stayed.

19 And the man of God was wroth with him, and said, Thou shouldest have smitten five or six times; then hadst thou smitten Syria till thou hadst consumed it: <sup>z</sup>whereas now thou shalt smite Syria but thrice.

20 And Elisha died, and they buried him. And the bands of the Moabites invaded the land at the coming in of the year.

21 And it came to pass, as they were burying a man, that, behold, they spied a band of men; and they cast the man into the sepulchre of Elisha: and when the man <sup>aa</sup>was let down, and touched the bones of Elisha, <sup>ab</sup>he revived, and stood up upon his feet.

22 But <sup>ac</sup>Hazael king of Syria oppressed Israel all the days of Jehoahaz.

Verse 5. And the Lord gave Israel a saviour] This was undoubtedly Joash, whose successful wars against the Syrians are mentioned at the conclusion of the chapter.

Verse 6. The grove also in Samaria.] Asherah, or Astarte remained in Samaria, and there was she worshipped, with all her abominable rites.

Verse 10. In the thirty and seventh year] Joash reigned sixteen years, which include the years he governed conjointly with his father.

Verse 12. Wherewith he fought against Amaziah] This war with Amaziah may be seen in ample detail 2 Chron. xxv.

Verse 14. Now Elisha was fallen sick] This is supposed to have taken place in the tenth year of Joash; and if so, Elisha must have prophesied about sixty-five years.

O my father, my father] "What shall I do now thou art dying? thou art the only defence of Israel." He accosts him with the same words which himself spoke to Elijah when he was translated.

Verse 15. Take bow and arrows.] The bow, the arrows, and the smiting on the ground, were all emblematical things, indicative of the deliverance of Israel from Syria.

Verse 17. Open the window eastward] This was towards the country beyond Jordan, which Hazael had taken from the Israelites.

The arrow of—deliverance from Syria] That is, As surely as that arrow is shot towards the lands conquered from Israel by the Syrians, so surely shall those lands be reconquered and restored to Israel.

It was an ancient custom to shoot an arrow or cast a spear into the country which an army intended to invade.

Thou shalt smite the Syrians in Aphek] This was a city of Syria, and probably the place of the first battle; and there, it appears, they had a total overthrow.

Verse 18. Smite upon the ground.] As he was ordered to take his arrows, the smiting on the ground must mean shooting arrows into it.

He smote thrice, and stayed.] Elisha's being wroth because there were only three instead of five or six shots does not prove that God was wroth, or that he had intended to give the Syrians five or six overthrows.

Verse 20. And Elisha died] The two prophets, Elijah and Elisha, were both most extraordinary men. Of the former, it is difficult to say whether he was a man, or an angel in a human body. The arguments for this latter opinion are strong, the objections against it very feeble. His being fed by an angel is no proof that he was not an angel incarnate, for God manifest in the flesh was fed by the same ministry. [The opinion here hinted at is limited to a very small section of critics, principally rabbinical.]

Elisha was not less eminent than Elijah; the history of his ministry is more detailed than that of his master, and his miracles are various and stupendous. In many things there is a striking likeness between him and our blessed Lord, and especially in the very beneficent miracles which he wrought.

The bands of the Moabites] Marauding parties; such as those mentioned chap. v. 3.

Verse 21. They spied a band] They saw one of these marauding parties; and through fear could not wait to bury their dead, but threw the body into the grave of Elisha, which chanced then to be open; and as soon as it touched the bones of the prophet, the man was restored to life. This shows that the prophet did not perform his miracles by any powers of his own, but by the power of God; and he chose to honour his servant, by making even his bones the instrument of another miracle after his death. This is the first, and I believe the last, account of a true miracle performed

Verse 23. And the Lord was gracious unto them] He had tender affection for them, as a husband has for his wife, or a father for his own children.

And had respect unto them] He turned his face towards them, he received them again into favour; and this because of his covenant with their fathers: they must not be totally destroyed; the Messiah must come from them, and through them must come that light which is to enlighten the Gentiles and therefore he would not make an entire end of them.

Neither cast he them from his presence as yet.] But now they are cast out from his presence; they have sinned against the only remedy for their souls. They sit in darkness and the shadow of death; the veil is upon their face; but if they yet turn to the Lord, the veil shall be taken away.

Verse 25. Three times did Joash beat him] The particulars of these battles we have not; but these three victories were according to the prediction of Elisha, ver. 19.

CHAPTER XIV.

Amaziah begins to reign well; his victory over the Edomites, 1-7. He challenges Jehosh king of Israel, 8. Jehosh's parable of the thistle and the cedar, 9, 10. The two armies meet at Beth-shemesh; and the men of Judah are defeated, 11, 12. Jehosh takes Jerusalem, breaks down four hundred cubits of the wall; takes the treasures of the king's house, and of the temple; and takes hostages, and returns to Samaria, 13, 14. The death and burial of both these kings, 15-20. Azariah the son of Amaziah made king; he builds Elath, 21, 22. Jeroboam the second is made king over Israel: his wicked reign and death, 23-29.

IN *the second year of Joash son of Jehoahaz king of Israel reigned <sup>b</sup>Amaziah the son of Joash king of Judah.

2 He was twenty and five years old when he began to reign, and reigned twenty and nine years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jehoaddan of Jerusalem.

3 And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, yet not like David his father: he did according to all things as Joash his father did.

4 'Howbeit the high places were not taken away: as yet the people did sacrifice and burnt incense on the high places.

5 And it came to pass, as soon as the kingdom was confirmed in his hand, that he slew his servants <sup>d</sup>which had slain the king his father.

6 But the children of the murderers he slew not: according unto that which is written in the book of the law of Moses, wherein the LORD commanded, saying, 'The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, nor the children be put to death for the fathers; but every man shall be put to death for his own sin.

7 'He slew of Edom in *the valley of salt ten thousand, and took <sup>b</sup>Selah by war, <sup>c</sup>and called the name of it Joktheel unto this day.

8 'Then Amaziah sent messengers to Jehosh, the son of Jehoahaz son of Jehu, king of Israel, saying, *Come, let us look one another in the face.

9 And Jehosh the king of Israel sent to Amaziah king of Judah, saying, 'The thistle that was in Lebanon sent to the <sup>a</sup>cedar that was in Lebanon, saying, Give thy daughter to my son to wife: and there passed by a wild beast that was in Lebanon, and trode down the thistle.

10 Thou hast indeed smitten Edom, and <sup>a</sup>thine heart hath lifted thee up: glory of this, and tarry <sup>a</sup>at home: for why shouldest thou meddle to thy hurt, that thou shouldest fall, even thou, and Judah with thee?

Verse 1. In the second year of Joash] This second year should be understood as referring to the time when his father Jehoahaz associated him with himself in the kingdom: for he reigned two years with his father; so this second year of Joash is the first of his absolute and independent government.

Verse 5. As soon as the kingdom was confirmed in his hand] No doubt Joash and Jehoahaz had considerable power and influence; and therefore he found it dangerous to bring them to justice, till he was assured of the loyalty of his other officers.

Verse 6. But the children of the murderers he slew not] Here he showed his conscientious regard for the law of Moses; Deut. xxiv. 16.

Verse 7. He slew of Edom in the valley of salt] This war is more circumstantially related in 2 Chron. xxv. 5, &c.

Verse 8. Come, let us look one another in the face.] This was a real declaration of war.

Verse 9. Jehosh—sent to Amaziah—saying] The thistle that was in Lebanon—Amaziah, king of Judah, sent to the cedar that was in Lebanon—Jehosh, king of Israel, saying, Give thy daughter—a part of thy kingdom, to my son to wife—to be united to, and possessed by the kings of Judah. And there passed by a wild beast—Jehosh and his enraged army and trode down the thistle—utterly discomfited Amaziah and his troops, pillaged the temple, and broke down the walls of Jerusalem: see verses 12-14. Probably Amaziah had required certain cities of Israel to be given up to Judah; if so this accounts for that part of the parable, Give thy daughter to my son to wife.

Verse 10. Glory of this, and tarry at home] There is a vast deal of insolent dignity in this remonstrance of Jehosh:

11 But Amaziah would not hear. Therefore Jehoash king of Israel went up: and he and Amaziah king of Judah looked one another in the face at <sup>a</sup> Beth-shemesh, which belongeth to Judah.

12 And Judah <sup>b</sup> was put to the worse before Israel; and they fled every man to their tents.

13 And Jehoash king of Israel took Amaziah king of Judah, the son of Jehoash the son of Ahaziah, at Beth-shemesh, and came to Jerusalem, and brake down the wall of Jerusalem from <sup>c</sup> the gate of Ephraim unto <sup>d</sup> the corner gate, four hundred cubits.

14 And he took all <sup>e</sup> the gold and silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of the LORD, and in the treasures of the king's house, and hostages, and returned to Samaria.

15 <sup>f</sup> Now the rest of the acts of Jehoash which he did, and his might, and how he fought with Amaziah king of Judah, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

16 And Jehoash slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria, with the kings of Israel; and Jeroboam his son reigned in his stead.

17 <sup>g</sup> And Amaziah the son of Joash king of Judah lived after the death of Jehoash son of Jehoahaz king of Israel fifteen years.

18 And the rest of the acts of Amaziah, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

19 Now <sup>h</sup> they made a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem: and he fled to <sup>i</sup> Lachish: but they sent after him to Lachish, and slew him there.

20 And they brought him on horses: and he was buried at Jerusalem with his fathers in the city of David.

but it has nothing conciliatory; no proposal of making amends for the injury his army had done to the unoffending inhabitants of Judah (2 Chron. xxv. 10-13.) The quarrel of Amaziah was certainly just, yet he was put to the rout; he did meddle to his hurt; he fell, and Judah fell with him, as Jehoash had said: but why was this? Why, it came of God; for he had brought the gods of Seir, and set them up to be his gods, and bowed down himself before them, and burnt incense to them; therefore God delivered them into the hands of their enemies, because they sought after the gods of Edom, 2 Chron. xxv. 14, 20.

Verse 13. Took Amaziah king of Judah] It is plain that Amaziah afterwards had his liberty; but how or on what terms he got it is not known.

Verse 14. And he took—hostages] See the meaning of this word interpreted in the note on Gen. xxxviii. 17. It is likely that Amaziah gave some of the nobles or some of his own family as hostages, that he might regain his liberty; and they were to get their liberty when he had fulfilled his engagements: but of what kind these were we cannot tell, nor, indeed, how he got his liberty.

Verse 15. How he fought with Amaziah] The only fighting between them was the battle already mentioned; and this is minutely related in 2 Chron. xxv.

Verse 19. They made a conspiracy against him] His defeat by Jehoash, and the consequent pillaging of the temple, and emptying the royal exchequer, and the dismantling of Jerusalem, had made him exceedingly unpopular; so that probably the whole of the last fifteen years of his life were a series of troubles and distresses.

Verse 21. Took Agariah] He is also called Uzziah, 2 Chron. xxvi. 1.

Verse 22. He built Elath] This city belonged to the Edomites; and was situated on the eastern branch of the Red Sea, thence called the Elanitic Gulf. It had probably suffered much in the late war; and was now rebuilt by 23 In the fifteenth year of Amaziah the son of Joash king of Judah Jeroboam the son of Joash king of Israel began to reign in Samaria, and reigned forty and one years.

24 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD: he departed not from all the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin.

25 He restored the coast of Israel <sup>c</sup> from the entering of Hamath unto <sup>d</sup> the sea of the plain, according to the word of the LORD God of Israel, which he spake by the hand of his servant <sup>e</sup> Jonah, the son of Amittai, the prophet, which was of <sup>f</sup> Gath-hepher.

26 For the LORD <sup>g</sup> saw the affliction of Israel, that it was very bitter: for <sup>h</sup> there was not any shut up, nor any left, nor any helper for Israel.

27 <sup>i</sup> And the LORD said not that he would blot out the name of Israel from under heaven: but he saved them by the hand of Jeroboam the son of Joash.

28 Now the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, and all that he did, and his might, how he warred, and how he recovered Damascus, and Hamath, <sup>j</sup> which belonged to Judah, for Israel, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

29 And Jeroboam slept with his fathers, even with the kings of Israel; and <sup>k</sup> Zachariah his son reigned in his stead.

Verse 25. He restored the coast of Israel] From the description that is here given, it appears that Jeroboam reconquered all the territory that had been taken from the kings of Israel; so that Jeroboam the second left the kingdom as ample as it was when the ten tribes separated under Jeroboam the first.

Verse 26. The Lord saw the affliction of Israel] God sent Jonah to encourage them, and to assure them of better days. He was the first of the prophets, after Samuel, whose writings are preserved; yet the prophecy delivered on this occasion is not extant; for what is now in the prophecies of Jonah, relates wholly to Nineveh.

Verse 28. How he warred, and—recovered Damascus] We learn from 1 Chron. xviii. 3-11, that David had conquered all Syria, and put garrisons in Damascus and other places, and laid all the Syrians under tribute; but this yoke they had not only shaken off, but they had conquered a considerable portion of the Israelitish territory, and added it to Syria. These latter Jeroboam now recovered; and thus the places which anciently belonged to Judah by David's conquest, and were repossessed by Syria, he now conquered, and added to Israel.

Verse 29. Jeroboam slept with his fathers] He died a natural death; and was regularly succeeded by his son Zachariah, who, reigning badly, was, after six months, slain by Shallum, who succeeded him, and reigned but one month, being slain by Menahem, who succeeded him, and reigned ten years over Israel. Amos the prophet lived in the reign of Jeroboam; and was accused by Amaziah, one of the idolatrous priests of Beth-el, of having predicted the death of Jeroboam by the sword, but this was a slander: what he did predict, and which came afterwards to pass, may be seen Amos vii. 10-17. The interregnum referred to in the margin cannot be accounted for in a satisfactory manner.

CHAPTER XV.

Azariah begins to reign over Judah, and acts well, but does not remove the high places, 1-4. He becomes leprous, and dies, after having reigned fifty-two years; and Jotham, his son, reigns in his stead, 5-7. Zachariah reigns over Israel, and acts wickedly; and Shallum conspires against him, and slays him, after he had reigned six months, 8-12. Shallum reigns one month, and is slain by Menahem, 13-15. Menahem's wicked and oppressive reign; he subsidizes the king of Assyria, and dies, after having reigned ten years, 16-22. Pekahiah, his son, reigns in his stead; does wickedly; Pekah, one of his captains, conspires against and kills him, after he had reigned two years, 23-26. Pekah reigns in his stead, and acts wickedly, 27, 28. Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria, carries into captivity the inhabitants of many cities, 29. Hoshea conspires against and slays Pekah, after he had reigned twenty years; and reigns in his stead, 30-31. Jotham begins to reign over Judah; he reigns well; dies after a reign of sixteen years, and is succeeded by his son Ahaz, 32-38.

IN <sup>a</sup>the twenty and seventh year of Jeroboam king of Israel <sup>b</sup>began <sup>c</sup>Azariah son of Amaziah king of Judah to reign.

2 Sixteen years old was he when he began to reign, and he reigned two and fifty years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jecholiah of Jerusalem.

3 And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, according to all that his father Amaziah had done;

4 <sup>d</sup>Save that the high places were not removed: the people sacrificed and burnt incense still on the high places.

5 And the LORD <sup>e</sup>smote the king, so that he was a leper unto the day of his death, and <sup>f</sup>dwelt in a several house. And Jotham the king's son was over the house, judging the people of the land.

6 And the rest of the acts of Azariah, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

7 So Azariah slept with his fathers; and <sup>g</sup>they buried him with his fathers in the city of David: and Jotham his son reigned in his stead.

8 <sup>h</sup>In the thirty and eighth year of Azariah king of Judah did Zachariah the son of Jeroboam reign over Israel in Samaria six months.

9 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, as his fathers had done: he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin.

10 And Shallum the son of Jabesh conspired against him, and <sup>i</sup>smote him before the people, and slew him, and reigned in his stead.

11 And the rest of the acts of Zachariah, behold, they are written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel, 12 This was <sup>j</sup>the word of the LORD which he spake unto Jehu, saying, Thy sons shall sit on the throne of Israel unto the fourth generation. And so it came to pass.

13 Shallum the son of Jabesh began to reign in the nine and thirtieth year of <sup>k</sup>Uzziah king of Judah; and he reigned <sup>l</sup>a full month in Samaria.

14 For Menahem the son of Gadi went up from <sup>m</sup>Tirzah, and came to Samaria, and smote Shallum the son of Jabesh in Samaria, and slew him, and reigned in his stead.

15 And the rest of the acts of Shallum, and his conspiracy which he made, behold, they are written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel.

16 Then Menahem smote <sup>n</sup>Tiphshah, and all that were therein, and the coasts thereof from Tirzah: because they opened not to him, therefore he smote it; and all <sup>o</sup>the women therein that were with child he ripped up.

17 In the nine and thirtieth year of Azariah king of Judah began Menahem the son of Gadi to reign over Israel, and reigned ten years in Samaria.

18 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD: he departed not all his days from the sins

Verse 1. In the twenty and seventh year of Jeroboam] The name of this king of Judah is expressed by four different names in this chapter: Oziah, Oziah, Ozrihu, and Ozihu. Our oldest Hebrew MS. relieves us here by reading truly, in verses 1, 6, 7, Uzziah, where the printed text is differently corrupted.

There are insuperable difficulties in the chronology of this place. Learned men are not agreed concerning the mode of reconciling the differences; there is probably some mistake in the numbers.

Verse 5. The Lord smote the king, so that he was a leper] The reason of this plague is well told in 2 Chron. xxvi. 16. That, his heart being elated, he went into the temple to burn incense upon the altar, assuming to himself the functions of the high-priest; that Azariah the priest, with fourscore others, went in after him, to prevent him; and that, while they were remonstrating against his conduct, the Lord struck him with the leprosy, which immediately appeared on his forehead; that they thrust him out as an unclean person; and that he himself hurried to get out, feeling that the Lord

Verse 12. This was the word of the Lord—unto Jehu] Jehoahaz, Joash, Jeroboam, and Zachariah succeeded Jehu, to whom this promise was made. But because he executed the divine purpose with an uncommanded cruelty, therefore God cut his family short.

Verse 13. He reigned a full month] Menahem is supposed to have been one of Zachariah's generals. Hearing of the death of his master when he was with the troops at Tirzah, he hastened to Samaria, and slew the murderer, and had himself proclaimed in his stead. But as the people of Tiphshah did not open their gates to him, he took the place by assault.

19 And <sup>a</sup> Pul the king of Assyria came against the land: and Menahem gave Pul a thousand talents of silver, that his hand might be with him to <sup>b</sup> confirm the kingdom in his hand.

20 And Menahem <sup>c</sup> exacted the money of Israel, even of all the mighty men of wealth, of each man fifty shekels of silver, to give to the king of Assyria. So the king of Assyria turned back, and stayed not there in the land.

21 And the rest of the acts of Menahem, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Israel?

22 And Menahem slept with his fathers; and Pekahiah his son reigned in his stead.

23 In the fiftieth year of Azariah king of Judah Pekahiah the son of Menahem began to reign over Israel in Samaria, and reigned two years.

24 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD: he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin.

25 But Pekah the son of Remaliah, a captain of his, conspired against him, and smote him in Samaria, in the palace of the king's house, with Argob and Arich, and with him fifty men of the Gileadites: and he killed him, and reigned in his room.

Verse 25. Smote him in Samaria, in the palace of the king's house, with Argob and Arich] Who Argob and Arich were we know not; some make them men, some make them statues.

Verse 29. Came Tiglath-pileser] He is supposed to have been the successor of Sardanapalus. [This is pure conjecture.]

Took Ijon] These places belonged to Israel; and were taken by Ben-hadad, king of Syria, when he was in league with Aza, king of Judah. See 1 Kings xv. 20. They were regained by Jeroboam the second; and now they are taken from Israel once more by Tiglath-pileser. From 1 Chron.

29 In the days of Pekah king of Israel <sup>a</sup> came Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria, and took <sup>b</sup> Ijon, and Abel-beth-maachah, and Janoah, and Kedesh, and Hazor, and Gilead, and Galilee, all the land of Naphtali, and carried them captive to Assyria.

v. 26, we learn that Pul and Tiglath-pileser, kings of Assyria, carried away into captivity the two tribes of Reuben and Gad, and the half tribe of Manasseh; all that belonged to Israel on the other side of Jordan. These were never restored to Israel.

Verse 30. Hoshea the son of Elah—in the twentieth year of Jotham] There are many difficulties in the chronology of this place.

Verse 36. Now the rest of the acts of Jotham] These acts are distinctly stated in 2 Chron. chap. xxvii. As to the higher gate of the house of the Lord, commentators are not well agreed: some think it was a gate which he then made, and which did not exist before, and is the same that is called the new gate, Jer. xxvi. 10; which is very likely.

Verse 37. In those days the Lord began to send] It was about this time that the Assyrian wars, so ruinous to the Jews, began; but it was in the following reigns that they arrived at their highest pitch of disaster to those unfaithful and unfortunate people.

CHAPTER XVI.

Ahaz begins to reign, acts wickedly, and restores idolatry in Judea, 1-4. Rezin, king of Syria, besieges Jerusalem, but cannot take it; he takes Elath, and drives the Jews thence, 5, 6. Ahaz hires Tiglath-pileser against the king of Syria, and the king of Israel, and gives him the silver and gold that were found in the treasures of the house of the Lord, 7, 8. Tiglath-pileser takes Damascus, and slays Rezin, 9. Ahaz goes to meet him at

II. KINGS.

Damascus; sees an altar there, a pattern of which he sends to Urijah the priest; and orders him to make one like it, which he does, 10-15. He makes several alterations in the temple; dies; and Hezekiah his son reigns in his stead, 16-20.

IN the seventeenth year of Pekah the <sup>a</sup>son of Remaliah <sup>b</sup>Ahaz the son of Jotham king of Judah began to reign.

2 Twenty years old was Ahaz when he began to reign, and reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem, and did not that which was right in the sight of the LORD his God, like David his father.

3 But he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, yea, <sup>c</sup>and made his son to pass through the fire, according to the <sup>d</sup>abomination of the heathen, whom the LORD cast out from before the children of Israel.

4 And he sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places, and <sup>e</sup>on the hills, and under every green tree.

5 <sup>f</sup>'Then Rezin king of Syria, and Pekah son of Remaliah king of Israel, came up to Jerusalem to war: and they besieged Ahaz, but could not overcome him.

6 At that time Rezin king of Syria <sup>g</sup>recovered Elath to Syria, and drove the Jews from <sup>h</sup>Elath, and the Syrians came to Elath, and dwelt there unto this day.

7 So Ahaz sent messengers <sup>i</sup>to <sup>j</sup>Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria, saying, I am thy servant and thy son: come up, and save me out of the hand of the king of Syria, and out of the hand of the king of Israel, which rise up against me.

8 And Ahaz <sup>k</sup>took the silver and gold that was found in the house of the LORD, and in the treasures of the king's house, and sent it for a present to the king of Assyria.

9 And the king of Assyria hearkened unto him: for the king of Assyria went up against <sup>l</sup>Damascus, and <sup>m</sup>took it, and carried the people of it captive to Kir, and slew Rezin.

Eloth.—<sup>i</sup> Ch. xv. 29.—<sup>j</sup> Heb. Tilgath-pileser, 1 Chron. v. 26 and 2 Chron. xxviii. 20.

Verse 2. Twenty years old was Ahaz] Here is another considerable difficulty in the chronology. Ahaz was but twenty years old when he began to reign, and he died after he had reigned sixteen years; consequently his whole age amounted only to thirty-six years. But Hezekiah his son was twenty-five years old when he began to reign; and if this were so, then Ahaz must have been the father of Hezekiah when he was but eleven years of age! Some think that the twenty years mentioned here respect the beginning of the reign of Jotham, father of Ahaz; so that the passage should be thus translated: Ahaz was twenty years of age when his father began to reign; and consequently he was fifty-two years old when he died, seeing Jotham reigned sixteen years; and therefore Hezekiah was born when his father was twenty-seven years of age. This however is a violent solution, and worthy of little credit. It is better to return to the text as it stands, and allow that Ahaz might be only eleven or twelve years old when he had Hezekiah: this is not at all impossible; as we know that the youth of both sexes in the eastern countries are marriageable at ten or twelve years of age, and are frequently betrothed when they are but nine.

Verse 7. I am thy servant and thy son] I will obey thee in all, and become tributary to thee; only help me against Syria and Israel.

Verse 9. The king of Assyria hearkened unto him] It is said, 2 Chron. xxviii. 20, that Tiglath-pileser distressed him, but strengthened him not. Though he came against the Syrians, and took Damascus, and slew Rezin, yet he did not help Ahaz against the Philistines, nor did he lend him any forces to assist against Israel; and he distressed him by 10 And king Ahaz went to Damascus to meet Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria, and saw an altar that was at Damascus: and king Ahaz sent to Urijah the priest the fashion of the altar, and the pattern of it, according to all the workmanship thereof.

11 And Urijah the priest built an altar according to all that king Ahaz had sent from Damascus: so Urijah the priest made it against king Ahaz came from Damascus.

12 And when the king was come from Damascus, the king saw the altar: and <sup>n</sup>the king approached to the altar, and offered thereon.

13 And he burnt his burnt-offering and his meat-offering, and poured his drink-offering, and sprinkled the blood of his <sup>o</sup>peace-offerings upon the altar.

14 And he brought also <sup>p</sup>the brasen altar, which was before the LORD, from the fore-front of the house, from between the altar and the house of the LORD, and put it on the north side of the altar.

15 And king Ahaz commanded Urijah the priest, saying, Upon the great altar burn <sup>q</sup>the morning burnt-offering, and the evening meat-offering, and the king's burnt-sacrifice, and his meat-offering, with the burnt-offering of all the people of the land, and their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings; and sprinkle upon it all the blood of the burnt-offering, and all the blood of the sacrifice: and the brasen altar shall be for me to inquire by.

16 Thus did Urijah the priest, according to all that king Ahaz commanded.

17 <sup>r</sup>'And king Ahaz cut off <sup>s</sup>the borders of the bases, and removed the laver from off them; and took down <sup>t</sup>the sea from off the brasen oxen that were under it, and put it upon a pavement of stones.

taking the royal treasures, and the treasures of the temple, and did him little service for so great a sacrifice.

Verse 10. Ahaz went to Damascus] He had received so much help on the defeat of Rezin, that he went to Damascus to meet the king of Assyria, and render him thanks.

Ahaz sent to Urijah the priest the fashion of the altar] This was some idolatrous altar, the shape and workmanship of which pleased Ahaz so well that he determined to have one like it at Jerusalem. For this he had no divine authority, and the compliance of Urijah was both mean and sinful.

Verse 14. Put it on the north side] He seems to have intended to conform every thing in the Lord's house as much as possible to the idolatrous temples which he saw at Damascus, and to model the divine worship in the same way: in a word, to honour and worship the gods of Syria, and not the God of heaven. All the alterations specified here were in contempt of the true God.

Verse 18. And the covert for the sabbath] As the word, and others derived from the same root, signify covering or booths, it is very likely that this means either a sort of canopy which was erected on the sabbath days for the accommodation of the people who came to worship, and which Ahaz took away to discourage them from that worship; or a canopy under which the king and his family reposed themselves, and which he transported to some other place to accommodate the king of Assyria when he visited him. The removing of this, whatever it was, whether throne, or canopy, or covered way, cut off the communication between the king's house and the temple; and the king of Assyria would not attempt to go into that sacred place by that other passage to which the priests alone had access.

18 And the covert for the sabbath that they had built in the house, and the king's entry without, turned he from the house of the LORD for the king of Assyria.

19 Now the rest of the acts of Ahaz which he

IN the twelfth year of Ahaz king of Judah began <sup>a</sup>Hoshea the son of Elah to reign in Samaria over Israel nine years.

3 Against him came up <sup>b</sup>Shalmaneser king of Assyria; and Hoshea became his servant, and <sup>c</sup>gave him <sup>d</sup>presents.

4 And the king of Assyria found conspiracy in Hoshea: for he had sent messengers to So king of Egypt, and brought no present to the king of Assyria, as he had done year by year: therefore the king of Assyria shut him up, and bound him in prison.

5 Then <sup>e</sup>the king of Assyria came up throughout all the land, and went up to Samaria, and besieged it three years.

Gave him presents.] Became tributary to him.

Verse 4. Found conspiracy in Hoshea] He had endeavoured to shake off the Assyrian yoke by entering into a treaty with So, king of Egypt; and having done so, he ceased to send the annual tribute to Assyria.

Verse 5. Besieged it three years.] It must have been well fortified, well provisioned, and well defended to have held out so long.

Verse 6. Took Samaria] According to the prophets, Hosea xiii. 16 and Micah i. 6.

Carried Israel away into Assyria] What were the places to which the unfortunate Israelites were carried, or where their successors are now situated, have given rise to innumerable conjectures, dissertations, discourses, &c. Some maintain that they are found on the coast of Guinea; others, in America; the Indian tribes being the descendants of those carried away by the Assyrians.

Every thing considered, I think it by far the most probable that the Afghans are the descendants of the Jews, who were led away.

Thus ended the kingdom of Israel after it had lasted two hundred and fifty-four years from the death of Solomon and the schism of Jeroboam, till the taking of Samaria by Shalmaneser in the ninth year of Hoshea; after which the remains of the ten tribes were carried away beyond the river Euphrates.

Verse 9. Did secretly those things] There was much hidden iniquity and private idolatry among them, as well as public and notorious crimes.

From the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city.] That is, the idolatry was universal; every place was made a place for some idolatrous rite or act of worship; from the largest city to the smallest village, and from the public watch-tower to the shepherd's cot.

Verse 10. Images and groves] Images of different idols, and places for the abominable rites of Ashtareth or Venus.

11 And there they burnt incense in all the high places, as did the heathen whom the LORD carried away before them; and wrought wicked things to provoke the LORD to anger:

12 For they served idols, <sup>a</sup>whereof the LORD had said unto them, <sup>b</sup>Ye shall not do this thing.

13 Yet the LORD testified against Israel and against Judah, <sup>c</sup>by all the prophets and by all <sup>d</sup>the seers, saying, <sup>e</sup>Turn ye from your evil ways and keep my commandments and my statutes according to all the law which I commanded your fathers, and which I sent to you by my servants the prophets.

14 Notwithstanding they would not hear, but <sup>f</sup>hardened their necks, like to the neck of their fathers, that did not believe in the LORD their God.

15 And they rejected his statutes, <sup>g</sup>and his covenant that he made with their fathers, and his testimonies which he testified against them; and they followed <sup>h</sup>vanity, and <sup>i</sup>became vain, and went after the heathen that were round about them, concerning whom the LORD had charged them, that they should <sup>j</sup>not do like them.

17 <sup>n</sup>And they caused their sons and their daughters to pass through the fire, and <sup>o</sup>used divination and enchantments, and <sup>p</sup>sold themselves to do evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger.

18 Therefore the LORD was very angry with Israel and removed them out of his sight: there was none left <sup>q</sup>but the tribe of Judah only.

19 Also <sup>r</sup>Judah kept not the commandments of the LORD their God, but walked in the statutes of Israel which they made.

20 And the LORD rejected all the seed of Israel, and afflicted them, and <sup>s</sup>delivered them into the hand of spoilers, until he had cast them out of his sight.

Verse 13. Yet the Lord testified against Israel] This rendered their conduct the more inexcusable.

Verse 17. Sold themselves to do evil] Abandoned themselves to the will of the devil, to work all iniquity with greediness.

Verse 18. Removed them out of his sight] Banished them from the promised land, from the temple, and from every ordinance of righteousness, as wholly unworthy of any kind of good.

None left but the tribe of Judah only.] Under this name all those of Benjamin, and Levi, and the Israelites, who abandoned their idolatries and joined with Judah, are comprised. It was the ten tribes that were carried away by the Assyrians.

Verse 24. The king of Assyria brought men from Babylon] He removed one people entirely, and substituted others in their place; and this he did to cut off all occasion for mutiny or insurrection; for the people, being removed from their own land, had no object worthy of attention to contend for, and no patrimony in the land of their captivity to induce them to hazard any opposition to their oppressors.

By men from Babylon, we may understand some cities of Babylonia then under the Assyrian empire; for at this time Babylon had a king of its own; but some parts of what was called Babylonia might have been still under the Assyrian government.

From Cuthah.] This is supposed to be the same as Cush. The original language of this people, or at least the language they spoke after their settlement in Israel, is contained in 21 For <sup>a</sup>he rent Israel from the house of David: and <sup>b</sup>they made Jeroboam the son of Nebat king; and Jeroboam drave Israel from following the LORD, and made them sin a great sin.

22 For the children of Israel walked in all the sins of Jeroboam which he did; they departed not from them;

23 Until the LORD removed Israel out of his sight, <sup>c</sup>as he had said by all the prophets. <sup>d</sup>So was Israel carried away out of their own land to Assyria unto this day.

24 <sup>e</sup>And the king of Assyria brought men <sup>f</sup>from Babylon, and from Cuthah, and from <sup>g</sup>Ava, and from Hamath, and from Sepharvaim, and placed them in the cities of Samaria instead of the children of Israel: and they possessed Samaria, and dwelt in the cities thereof.

25 And <sup>h</sup>so it was at the beginning of their dwelling there, that they feared not the LORD: therefore the LORD sent lions among them, which slew some of them.

26 Wherefore they spake to the king of Assyria, saying, The nations which thou hast removed, and placed in the cities of Samaria, knew not the manner of the God of the land: therefore he hath sent lions among them, and, behold, they slay them, because they know not the manner of the God of the land.

27 Then the king of Assyria commanded, saying, Carry thither one of the priests whom ye brought from thence; and let them go and dwell there, and let him teach them the manner of the God of the land.

28 Then one of the priests whom they had carried away from Samaria came and dwelt in Beth-el, and taught them how they should fear the LORD.

29 Howbeit every nation made gods of their own, and put them in the houses of the high places which the Samaritans had made, every nation in their cities wherein they dwelt.

the Samaritan Version of the Pentateuch. This Cuthah was probably the country in the land of Shinar, first inhabited by Cush.

From Ava] The Avim were an ancient people, expelled by the Chaborim from Hazerim, Deut. ii. 23.

From Hamath] This was Hemath or Emath of Syria, frequently mentioned in the sacred writings.

From Sepharvaim] There was a city called Syphera, near the Euphrates; others think the Saspires, a people situated between the Colchians and the Medes, are meant.

Verse 25. The Lord sent lions among them] The land being deprived of its inhabitants, wild beasts would necessarily increase, even without any supernatural intervention; and this the superstitious new comers supposed to be a plague sent upon them, because they did not know how to worship him who was the God of the land; for they thought, like other heathens, that every district had its own tutelary deity. Yet it is likely that God did send lions as a scourge on this bad people.

Verse 26. The manner of the God of the land.] The judgment; the way in which the God of the land is to be worshipped.

Verse 27. Carry thither one of the priests] Imperfect as this teaching was, it, in the end, overthrew the idolatry of these people, so that soon after the Babylonish captivity they were found to be as free from idolatry as the Jews themselves, and continue so to the present day. But they are now nearly annihilated.

Verse 29. Every nation made gods of their own.] That is, benoth, and the men of Cuth made Nergal, and the men of Hamath made Ashima, 31 *And the Avites made Nibhaz and Tartak, and the Sepharvites <sup>b</sup>burnt their children in fire to Adrammelech and Anammelech, the gods of Sepharvaim.

32 So they feared the LORD, *and made unto themselves of the lowest of them priests of the high places, which sacrificed for them in the houses of the high places.

33 *They feared the LORD, and served their own gods, after the manner of the nations, *whom they carried away from thence.

34 Unto this day they do after the former manners: they fear not the LORD, neither do they after their statutes, or after their ordinances, or after the law and commandment which the LORD commanded the children of Jacob, <sup>f</sup>whom he named Israel;

35 With whom the LORD had made a covenant, and charged them, saying, *Ye shall not fear other gods, nor <sup>h</sup>bow yourselves to them, nor serve them, nor sacrifice to them:

36 But the LORD, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt with great power and <sup>1</sup>a stretched-out arm, <sup>1</sup>him shall ye fear, and him shall ye worship, and to him shall ye do sacrifice.

37 And the statutes, and the ordinances, and the law, and the commandment, which he wrote for you, <sup>k</sup>ye shall observe to do for evermore; and ye shall not fear other gods.

38 And the covenant that I have made with you, <sup>1</sup>ye shall not forget; neither shall ye fear other gods.

39 But the LORD your God ye shall fear; and he shall deliver you out of the hand of all your enemies.

40 Howbeit they did not hearken, but they did after their former manner.

41 *So these nations feared the LORD, and served their graven images, both their children and their children's children: as did their fathers, so do they unto this day.

they made gods after the fashion of those which they had worshipped in their own country.

Verse 30. The men of Babylon made Succoth-benoth] This, literally, signifies the tabernacles of the daughters or young women, and most evidently refers to those public prostitutions of young virgins at the temple of Melitta or Venus among the Babylonians.

The men of Cuth made Nergal] This is supposed to have been the solar orb or light. According to the rabbins, his emblem was a cock.

The men of Hamath made Ashima] Perhaps the fire; from asham, to make atonement or to purify. Jarchi says this was in the form of a goat.

Verse 31. The Avites made Nibhaz] This was supposed to be the same as the Anubis of the Egyptians; and was in form partly of a dog, and partly of a man.

And Tartak] This is supposed by some to be another name of the same idol; Jarchi says it was in the shape of an ass. Some think these were the representations of the sun in his chariot; Nibhaz representing the solar orb, and Tartak the chariot.

Adrammelech] Probably the sun.

Anammelech] Probably the Moloch of the Ammonites. Jarchi says, the first was in the form of a mule, the second in the form of a horse; this was probably the moon. [All these interpretations are doubtful.]

Verse 32. Of the lowest of them priests] One priest was not enough for this motley population; and, as the priesthood was probably neither respectable nor lucrative, it was only the lowest of the people who would enter into the employment.

Verse 33. They feared the Lord, and served their own gods] They did not relinquish their own idolatry, but incorporated the worship of the true God with that of their idols.

Verse 36. But the Lord] JEHOVAH, the supreme, self-existent, and eternal Being; author of all being and life.

Who brought you up] This was a strong reason why they should adore Him only: he had saved them from the hands of their enemies, and he did it in such a way as to show his power to be irresistible; in such a Being they might safely confide.

Him shall ye fear] Here is the manner in which he is to be worshipped. Him ye shall reverence as your Lawgiver and Judge; ye shall respect and keep all his commandments; doing what he has enjoined, and avoiding what he has forbidden.

Him shall ye worship] Before him ye shall bow the knee; living in the spirit of obedience, and performing every religious act in the deepest humility.

And to him shall ye do sacrifices] Ye shall consider that, as ye have sinned, so ye deserve death; ye shall therefore bring your living victims to the altar of the Lord, and let their life's blood be poured out there, as an atonement for your souls.

Verse 41. So do they unto this day] This must have been written before the Babylonish captivity; because, after that time, none of the Israelites ever lapsed into idolatry.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Hezekiah begins to reign; he removes the high places, breaks to pieces the brazen serpent, and walks uprightly before God, 1-6. He endeavours to shake off the Assyrian yoke, and defeats the Philistines, 7, 8. Shalmaneser comes up against Samaria, takes it, and carries the people away into captivity, 9-12. And then comes against Judah, and takes all the fenced cities, 13. Hezekiah sends a message to him at Lachish to desist, with the promise that he will pay any tribute he chooses to impose; in consequence of which Shalmaneser exacts three hundred talents of silver, and thirty talents of gold; to pay which Hezekiah is obliged to take all his own treasures, and those belonging to the temple, 14-16. The king of Assyria sends, notwithstanding, a great host against Jerusalem; and his general Rab-shakeh delivers an insulting and blasphemous message to Hezekiah, 17-35. Hezekiah and his people are greatly afflicted at the words of Rab-shakeh, 36, 37.

NOW it came to pass in the third year of Hoshea son of Elah king of Israel, that <sup>a</sup>Hezekiah the son of Ahaz king of Judah began to reign.

2 Twenty and five years old was he when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty and nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name also was <sup>b</sup>Abi, the daughter of Zachariah.

3 And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, according to all that David his father did.

4 <sup>c</sup>He removed the high places, and brake the <sup>d</sup>images, and out down the groves, and brake in pieces the <sup>e</sup>brazen serpent that Moses had made: for unto those days the children of Israel did burn incense to it: and he called it <sup>f</sup>Nehushtan.

5 He <sup>g</sup>trusted in the LORD God of Israel; <sup>h</sup>so that after him was none like him among all the kings of Judah, nor <sup>i</sup>any that were before him.

6 For he <sup>j</sup>clave to the LORD, and departed not <sup>k</sup>from following him, but kept his commandments, which the LORD commanded Moses.

7 And the LORD <sup>l</sup>was with him; and he <sup>m</sup>prospered whithersoever he went forth: and he <sup>n</sup>rebelled against the king of Assyria, and served him not.

8 <sup>o</sup>He smote the Philistines, even unto <sup>p</sup>Gaza, and the borders thereof, <sup>q</sup>from the tower of the watchmen of the fenced city.

9 And <sup>r</sup>it came to pass in the fourth year of king Hezekiah, which was the seventh year of Hoshea son of Elah king of Israel, that Shalmaneser king of Assyria came up against Samaria, and besieged it.

10 And at the end of three years they took it: even in the sixth year of Hezekiah, that is <sup>s</sup>the ninth year of Hoshea king of Israel, Samaria was taken.

11 <sup>t</sup>And the king of Assyria did carry away Israel unto Assyria, and put them in <sup>u</sup>Halah and in Habor by the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes:

12 <sup>v</sup>Because they obeyed not the voice of the LORD their God, but transgressed his covenant, and all that Moses the servant of the LORD commanded, and would not hear <sup>w</sup>them, nor do <sup>x</sup>them.

13 Now <sup>y</sup>in the fourteenth year of king Hezekiah did <sup>z</sup>Sennacherib king of Assyria come up against all the fenced cities of Judah, and took them.

14 And Hezekiah king of Judah sent to the king of Assyria to Lachish, saying, I have offended; return from me: that which thou puttest on me will I bear. And the king of Assyria appointed to Hezekiah king of Judah three hundred talents of silver and thirty talents of gold.

15 And Hezekiah <sup>aa</sup>gave him all the silver that was found in the house of the LORD, and in the treasures of the king's house.

16 At that time did Hezekiah cut off the gold from the doors of the temple of the LORD, and from the pillars which Hezekiah king of Judah had overlaid, and gave <sup>ab</sup>it to the king of Assyria.

17 And the king of Assyria sent Tartan and Rabсарis and Rab-shakeh from Lachish to king Hezekiah with a <sup>ac</sup>great host against Jerusalem. And they went up and came to Jerusalem. And when they were come up, they came and stood by the conduit of the upper pool, <sup>ad</sup>which is in the highway of the fuller's field.

18 And when they had called to the king, there came out to them Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, which was over the household, and Shebna the <sup>ae</sup>scribe, and Joah the son of Asaph the recorder.

19 And Rab-shakeh said unto them, Speak ye now to Hezekiah, Thus saith the great king, the king of Assyria, <sup>af</sup>What confidence is this wherein thou trustest?

Verse 3. He did that which was right in the sight of the Lord.] In chap. xix. of the Second Book of Chronicles we have an account of what this pious king did to restore the worship of God.

Verse 4. Brake in pieces the brazen serpent.] The history of this may be seen in Num. xxi. 8, 9; see the notes there.

And he called it Nehushtan.] Not one of the Versions has attempted to translate this word. Jarchi says, "He called it Nechustan, through contempt, which is as much as to say, a brazen serpent." Some have supposed that the word is compounded of nachash, to divine, and tan, a serpent, so it signifies the divining serpent; and the Targum states that it was the people, not Hezekiah, that gave it this name. Nachash signifies to view, eye attentively, observe, to search, inquire accurately, &c.; and hence is used to express divination, augury. As a noun, it signifies brass or copper, filth, verdigris, and some sea animal, Amos ix. 8; see also Job xxvi. 13, and Isa. xxvii. 1. It is also frequently used for a serpent; and most probably for an animal of the genus Simia, in Gen. iii., where see the notes. This has been contested by some, ridiculed by a few, and believed by many.

Verse 5. He trusted in the Lord.] 1. He trusted in the Lord God of Israel; 2. He clave to the Lord; 3. He was steady in his religion; he departed not from following the Lord; 4. He kept God's commandments. And what were the consequences? 1. The Lord was with him; 2. He prospered whithersoever he went.

Verse 8. From the tower of the watchmen.] See the same words, chap. xvii. 9. It seems a proverbial mode of expression: he reduced every kind of fortification; nothing was able to stand before him.

Verse 17. The king of Assyria sent Tartan, &c.] These are not the names of persons, but of offices. Tartan, in the Greek Version, signifies he who presides over the gifts or tribute; chancellor of the exchequer.

Rabсарis.] The chief of the eunuchs. Rab-shakeh, master or chief over the wine cellar; or he who had the care of the king's drink.

From Lachish.] It seems as if the Assyrian troops had been worsted before Lachish, and were obliged to raise the siege, from which they went and sat down before Libnah. While Sennacherib was there with the Assyrian army, he heard that Tirhakah, king of Ethiopia, had invaded the Assyrian territories. Being obliged therefore to hasten, in order to succour his own dominions, he sent a considerable force under the aforementioned officers against Jerusalem with a most fearful and bloody manifesto, commanding Hezekiah to pay him tribute, to deliver up his kingdom to him, and to submit, he and his people, to be carried away captives into Assyria! This manifesto was accompanied with the vilest insults and the highest blasphemies. God interposed, and the evils threatened against others fell upon himself.

Conduit of the upper pool.] The aqueduct that brought water from the upper or eastern reservoir, near to the valley of Kidron, into the city. Probably they had seized on this in order to distress the city.

The fuller's field.] The place where the washermen stretched out their clothes to dry.

Verse 18. Called to the king.] They wished him to come out, that they might get possession of his person.

Eliakim—over the household.] What we would call lord chamberlain.

Shebna the scribe.] The king's secretary.

Joah—the recorder.] The writer of the public annals.

Verse 19. What confidence is this?] The words are excessively insulting: What little, foolish, or unavailing cause of, 20 Thou <sup>a</sup>sayest, <sup>b</sup>but they are but <sup>c</sup>vain words,) <sup>d</sup>I have counsel and strength for the war. Now on whom dost thou trust, that thou rebellest against me?

21 <sup>e</sup>Now, behold, thou <sup>f</sup>trustest upon the staff of this bruised reed, <sup>g</sup>even upon Egypt, on which if a man lean, it will go into his hand, and pierce it: so is Pharaoh king of Egypt unto all that trust on him.

22 But if ye say unto me, We trust in the LORD our God: is not that he, <sup>h</sup>whose high places and whose altars Hezekiah hath taken away, and hath said to Judah and to Jerusalem, Ye shall worship before this altar in Jerusalem?

23 Now therefore, I pray thee, give <sup>i</sup>pledges to my lord the king of Assyria, and I will deliver thee two thousand horses, if thou be able on thy part to set riders upon them.

24 How then wilt thou turn away the face of one captain of the least of my master's servants, and put thy trust on Egypt for chariots and for horsemen?

25 Am I now come up without the LORD against this place to destroy it? The LORD said to me, Go up against this land, and destroy it.

26 Then said Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, and Shebna, and Joah, unto Rab-shakeh, Speak, I pray thee, to thy servants in the Syrian language; for we understand it: and talk not with us in the Jews' language in the ears of the people that are on the wall.

27 But Rab-shakeh said unto them, Hath my master sent me to thy master, and to thee, to speak these words? <sup>j</sup>hath he not sent me to the men which sit on the wall, that they may eat their own dung, and drink <sup>k</sup>their own piss with you?

28 Then Rab-shakeh stood and cried with a loud voice in the Jews' language, and spake, saying, confidence is it in which thou trustest? I translate thus, because I consider the word bahtashon as a diminutive, intended to express the utmost contempt for Hezekiah's God.

Verse 21. The staff of this bruised reed] Egypt had already been greatly bruised and broken through the wars carried on against it by the Assyrians.

Verse 22. Whose high places and whose altars Hezekiah hath taken away] This was artfully malicious. Many of the people sacrificed to Jehovah on the high places; Hezekiah had removed them (ver. 4), because they were incentives to idolatry: Rab-shakeh insinuates that by so doing he had offended Jehovah, deprived the people of their religious rights, and he could neither expect the blessing of God nor the co-operation of the people.

Verse 23. Am I now deliver thee two thousand horses] Another insult: Were I to give thee two thousand Assyrian horses thou couldst not find riders for them. How then canst thou think that thou shalt be able to stand against even the smallest division of my troops?

Verse 25. Am I now come up without the Lord] As Rab-shakeh saw that the Jews placed the utmost confidence in God, he wished to persuade them that by Hezekiah's conduct Jehovah had departed from them, and had become ally to the king of Assyria, and therefore they could not expect any help from that quarter.

Verse 26. Talk not with us in the Jews' language] The object of this blasphemous caustic was to stir up the people to sedition, that the city and the king might be delivered into his hand.

Verse 27. That they may eat their own dung] That they may be duly apprised, if they hold on Hezekiah's side, Jerusalem shall be most strictly besieged, and they be reduced to such a state of famine as to be obliged to eat their own excrements.

Hear the word of the great king, the king of Assyria: 29 Thus saith the king, <sup>l</sup>Let not Hezekiah deceive you: for he shall not be able to deliver you out of his hand:

30 Neither let Hezekiah make you trust in the LORD, saying, The LORD will surely deliver us, and the city shall not be delivered into the hand of the king of Assyria.

31 Hearken not unto Hezekiah: for thus saith the king of Assyria, <sup>m</sup>Make <sup>n</sup>an agreement with me by a present, and come out to me, and then eat ye every man of his own vine, and every one of his fig-tree, and drink ye every one the waters of his <sup>o</sup>cistern:

32 Until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, <sup>p</sup>a land of corn and wine, a land of bread and vineyards, a land of oil olive and of honey, that ye may live, and not die: and hearken not unto Hezekiah, when he <sup>q</sup>persuadeth you, saying, The LORD will deliver us.

33 <sup>r</sup>Hath any of the gods of the nations delivered at all his land out of the hand of the king of Assyria?

34 <sup>s</sup>Where are the gods of Hamath, and of Arpad? where are the gods of Sepharvaim, Hena, and <sup>t</sup>Ivah? have they delivered Samaria out of mine hand?

35 Who are they among all the gods of the countries, that have delivered their country, out of mine hand, <sup>u</sup>that the LORD should deliver Jerusalem out of mine hand?

36 But the people held their peace, and answered him not a word: for the king's commandment was, saying, Answer him not.

37 Then came Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, which was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and Joah the son of Asaph the recorder, to Hezekiah <sup>v</sup>with their clothes rent, and told him the words of Rab-shakeh.

Verse 28. Hear the word of the great king—of Assyria] This was all intended to cause the people to revolt from their allegiance to the king.

Verse 32. Until I come and take you away] This was well calculated to stir up a seditious spirit. Ye cannot be delivered: your destruction, if ye resist, is inevitable; Senacherib will do with you, as he does with all the nations he conquers, lead you captive into another land: but if you will surrender without further trouble, he will transport you into a land as good as your own.

Verse 34. Where are the gods of Hamath] The Assyrians have already overthrown the gods of Hamath, Arpad, Hena, and Ivah; therefore, Jehovah shall be like one of them, and shall not be able to deliver Jerusalem out of the hand of my master.

The impudent blasphemy of this speech is without parallel. Hezekiah treated it as he ought; it was not properly against him, but against the LORD; therefore he refers the matter to Jehovah himself, who punishes this blasphemy in the most signal manner.

Verse 36. Answer him not] The blasphemy is too barefaced; Jehovah is insulted, not you; let him avenge his own quarrel.

Verse 37. Then came Eliakim—and Shebna—and Joah—to Hezekiah with their clothes rent] It was the custom of the Hebrews, when they heard any blasphemy, to rend their clothes, because this was the greatest of crimes, as it immediately affected the Majesty of God; and it was right that a religious people should have in the utmost abhorrence every insult offered to the object of their religious worship. These three ambassadors lay the matter before the king, as God's representative; he lays it before the prophet, as God's minister; and the prophet lays it before God, as the people's mediator.

CHAPTER XIX.

Hezekiah is greatly distressed, and sends to Isaiah to pray for him, 1-4. Isaiah returns a comfortable answer, and predicts the destruction of the king of Assyria and his army, 5-8. Sennacherib, hearing that his kingdom was invaded by the Ethiopians, sends a terrible letter to Hezekiah, to induce him to surrender, 9-13. Hezekiah goes to the temple, spreads the letter before the Lord, and makes a most affecting prayer, 14-19. Isaiah is sent to him to assure him that his prayer is heard; that Jerusalem shall be delivered; and that the Assyrians shall be destroyed, 20-34. That very night a messenger of God slays one hundred and eighty-five thousand Assyrians, 35. Sennacherib turns to Nineveh, and is slain by his own sons, 36, 37.

AND <sup>a</sup>it came to pass, when king Hezekiah heard it, that he rent his clothes, and covered himself with sackcloth and went into the house of the LORD.

2 And he sent Eliakim, which was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and the elders of the priests covered with sackcloth, to <sup>b</sup>Isaiah the prophet the son of Amoz.

3 And they said unto him, Thus saith Hezekiah, This day is a day of trouble, and of rebuke, and <sup>c</sup>blasphemy: for the children are come to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth.

4 <sup>d</sup>It may be the LORD thy God will hear all the words of Rab-shakeh, <sup>e</sup>whom the king of Assyria his master hath sent to reproach the living God; and will <sup>f</sup>reprove the words which the LORD thy God hath heard: wherefore lift up thy prayer for the remnant that are <sup>g</sup>left.

5 So the servants of king Hezekiah came to Isaiah.

6 <sup>h</sup>And Isaiah said unto them, Thus shall ye say to your master, Thus saith the LORD, Be not afraid of the words which thou hast heard, with which the <sup>i</sup>servants of the king of Assyria have blasphemed me.

7 Behold, I will send <sup>j</sup>a blast upon him, and he shall hear a rumour, and shall return to his own land; and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land.

8 So Rab-shakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria warring against Libnah: for he had heard that he was departed <sup>k</sup>from Lachish.

9 And <sup>l</sup>when he heard say of Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, Behold, he is come out to fight against thee: he sent messengers again unto Hezekiah, saying,

10 Thus shall ye speak to Hezekiah king of Judah, saying, Let not thy God <sup>m</sup>in whom thou trustest deceive thee, saying, Jerusalem shall not be delivered into the hand of the king of Assyria.

11 Behold, thou hast heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands by destroying them utterly: and shalt thou be delivered?

12 <sup>n</sup>Have the gods of the nations delivered them which my fathers have destroyed; as Gozan, and Harnam, and Rezepah, and the children of <sup>o</sup>Eden which were in Thelasar?

13 <sup>p</sup>Where is the king of Hamath, and the king of Arpad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, of Hena, and Ivah?

14 <sup>q</sup>And Hezekiah received the letter of the hand of the messengers, and read it: and Hezekiah went up into the house of the LORD, and spread it before the LORD.

15 And Hezekiah prayed before the LORD, and said, O LORD God of Israel, which dwellest between the cherubims, <sup>r</sup>thou art the God, even thou alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth; thou hast made heaven and earth.

16 LORD, bow down thine ear, and hear: <sup>s</sup>open, LORD, thine eyes, and see: and hear the words of Sennacherib, which hath sent him to reproach the living God.

17 Of a truth, LORD, the kings of Assyria have destroyed the nations and their lands.

18 And have <sup>t</sup>cast thy gods into the fire: for Verse 2. To Isaiah the prophet] His fame and influence were at this time great in Israel; and it was well known that the word of the Lord was with him. Here both the church and the state unite in fervent application to, and strong dependence upon, God; and behold how they succeed!

Verse 3. The children are come to the birth] The Jewish state is here represented under the emblem of a woman in travail, who has been so long in the pangs of parturition, that her strength is now entirely exhausted, and her deliverance is hopeless, without a miracle.

Verse 4. The remnant that are left] That is, the Jews; the ten tribes having been already carried away captive by the kings of Assyria.

Verse 7. Behold, I will send a blast—and he shall hear a rumour] The rumour was, that Tirhakah had invaded Assyria. The blast was that which slew one hundred and eighty-five thousand of them in one night; see ver. 35.

Cause him to fall by the sword] Alluding to his death by the hands of his two sons, at Nineveh.

Verse 8. Libnah—Lachish] These two places were not very distant from each other; they were in the mountains of Judah, southward of Jerusalem.

Verse 10. Let not thy God in whom thou trustest] This letter is nearly the same with the speech delivered by Rab-shakeh.

Verse 14. Spread it before the Lord] The temple was considered to be God's dwelling-place; and that whatever was there was peculiarly under his eye. Hezekiah spread the letter before the Lord, as he wished him to read the blasphemies spoken against himself.

Verse 15. Thou art the God, &c.] Thou art not only God of Israel, but God also of Assyria, and of all the nations of the world.

Verse 21. The virgin the daughter of Zion hath despised thee, and laughed thee to scorn; the daughter of Jerusalem hath shaken her head at thee] "So truly contemptible is thy power, and empty thy boasts, that even the young women of Jerusalem, under the guidance of Jehovah, shall be amply sufficient to discomfit all thy forces, and cause thee to return with shame to thine own country, where the most disgraceful death awaits thee." [The virgin personifies the city of Zion.]

they were no gods, but 'the work of men's hands, wood and stone: therefore they have destroyed them.

19 Now therefore, O LORD our God, I beseech thee, save thou us out of his hand, 'that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that thou art the LORD God, even thou only.

20 Then Isaiah the son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah, saying, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel. 'That which thou hast prayed to me against Sennacherib king of Assyria 'I have heard.

21 This is the word that the LORD hath spoken concerning him; The virgin 'the daughter of Zion hath despised thee, and laughed thee to scorn; the daughter of Jerusalem 'hath shaken her head at thee.

22 Whom hast thou reproached and blasphemed? and against whom hast thou exalted thy voice, and lifted up thine eyes on high? even against the 'Holy One of Israel.

23 'By 'thy messengers thou hast reproached the LORD, and hast said, 'With the multitude of my chariots I am come up to the height of the mountains, to the sides of Lebanon, and will cut down 'the tall cedar-trees thereof, and the choice fir-trees thereof: and I will enter into the lodgings of his borders, and into 'the forest of his Carmel.

24 I have digged and drunk strange waters, and with the sole of my feet have I dried up all the rivers of 'besieged places.

25 'Hast thou not heard long ago how 'I have done it, and of ancient times that I have formed it? now have I brought it to pass, that 'thou shouldst be to lay waste fenced cities into ruinous heaps:

Verse 23. The tall cedar-trees—the choice fir-trees] Probably meaning the princes and nobles of the country. The forest of his Carmel.] Better in the margin: the forest and his fruitful field.

Verse 24. I have digged and drunk strange waters] I have conquered strange countries, in which I have digged wells for my army; or I have gained the wealth of strange countries.

With the sole of my feet] My infantry have been so numerous that they alone have been sufficient to drink up the rivers of the places I have besieged.

Verse 25. Hast thou not heard] Here Jehovah speaks; and shows this boasting king that what he had done was done by the divine appointment; and that of his own counsel and might he could have done nothing.

Verse 26. I will put my hook in thy nose] This seems to be an allusion to the method of guiding a buffalo; he has a sort of ring put into his nose, to which a cord or bridle is attached, by which he can be turned to the right, or to the left, or round about, according to the pleasure of his driver.

Verse 27. This shall be a sign unto thee] To Hezekiah; for to him this part of the address is made.

Ye shall eat this year] Sennacherib had ravaged the country, and seed-time was now over, yet God shows them that he would so bless the land, that what should grow of itself that year would be quite sufficient to supply the inhabitants and prevent all famine; and though the second year was the sabbatical rest, or jubilee for the land, in which it was unlawful to plough or sow; yet even then the land, by an especial blessing of God, should bring forth a sufficiency for its inhabitants; and in the third year they should sow and plant, &c., and have abundance, &c. Now this was to be a sign to Hezekiah, that his deliverance had not been effected by natural or casual means; for as without a 26 Therefore their inhabitants were 'of small power, they were dismayed and confounded; they were as the grass of the field, and as the green herb, as 'the grass on the house tops, and as corn blasted before it be grown up.

27 But 'I know thy 'abode, and thy going out, and thy coming in, and thy rage against me.

28 Because thy rage against me and thy tumult is come, up into mine ears; therefore 'I will put my hook in thy nose, and my bridle in thy lips, and I will turn thee back 'by the way by which thou camest.

29 And this shall be 'a sign unto thee, Ye shall eat this year such things as grow of themselves, and in the second year that which springeth of the same; and in the third year sow ye, and reap, and plant vineyards, and eat the fruits thereof.

30 'And 'the remnant that is escaped of the house of Judah shall yet again take root downward, and bear fruit upward.

31 For out of Jerusalem shall go forth a remnant, and 'they that escape out of Mount Zion: 'the zeal of the LORD of hosts shall do this.

32 Therefore thus saith the LORD concerning the king of Assyria, He shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow there, nor come before it with shield, nor cast a bark against it.

33 By the way that he came, by the same shall he return, and shall not come into this city, saith the LORD.

34 For 'I will defend this city, to save it for mine own sake, and 'for my servant David's sake.

35 And 'it came to pass that night, that the angel of the LORD went out, and smote in the camp of the miracle the ravaged and uncultivated land could not yield food for its inhabitants, so not without miraculous interference could the Assyrian army be cut off and Israel saved.

Verse 30. The remnant—shall yet again take root] As your corn shall take root in the soil, and bring forth, and abundantly multiply, so shall the Jewish people; the population shall be greatly increased, and the desolations occasioned by the sword soon be forgotten.

Verse 31. Out of Jerusalem shall go forth a remnant] The Jews shall be so multiplied as not only to fill Jerusalem, but all the adjacent country.

And they that escape out of Mount Zion] Some think that this refers to the going forth of the apostles to the Gentile world, and converting the nations by the preaching of the gospel.

Verse 33. By the way that he came] Though his army shall not return, yet he shall return to Assyria; for because of his blasphemy, he is reserved for a more ignominious death.

Verse 35. That night] The very night after the blasphemous message had been sent, and this comfortable prophecy delivered. [It is more probable that the reference is here to the time when Sennacherib advanced to the siege of Jerusalem, which is to be placed two years after the sending of the message.]

The angel of the Lord went out] I believe this angel or messenger of the Lord was simply a suffocating or pestilential WIND; by which the Assyrian army was destroyed, as in a moment, without noise, confusion, or any warning.

When they arose early] That is, Sennacherib, and probably a few associates, who were preserved as witnesses and relaters of this most dire disaster. Rab-shakeh, no doubt, perished with the rest of the army.

36 So Sennacherib king of Assyria departed, and went and returned, and dwelt at Nineveh.

Verse 36. Dwelt at Nineveh] This was the capital of the Assyrian empire.

Verse 37. Nisroch his god] We know nothing of this deity; he is nowhere else mentioned.

37 And it came to pass, as he was worshipping in the house of Nisroch his god, that <sup>b</sup>Adrammelech and Sharezer <sup>c</sup>his sons smote him with the sword: and they escaped into the land of <sup>d</sup>Armenia. And <sup>e</sup>Esarhaddon his son reigned in his stead.

Smote him with the sword] The rabbins say that his sons had learned that he intended to sacrifice them to this god, and that they could only prevent this by slaying him.

CHAPTER XX.

Hezekiah's sickness, and the message of the prophet to him, to prepare for death, 1. His distress and prayer to God, 2, 3. The Lord hears, and promises to add fifteen years to his life, and Isaiah prescribes a means of cure, 4-7. Hezekiah seeks a sign; and, to assure him of the truth of God's promise, the shadow on the dial of Ahaz goes back ten degrees, 8-11. The king of Babylon sends a friendly message to Hezekiah, to congratulate him on his recovery; and to these messengers he ostentatiously shows all his treasures, 12, 13. Isaiah reproves him, and foretells that the Babylonians will come and take away all those treasures, and take the people into captivity; and degrade the royal family of Judah, 14-18. Hezekiah bows to the divine judgment, 19. His acts and death, 20, 21.

IN <sup>a</sup>those days was Hezekiah sick unto death. And the prophet Isaiah the son of Amoz came to him, and said unto him, Thus saith the LORD, <sup>b</sup>Set thine house in order; for thou shalt die, and not live.

2 Then he turned his face to the wall, and prayed unto the LORD, saying,

3 I beseech thee, O LORD, <sup>c</sup>remember now how I have <sup>d</sup>walked before thee in truth and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thy sight. And Hezekiah wept <sup>e</sup>sore.

4 And it came to pass, afore Isaiah was gone out into the middle <sup>f</sup>court, that the word of the LORD came to him, saying,

Verse 1. Set thine house in order] It appears from the text that he was smitten with such a disorder as must terminate in death, without the miraculous interposition of God: and he is now commanded to set his house in order, or to give charge concerning his house; to dispose of his affairs, or, in our words, to make his will; because his death was at hand.

That Hezekiah's sickness happened before the destruction of Sennacherib's army, is asserted by the text itself: see ver. 6.

Verse 3. I beseech thee, O Lord] Hezekiah knew that, although the words of Isaiah were delivered to him in an absolute form, yet they were to be conditionally understood; else he could not have prayed to God to reverse a purpose which he knew to be irrevocable.

Hezekiah pleads his uprightness and holy conduct in his own behalf. Was it impious to do so? No; but it certainly did not savour much either of humility, or of a due sense of his own weakness. If he had a perfect heart, who made it such?—God. If he did good in God's sight, who enabled him to do so?—God. Could he therefore plead in his behalf dispositions and actions which he could neither have felt nor practised but by the power of the grace of God? I trow not. But the times of this ignorance God winked at. The gospel teaches us a different lesson.

Wept sore.] How clouded must his prospects of another world have been! But it is said that, as he saw the nation in danger from the Assyrian army which was then invading

5 Turn again, and tell Hezekiah <sup>a</sup>the captain of my people, Thus saith the LORD, the God of David thy father, <sup>b</sup>I have heard thy prayer, I have seen <sup>c</sup>thy tears: behold, I will heal thee: on the third day thou shalt go up unto the house of the LORD.

6 And I will add unto thy days fifteen years; and I will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of Assyria; and <sup>d</sup>I will defend this city for mine own sake, and for my servant David's sake.

7 And <sup>e</sup>Isaiah said, Take a lump of figs. And they took and laid it on the boil, and he recovered.

8 And Hezekiah said unto Isaiah, <sup>f</sup>What shall be it, and threatened to destroy the religion of the true God, he was greatly affected at the news of his death, as he wished to live to see the enemies of God overthrown.

Verse 6. I will add unto thy days fifteen years] This is the first and only man who was ever informed of the term of his life. And was this a privilege? Surely no. If Hezekiah was attached to life, as he appears to have been, how must his mind be affected to mark the sinking years! He must necessarily feel a thousand deaths in fearing one. I believe there would be nothing wanting to complete the misery of men, except the place of torment, were they informed of the precise time in which their lives must terminate. God, in his abundant mercy, has hidden this from their eyes.

Verse 7. Take a lump of figs—and laid it on the boil] We cannot exactly say in what Hezekiah's malady consisted. Shechin signifies any inflammatory tumor, boil, abscess, &c. The Versions translate it sore, wound, and such like. Some think it was a pleurisy; others, that it was the plague; others, the elephantiasis; and others, that it was a quinsy. A poultice of figs might be very proper to mature a boil, or to discuss any obstinate inflammatory swelling. But we cannot pronounce on the propriety of the application, unless we were certain of the nature of the malady. This, however, was the natural means which God chose to bless to the recovery of Hezekiah's health; and without this interposition he must have died.

Verse 8. What shall be the sign] He wished to be fully the sign that the LORD will heal me, and that I shall go up unto the house of the LORD the third day?

9 And Isaiah said, 'This sign shalt thou have of the LORD, that the LORD will do the thing that he hath spoken: shall the shadow go forward ten degrees, or go back ten degrees?

10 And Hezekiah answered, It is a light thing for the shadow to go down ten degrees: nay, but let the shadow return backward ten degrees.

11 And Isaiah the prophet cried unto the LORD: and <sup>b</sup> he brought the shadow ten degrees backward, by which it had gone down in the <sup>c</sup> dial of Ahaz.

12 <sup>d</sup> At that time <sup>e</sup> Berodach-baladan, the son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and a present unto Hezekiah: for he had heard that Hezekiah had been sick.

13 And <sup>f</sup> Hezekiah hearkened unto them, and shewed them all the house of his <sup>g</sup> precious things, the silver, and the gold, and the spices, and the precious ointment, and all the house of his <sup>h</sup> armour, and all that was found in his treasures: there was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominion, that Hezekiah shewed them not.

14 Then came Isaiah the prophet unto king Hezekiah, and said unto him, What said these men? and from whence came they unto thee? And Hezekiah said, They are come from a far country, even from Babylon.

15 And he said, What have they seen in thine house? And Hezekiah answered, <sup>i</sup> All the things that are in mine house have they seen: there is nothing among my treasures that I have not shewed them.

16 And Isaiah said unto Hezekiah, Hear the word of the LORD.

17 Behold, the days come, that all that is in thine house, and that which thy fathers have laid up in store unto this day, <sup>k</sup> shall be carried into Babylon: nothing shall be left, saith the LORD.

18 And of thy sons that shall issue from thee, which thou shalt beget, <sup>l</sup> shall they take away; and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.

19 Then said Hezekiah unto Isaiah, <sup>m</sup> Good is the word of the LORD which thou hast spoken. And he said, <sup>n</sup> Is it not good, if peace and truth be in my days?

20 <sup>p</sup> And the rest of the acts of Hezekiah, and all his might, and how he <sup>q</sup> made a pool, and a conduit, and <sup>r</sup> brought water into the city, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah.

21 And Hezekiah slept with his fathers: and Manasseh his son reigned in his stead.

convinced that his cure was to be entirely supernatural.

Verse 11. He brought the shadow ten degrees backward] We cannot suppose that these ten degrees meant ten hours; there were ten divisions of time on this dial: and perhaps it would not be right to suppose that the sun went ten degrees back in the heavens, or that the earth turned back upon its axis from east to west, in a contrary direction to its natural course. But the miracle might be effected by means of refraction, for a ray of light we know can be varied or refracted from a right line by passing through a dense medium; and we know also, by means of the refracting power of the atmosphere, the sun, when near rising and setting, seems to be higher above the horizon than he really is; and, by horizontal refraction, we find that the sun appears above the horizon when he is actually below it, and literally out of sight: therefore, by using dense clouds or vapours, the rays of light in that place might be refracted from their direct course ten, or any other number of degrees; so that the miracle might have been wrought by occasioning this extraordinary refraction, rather than by disturbing the course of the earth, or any other of the celestial bodies.

Verse 12. At that time Berodach-Baladan] He is called Merodach-baladan, Isa. xxxix. 1, which is the true reading.

Sent letters and a present] It appears that there was friendship between the king of Babylon and Hezekiah, when the latter and the Assyrians were engaged in a destructive war. The king of Babylon had not only heard of his sickness, but he had heard of the miracle; as we learn from 2 Chron. xxxii. 31.

Verse 13. Hezekiah hearkened unto them] Instead of vaiyishma, he hearkened, vaiyishmach, he rejoiced or was glad, is the reading of twelve of Kennicott's and De Rossi's MSS., the parallel place, Isa. xxxix. 2, the Septuagint, Syriac, Vulgate, Arabic, some copies of the Targum, and the Babylonian Talmud.

All the house of his precious things] Interpreters are not well agreed about the meaning of the original which we here translate precious things, and in the margin spicery or jewels. I suppose the last to be meant. [Or better still, his treasure-house.]

There was nothing in his house] He showed them, through a spirit of folly and exultation, all his treasures, and no doubt those in the house of the Lord.

Verse 17. Behold, the days come] This was fulfilled in the days of the latter Jewish kings, when the Babylonians had led the people away into captivity, and stripped the land, the temple, &c., of all their riches.

Verse 18. They shall be eunuchs] Perhaps this means no more than that they should become household servants to the kings of Babylon.

Verse 19. Good is the word of the Lord] He has spoken right, I have done foolishly. I submit to his judgments.

Is it not good if truth and peace be in my days?] I believe Hezekiah inquires whether there shall be peace and truth in his days. And the question seems to be rather of an interested nature. He does not appear to deplore the calamities that were coming on the land, provided peace and truth might prevail in his days.

Verse 20. The rest of the acts of Hezekiah] See the parallel places in Isaiah and in 2 Chronicles.

CHAPTER XXI.

Manasseh succeeds his father Hezekiah, reigns fifty-five years, and fills Jerusalem and the whole land with abominable idolatry and murder, 1-9. God denounces the heaviest judgments against him and the land, 10-15. Manasseh's acts and death, 16-18. Amon his son succeeds him, and reigns two years; is equally profligate with his father; is slain by his servants, and buried in the garden of Uzza; and Josiah his son reigns in his stead, 19-26.

MANASSEH <sup>1</sup>was twelve years old when he began to reign, and reigned fifty and five years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Hephzi-bah.

2 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, <sup>2</sup>after the abominations of the heathen, whom the LORD cast out before the children of Israel.

3 For he built up again the high places <sup>3</sup>which Hezekiah his father had destroyed; and he reared up altars for Baal, and made a grove, <sup>4</sup>as did Ahab king of Israel; and <sup>5</sup>he worshipped all the host of heaven, and served them.

4 And <sup>6</sup>he built altars in the house of the LORD, of which the LORD said, <sup>7</sup>In Jerusalem will I put my name.

5 And he built altars for all the host of heaven in the two courts of the house of the LORD.

6 <sup>8</sup>And he made his son pass through the fire, and observed <sup>9</sup>times, and used enchantments, and dealt with familiar spirits and wizards: he wrought much wickedness in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger.

7 And he set a graven image of the grove that he had made in the house, of which the LORD said to David, and to Solomon his son, <sup>10</sup>In this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all tribes of Israel, will I put my name for ever:

8 <sup>11</sup>Neither will I make the feet of Israel move any more out of the land which I gave their fathers; only if they will observe to do according to all that I have commanded them, and according to all the law that my servant Moses commanded them.

9 But they hearkened not: and Manasseh <sup>12</sup>seduced them to do more evil than did the nations whom the LORD destroyed before the children of Israel.

10 And the LORD spake by his servants the prophets, saying,

11 <sup>13</sup>Because Manasseh king of Judah hath done these abominations, <sup>14</sup>and hath done wickedly above all that the Amorites did, which were before him, and <sup>15</sup>hath made Judah also to sin with his idols:

12 Therefore thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Behold, I am bringing such evil upon Jerusalem and Judah, that whosoever heareth of it, both <sup>16</sup>his ears shall tingle.

13 And I will stretch over Jerusalem <sup>17</sup>the line of Samaria, and the plummet of the house of Ahab: and I will wipe Jerusalem as a man wipeth a dish, <sup>18</sup>wiping it, and turning it upside down.

14 And I will forsake the remnant of mine inheritance, and deliver them into the hand of their enemies; and they shall become a prey and a spoil to all their enemies;

15 Because they have done that which was evil in my sight, and have provoked me to anger, since the day their fathers came forth out of Egypt even unto this day.

16 <sup>19</sup>Moreover Manasseh shed innocent blood very much, till he had filled Jerusalem <sup>20</sup>from one end to another; beside his sin wherewith he made Judah to sin, in doing that which was evil in the sight of the LORD.

Verse 1. Manasseh was twelve years old] He was born about three years after his father's miraculous cure; he was carried captive to Babylon, repented, was restored to his kingdom, put down idolatry, and died at the age of sixty-seven years.

Verse 2. After the abominations of the heathen] He exactly copied the conduct of those nations which God had cast out of that land.

Verse 3. Made a grove] He made Asherah, the Babylonian Melitta or Roman Venus.

Worshipped all the host of heaven] All the stars and planets, but particularly the sun and the moon.

Verse 4. Built altars] He placed idolatrous altars even in the temple.

Verse 6. Made his son pass through the fire] Consecrated him to Moloch.

Observed times] He practised divination by the clouds; by observing their course at particular times, their different kinds, contrary directions, &c., &c.

Used enchantments] Incantations, spells, and charms.

Dealt with familiar spirits] He was a necromancer; was a raiser of spirits, whom he endeavoured to press into his service; he had a Python.

And wizards] Knowing ones, the white witches, and such like; see on Lev. xix. 26-31, where most of these terms are particularly explained and illustrated.

Verse 7. He set a graven image of the grove that he had made in the house] Every one may see that Asherah here must signify an idol, and not a grove.

Verse 8. Neither will I make the feet of Israel] Had they been faithful to God's testimonies they never had gone into captivity, and should even at this day have been in possession of the promised land.

Verse 9. Seduced them to do more evil] He did all he could to pervert the national character, and totally destroy the worship of the true God; and he succeeded.

Verse 10. The Lord spake by—the prophets] The prophets were Hosea, Joel, Nahum, Habakkuk, and Isaiah.

These five following verses contain the sum of what these prophets spoke. It is said that Isaiah not only prophesied in those days, but also that he was put to death by Manasseh, being sawn asunder by a wooden saw.

Verse 12. Both his ears shall tingle.] This is the consequence of having the ears suddenly pierced with a loud and shrill noise; the ears seem to ring for some time after. The prophets spoke to them vehemently, so that the sound seemed to be continued even when they had left off speaking.

Verse 13. The line of Samaria] I will treat Jerusalem as I have treated Samaria. Samaria was taken, pillaged, ruined, and its inhabitants led into captivity; Jerusalem shall have the same measure.

And the plummet of the house of Ahab] Jerusalem shall have the same weight as well as the same measure as Samaria, because it has copied all the abominations which brought that kingdom to total destruction.

I will wipe Jerusalem as a man wipeth a dish] This is a metaphor taken from the ancient method of writing; they traced their letters with a stile on boards thinly spread over with wax; for this purpose one end of the stile was sharp, the other end blunt and smooth, with which they could rub out what they had written, and so smooth the place and spread back the wax, as to render it capable of receiving any other word. But the idea of emptying out and wiping a dish expresses the same meaning equally well. Jerusalem shall be emptied of all its wealth, and of all its inhabitants, as truly as a dish turned up is emptied of all its contents; and it shall be turned upside down, never to be filled again.

Verse 14. I will forsake the remnant of mine inheritance] One part (the ten tribes) was already forsaken, and carried into captivity; the remnant (the tribe of Judah) was now about to be forsaken.

Verse 16. Shed innocent blood very much] Like the deities he worshipped, he was fierce and cruel; an unprincipled and merciless tyrant; he slew innocent people and God's prophets.

17 Now *the rest of the acts of Manasseh, and all that he did, and his sin that he sinned, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

18 *And Manasseh slept with his fathers, and was buried in the garden of his own house, in the garden of Uzza; and Amon his son reigned in his stead.

19 *Amon was twenty and two years old when he began to reign, and he reigned two years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Meshullemoth, the daughter of Haruz of Jotbah.

Verse 18. In the garden of his own house] It was probably a burying-place made for his own family, for Amon his son is said to be buried in the same place, ver. 26.

Verse 19. He reigned two years in Jerusalem.] The sons of those kings who were idolaters, and who succeeded their fathers, seldom reigned more than two years. So Nadab, the son of Jeroboam, 1 Kings xv. 25; Elah, the son of Baasha, 1 Kings xvi. 8; Ahaziah, the son of Ahab, 1 Kings walked in, and served the idols that his father served, and worshipped them:

22 And he *forsook the LORD God of his fathers, and walked not in the way of the LORD.

23 *And the servants of Amon conspired against him, and slew the king in his own house.

24 And the people of the land slew all them that had conspired against king Amon; and the people of the land made Josiah his son king in his stead;

25 Now the rest of the acts of Amon which he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

Verse 23. The servants of Amon conspired] What their reason was for slaying their king we cannot tell. It does not seem to have been a popular act, for the people of the land rose up and slew the regicides.

Verse 26. The garden of Uzza] The family sepulchre or burying-place.

CHAPTER XXII.

Josiah succeeds Amon his father, and reigns thirty-one years, 1, 2. He repairs the breaches of the temple, 3-7. Hilkiah finds the book of the law in the temple, 8. It is read by Shaphan the scribe, before the king and his servants, 9, 10. The king, greatly affected, sends to inquire of Huldah the prophetess, 11-13. She delivers an afflictive prophecy concerning the evils that were coming upon the land, 14-17. But promises Josiah that these evils shall not come in his time, 18-20.

JOSIAH *was eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned thirty and one years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jedidah, the daughter of Adaiah of <sup>b</sup>Boscath.

2 And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, and walked in all the way of David his father, and *turned not aside to the right hand or to the left.

3 *And it came to pass in the eighteenth year of king Josiah, that the king sent Shaphan the son of Azaliah, the son of Meshullam, the scribe, to the house of the LORD, saying,

4 Go up to Hilkiah the high-priest, that he may sum the silver which is *brought into the house of the LORD, which 'the keepers of the *doors have gathered of the people:

* 2 Chron. xxxiv. 1.—* Josh. xv. 89.—* Deut. v. 32.—* 2 Chron. xxxiv. 8, &c.—* Ch. xii. 4.—* Ch. 89. Ps. lxxiv. 10.—* Heb.

Verse 1. Josiah was eight years old] He was one of the best, if not the best, of all the Jewish kings since the time of David. He began well, continued well, and ended well.

Verse 4. That he may sum the silver] As Josiah began to seek the Lord as soon as he began to reign, we may naturally conclude that the worship of God that was neglected and suppressed by his father, was immediately restored; and the people began their accustomed offerings to the temple. Ten years, therefore, had elapsed since these offerings began; no one had, as yet, taken account of them; nor were they applied to the use for which they were given, viz., the repairing the breaches of the temple.

Verse 8. I have found the book of the law] Was this the autograph of Moses? It is very probable that it was, for in the parallel place, 2 Chron. xxxiv. 14, it is said to be the 5 And let them <sup>b</sup>deliver it into the hand of the doers of the work, that have the oversight of the house of the LORD: and let them give it to the doers of the work which is in the house of the LORD, to repair the breaches of the house.

6 Unto carpenters, and builders, and masons, and to buy timber and hewn stones to repair the house.

7 Howbeit 'there was no reckoning made with them of the money that was delivered into their hand, because they dealt faithfully.

8 And Hilkiah the high-priest said unto Shaphan the scribe, 'I have found the book of the law in the house of the LORD. And Hilkiah gave the book to Shaphan, and he read it.

9 And Shaphan the scribe came to the king, and brought the king word again, and said, Thy servants book of the law of the Lord by Moses. It is supposed to be that part of Deuteronomy (xxviii., xxix., xxx., and xxxi.) which contains the renewing of the covenant in the plains of Moab, and the most terrible invectives against the corrupters of God's word and worship.

It is scarcely reasonable to suppose that this was the only copy of the law that was found in Judea. Manasseh endeavoured after his conversion to restore every part of the divine worship, and in this he could have done nothing without the Pentateuch; and the succeeding reign of Amon was too short to give him opportunity to undo every thing that his penitent father had reformed. Add to all these considerations, that, in the time of Jehoshaphat, teaching from the law was universal in the land, for he set on foot an itinerant ministry, in order to instruct the people fully; have gathered the money that was found in the house, and have delivered it into the hand of them that do the work, that have the oversight of the house of the LORD.

10 And Shaphan the scribe shewed the king, saying, Hilkiah the priest has delivered me a book. And Shaphan read it before the king.

11 And it came to pass, when the king had heard the words of the book of the law, that he rent his clothes.

12 And the king commanded Hilkiah the priest, and Ahikam the son of Shaphan, and Achbor the son of Michaiah, and Shaphan the scribe, and Asahiah a servant of the king, saying,

13 Go ye, inquire of the LORD for me, and for the people, and for all Judah, concerning the words of this book that is found: for great is the wrath of the LORD that is kindled against us, because our fathers have not hearkened unto the words of this book, to do according unto all that which is written concerning us.

14 So Hilkiah the priest, and Ahikam, and Achbor, and Shaphan, and Asahiah, went unto Huldah the prophetess, the wife of Shallum the son of Tikvah, the son of Harhas, keeper of the wardrobe; (now she dwelt in Jerusalem in the college;) and they communed with her.

see 2 Chron. xvii. 7-9. And if there be anything wanting to show the improbability of the thing, it must be this, that the transactions mentioned here took place in the eighteenth year of the reign of Josiah, who had, from the time he came to the throne, employed himself in the restoration of the pure worship of God; and it is not likely that during these eighteen years he was without a copy of the Pentateuch. The simple fact seems to be this, that this was the original of the covenant renewed by Moses with the people in the plains of Moab, and which he ordered to be laid up beside the ark (Deut. xxxi. 26); and now being unexpectedly found, its antiquity, the occasion of its being made, the present circumstances of the people, the imperfect state in which the reformation was as yet, after all that had been done, would all concur to produce the effect here mentioned on the mind of the pious Josiah.

Verse 14. Went unto Huldah the prophetess] At this time Jeremiah was certainly a prophet in Israel, but it is likely he now dwelt at Anathoth, and could not be readily consulted; Zephaniah also prophesied under this reign, but probably he had not yet begun; Hilkiah was high-priest, and the priest's lips should retain knowledge. Shaphan was scribe, and must have been conversant in sacred affairs to have been at all fit for his office; and yet Huldah, a prophetess, of whom we know nothing but by this circumstance, is consulted on the meaning of the book of the law; for the secret of the Lord was neither with Hilkiah the high-priest, Shaphan the scribe, nor any other of the servants of the king or ministers of the temple! We find from this, and we have many facts in all ages to corroborate it, that a pontiff, a pope, a bishop, or a priest, may, in some cases, not possess the true knowledge of God; and that a simple woman, possessing the life of God in her soul, may have

15 And she said unto them, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Tell the man that sent you to me,

16 Thus saith the LORD, Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof, even all the words of the book which the king of Judah hath read:

17 Because they have forsaken me, and have burned incense unto other gods, that they might provoke me to anger with all the works of their hands; therefore my wrath shall be kindled against this place, and shall not be quenched.

18 But to the king of Judah which sent you to inquire of the LORD, thus shall ye say to him, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, As touching the words which thou hast heard;

19 Because thine heart was tender, and thou hast humbled thyself before the LORD, when thou heardest what I spake against this place, and against the inhabitants thereof, that they should become a desolation and a curse, and hast rent thy clothes, and wept before me; I also have heard thee, saith the LORD.

20 Behold therefore, I will gather thee unto thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered into thy grave in peace; and thine eyes shall not see all the evil which I will bring upon this place. And they brought the king word again.

more knowledge of the divine testimonies than many of those whose office it is to explain and enforce them.

Verse 17. My wrath shall be kindled] The decree is gone forth; Jerusalem shall be delivered into the hands of its enemies; the people will revolt more and more; towards them long-suffering is useless; the wrath of God is kindled, and shall not be quenched. This was a dreadful message.

Verse 19. Because thine heart was tender] Because thou hast feared the Lord and trembled at his word, and hast wept before me, I have heard thee so far that these evils shall not come upon the land in thy life-time.

Verse 20. Thou shalt be gathered into thy grave in peace] But was Josiah gathered to the grave in peace? Is it not said, chap. xxiii. 29, that Pharaoh-necho slew him at Megiddo? On this we may remark that the Assyrians and the Jews were at peace; that Josiah might feel it his duty to oppose the Egyptian king going against his friend and ally, and endeavour to prevent him from passing through his territories; and that in his endeavours to oppose him he was mortally wounded at Megiddo: but certainly was not killed there; for his servants put him in his second chariot and brought him to Jerusalem, where he died in peace. See 2 Chron. xxxv. 24. So that, however we take the place here, we shall find that the words of Huldah were true: he did die in peace, and was gathered to his fathers in peace.

It seems as if the Egyptian king had brought his troops by sea to Cæsarea, and wished to cross the Jordan about the southern point of the sea of Tiberias, that he might get as speedily as possible into the Assyrian dependencies; and that he took this road, for God, as he said, had commanded him to make haste.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Josiah reads in the temple to the elders of Judah, the priests, the prophets, and the people, the book of the covenant which had been found, 1, 2. He makes a covenant, and the people stand to it, 3. He destroys the vessels of Baal and Asherah, and puts down the idolatrous priests; breaks down the houses of the sodomites, and the high places; defiles Topheth; takes away the horses of the sun; destroys the altars of Ahas; breaks in pieces the images; and breaks down and burns Jeroboam's altar at Beth-el, 4-15. Fulfills the word of the prophet, who cried against the altar at Beth-el, 16-18. Destroys the high places in Samaria, slays the idolatrous priests, and celebrates a great passover, 19-23; and puts away all the dealers with familiar spirits, &c., 24. His eminent character; he is mortally wounded at Megiddo, and buried at Jerusalem, 25-30. Jehoahaz reigns in his stead, and does evil in the sight of the Lord, 31, 32. Is dethroned by Pharaoh-nechoh; and Eliahim his brother, called also Jehoiakim, made king in his stead; the land is laid under tribute by the king of Egypt, and Jehoiakim reigns wickedly, 33-37.

AND the king sent, and they gathered unto him all the elders of Judah and of Jerusalem.

2 And the king went up into the house of the LORD, and all the men of Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem with him, and the priests, and the prophets, and all the people, both small and great: and he read in their ears all the words of the book of the covenant which was found in the house of the LORD.

3 And the king stood by a pillar, and made a covenant before the LORD, to walk after the LORD, and to keep his commandments and his testimonies and his statutes with all their heart and all their soul, to perform the words of this covenant that were written in this book. And all the people stood to the covenant.

4 And the king commanded Hilkiah the high-priest, and the priests of the second order, and the keepers of the door, to bring forth out of the temple of the LORD all the vessels that were made for Baal, and for the grove, and for all the host of heaven: and he burned them without Jerusalem in the fields of Kidron, and carried the ashes of them unto Beth-el.

5 And he put down the idolatrous priests, whom the kings of Judah had ordained to burn incense in the high places in the cities of Judah, and in the places round about Jerusalem; them also that burned incense unto Baal, to the sun, and to the moon, and to the planets, and to all the host of heaven.

6 And he brought out the grove from the house of the LORD, without Jerusalem, unto the brook Kidron, and burned it at the brook Kidron, and stamped it small to powder, and cast the powder thereof upon the graves of the children of the people.

7 And he brake down the houses of the sodomites, that were by the house of the LORD, where the women wove hangings for the grove.

8 And he brought all the priests out of the cities of Judah, and defiled the high places where the priests had burned incense, from Geba to Beer-sheba, and brake down the high places of the gates that were in the entering in of the gate of Joshua the governor of the city, which were on a man's left hand at the gate of the city.

9 Nevertheless the priests of the high places came not up to the altar of the LORD in Jerusalem, but they did eat of the unleavened bread among their brethren.

10 And he defiled Topheth, which is in the valley of the children of Hinnom, that no man might make his son or his daughter to pass through the fire to Molech.

Verse 2. The king went up into the house of the Lord] Here is another very singular circumstance. The high-priest, scribes, priest, and prophets are gathered together, with all the elders of the people, and the king himself reads the book of the covenant which had been lately found! It is likely that the king considered himself a mediator between God and them, and therefore read and made the covenant.

Verse 3. Stood by a pillar] Upon the stairs or pulpit. This is what is called the brazen scaffold or pulpit which Solomon made, and on which the kings were accustomed to stand when they addressed the people.

Made a covenant] This was expressed, 1. In general. To walk after Jehovah; to have no gods besides him. 2. To take his law for the regulation of their conduct. 3. In particular. To bend their whole heart and soul to the observance of it, so that they might not only have religion without, but piety within. To this all the people stood up, thus giving their consent, and binding themselves to obedience.

Verse 4. The priests of the second order] These were probably such as supplied the place of the high-priest when he was prevented from fulfilling the functions of his office. But the words may refer to those of the second course or order established by David: though it does not appear that those orders were now in use, yet the distinction was continued even to the time of our Lord.

All the vessels] These had been used for idolatrous purposes; the king is now to destroy them; for although no longer used in this way, they might, if permitted to remain, be an incentive to idolatry at a future time.

Verse 5. The idolatrous priests] Probably they were an order made by the idolatrous kings of Judah, and called kemarim, from camar, which signifies to be scorched, shrivelled together, made dark or black, because their business was constantly to attend sacrificial fires, and probably they wore black garments; hence the Jews in derision call Christian ministers kemarim, because of their black clothes and garments. [It has been clearly shown that in ancient times priests of idols and high places wore white robes.]

Unto Baal, to the sun] Though Baal was certainly the sun, yet here they are distinguished; Baal being worshipped under different forms and attributes, Baal-peor, Baal-zephon, Baal-zebub, &c.

The planets] The Vulgate translate this the twelve signs, i.e. the zodiac. This is as likely as any of the other conjectures which have been published relative to this word.

Verse 6. He brought out the grove] He brought out the idol Asherah.

Upon the graves of the children of the people] I believe this means the burial-place of the common people.

Verse 7. The houses of the sodomites] The word implies all kinds of prostitutes, as well as abusers of themselves with mankind.

Wove hangings for the grove] For Asherah; curtains or tent coverings for the places where the rites of the impure goddess were performed.

Verse 8. The gate of Joshua] The place where he, as governor of the city, heard and decided causes. Near this we find there were public altars, where sometimes the true God, at other times false gods, were honoured.

Verse 9. The priests of the high places came not up] As these priests had offered sacrifices on the high places, though it was to the true God, yet they were not thought proper to be employed immediately about the temple; but as they were acknowledged to belong to the priesthood, they had a right to their support; therefore a portion of the tithes, offerings, and unleavened bread, shew-bread, &c., was appointed to them for their support.

Verse 10. He defiled Topheth] The valley of the son of Hinnom, or Gehenna, was in one part; here it appears the sacred rites of Molech were performed, and to this all the filth of the city was carried, and perpetual fires were kept up in order to consume it. Hence it has been considered a type of hell; and in this sense it is used in the New Testament.

11 And he took away the horses that the kings of Judah had given to the sun, at the entering in of the house of the LORD, by the chamber of Nathan-melech the <sup>a</sup> chamberlain, which was in the suburbs, and burned the chariots of the sun with fire.

12 And the altars that were <sup>b</sup> on the top of the upper chamber of Ahaz, which the kings of Judah had made, and the altars which <sup>c</sup> Manassch had made in the two courts of the house of the LORD, did the king beat down, and <sup>d</sup> brake them down from thence, and cast the dust of them into the brook Kidron.

13 And the high places that were before Jerusalem, which were on the right hand of <sup>e</sup> the mount of corruption, which <sup>f</sup> Solomon the king of Israel had builded for Ashtoreth the abomination of the Zidonians, and for Chemosh the abomination of the Moabites, and for Milcom the abomination of the children of Ammon, did the king defile.

14 And he <sup>g</sup> brake in pieces the <sup>h</sup> images, and cut down the groves, and filled their places with the bones of men.

15 Moreover the altar that was at Beth-el, and the high place <sup>i</sup> which Jeroboam the son of Nebat who made Israel to sin, had made, both that altar and the high place he brake down, and burned the high place, and stamped it small to powder, and burned the grove.

16 And as Josiah turned himself, he spied the sepulchres that were there in the mount, and sent, and took the bones out of the sepulchres, and burned them upon the altar, and polluted it, according to the <sup>j</sup> word of the LORD which the man of God proclaimed, who proclaimed these words.

17 Then he said, What title is that that I see? And the men of the city told him, It is <sup>k</sup> the sepulchre of the man of God, which came from Judah, and proclaimed these things that thou hast done against the altar of Beth-el.

18 And he said, Let him alone; let no man move his bones. So they let his bones <sup>l</sup> alone, with the bones of <sup>m</sup> the prophet that came out of Samaria.

19 And all the houses also of the high places that were <sup>n</sup> in the cities of Samaria, which the kings of Israel had made to provoke the LORD to anger, Josiah took away, and did to them according to all the acts that he had done in Beth-el.

20 And <sup>o</sup> he <sup>p</sup> slew all the priests of the high places that were there upon the altars, and <sup>q</sup> burned men's bones upon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

21 And the king commanded all the people, saying, <sup>r</sup> Keep the passover unto the LORD your God, <sup>s</sup> as it is written in the book of this covenant.

22 Surely <sup>t</sup> there was not holden such a passover from the days of the judges that judged Israel, nor in all the days of the kings of Israel, nor of the kings of Judah;

23 But in the eighteenth year of king Josiah, wherein this passover was holden to the LORD in Jerusalem.

24 Moreover <sup>u</sup> the workers with familiar spirits, and the wizards, and the <sup>v</sup> images, and the idols, and all the abominations that were spied in the land of Judah and in Jerusalem, did Josiah put away, that he might perform the words of <sup>w</sup> the law which were written in the book that Hilkiah the priest found in the house of the LORD.

25 <sup>x</sup> And like unto him was there no king before him, that turned to the LORD with all his heart, and with all his soul, and with all his might, according to all the law of Moses; neither after him arose there <sup>y</sup> any like him.

26 Notwithstanding the LORD turned not from the fierceness of his great wrath, wherewith his anger was kindled against Judah, <sup>z</sup> because of all the <sup>aa</sup> provocations that Manassch had provoked him withal.

27 And the LORD said, I will remove Judah also out of my sight, as <sup>bb</sup> I have removed Israel, and will cast off this city Jerusalem which I have chosen, and the house of which I said, <sup>cc</sup> My name shall be there.

It is here said that Josiah defiled this place that no man might make his son or his daughter to pass through the fire. He destroyed the image of Molech, and so polluted the place where he stood, or his temple, that it was rendered in every way abominable.

Verse 11. The horses that the kings of Judah had given to the sun] Throughout the East the horse, because of his swiftness and utility, was dedicated to the sun; and the Greeks and Romans feigned that the chariot of the sun was drawn by four horses.

Whether these were living or sculptured horses, we cannot tell; the latter is the more reasonable supposition.

Verse 12. On the top of the upper chamber] Altars built on the flat roof of the house. Such altars were erected to the sun, moon, stars, &c.

Verse 13. Mount of corruption] This was the Mount of Olives, for this is the mount hammishchah, of unction; but because of the idolatrous purposes for which it was used, the scripture changed the appellation to the mount hammashchith, of corruption.

Verse 14. Filled their places with the bones of men.] This was allowed to be the utmost defilement to which any thing could be exposed.

Verse 16. And as Josiah turned himself] This verse is much more complete in the Septuagint, and in the Hecaplar Syriac Version at Paris.

Verse 17. What title is that] There was either a stone, an image, or an inscription here: the old prophet no doubt took care to have the place made sufficiently remarkable.

Verse 19. That were in the cities of Samaria] Israel had now no king; and Josiah, of the blood royal of Judah, had certainly a direct right to the kingdom; he had, at this time, an especial commission from God, to reform every abuse through the whole land—all that ground that was given by the Lord as an inheritance to the twelve sons of Jacob. Therefore he had every right to carry his plans of reformation into the Samaritan states.

Verse 20. Slew all the priests] The lives of these, as corrupters of the people, were forfeited to the law.

Verse 22. Surely there was not holden such a passover] Not one on purer principles, more heartily joined in by the people present, more literally consecrated, or more religiously observed. The words do not apply to the number present, but to the manner and spirit.

Verse 25. Like unto him was there no king] Perhaps not one from the time of David; and, morally considered, including David himself, none ever set on the Jewish throne, so truly exemplary in his own conduct, and so thoroughly zealous in the work of God, David was a greater but not a better man than Josiah.

Verse 26. The Lord turned not] It was of no use to try this fickle and radically depraved people any longer. They were respite merely during the life of Josiah.

28 Now the rest of the acts of Josiah, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

29 <sup>a</sup>In his days Pharaoh-nechoh king of Egypt went up against the king of Assyria to the river Euphrates: and king Josiah went against him; and he slew him at <sup>b</sup>Megiddo, when he <sup>c</sup>had seen him.

30 <sup>d</sup>And his servants carried him in a chariot dead from Megiddo, and brought him to Jerusalem, and buried him in his own sepulchre. And <sup>e</sup>the people of the land took Jehoahaz the son of Josiah and anointed him, and made him king in his father's stead.

31 <sup>f</sup>Jehoahaz was twenty and three years old when he began to reign; and he reigned three months in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was <sup>g</sup>Hamutal, the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah.

Verse 29. In his days Pharaoh-nechoh] Nechoh is supposed to have been the son of Psammetichus, king of Egypt; and the Assyrian king, whom he was now going to attack, was the famous Nabopolassar. What the cause of this quarrel was, is not known. Some say it was on account of Carchemish, a city on the Euphrates, belonging to the Egyptians, which Nabopolassar had seized.

Verse 30. Dead from Megiddo] The word meth should here be considered as a participle, dying, for it is certain he was not dead: he was mortally wounded at Megiddo, was carried in a dying state to Jerusalem, and there he died and was buried. See 2 Chron. xxxv. 24.

Verse 31. Jehoahaz was twenty and three years old] This was not the eldest son of Josiah, which is evident from this, that he was twenty-three years old when he began to reign; that he reigned but three months; that, being dethroned, his brother Eliakim was put in his place, who was then twenty-five years of age. Eliakim, therefore, was the eldest brother; but Jehoahaz was probably raised to the throne by the people, as being of a more active and martial spirit.

Verse 33. Nechoh put him in bands] But what was the cause of his putting him in bands? It is conjectured, and not without reason, that Jehoahaz, otherwise called Shallum, raised an army, met Nechoh in his return from Carchemish, fought, was beaten, taken prisoner, put in chains, and taken into Egypt, where he died; ver. 34, and Jer. xxii. 11, 12. Riblah or Diblah, the place of this battle, was probably a town in Syria, in the land or district of Hamath.

33 And Pharaoh-nechoh put him in bands <sup>a</sup>at Riblah in the land of Hamath, <sup>b</sup>that he might not reign in Jerusalem; and <sup>c</sup>put the land to a tribute of an hundred talents of silver, and a talent of gold.

34 And <sup>d</sup>Pharaoh-nechoh made Eliakim the son of Josiah king in the room of Josiah his father, and <sup>e</sup>turned his name to <sup>f</sup>Jehoiakim, and took Jehoahaz away: <sup>g</sup>and he came to Egypt, and died there, 35 And Jehoiakim gave <sup>h</sup>the silver and the gold to Pharaoh; but he taxed the land to give the money according to the commandment of Pharaoh; he exacted the silver and the gold of the people of the land, of every one according to his taxation, to give it unto Pharaoh-nechoh.

Verse 34. Turned his name to Jehoiakim] These names are precisely the same in signification: ELIAKIM is, God shall arise; JEHOIAKIM, Jehovah shall arise: or the resurrection of God; the resurrection of Jehovah. That is, God's rising again to show his power, justice, &c. The change of the name was to show Nechoh's supremacy, and that Jehoiakim was only his vassal or viceroy. Proofs of this mode of changing the name when a person of greater power put another in office under himself, may be seen in the case of Mattaniah, changed into Zedekiah; Daniel, Mishaël, Hananiah, and Azariah into Belteshazzar, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego; and Joseph into Zaphnath-paaneah.

Verse 35. Jehoiakim gave the silver and the gold] Nechoh had placed him there as viceroy, simply to raise and collect his taxes.

Every one according to his taxation] That is, each was assessed in proportion to his property: that was the principle avowed; but there is reason to fear that this bad king was not governed by it.

Verse 37. He did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord] He was a most unprincipled and oppressive tyrant. Jeremiah gives us his character at large, chap. xxii. 18-19, to which the reader will do well to refer. Jeremiah was at that time in the land, and was an eye-witness of the abominations of this cruel king.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Nebuchadnezzar brings Jehoiakim under subjection; who, after three years, rebels, 1. Bands of Chaldeans, Syrians, Moabites, and Ammonites, invade the land, 2-4. Jehoiakim dies, and Jehoiachin his son reigns in his stead, 5, 6. The Babylonians overcome the Egyptians, 7. Nebuchadnezzar takes Jehoiachin and his family, and all his treasures, and those of the temple, and all the chief people and artificers, and carries them to Babylon, 8-16; and makes Mattaniah brother of Jehoiakim king, who reigns wickedly, and rebels against the king of Babylon, 17-20.

IN <sup>a</sup>his days Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came up, and Jehoiakim became his servant three years: then he turned and rebelled against him.

Verse 1. Nebuchadnezzar] This man, so famous in the writings of the prophets, was son of Nabopolassar. He was sent by his father against the rulers of several provinces that had revolted; and he took Carchemish, and all that belonged to the Egyptians, from the Euphrates to the Nile. Jehoihim, who was tributary to Nechoh, king of Egypt, he attacked and reduced; and obliged him to become tributary to Babylon. At the end of three years he revolted; and then a mixed army of Chaldeans, Syrians, Moabites, and Ammonites was sent against him, who ravaged the country, to the word of the LORD, which he spake * by his servants the prophets.

3 Surely at the commandment of the LORD came this upon Judah, to remove them out of his sight, <sup>b</sup> for the sins of Manasseh, according to all that he did;

4 * And also for the innocent blood that he shed: for he filled Jerusalem with innocent blood; which the LORD would not pardon.

5 Now the rest of the acts of Jehoiakim, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?

6 * So Jehoiakim slept with his fathers: and Jehoiachin his son reigned in his stead.

7 And * the king of Egypt came not again any more out of his land: for <sup>c</sup> the king of Babylon had taken from the river of Egypt unto the river Euphrates all that pertained to the king of Egypt.

8 * Jehoiachin <sup>b</sup> was eighteen years old when he began to reign, and he reigned in Jerusalem three months. And his mother's name was Nehushta, the daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem.

9 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, according to all that his father had done.

10 <sup>a</sup> At that time the servants of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came up against Jerusalem, and the city <sup>c</sup> was besieged.

11 And Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came against the city, and his servants did besiege it.

12 * And Jehoiachin the king of Judah went out to the king of Babylon, he, and his mother, and his servants, and his princes, and his <sup>c</sup> officers: * and the king of Babylon <sup>a</sup> took him <sup>c</sup> in the eighth year of his reign.

and took three thousand and twenty-three prisoners, whom they brought to Babylon, Jer. lii. 28.

Verse 2. According to the word of the Lord] See what Huldah predicted, chap. xxi. 16, and see chap. xiv., xv., and xvi. of Jeremiah.

Verse 6. Jehoiachin his son] As this man reigned only three months, and was a mere vassal to the Babylonians, his reign is scarcely to be reckoned; and therefore Jeremiah says of Jehoiakim, He shall have none to sit upon the throne of David, chap. xxxvi. 30, for at that time it belonged to the king of Babylon, and Jehoiachin was a mere viceroy or governor. Jehoiachin is called Jeconias in Mat. i. 11.

Verse 7. The king of Egypt came not again] He was so crushed by the Babylonians that he was obliged to confine himself within the limits of his own states, and could no more attempt any conquests. The text tells us how much he had lost by the Babylonians. See on ver. 1.

Verse 8. Jehoiachin was eighteen years old] He is called Jeconiah, 1 Chron. iii. 16, and Coniah, Jer. xxii. 24. In 2 Chron. xxxvi. 9, he is said to be only eight years of age, but this must be a mistake; for we find that, having reigned only three months, he was carried captive to Babylon, and there he had wives; and it is very improbable that a child between eight and nine years of age could have wives; and of such a tender age, it can scarcely be said that, as a king, he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord. The place in Chronicles must be corrupted.

That he was a grievous offender against God, we learn from Jer. xxii. 24, and in the man's punishment, see his crimes.

Verse 12. Jehoiachin—went out] Surrendered himself, hoping to obtain better terms.

13 * And he carried out thence all the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house, and <sup>a</sup> cut in pieces all the vessels of gold which Solomon king of Israel had made in the temple of the LORD, * as the LORD had said.

14 And * he carried away all Jerusalem, and all the princes, and all the mighty men of valour, <sup>c</sup> even ten thousand captives, and <sup>b</sup> all the craftsmen and smiths: none remained, save <sup>d</sup> the poorest sort of the people of the land.

15 And * he carried away Jehoiachin to Babylon, and the king's mother, and the king's wives, and his <sup>e</sup> officers, and the mighty of the land, those carried he into captivity from Jerusalem to Babylon.

16 And <sup>f</sup> all the men of might, even seven thousand, and craftsmen and smiths a thousand, all that were strong and apt for war, even them the king of Babylon brought captive to Babylon.

17 And * the king of Babylon made Mattaniah <sup>g</sup> his father's brother king in his stead, and <sup>h</sup> changed his name to Zedekiah.

18 <sup>i</sup> Zedekiah was twenty and one years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was <sup>j</sup> Hamutal, the daughter of Jeremiah of Eibnah.

19 <sup>k</sup> And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, according to all that Jehoiakim had done.

20 For through the anger of the LORD it came to pass in Jerusalem and Judah, until he had cast them out from his presence, <sup>l</sup> that Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon.

Verse 13. He carried out thence all the treasures] It has been remarked that Nebuchadnezzar spoiled the temple three times:—1. He took away the greater part of those treasures when he took Jerusalem under Jehoiakim: and the vessels that he took then he placed in the temple of his god, Dan. i. 2. And these were the vessels which Belshazzar profaned, Dan v. 2; and which Cyrus restored to Ezra, when he went up to Jerusalem, Ezra i. 2. It was at this time that he took Daniel and his companions. 2. He took the remaining part of those vessels, and broke them or cut them in pieces, when he came the second time against Jerusalem under Jeconiah; as is mentioned here, ver. 18. 3. He pillaged the temple, took away all the brass, the brazen pillars, brazen vessels, and vessels of gold and silver, which he found there when he besieged Jerusalem under Zedekiah, chap. xxv. 13-17.

Verse 14. He carried away all Jerusalem] That is, all the chief men, the nobles, and artificers. Among these there were of mighty men seven thousand; of craftsmen and smiths, one thousand.

Verse 17. Made Mattaniah his father's brother king in his stead] He was the son of Josiah, and brother to Jehoiakim.

Verse 19. He did—evil] How astonishing is this! not one of them takes warning by the judgments of God, which fell on their sinful predecessors.

Verse 20. Zedekiah rebelled] This was in the eighth year of his reign: and he is strongly reproved for having violated the oath he took to the king of Babylon; see 2 Chron. xxxvi. 13. This was the filling up of the measure of iniquity; and now the wrath of God descends upon this devoted king, city and people, to the uttermost.

CHAPTER XXV.

Nebuchadnezzar besieges Jerusalem; it is taken, after having being sorely reduced by famine, &c.; and Zedekiah, endeavouring to make his escape, is made prisoner, his sons slain before his eyes; then, his eyes being put out, he is put in chains, and carried to Babylon, 1-7. Nebuzar-adan burns the temple, breaks down the walls of Jerusalem, and carries away the people captives, leaving only a few to till the ground, 8-12. He takes away all the brass, and all the vessels of the temple, 13-17. Several of the chief men and nobles, found in the city, he brings to Nebuchadnezzar at Riblah, who puts them all to death, 18-21. Nebuchadnezzar makes Geduliah governor over the poor people that were left, against whom Ishmael rises, and slays him, and others with him; on which the people in general, fearing the resentment of the Chaldeans, flee to Egypt, 22-26. Evil-merodach, king of Babylon, releases Jehoiachin out of prison, treats him kindly, and makes him his friend, 27-30.

AND it came to pass, <sup>a</sup> in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came, he, and all his host, against Jerusalem, and pitched against it; and they built forts against it round about.

2 And the city was besieged unto the eleventh year of king Zedekiah.

3 And on the ninth day of the <sup>b</sup> fourth month the famine prevailed in the city, and there was no bread for the people of the land.

4 And <sup>c</sup> the city was broken up, and all the men of war fled by night by the way of the gate between two walls, which <sup>d</sup> is by the king's garden; (now the Chaldees were against the city round about;) and <sup>e</sup> the king went the way toward the plain.

5 And the army of the Chaldees pursued after the king, and overtook him in the plains of Jericho: and all his army were scattered from him.

6 So they took the king, and brought him up to the king of Babylon <sup>f</sup> to Riblah: and they <sup>g</sup> gave judgment upon him.

7 And they slew the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes, and <sup>h</sup> put <sup>i</sup> out the eyes of Zedekiah, and bound him with fetters of brass, and carried him to Babylon.

8 And in the fifth month, <sup>j</sup> on the seventh day of the month, which <sup>k</sup> is <sup>l</sup> the nineteenth year of king Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, <sup>m</sup> came Nebuzar-adan, <sup>n</sup> captain of the guard, a servant of the king of Babylon, unto Jerusalem:

Verse 1. In the ninth year of his reign.] Zedekiah, having revolted against the Chaldeans, Nebuchadnezzar, wearied with his treachery, and the bad faith of the Jews, determined the total subversion of the Jewish state. Having assembled a numerous army, he entered Judea on the tenth day of the tenth month of the ninth year of the reign of Zedekiah. On the very day, as Archbishop Usher computes, the siege and utter destruction of Jerusalem were revealed to Ezekiel the prophet, then in Chaldea, under the type of a seething pot; and his wife died in the evening, and he was charged not to mourn for her, because of the extraordinary calamity that had fallen upon the land.

Jeremiah, having predicted the same calamities, Jer. xxiv. 1-7, was by the command of Zedekiah shut up in prison, xxiii. 1-16.

Pharaoh Hophra, or Vaphris, hearing how Zedekiah was pressed, and fearing for the safety of his own dominions should the Chaldeans succeed against Jerusalem, determined to succour Zedekiah. Finding this, the Chaldeans raised the siege of Jerusalem, and went to meet the Egyptian army, which they defeated and put to flight.

Verse 2-4. And the city was besieged, &c.] Nebuchadnezzar, having routed the Egyptian army, returned to Jerusalem, and besieged it so closely that, being reduced by famine, 9 <sup>a</sup> And he burnt the house of the LORD, <sup>b</sup> and the king's house, and all the houses of Jerusalem, and every great man's house burnt he with fire.

10 And all the army of the Chaldees, that were with the captain of the guard, <sup>c</sup> brake down the walls of Jerusalem round about.

11 <sup>d</sup> Now the rest of the people that were left in the city, and the <sup>e</sup> fugitives that fell away to the king of Babylon, with the remnant of the multitude, did Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard carry away.

12 But the captain of the guard <sup>f</sup> left of the poor of the land to be vine-dressers and husbandmen.

13 And <sup>g</sup> the <sup>h</sup> pillars of brass that were in the house of the LORD, and <sup>i</sup> the bases, and <sup>j</sup> the brasen sea that was in the house of the LORD, did the Chaldees break in pieces, and carried the brass of them to Babylon.

and a breach made in the wall, the Chaldeans entered it on the ninth day of the fourth month, Zedekiah and many others endeavouring to make their escape by night.

Verse 5. The army of the Chaldees pursued] Zedekiah was taken, and brought captive to Riblah in Syria, where Nebuchadnezzar then lay, who ordered his sons to be slain before his face, and then put out his eyes; and having loaded him with chains, sent him to Babylon; thus fulfilling the prophetic declarations, that his eyes should see the eyes of the king of Babylon, Jer. xxxii. 4, and xxxiv. 3; but Babylon he should not see, though he was to die there; Ezek. xli. 13.

Verse 8. In the fifth month.] On the seventh day of the fifth month, Nebuzar-adan made his entry into the city; and having spent two days in making provision, on the tenth day of the same month, he set fire to the temple and the king's palace, and the houses of the nobility, and burnt them to the ground; Jer. lli. 13, compared with xxxix. 8. Thus the temple was destroyed four hundred and twenty-four years three months and eight days from the time in which Solomon laid its foundation-stone.

Verse 10. Brake down the walls] In the same fifth month, Jer. i. 3, the walls of Jerusalem being razed to the ground, all that were left in the city, and all that had fled over height of the chapter three cubits; and the wreathen work and pomegranates upon the chapter round about, all of brass: and like unto these had the second pillar with wreathen work:

18 * And the captain of the guard took <sup>b</sup> Seraiah the chief priest, and <sup>c</sup> Zephaniah the second priest, and the three keepers of the <sup>d</sup> door:

19 And out of the city he took an <sup>e</sup> officer, that was set over the men of war, and <sup>f</sup> five men of them that <sup>g</sup> were in the king's presence, which were found in the city, and the <sup>h</sup> principal scribe of the host, which mustered the people of the land, and three-score men of the people of the land that were found in the city:

20 And Nebuzar-adan captain of the guard took these, and brought them to the king of Babylon to Riblah:

21 And the king of Babylon smote them, and slew them at Riblah in the land of Hamath. <sup>i</sup> So Judah was carried away out of their land.

22 <sup>j</sup> And ~~for~~ the people that remained in the land of Judah, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had left, even over them he made Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, ruler.

23 And when all the <sup>k</sup> captains of the armies, they and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah governor, there came to Gedaliah to Mizpah, even Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and Johanan the son of Careah, and Seraiah the son of Tanhumeth the Netophathite, and Jaazaniah the son of a Maachathite, they and their men.

formerly to Nebuchadnezzar, and all the common people of the city, with all the king's treasures, those of the nobles, and the whole furniture of the temple, did Nebuzar-adan carry off to Babylon.

Verse 18. Seraiah the chief priest—Zephaniah] The person who is here called the second priest was what the Jews call sagan, a sort of deputy, who performed the functions of the high-priest when he was prevented by any infirmity from attending the temple service.

Verse 19. And five men of them that were in the king's presence] These were principal counsellors, and confidential officers.

In Jer. lii. 25, it is said he took seven men who were near the king's person. Probably they were no more than five at first, or, perhaps Jeremiah reckoned with the five the officer that was set over the men of war, and the principal scribe of the host mentioned here, as two with the five; and thus made seven in the whole.

Verse 21. The king of Babylon smote them] He had, no doubt, found that these had counselled Zedekiah to revolt.

Verse 22. Made Gedaliah—ruler] This was no regal dignity; he was only a sort of hind or overseer appointed to regulate the husbandmen.

Verse 23. To Mizpah] This is said to have been situated on the east side of the river Jordan, and most contiguous to Babylon, and therefore the most proper for the residence of Gedaliah, because nearest to the place from which he was to receive his instructions. But there were several places of 24 And Gedaliah sware to them, and to their men, and said unto them, Fear not to be the servants of the Chaldees: dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon; and it shall be well with you.

25 But <sup>l</sup> it came to pass in the seventh month, that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, the son of Elishama, of the seed <sup>m</sup> royal, came, and ten men with him, and smote Gedaliah, that he died, and the Jews and the Chaldees that were with him at Mizpah.

26 And all the people, both small and great, and the captains of the armies, arose, <sup>n</sup> and came to Egypt: for they were afraid of the Chaldees.

27 <sup>o</sup> And it came to pass in the seven and thirtieth year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the seven and twentieth day of the month, that Evil-merodach king of Babylon, in the year that he began to reign, <sup>p</sup> did lift up the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah out of prison;

28 And he spake <sup>q</sup> kindly to him, and set his throne above the throne of the kings that were with him in Babylon;

29 And changed his prison garments: and he did <sup>r</sup> eat bread continually before him all the days of his life.

30 And his allowance was a continual allowance given him of the king, a daily rate for every day, all the days of his life.

this name, and we do not exactly know where this was situated.

Verse 24. Gedaliah sware to them] He pledged himself in the most solemn manner to encourage and protect them.

Verse 25. Smote Gedaliah] This was at an entertainment which Gedaliah had made for them; see Jer. xli. 1, &c. Baalis, king of the Ammonites, had sent Ishmael to murder Gedaliah; and of this he was informed by Johanan, who offered to prevent it, by taking away the life of this murderer. But Gedaliah could not believe that he harboured such foul designs, and therefore took no precaution to save his life.

Verse 27. And it came to pass] Nebuchadnezzar was just now dead; and Evil-merodach, his son, succeeded to the kingdom in the thirty-seventh year of the captivity of Jehoiachin: and on the seven and twentieth day he brought the long captivated Jewish king out of prison; treated him kindly; and ever after, during his life, reckoned him among the king's friends.

Verse 30. A continual allowance given him of the king] He lived in a regal style, and had his court even in the city of Babylon, being supplied with every requisite by the munificence and friendship of the king. In about two years after this, Evil-merodach was slain in a conspiracy: and it is supposed that Jehoiachin, then about fifty-eight years of age, fell with his friend and protector. This terminates the catastrophe of the Jewish kings, people, and state; the consequence of unheard-of rebellions and provocations against the Majesty of Heaven.

PREFACE TO THE TWO BOOKS

OF

CHRONICLES

ANCIENTLY these two books were considered but as one: for this we have <sup>not</sup> only the testimony of St. Jerome, but also that of the Masoretes, who gave the sum of all the sections, chapters, and verses, under one notation at the end of the second book, without mentioning any division:

Concerning the author of these books, nothing certain is known. Some think they are the works of different authors; but the uniformity of the style, the connexion of the facts, together with the recapitulations and reflections which are often made, prove that they are the work of one and the same person.

The Jews, and Christian interpreters in general, believe they were the work of EZRA, assisted by the prophets Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi. That EZRA was the author is, on the whole, the most probable opinion. That he lived at the conclusion of the Babylonish captivity is well known; and the Second Book of Chronicles terminates at that period, barely reciting the decree of Cyrus to permit the return of the captivated Israelites to their own land: which subject is immediately taken up in the Book of Ezra, in which the operation of that decree is distinctly marked.

We are not to suppose that these books are the Chronicles of the kings of Judah and Israel so often referred to in the historical books of the Old Testament; these have been long lost, and the books before us can only be abridgments, either of such chronicles, or of works of a similar kind.

The real object of the author of these books is not very easy to be ascertained. But it is evident that he never could have intended them as a supplement to the preceding books, as he relates many of the same circumstances which occur in them, and often in greater detail; and, except by way of amplification, adds very little that can be called new, and omits many things of importance, not only in the ancient history of the Israelites, but even of those mentioned in the preceding books of Samuel and Kings. Nine chapters of his work are occupied with extensive genealogical tables, but even these are far from being perfect. His history, properly speaking, does not begin till the tenth chapter, and then it commences abruptly with the last unsuccessful battle of Saul and his death, but not a word of his history.

The principal design of the writer appears to have been this: to point out, from the public registers, which were still preserved, what had been the state of the different families previously to the captivity, that at their return they might enter on and repossess their respective inheritances. He enters particularly into the functions, genealogies, families, and orders of the priests and Levites; and this was peculiarly necessary after the return from the captivity, to the end that the worship of God might be conducted in the same way as before, and by the proper legitimate persons.

He is also very particular relative to what concerns religion, the worship of God, the temple and its utensils, the kings who authorised or tolerated idolatry, and those who maintained the worship of the true God. In his distribution of praise and blame, these are the qualities which principally occupy his attention, and influence his pen.

Verse 1. Adam, Sheth, Enosh] That is, Adam was the father of Sheth or Seth, Seth was the father of Enosh, Enosh the father of Kenan, and so on. No notice is taken of Cain and Abel, or of any of the other sons of Adam. One line of patriarchs, from Adam to Noah, is what the historian intended to give; and to have mentioned the posterity of Cain or Abel would have been useless, as Noah was not the immediate descendant of either. Besides, all their posterity had perished in the deluge, none remaining of the Adamic family but Noah and his children; and from these all the nations of the earth sprang.

Verse 32. Keturah, Abraham's concubine] Abraham's ..., or wife of the second rank; she was neither whore, it, nor concubine, in our sense of these words.

34 And <sup>a</sup> Abraham begat Isaac. <sup>b</sup> The sons of Isaac; Esau and Israel.

35 The sons of <sup>c</sup> Esau; Eliphaz, Reuel, and Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah.

36 The sons of Eliphaz; Teman, and Omar, <sup>d</sup> Zephi, and Gatam, Kenaz, and Timna, and Amalek.

Verse 46. Smote Midian] Nothing is known of this war.

Verse 50. Daughter of Mezahab] This word, mey zahab, 19 And when Azubah was dead, Caleb took unto him <sup>d</sup> Ephrath, which bare him Hur.

20 And Hur begat Uri, and Uri begat <sup>e</sup> Bezaleel.

21 And afterward Hezron went in to the daughter of <sup>f</sup> Machir the father of Gildad, whom he <sup>g</sup> married when he was threescore years old; and she bare him Segub.

22 And Segub begat Jair, who had three and twenty cities in the land of Gilead.

23 <sup>h</sup> And he took Geshur, and Aram, with the towns of Jair, from them, with Kenath, and the towns thereof, even threescore cities. All these belonged to the sons of Machir the father of Gilead.

40 And Eleasah begat Sisamai and Sisamai begat Shallum, 41 And Shallum begat Jekamiah, and Jekamiah begat Elishama.

42 Now the sons of Caleb the brother of Jerahmeel were, Mesha his first-born, which was the father of Ziph; and the sons of Mareshah the father of Hebron.

43 And the sons of Hebron; Korah, and Tappuah, and Rekem, and Shema.

44 And Shema begat Raham, the father of Jorkoam; and Rekem begat Shammai.

45 And the son of Shammai was Maon: and Maon was the father of Beth-zur.

46 And Ephah, Caleb's concubine, bare Haran, and Moza, and Gazez: and Haran begat Gazez.

47 And the sons of Jahdai; Regem, and Jotham, and Gesham, and Pelet, and Ephah, and Shaaph.

48 Maachah, Caleb's concubine, bare Sheber, and Tirhanah.

49 She bare also Shaaph the father of Madmannah, Sheva the father of Machbenah, and the father of Gibca: and the daughter of Caleb was <sup>l</sup> Achsa.

50 These were the sons of Caleb the son of Hur, the first-born of <sup>m</sup> Ephratah; Shobal the father of Kirjath-jearim, 51 Salma the father of Beth-lehem, Hareph the father of Beth-gader.

52 And Shobal the father of Kirjath-jearim had sons; <sup>n</sup> Haroeh, and <sup>o</sup> half of the Manahethites.

54 The sons of Salma; Beth-lehem, and the Netophathites, <sup>p</sup> Ataroth, the house of Joab, and half of the Manahethites, the Zorites.

The children of David which were born to him in Hebron, 1-4. Those born to him in Jerusalem, 5-9. The regal line from Solomon, 10-24.

2 The third, Absalom the son of Maachah the daughter of Talmai king of Geshur: the fourth, Adonijah the son of Haggith:

3 The fifth, Shephatiah of Abital: the sixth, Ithream by <sup>d</sup>Eglah his wife.

4 These six were born unto him in Hebron; and <sup>e</sup>there he reigned seven years and six months; and <sup>f</sup>in Jerusalem he reigned thirty and three years.

Verse 1. The second, Daniel] In 2 Sam. iii. 3, this person is called Chileab: he probably had two names.

Verse 3. By Eglah his wife.] The Targum, Jarchi, and others, maintain that this was Michal, the daughter of Saul; but this does not well agree with 2 Sam. vi. 23: Michal had no child to the day of her death. Yet she might have had a child before the time that is mentioned above.

Verse 5. Shimea, and Shobab] Solomon is mentioned last, though he was the eldest of these four sons, because the genealogy was to be continued from him. Bath-shua is the same as Bath-sheba.

Verse 6. Elishama, and Eliphelet] In this and the eighth verse these two names occur twice; some think this is a mistake, but others suppose that two persons of these names died young, and that the next born received the name of the deceased.

Verse 8. Nine.] There are thirteen if we count the four sons of Bath-sheba, and nine without them; and in the Second Book of Samuel there are eleven, reckoning the above four, and without them only seven. In the Book of Samuel probably only those who were alive were reckoned, while the author of the Chronicles comprises those also who were dead, in his enumeration. Jarchi supposes that the duplicate Elishama and Eliphelet are those which increase the regular number seven to nine; and that the dead without posterity, as well as the living, are mentioned to increase the number of David's descendants: for, says he, the whole book is written for the honour of David and his seed.

Verse 9. And Tamar their sister.] This is the only daughter of David whose name is on record; and yet he is said to have had both sons and daughters, 2 Sam. v. 18.

13 Ahaz his son, Hezekiah his son, Manasseh his son, 14 Amon his son, Josiah his son.

15 And the sons of Josiah were, the first-born <sup>a</sup>Johanan, the second <sup>b</sup>Jehoiakim, the third <sup>c</sup>Zedekiah, the fourth Shallum.

16 And the sons of <sup>d</sup>Jehoiakim; <sup>e</sup>Jeconiah his son, Zedekiah <sup>f</sup>his son.

17 And the sons of Jeconiah; Assir, <sup>g</sup>Salathiel <sup>h</sup>his son.

18 Malchiram also, and Pedaiiah, and Shenazar, Jecamiah, Hoshama, and Nedabiah.

19 And the sons of Pedaiiah were, Zerubbabel, and Shimei; and the sons of Zerubbabel, Meshullam, and Hananiah, and Sehelomith their sister:

20 And Hashubah, and Ohel, and Berechiah, and Hasadiah, Jushab-hesed, five.

21 And the sons of Hananiah; Pelatiah, and Jesaiah: the sons of Rephaiah, the sons of Arnan, the sons of Obadiah, the sons of Shechaniah.

22 And the sons of Shechaniah; Shemaiah: and the sons of Shemaiah; <sup>i</sup>Hattush, and Igeal, and Bariah, and Neariah, and Shaphat, six.

23 And the sons of Neariah; Elioenai, and <sup>j</sup>Hezekiah, and Azrikam, three,

24 And the sons of Elioenai were, Hodaiah, and Eliashib, and Pelaiiah, and Akkub, and Johanan, and Dalaiiah, and Anani, seven.

Verse 15. Jehoiakim] For the difference of several names in these lists, see the marginal readings and references.

Verse 16. Zedekiah his son.] If this be the same who was the last king of Judah before the captivity, the word son must be taken here to signify successor; for it is certain that Zedekiah was the successor of Jeconiah, and that Zedekiah was the son of Josiah, and not of Jehoiakim.

Verse 17. The sons of Jeconiah] Jeremiah has said (chap. xxii. 30) that Jeconiah, or, as he calls him, Coniah, should be childless; but this must refer to his posterity being deprived of the throne, and indeed thus the prophet interprets it himself: For no man of his seed shall prosper, sitting upon the throne of David, and ruling any more in Judah.

Assir] Salathiel was not the son of Assir, but of Jeconiah, Mat. i. 12. Who then was Assir? Possibly nobody; for as the Hebrew assir signifies a prisoner, it may be considered as an epithet of Jeconiah, who we know was a very long time prisoner in Babylon.

Verse 18. Malchiram also] Calmet supposes we should read here, And the sons of Salathiel were Malchiram and Pedaiiah, &c.

Verse 19. The sons of Pedaiiah] Pedaiiah is wanting in the Arabic and Syriac. If this be omitted, Zerubbabel will appear to be the son of Salathiel, according to Mat. i. 12, and not the son of Pedaiiah, as here stated.

Verse 22. The sons of Shemaiah—six.] Five only are found in the text, and the Versions give us no assistance; neither do the MSS. correct the place. If the father be not here included with his sons, some name must be lost out of the text.

A second genealogy of Judah, 1-23. The account of Jabez, 9, 10. The genealogy of Simeon, 24-27. Their cities 28-31. Their villages, and where situated, 32, 33. The heads of the families, 34-38. Where they settled; and what was their occupation, 39-43.

THE sons of Judah; * Pharez, Hezron, and Carmi, and Hur, and Shobal.

2 And * Reaiah the son of Shobal begat Jahath; and Jahath begat Ahumai, and Lahad. These are the families of the Zorathites.

3 And these were of the father of Etam; Jezreel, and Ishma, and Idbash: and the name of their sister was Hazeleponi:

4 And Penuel the father of Gedor, and Ezer the father of Hushah. These are the sons of * Hur, the first-born of Ephratah, the father of Beth-lehem.

5 And * Ashur the father of Tekoa had two wives, Helah and Naarah.

6 And Naarah bare him Ahuzam, and Hopher, and Temeni, and Haahashtari. These were the sons of Naarah.

7 And the sons of Helah were, Zereth, and Jezoar, and Ethnan.

8 And Coz begat Anub, and Zobebah, and the families of Aharhel the son of Harum.

9 And Jabez was 'more honourable than his brethren: and his mother called his name * Jabez, saying, Because I bare him with sorrow.

11 And Chelub the brother of Shuah begat Mehir, which was the father of Eshton.

12 And Eshton begat Beth-rapha, and Paseah, and Tehinnah the father of 'Ir-nahash. These are the men of Rechab.

13 And the sons of Kenaz; * Othniel and Seraiah; and the sons of Othniel; 'Hathath.

14 And Meonothai begat Ophrah: and Seraiah begat Joab, the father of 'the 'valley of * Charashim; for they were craftsmen.

Verse 1. The sons of Judah] A genealogy of this tribe has already been given in the second chapter. It is here introduced again, with some variations. Probably there were different copies in the public registers; and the writer of this book, finding that this second one contained some remarkable particulars, thought proper to insert it in this place: and no reader will regret the insertion, when he carefully considers the matter.

Verse 7. And Ethnan.] After this word we should, with the Targum, read Coz, whose posterity is mentioned in the next verse. Coz was probably the same as Kenaz.

Verse 8. The son of Harum.] Jabez should be mentioned at the end of this verse, else he is a consequent without an antecedent.

Verse 9. And Jabez was more honourable] This whole account is variously understood by some of the principal Versions.

Of this honourable person we know nothing but what is here mentioned, nor does the same occur in any other part of scripture, except in chap. ii. 55, where it appears to be the name of a place, but is understood by the Chaldees to be the name of a person, as here.

Verse 15. Caleb the son of Jephunneh] We have already met with this eminent person in Num. xiii. 6, 30, xiv. 24, and elsewhere; and seen his courageous piety and inflexible integrity.

16 And the sons of Jehaleleel; Ziph, and Ziphai, Tiria, and Asareel.

17 And the sons of Ezra were, Jether, and Mered, and Ephraim, and Jalon; and she bare Miriam, and Shammai, and Ishbah the father of Eshtemoa.

18 And his wife *Jehudijah bare Jered the father of Gedor, and Heber the father of Socho, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah. And these are the sons of Bithiah the daughter of Pharaoh, which Mered took.

19 And the sons of his wife *Hodiah the sister of Naham, the father of Keilah the Garmite, and Eshtemoa the Maachathite.

20 And the sons of Shimon were, Amnon, and Rinnah, Ben-hanan, and Tilon. And the sons of Ishi were, Zoheth, and Ben-zoheth.

21 The sons of Shelah *the sons of Judah were, Er the father of Lecah, and Laadah the father of Mareshah, and the families of the house of them that wrought fine linen, of the house of Ashbea, 22 And Jokim, and the men of Chozeba, and Joash, and Saraph, who had the dominion in Moab, and Jashubi-lehem. And these are ancient things.

23 These were the potters, and those that dwelt among plants and hedges; there they dwelt with the king for his work.

24 The sons of Simeon were, * Nemuel, and Jamin, * Jarib, Zerah, and Shaul:

25 Shallum his son, Mibsam his son, Mishma his son.

26 And the sons of Mishma; Hamuel his son, Zacchur his son, Shimei his son.

27 And Shimei had sixteen sons and six daughters; but his brethren had not many children, neither did all their family multiply, * like the children of Judah.

28 And they dwelt at * Beer-sheba, and Moladah, and Hazar-shual,

29 And at * Bilhah, and at Ezem, and at * Tolad,

Verse 24. The sons of Simeon] This genealogy is very different from that given in Gen. xlii. 10, and Num. xxvi. 12. This may be occasioned by the same person having several names, one list taking one name, another list some other, and so on: to reconcile is impossible; to attempt it, useless.

Verse 27. Neither did all their family multiply] In Num. i. 23 the number of all the families of Simeon was fifty-nine thousand three hundred; and that of Judah was, ver. 27, not less than seventy-four thousand six hundred. When the next census was made, Num. xxvi., the tribe of Judah amounted to seventy-six thousand five hundred, an increase of one thousand nine hundred; while the tribe of Simeon amounted only to twenty-two thousand two hundred, a decrease of thirty-seven thousand one hundred. It was at that time the smallest tribe in Israel.

Verse 31. These were their cities unto the reign of David.] It appears that David took some of the cities of the Simeonites, and added them to Judah; Ziklag for instance, 1 Sam. xvii. 6.

As the tribe of Simeon had withdrawn their allegiance from the house of David, the kings of Judah extended their domination as far as possible into the territories of that tribe, so that they were obliged to seek pasture for their flocks at Gedor, and in the mountains of Seir, as we find ver. 89-92.

and at Beth-birei, and at Shaaraim. These were their cities unto the reign of David.

32 And their villages were, * Etam, and Ain, Rimmon, and Tochen, and Ashan, five cities:

33 And all the villages that were round about the same cities, unto <sup>b</sup> Baal. These were their habitations, and <sup>c</sup> their genealogy.

34 And Meshobab, and Jamlech, and Joshah the son of Amaziah,

36 And Elioenai, and Jaakobah, and Jeshohaiah, and Asaiah, and Adiel, and Jesimiel, and Benaiah, 37 And Ziza the son of Shippi, the son of Allon, the son of Jedaiah, the son of Shimri, the son of Shemaiah;

38 These <sup>d</sup> mentioned by their names were princes in their families: and the house of their fathers increased greatly.

* Or, Ether, Josh. xix. 7.—<sup>b</sup> Or, Baalath-beer, Josh. xix. 8.—<sup>c</sup> Or, as they divided themselves by nations among them.

Verse 40. They of Ham had dwelt there of old.] These were probably either Philistines or Egyptians, who dwelt at Gedor, which was situated in the environs of Joppa and Samnia.

Those whom the five hundred Simeonites expelled from Seir were Amalekites, ver. 43.

Verse 43. They smote the rest of the Amalekites.] Those who had escaped in the war which Saul made against them (see 1 Sam. xiv. 48); and from David, who had attacked them afterwards, 2 Sam. viii. 12.

There are several things in the account of Jabez that are very instructive:—

1. He appears to have been a child brought into the world with great difficulty, at the risk of his own life and that of his mother.

2. To perpetuate the merciful interposition of God she gave him a name that must have recalled to her and his remembrance the danger to which both their lives were exposed, and from which they could not have been extricated but by the especial help of God.

3. He was brought up in the fear of God; and he showed the sincerity of his faith by frequent and earnest prayer.

39 And they went to the entrance of Gedor, even unto the east side of the valley, to seek pasture for their flocks.

40 And they found fat pasture and good, and the land was wide, and quiet, and peaceable: for they of Ham had dwelt there of old.

41 And these written by name came in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah, and <sup>e</sup> smote their tents and the habitations that were found there, and destroyed them utterly unto this day, and dwelt in their rooms: because there was pasture there for their flocks.

42 And some of them, even of the sons of Simeon, five hundred men, went to Mount Seir, having for their captains Pelatiah, and Neariah, and Rephaiah, and Uzziel, the sons of Ishi.

43 And they smote <sup>f</sup> the rest of the Amalekites that were escaped, and dwelt there unto this day.

4. His prayer was at once both enlightened and pius. He had piety towards God, and therefore he trusted in him; he knew that he was the fountain of all good, and therefore he sought all necessities both for body and soul from him.

5. Both the matter and manner of his prayer were excellent. His heart was deeply impressed with its wants, and therefore he was earnest and  fervent.

6. He prays for the things necessary for the body as well as for the soul: And enlarge my coasts—grant me as much territory as may support my family.

7. He is conscious that without the continual support of God he must fail; and therefore he prays to be upheld by his power: That thy hand might be with me.

8. He dreads both sin and suffering, and therefore prays against both. We can never offend God without injuring ourselves; he that sins must suffer. Thorns and scorpions are every where in the way to perdition; and he that walks in it must be torn and stung. He alone is happy who walks in the ways of God.

9. Prayers that have a right aim will have a right answer; Jabez did not pray in vain, for God granted him that which he requested.

Verse 1. The sons of Reuben the first-born.] As Reuben was the eldest son of Jacob, why was not his genealogy reviewed first? This verse answers the question; he lost the birth-right because of the transgression mentioned Gen. xxxv. 22 and xlix. 4, and the precedency was given to Judah; from him therefore came the chief ruler. This appears to be the meaning of the phrase.

Verse 2. And of him came the chief ruler.] This is, by both the Syriac and Arabic, understood of Christ: "From Judah the king Messiah shall proceed."

Verse 6. Beerah his son.] After their separation from the house of David, the ten tribes continued to have princes of the tribes; and this continued till the time that Tiglath-pileser carried them captives into Assyria. At that time genealogy of their generations was reckoned, were the chief, Jeiel, and Zechariah,

8 And Bela the son of Azaz, the son of <sup>a</sup> Shema, the son of Joel, who dwelt in <sup>b</sup> Aroer, even unto Nebo and Baal-meon :

9 And eastward he inhabited unto the entering in of the wilderness from the river Euphrates : because their cattle were multiplied <sup>c</sup> in the land of Gilead.

10 And in the days of Saul they made war <sup>d</sup> with the Hagarites, who fell by their hand : and they dwelt in their tents <sup>e</sup> throughout all the east land of Gilead.

11 And the children of Gad dwelt over against them in the land of <sup>f</sup> Bashan unto Salcah :

12 Joel the chief, and Shapham the next, and Jaanai, and Shaphat in Bashan.

13 And their brethren of the house of their fathers were Michael, and Meshullam, and Shoba, and Jorai, and Jachan, and Zia, and Heber, seven,

14 These are the children of Abihail the son of Huri, the son of Jaroah, the son of Gilead, the son of Michael, the son of Jeshishai, the son of Jahdo, the son of Buz ;

15 Ahi the son of Abdiel, the son of Guni, chief of the house of their fathers.

16 And they dwelt in Gilead in Bashan, and in her towns, and in all the suburbs of <sup>g</sup> Sharon, upon <sup>h</sup> their borders.

17 All these were reckoned by genealogies in the days of <sup>i</sup> Jotham king of Judah, and in the days of <sup>j</sup> Jeroboam king of Israel,

18 The sons of Reuben, and the Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh, <sup>k</sup> of valiant men, men able to bear buckler and sword, and to shoot with bow, and skilful in war, were four and forty thousand seven hundred and threescore, that went out to the war.

19 And they made war with the Hagarites, with <sup>l</sup> Jetur, and Nephish, and Nodab.

20 And <sup>m</sup> they were helped against them, and the Hagarites were delivered into their hand, and all that were with them : for they cried to God in the battle, and he was entreated of them ; because they <sup>n</sup> put their trust in him.

21 And they <sup>o</sup> took away their cattle ; of their camels fifty thousand, and of sheep two hundred and fifty thousand, and of asses two thousand, and of <sup>p</sup> men an hundred thousand.

22 For there fell down many slain, because the war was of God. And they dwelt in their steads until <sup>q</sup> the captivity.

23 And the children of the half tribe of Manasseh dwelt in the land : they increased from Bashan unto Baal-hermon and Senir, and unto Mount Hermon.

24 And these were the heads of the house of their fathers, even Ephraim, and Ishi, and Eliel, and Azriel, and Jeremiah, and Hodaviah, and Jahdiel, mighty men of valour, <sup>r</sup> famous men, and heads of the house of their fathers.

25 And they transgressed against the God of their fathers, and went <sup>s</sup> a whoring after the gods of the people of the land, whom God destroyed before them.

26 And the God of Israel stirred up the spirit of <sup>t</sup> Pul king of Assyria, and the spirit of <sup>u</sup> Tilgath-pilneser king of Assyria, and he carried them away, even the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh, and brought them unto <sup>v</sup> Halah, and Habor, and Hara, and to the river Gozan, unto this day.

Beerah was their prince or chief ; and with him this species of dominion or precedence terminated.

Verse 8. Who dwelt in Aroer] This town was situated on the river Arnon ; and Nebo was both a city and a mountain in the same country. They both lay on the other side of Jordan.

Verse 10. And they dwelt in their tents] The Hagarites were tribes of Nomade or Scenite Arabs ; people who lived in tents, without any fixed dwellings, and whose property consisted in cattle. The descendants of Reuben extirpated these Hagarites, seized on their property and their tents, and dwelt in their place.

Verse 16. The suburbs of Sharon] There were three places of this name : that mentioned here was a district in the country of Bashan beyond Jordan (see Josh. xii. 18) ; there was another that lay between Caesarea of Palestine and Joppa ; and there was a third between Mount Tabor and the Sea of Tiberias.

Verse 19. They made war with the Hagarites] This is probably the same war that is mentioned ver. 10.

Verse 21. They took away their cattle] This was a war of extermination as to the political state of the people, which nothing could justify but an especial direction of God ; and this he could never give against any, unless the cup of their iniquity had been full. The Hagarites were full of idolatry : see ver. 25.

Verse 22. For there fell down many slain] The hundred thousand men mentioned above were probably made slaves, and were not slain.

Verse 25. The gods of the people of the land] We see the reason why God delivered the Hagarites into the hands of these tribes ; they were abominable idolaters, and therefore God destroyed them.

Verse 26. Tilgath-pilneser] Many MSS. have Tiglath instead of Tilgath. The Syriac, the Septuagint, and the Chaldees, have the same reading as in 2 Kings xv. 29, &c.

7 And Meraioth begat Amariah, and Amariah begat Ahitub,

8 And <sup>e</sup>Ahitub begat Zadok, and <sup>f</sup>Zadok begat Ahimaaz,

9 And Ahimaaz begat Azariah, and Azariah begat Johanan,

10 And Johanan begat Azariah, (he it is <sup>g</sup>that executed the priest's office <sup>h</sup>in the temple that Solomon built in Jerusalem:)

11 And <sup>i</sup>Azariah begat Amariah, and Amariah begat Ahitub,

12 And Ahitub begat Zadok, and Zadok begat <sup>j</sup>Shallum,

13 And Shallum begat Hilkiah, and Hilkiah begat Azariah,

Verse 1. The sons of Levi] It has been well remarked that the genealogy of Levi given here is more ample and correct than that of any of the others. And this is perhaps an additional proof that the author was a priest, felt much for the priesthood, and took care to give the genealogy of the Levitical and sacerdotal families, from the most correct tables; for with such tables we may presume he was intimately acquainted.

Verse 4. Eleazar begat Phinehas] As the high-priesthood continued in this family for a long time, the sacred historian confines himself to this chiefly, omitting Nadab and Abihu, and even the family of Ithamar.

Verse 8. Ahitub begat Zadok] Through this person the high-priesthood came again into the family of Eleazar.

Verse 10. Johanan] Supposed to be the same as Jehoiada. Executed the priest's office] Probably this refers to the dignified manner in which Azariah opposed king Uziah, who wished to invade the priest's office, and offer incense in the temple. See 2 Chron. xxvi. 17, 18.

Verse 14. Seraiah] He was put to death by Nebuchadnezzar, 2 Kings xxv. 18, 21.

Verse 20. The first-born Vashni, and Abiah] There is a great mistake in this verse: in 1 Sam. viii. 2 we read, Now the name of his (Samuel's) first-born was Joel; and the name of his second Abiah. The word Joel is lost out of the text in this place, and veshemi, which signifies the second, and which refers to Abiah, is made here into a proper name.

32 And they ministered before the dwelling-place of the tabernacle of the congregation with singing, until Solomon had built the house of the Lord in Jerusalem: and <sup>ae</sup>then they waited on their office according to their order.

These, Joel and Abiah, were the two sons of Samuel, who administered justice so badly that the people, being oppressed, began to murmur, and demanded a king. See 1 Sam. viii. 1, &c.

Verse 32. According to their order.] This order is specified below.

Verse 39. Asaph] This person, with Heman, the sons of Korah, Ethan, Jeduthun, &c., are celebrated in these books, and in the Psalms, for their skill in singing, and the part they performed in the public worship of God.

It is very likely that their singing was only a kind of recitative or chanting, such as we still find in the synagogues. It does not appear that God had especially appointed these singers, much less any musical instruments (the silver trumpets excepted), to be employed in his service. Musical instruments in the house of God are, at least under the 44 And their brethren the sons of Merari stood on the left hand: *Ethan the son of <sup>b</sup> Kishi, the son of Abdi, the son of Malluch,

46 The son of Amzi, the son of Bani, the son of Shamer, 47 The son of Mahli, the son of Mushi, the son of Merari, the son of Levi.

48 Their brethren also the Levites were appointed unto all manner of service of the tabernacle of the house of God.

49 But Aaron and his sons offered *upon the altar of the burnt-offering, and <sup>d</sup> on the altar of incense, and were appointed for all the work of the place most holy, and to make an atonement for Israel, according to all that Moses the servant of God had commanded.

50 And these are the sons of Aaron; Eleazar his son, Phinehas <sup>c</sup>his son, Abishua his son,

51 Bukki his son, Uzzi his son, Zerahiah his son, 52 Meraioth his son, Amariah his son, Ahitub his son, 55 <sup>f</sup> And they gave them Hebron in the land of Judah, and the suburbs thereof round about it.

56 * But the fields of the city, and the villages thereof, they gave to Caleb the son of Jephunneh.

57 And <sup>h</sup> to the sons of Aaron they gave the cities of Judah, namely, Hebron, the city of refuge, and Libnah with her suburbs, and Jattir, and Esh-temoa, with her suburbs,

59 And <sup>j</sup> Ashan with her suburbs, and Beth-shemesh with her suburbs:

61 And unto the sons of Kohath, <sup>l</sup> which were left of the family of that tribe, were cities given out of the half tribe, namely, out of the half tribe of Manasseh, <sup>m</sup> by lot, ten cities.

62 And to the sons of Gershom throughout their families out of the tribe of Issachar, and out of the tribe of Asher, and out of the tribe of Naphtali, and out of the tribe of Manasseh in Bashan, thirteen cities.

63 Unto the sons of Merari were given by lot, throughout their families, out of the tribe of Reuben, and out of the tribe of Gad, and out of the tribe of Zebulun, <sup>n</sup> twelve cities.

64 And the children of Israel gave to the Levites these cities with their suburbs.

65 And they gave by lot out of the tribe of the children of Judah, and out of the tribe of the children of Simeon, and out of the tribe of the children of Benjamin, these cities, which are called by their names.

66 And <sup>o</sup> the residue of the families of the sons of Kohath had the cities of their coasts out of the tribe of Ephraim.

67 <sup>p</sup> And they gave unto them, of the cities of refuge, Shechem in Mount Ephraim with her suburbs; they gave also Gezer with her suburbs, 70 And out of the half tribe of Manasseh; Aner with her suburbs, and Bileam with her suburbs, for the family of the remnant of the sons of Kohath.

71 Unto the sons of Gershom were given out of the family of the half tribe of Manasseh, Golan in Bashan with her suburbs, and Ashtaroth with her suburbs:

72 And out of the tribe of Issachar: Kedesh with her suburbs, Daberath with her suburbs,

73 And Ramoth with her suburbs, and Anem with her suburbs:

74 And out of the tribe of Asher; Mashal with her suburbs, and Abdon with her suburbs,

75 And Hukok with her suburbs, and Rehob with her suburbs:

76 And out of the tribe of Naphtali; Kedesh in Galilee with her suburbs, and Hammon with her suburbs, and Kirjathaim with her suburbs.

77 Unto the rest of the children of Merari were given out of the tribe of Zebulun, Rimmon with her suburbs, Tabor with her suburbs:

78 And on the other side Jordan by Jericho, on the east side of Jordan, were given them out of the tribe of Reuben, Bezer in the wilderness with her suburbs, and Jahzah with her suburbs,

79 * Kedemoth also with her suburbs, and Me-phaaath with her suburbs:

80 And out of the tribe of *Gad; Ramoth in Gilead with her suburbs, and Mahanaim, with her suburbs, gospel, repugnant to the spirit of Christianity, and tend not a little to corrupt the worship of God.

Verse 50. These are the sons of Aaron.] We have already had a list of these (see ver. 8-16); this is a second, but less extensive, and is a proof that the writer of this book had several lists before him, from which he borrowed as he judged proper.

Verse 54. Theirs was the lot.] All the tribes and families obtained their respective inheritances by lot, but to the sons of Aaron was the first lot; and so the Syriac and Arabic have understood this place.

Verse 60. All their cities—were thirteen.] But there are only eleven reckoned here, Gibeon and Jutta being omitted, and the names of some of the others changed. None of the Versions give the full number of names, although they all give the whole sum, thirteen.

Verse 65. Which are called by their names.] Probably each family gave its own name to the city that fell to its lot.

Verse 69. Ajalon with her suburbs.] There are two cities wanting here, Eltekeh and Gibbethon. See Josh. xxi. 23.

Verses 71-77. We shall see from Josh. xxi. 28, &c., that several of these cities have different names.

How barren to us is this register, both of incident and interest! and yet, as barren rocks and sandy deserts make integral and necessary parts of the globe; so do these genealogical tables make necessary parts of the history of providence and grace in the maintenance of truth and the establishment of the Church of Christ. Therefore, no one that fears God will either despise or lightly esteem them.

I. CHRONICLES.

CHAPTER VII.

The genealogy of Issachar, 1-5. Of Benjamin, 6-12. Of Naphtali, 13. Of Manasseh, 14-19. Of Ephraim, 20-29. And of Asher, 30-40.

NOW the sons of Issachar were, *Tola, and <sup>b</sup>Puah, Jashub, and Shimrom, four.

2 And the sons of Tola; Uzzi, and Re-phaiah, and Jeriel, and Jahmai, and Jibsam, and Shemuel, heads of their father's house to wit, of Tola: they were valiant men of might in their generations; *whose number was in the days of David two and twenty thousand and six hundred.

3 And the sons of Uzzi; Izrahiah; and the sons of Izrahiah; Michael, and Obadiah, and Joel, Ishiah, five: all of them chief men.

4 And with them, by their generations, after the house of their fathers, were bands of soldiers for war, six and thirty thousand men: for they had many wives and sons.

5 And their brethren among all the families of Issachar were valiant men of might, reckoned in all by their genealogies fourscore and seven thousand.

6 The sons of <sup>a</sup>Benjamin; Bela, and Becher, and Jedaiel, three.

7 And the sons of Bela; Ezbon, and Uzzi, and Uzziel, and Jerimoth, and Iri, five; heads of the house of their fathers, mighty men of valour; and were reckoned by their genealogies twenty and two thousand and thirty and four.

8 And the sons of Becher; Zemira, and Joash, and Eliezer, and Elioenai, and Omri, and Jerimoth, and Abiah, and Anathoth, and Alameth. All these are the sons of Becher.

9 And the number of them, after their genealogy by their generations, heads of the house of their fathers, mighty men of valour, was twenty thousand and two hundred.

10 The sons also of Jedaiel; Bilhan: and the sons of Bilhan; Jeush, and Benjamin, and Ehud, and Chenaanah, and Zethan, and Tharshish, and Ahishahar.

11 All these the sons of Jedaiel, by the heads of their fathers, mighty men of valour, were seventeen thousand and two hundred soldiers, fit to go out for war and battle.

12 *Shuppim also, and Huppim, the children of <sup>c</sup>Ir, and Hushim, the sons of <sup>d</sup>Aher.

13 The sons of Naphtali; Jahziel, and Guni, and Jezer, and <sup>e</sup>Shallum, the sons of Bilhah.

14 The sons of Manasseh; Ashriel, whom she bare: (but his concubine the Aramitess bare Machir the father of Gilead:

15 And Machir took to wife the sister of Huppim and Shuppim, whose sister's name was Maachah;) and the name of the second was Zelophehad: and Zelophehad had daughters.

16 And Naachah the wife of Machir bare a son, and she called his name Peresh; and the name of his brother was Sheresh: and his sons were Ulam and Rakem.

17 And the sons of Ulam; <sup>f</sup>Bedan. These were the sons of Gilead, the son of Machir, the son of Manasseh.

18 And his sister Hammoleketh bare Ishod, and <sup>g</sup>Abiezer, and Mahalah.

19 And the sons of Shemidah were, Ahian, and Shechem, and Likhi, and Aniam.

20 And <sup>h</sup>the sons of Ephraim; Shuthelah, and Bered his son, and Tahath his son, and Eladah his son, and Tahath his son, 21 And Zabad his son, and Shuthelah his son, and Ezer, and Elead, whom the men of Gath that were born in that land slew, because they came down to take away their cattle.

22 And Ephraim their father mourned many days, and his brethren came to comfort him.

23 And when he went in to his wife, she conceived, and bare a son, and he called his name Beriah, because it went evil with his house.

24 (And his daughter was Sherah, who built Beth-horon the nether, and the upper, and Uzzen-sherah.)

25 And Rephah was his son, also Resheph, and Telah his son, and Tahan his son,

26 Loadan his son, Ammihud his son, Elishama his son,

27 <sup>i</sup>Non his son, Jehoshuah his son.

28 And their possessions and habitations were, Beth-el and the towns thereof, and eastward <sup>j</sup>Naaran, and westward Gezer, with the <sup>k</sup>towns thereof; Shechem also and the towns thereof, unto <sup>l</sup>Gaza and the towns thereof:

29 And by the borders of the children of <sup>m</sup>Manasseh, Beth-shean and her towns, Taanach and her towns, <sup>n</sup>Megiddo and her towns, Dor and her towns. In these dwelt the children of Joseph the son of Israel.

Verse 2. Whose number was in the days of David] Whether this was the number returned by Joab and his assistants, when they made that census of the people with which God was so much displeased, we know not. It is worthy of remark that we read here the sum of three tribes, Benjamin, Issachar, and Asher, under the reign of David, which is mentioned nowhere else; and yet we have no account here of the other tribes, probably because the author found no public registers in which such enumeration was recorded.

Verse 3. The sons of Izrahiah—five] There are, however, only four names in the text. Instead of five, the Syriac and Arabic read four. If five be the true reading, then Izrahiah must be reckoned with his four sons.

Verse 6. The sons of Benjamin; Bela, and Becher, and Jedaiel] In Gen. xlii. 21, ten sons of Benjamin are reckoned. In Num. xvi. 28, &c., five only are mentioned; and Ard and Naaman are there said to be the sons of Bela; consequently grandsons of Benjamin. In many cases grandsons are called sons, and both are often confounded in the genealogical tables. To attempt to reconcile such discrepancies would be a task as endless as it would be useless.

Verse 21. Whom the men of Gath—slew] We know nothing of this circumstance but what is related here.

Verse 24. His daughter was Sherah] That is, remnant: "called so," says the Targum, "because she was the remnant that escaped from the slaughter mentioned above."

30 *The sons of Asher; Imnah, and Isuah, and Ishuai, and Beriah, and Serah their sister.

31 And the sons of Beriah; Heber, and Malchiel, who is the father of Birzavith.

32 And Heber begat Japhlet, and <sup>b</sup> Shomer, and Hotham, and Shua their sister.

33 And the sons of Japhlet; Pasach, and Bimhal, and Ashvath. These are the children of Japhlet.

34 And the sons of <sup>c</sup> Shamer; Ahi, and Rohgah, Jehubbah, and Aram.

35 And the sons of his brother Helem; Zophah, and Imna, and Shelesh, and Amal.

*Gen. xlv. 17. Num. xxvi. 44.

Verse 32. And Shua their sister.] It is very rarely that women are found in the Jewish genealogies, and they are never inserted but for especial reasons.

36 The sons of Zophah; Suah, and Harnepher, and Shual, and Beri, and Imrah, 37 Bezer, and Hod, and Shamma, and Shilshah, and Ithran, and Beera.

38 And the sons of Jether; Jephunneh, and Pispah, and Ara.

39 And the sons of Ulla; Arah, and Haniel, and Rezia.

40 All these were the children of Asher, heads of their father's house, choice and mighty men of valour, chief of the princes. And the number throughout the genealogy of them that were apt to the war and to battle was twenty and six thousand men.

Verse 40. The children of Asher] The rabbins say that the daughters of Asher were very beautiful, and were all matched with kings or priests.

NOW Benjamin begat <sup>a</sup> Bela his first-born, Ashbel the second, and Aharah the third.

2 Nohah the fourth, and Rapha the fifth.

3 And the sons of Bela were, <sup>b</sup> Addar, and Gera, and Abihud,

4 And Abishua, and Naaman, and Ahoah.

5 And Gera, and <sup>c</sup> Shephuphan, and Hiram.

6 And these are the sons of Ehud: these are the heads of the fathers of the inhabitants of Geba, and they removed them to <sup>d</sup> Manahath:

7 And Naaman, and Ahiah, and Gera, he removed them, and begat Uzza, and Ahihud,

8 And Shaharaim begat children in the country of Moab, after he had sent them away: Hushim and Baara were his wives.

9 And he begat of Hodesh his wife, Jobab, and Zibia, and Mesha, and Malcham,

10 And Jeuz, and Shachia, and Mirma. These were his sons, heads of the fathers.

11 And of Hushim he begat Abitub, and Elpaal.

Verse 9. He begat of Hodesh his wife] In the preceding verse it is said that Hushim and Baara were his wives; and here it is said he begat of Hodesh his wife, &c. And then his children by Hushim, are mentioned, but not a word of Baara! It is likely therefore that Hodesh was another name for Baara, and this is asserted by the Targum: And he begot of Baara, that is Hodesh, his wife: so called because he espoused her anew. It is supposed that he had put her away before, and now re-married her.

Verse 20. And at Gibeon] This passage to the end of the 38th verse is found, with a little variety in the names, chap. ix. 35-44.

14 And Ahio, Shashak, and Jeremoth, 15 And Zebadiah, and Arad, and Ader, 16 And Michael, and Ispah, and Joha, the sons of Beriah;

The rabbins say that Ezra, having found two books that had these passages with a variety in the names, as they agreed in general, thought best to insert them both, not being able to discern which was the best.

His general plan was to collate all the copies he had, and to follow the greater number when he found them to agree: those which disagreed from the majority were thrown aside as spurious; and yet, in many cases, probably the rejected copies contained the true text.

If Ezra proceeded as R. Sol. Jarohi says, he had a very imperfect knowledge of true criticism; and it is no wonder that he has left so many faults in his text.

CHAPTER IX.

All Israel reckoned by genealogies, 1. The first inhabitants of Jerusalem, after their return from their captivity, who were chiefs of the fathers, 2-9. Of the priests, 10-13; Levites, 14-16; porters, their work, lodgings, &c., 17-29; other officers, 30-32; the singers, 33, 34. A repetition of the genealogy of Saul and his sons, 35-44.

SO <sup>a</sup>all Israel were reckoned by genealogies; and, behold, they were written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah, who were carried away to Babylon for their transgression.

2 <sup>b</sup>Now the first inhabitants that dwell in their possessions in their cities were, the Israelites, the priests, Levites, and <sup>c</sup>the Nethinims.

3 And in <sup>d</sup>Jerusalem dwell of the children of Judah, and of the children of Benjamin, and of the children of Ephraim, and Manasseh;

4 Uthai the son of Ammihud, the son of Omri, the son of Imri, the son of Bani, of the children of Pharez the son of Judah.

5 And of the Shilonites; Asaiah the first-born, and his sons.

6 And of the sons of Zerah; Jeuel, and their brethren, six hundred and ninety.

7 And of the sons of Benjamin; Sallu the son of Meshullam, the son of Hodaviah, the son of Hasenuah,

Verse 2. Now the first inhabitants] This is spoken of those who returned from the Babylonian captivity, and of the time in which they returned; for it is insinuated here that other persons afterwards settled at Jerusalem, though these mentioned here were the first on the return from the captivity. Properly speaking, the divisions mentioned in this verse constituted the whole of the Israelitish people, who were, ever since the days of Joshua, divided into the four following classes: 1. The priests. 2. The Levites. 3. The common people, or simple Israelites. 4. The Nethinims, or slaves of the temple, the remains of the Gibeonites who, having deceived Joshua, were condemned to this service, Josh. ix. 21, &c. In David's time it is probable that other conquered people were added, as the successors of the Gibeonites were not sufficient to perform all the drudgery of the temple service.

Verse 3. And in Jerusalem dwell] Several of the tribes of Judah, Benjamin, Ephraim, and Manasseh, took advantage of the proclamation of Cyrus to return to Jerusalem, and so mingled with the Israelites, and those to whom Jerusalem had previously appertained; and this was neces-

8 And Ibneiah the son of Jeroham, and Elah the son of Uzzi, the son of Michri, and Meshullam the son of Shephathiah, the son of Reuel, the son of Ibniyah;

9 And their brethren, according to their generations, nine hundred and fifty and six. All these men were chief of the fathers in the house of their fathers.

10 <sup>a</sup>And of the priests; Jedaiah, and Jehoiarib, and Jachin,

11 And <sup>b</sup>Azariah the son of Hilkiah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Zadok, the son of Meraioth, the son of Ahitub, the ruler of the house of God;

12 And Adaiah the son of Jeroham, the son of Pashur, the son of Malchijah, and Maasiah the son of Adiel, the son of Jahzerah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Meshillemith, the son of Immer;

13 And their brethren, heads of the house of their fathers, a thousand and seven hundred and three-score; <sup>c</sup>very able men for the work of the service of the house of God.

sary in order to provide a sufficient population for so large a city.

Verse 4. Uthai the son of Ammihud] The list here is nearly the same with those found in Ezra and Nehemiah, and contains those who returned to Jerusalem with Zerubbabel; but the list in Nehemiah is more ample, probably because it contains those who came afterwards. The object of the sacred writer here was to give the list of those who came first.

Verse 11. The ruler of the house of God] The high-priest at this time was Jeshua, the son of Josadak (Ezra iii. 8); and Seraiah (Neh. xi. 11), called here Azariah, was the ruler of the house; the person next in authority to the high-priest, and who probably had the guard of the temple and command of the priests, Levites, &c. It is likely that the person here was the same as is called the second priest, 2 Kings xxv. 18, who was the sagan, or high-priest's deputy.

Verse 13. And their brethren] What a prodigious number of ecclesiastics to perform the divine service of one temple! no less than one thousand seven hundred and eighty able-bodied men! and this number is reckoned inde-

16 And Obadiah the son of Shemaiah, the son of Galal, the son of Jeduthun, and Berechiah the son of Asa, the son of Elkanah, that dwelt in the villages of the Netophathites.

17 And the porters were, Shallum, and Akkub, and Talmon, and Ahiman, and their brethren: Shallum was the chief;

18 Who hitherto waited in the king's gate eastward: they were porters in the companies of the children of Levi.

19 And Shallum the son of Kore, the son of Ebiasaph, the son of Korah, and his brethren, of the house of his father, the Korahites, were over the work of the service, keepers of the gates of the tabernacle: and their fathers, being over the host of the LORD, were keepers of the entry.

20 And Phinehas the son of Eleazar was the ruler over them in time past, and the LORD was with him.

21 And Zechariah the son of Meshelemiah was porter of the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

22 All these which were chosen to be porters in the gates were two hundred and twelve. These were reckoned by their genealogy in their villages, whom David and Samuel the seer did ordain in their set office.

23 So they and their children had the oversight of the gates of the house of the LORD, namely, the house of the tabernacle, by wards.

24 In four quarters were the porters, toward the east, west, north, and south.

25 And their brethren, which were in their villages, were to come after seven days from time to time with them.

26 For these Levites, the four chief porters, were in their set office, and were over the chambers and treasuries of the house of God.

27 And they lodged round about the house of God, because the charge was upon them, and the opening thereof every morning pertained to them.

Verse 30. The sons of the priests made the ointment] Only the priests were permitted to make this ointment; all others were forbidden to do it on pain of death; see Exod. xxx. 34-38.

Verse 35. Whose wife's name was Maachah] Here our translators have departed from the original, for the word is echotho, his sister; but the Vulgate, Septuagint, Syriac, 28 And certain of them had the charge of the ministering vessels, that they should bring them in and out by tale.

29 Some of them also were appointed to oversee the vessels, and all the instruments of the sanctuary, and the fine flour, and the wine, and the oil, and the frankincense, and the spices.

30 And some of the sons of the priests made the ointment of the spices.

31 And Mattithiah, one of the Levites, who was the first-born of Shallum the Korahite, had the set office over the things that were made in the pans.

32 And other of their brethren, of the sons of the Kohathites, were over the shew-bread, to prepare it every sabbath.

33 And these are the singers, chief of the fathers of the Levites, who remaining in the chambers were free: for they were employed in that work day and night.

34 These chief fathers of the Levites were chief throughout their generations; these dwelt at Jerusalem.

35 And in Gibeon dwelt the father of Gibeon, Jehiel, whose wife's name was Maachah:

36 And his first-born son Abdon, then Zur, and Kish, and Baal, and Ner, and Nadab.

37 And Gedor, and Ahio, and Zechariah, and Mikloth.

38 And Mikloth begat Shimeam. And they also dwelt with their brethren at Jerusalem, over against their brethren.

39 And Ner begat Kish; and Kish begat Saul; and Saul begat Jonathan, and Malchishua, and Abinadab, and Esh-baal.

40 And the son of Jonathan was Merib-baal: and Merib-baal begat Micah.

41 And the sons of Micah were, Pithon, and Melech, and Tahrea, and Ahaz.

42 And Ahaz begat Jarah; and Jarah begat Alemeth, and Azmaveth, and Zimri; and Zimri begat Moza;

43 And Moza begat Binea; and Rephaiah his son, Eleusah his son, Azel his son.

44 And Azel had six sons, whose names are these, Azrikam, Bocheru, and Ishmael, and Sheariah, and Obadiah, and Hanan: these were the sons of Azel.

Arabic, and Chaldee have WIFE; to which may be added, chap. viii. 29, the parallel place. There is most certainly a fault somewhere, for Maachah could not be both the sister and wife of Jehiel. Whether, therefore, chap. viii. 29 has been altered from this, or this altered from that, who can tell?

Verse 41. And Ahaz.] This is added by our translators from chap. viii. 35, but such liberties should only be taken in a note; for although the words are now sufficiently distinguished from the text by being printed in italics, yet it is too much to expect that every editor of a Bible will attend to such distinctions, and in process of time the words will be found incorporated with the text.

I. CHRONICLES.

CHAPTER X.

A fatal battle between the Israelites and Philistines in Gilboa, in which Saul is mortally wounded, and his three sons slain, 1-6. The Israelites being totally routed, the Philistines, coming to strip the dead, find Saul and his three sons among the slain: they cut off Saul's head, and send it and his armour about the country to the idol temples; and then fix them up in the house of Dagon, 7-10. The men of Jabesh-gilead come by night, and take away the bodies of Saul and his three sons, and bury them in Jabesh, 11, 12. The reason of Saul's tragical death; the kingdom is transferred to David, 13, 14.

NOW <sup>a</sup>the Philistines fought against Israel; and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and fell down <sup>b</sup>slain in Mount Gilboa.

2 And the Philistines followed hard after Saul, and after his sons; and the Philistines slew Jonathan, and <sup>c</sup>Abinadab, and Malchi-shua, the sons of Saul.

3 And the battle went sore against Saul, and the <sup>d</sup>archers <sup>e</sup>hit him, and he was wounded of the archers.

4 Then said Saul to his armour-bearer, Draw thy sword, and thrust me through therewith; lest these uncircumcised come and <sup>f</sup>abuse me. But his armour-bearer would not; for he was sore afraid. So Saul took a sword, and fell upon it.

5 And when his armour-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he fell likewise on the sword, and died.

6 So Saul died, and his three sons, and all his house died together.

7 And when all the men of Israel that were in the valley saw that they fled, and that Saul and his sons were dead, then they forsook their cities, and fled: and the Philistines came and dwelt in them.

Verse 1. Now the Philistines fought against Israel] The reader will find the same history, in almost the same words, in 1 Sam. xxxi. 1-18, to the notes on which he is referred for every thing important in this.

Verse 6. So Saul died—and all his house] Every branch of his family that had followed him to the war was cut off; his three sons are mentioned as being the chief.

8 And it came to pass on the morrow, when the Philistines came to strip the slain, that they found Saul and his sons fallen in Mount Gilboa.

9 And when they had stripped him, they took his head, and his armour, and sent into the land of the Philistines round about, to carry tidings unto their idols, and to the people.

10 <sup>a</sup>And they put his armour in the house of their gods, and fastened his head in the temple of Dagon.

11 And when all Jabesh-gilead heard all that the Philistines had done to Saul,

12 They arose, all the valiant men, and took away the body of Saul, and the bodies of his sons, and brought them to Jabesh, and buried their bones under the oak in Jabesh, and fasted seven days,

13 So Saul died for his transgression which he <sup>b</sup>committed against the LORD, <sup>c</sup>even against the word of the LORD, which he kept not, and also for asking counsel of one that had a familiar spirit, <sup>d</sup>to inquire of it;

14 And inquired not of the LORD: therefore he slew him, and <sup>e</sup>turned the kingdom unto David the son of <sup>f</sup>Jesse.

CHAPTER XI.

*David is anointed king in Hebron, 1-3. He wars against the Jebusites, and takes their cities, 4-9. THEN <sup>a</sup>all Israel gathered themselves to David unto Hebron, saying, Behold, we are thy bone and thy flesh.

2 And moreover <sup>b</sup>in time past, even when Saul was king, thou wast he that leddest out and broughtest in Israel: and the LORD thy God said unto thee, Thou shalt <sup>c</sup>feed <sup>d</sup>my people Israel, and thou shalt be ruler over my people Israel.

3 Therefore came all the elders of Israel to the king to Hebron; and David made a covenant with them in Hebron before the LORD; and <sup>a</sup>they anointed David king over Israel, according to the word of the LORD <sup>b</sup>by <sup>c</sup>Samuel.

4 And David and all Israel <sup>d</sup>went to Jerusalem, which is Jebus; <sup>e</sup>where the Jebusites were, the inhabitants of the land.

<sup>i</sup> 2 Sam. v. 6.—Judg. i. 21. xix. 10.

Verse 11. The number of the mighty men] See 2 Sam. xxiii. 8, &c., and the notes there.

5 And the inhabitants of Jebus said to David, Thou shalt not come hither. Nevertheless David took the castle of Zion, which is the city of David.

6 And David said, Whosoever smiteth the Jebusites first shall be chief and captain. So Joab the son of Zeruiah went first up, and was chief.

7 And David dwelt in the castle; therefore they called it the city of David.

8 And he built the city round about, even from Millo round about: and Joab repaired the rest of the city.

9 So David waxed greater and greater: for the LORD of hosts was with him.

10 These also are the chief of the mighty men whom David had, who strengthened themselves with him in his kingdom, and with all Israel to make him king, according to the word of the LORD concerning Israel.

11 And this is the number of the mighty men whom David had; Jashobeam, an Hachmonite, the chief of the captains: he lifted up his spear against three hundred slain by him at one time.

12 And after him was Eleazar the son of Dodo the Ahohite, who was one of the three mighty men.

13 He was with David at Pas-dammim, and there the Philistines were gathered together to battle, where was a parcel of ground full of barley; and the people fled from before the Philistines.

14 And they set themselves in the midst of that parcel, and delivered it, and slew the Philistines; and the LORD saved them by a great deliverance.

15 Now three of the thirty captains went down to the rock to David, into the cave of Adullam; and the host of the Philistines encamped in the valley of Rephaim.

16 And David was then in the hold, and the Philistines' garrison was then at Beth-lehem.

17 And David longed, and said, Oh that one would give me drink of the water of the well of Beth-lehem, that is at the gate!

18 And the three brake through the host of the Philistines, and drew water out of the well of Beth-lehem, that was by the gate, and took it, and brought it to David: but David would not drink of it, but poured it out to the LORD.

19 And said, my God forbid it me, that I should do this thing: shall I drink the blood of these men that have put their lives in jeopardy? for with the jeopardy of their lives they brought it. Therefore he would not drink it. These things did these three mightiest.

20 And Abishai the brother of Joab, he was chief of the three: for lifting up his spear against three hundred, he slew them, and had a name among the three.

21 Of the three, he was more honourable than the two; for he was their captain: howbeit he attained not to the first three.

22 Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, the son of a valiant man of Kabzeel, who had done many acts; he slew two lion-like men of Moab: also he went down and slew a lion in a pit in a snowy day.

23 And he slew an Egyptian, a man of great stature, five cubits high; and in the Egyptian's hand was a spear like a weaver's beam; and he went down to him with a staff, and plucked the spear out of the Egyptian's hand, and slew him with his own spear.

24 These things did Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and had a name among the three mighties.

25 Behold, he was honourable among the thirty, but attained not to the first three: and David set him over his guard.

26 Also the valiant men of the armies were, Asahel the brother of Joab, Elhanan the son of Dodo of Beth-lehem,

27 Shammoth the Harorite, Helez the Pelonite,

28 Ira the son of Ikkesh the Tekoite, Abi-ezer the Antothite, 34 The sons of Hashem the Gizonite, Jonathan the son of Shage the Hararite,

CHAPTER XII.

The different persons, captains, &c., who joined themselves to David at Ziklag, 1-22. Those who joined him at Hebron, out of the different tribes; Judah, Simeon, Levi, the house of Aaron, Benjamin, Ephraim, Manasseh, Issachar, Zebulun, Naphtali, Dan, Asher, Reuben, &c., to the amount of an hundred and twenty thousand, 23-37. Their unanimity, and the provisions they brought for his support, 38-40.

NOW *these are they that came to David to Ziklag, *while he yet kept himself close because of Saul the son of Kish: and they were among the mighty men, helpers of the war.

2 They were armed with bows, and could use both the right hand and *the left in hurling stones and shooting arrows out of a bow, even of Saul's brethren of Benjamin.

3 The chief was Ahiezer, then Joash, the sons of *Shemaah the Gibeathite; and Jeziel, and Pelet, the sons of Azmaveth; and Berachah, and Jehu the Antothite,

4 And Ismaiah the Gibeonite, a mighty man among the thirty, and over the thirty; and Jeremiah, and Jahaziel, and Johanan, and Josabad the Gederathite,

5 Eluzai, and Jerimoth, and Bealiah, and Shemariah, and Shephatiah the Haruphite,

6 Elkanah, and Jesiah, and Azareel, and Joezer, and Jashobeam, the Korhites,

7 And Joelah, and Zebadiah, the sons of Jeroham of Gedor.

8 And of the Gadites there separated themselves unto David into the hold to the wilderness men of might, and men *of war fit for the battle, that could handle shield and buckler, whose faces were like the faces of lions, and were *as *swift as the roes upon the mountains;

9 Ezer the first, Obadiah the second, Eliab the third,

10 Mishmannah the fourth, Jeremiah the fifth,

11 Attai the sixth, Eliel the seventh,

12 Johanan the eighth, Elzabad the ninth,

13 Jeremiah the tenth, Machbanai the eleventh.

14 These were of the sons of Gad, captains of the host: *one of the least was over an hundred, and the greatest over a thousand.

15 These are they that went over Jordan in the first month, when it had *overflowed all his *banks; and they put to flight all them of the valleys, both toward the east, and toward the west.

16 And there came of the children of Benjamin and Judah to the hold unto David.

17 And David went out *to meet them, and answered and said unto them, If ye be come peaceably unto me to help me, mine heart shall *be knit unto you: but if ye be come to betray me to mine enemies, seeing there is no *wrong in mine hands, the God of our fathers look thereon, and rebuke it.

18 Then *the spirit came upon *Amasai, who was chief of the captains, and he said, Thine are we, David, and on thy side, thou son of Jesse: peace, peace be unto thee, and peace be to thine helpers: for thy God helpeth thee. Then David received them, and made them captains of the band.

19 And there fell some of Manasseh to David, *when he came with the Philistines against Saul to battle: but they helped them not: for the lords of the Philistines upon advisement sent him away, saying, *He will fall to his master Saul *to the jeopardy of our heads.

20 As he went to Ziklag, there fell to him of Manasseh, Adnah, and Jozabad, and Jedaiel, and Michael, and Jozabad, and Elihu, and Zilthai, captains of the thousands that were of Manasseh.

21 And they helped David *against *the band of the rovers; for they were all mighty men of valour, and were captains in the host.

22 For at that time day by day there came to David to help him, until it was a great host, like the host of God.

23 And these are the numbers of the *bands *that were ready armed to the war, and *came to David to Hebron, to *turn the kingdom of Saul to him, *according to the word of the Lord.

24 The children of Judah that bare shield and spear were six thousand and eight hundred, ready *armed to the war.

25 Of the children of Simeon, mighty men of valour for the war, seven thousand and one hundred.

26 Of the children of Levi four thousand and six hundred.

27 And Jehoiada was the leader of the Aaronites, and with him were three thousand and seven hundred;

28 And *Zadok, a young man mighty of valour, and of his father's house twenty and two captains.

29 And of the children of Benjamin, the *kindred of Saul, three thousand: for hitherto *the *greatest part of them had kept the ward of the house of Saul.

30 And of the children of Ephraim twenty thousand and eight hundred, mighty men of valour, *famous throughout the house of their fathers.

31 And of the half tribe of Manasseh eighteen

Verse 1. Came to David to Ziklag] Achish, king of Gath, had given Ziklag to David, as a safe retreat from the wrath of Saul.

Verse 8. And were as swift as the roes] That swiftness was considered to be a grand accomplishment in a warrior, appears from all ancient writings which treat of military affairs.

33 Of Zebulun, such as went forth to battle, <sup>b</sup> expert in war, with all instruments of war, fifty thousand, which could <sup>c</sup> keep rank: they were <sup>d</sup> not of double heart.

Abiathar was then high-priest and Jehoiada captain over the warriors of the house of Aaron.

Verse 32. Children of Issachar] According to the Targum they were all astronomers and astrologers. It appears that in their wisdom, experience, and skill, their brethren had the fullest confidence; and nothing was done but by their direction and advice.

Verse 39. They were with David three days] These were the deputies of the different people mentioned here: it is not possible that all the thousands mentioned above could 38 All these men of war, that could keep rank, came with a perfect heart to Hebron, to make David king over all Israel: and all the rest also of Israel were of one heart to make David king.

39 And there they were with David three days, eating and drinking: for their brethren had prepared for them.

40 Moreover they that were nigh them, even unto Issachar and Zebulun and Naphtali, brought bread on asses, and on camels, and on mules, and on oxen, and <sup>f</sup> meat, meal, cakes of figs, and bunches of raisins, and wine, and oil, and oxen, and sheep abundantly: for there was joy in Israel.

have feasted with David for three days; and yet it appears there was even of these a great number, for the men of Issachar, Zebulun, and Naphtali, who were nearest to this place of rendezvous, had brought all the necessaries for such a feast. From the whole it appears most evident that the great majority of the tribes of Israel wished to see the kingdom confirmed in the hands of David; nor was there ever in any country a man more worthy of the public choice.

CHAPTER XIII.

David consults with his officers, and resolves to bring back the ark from the house of Abinadab, 1-4. They place it on a new cart, and Uzza and Ahio drive the cart; the oxen stumbling, Uzza puts forth his hand to save the ark from falling, and he is smitten by the Lord, 5-10. David is displeased, and orders the ark to be carried to the house of Obed-edom the Gittite, 11-13. The ark abides there three months, and the Lord blesses Obed-edom, 14.

AND David consulted with the captains of thousands and hundreds, and with every leader.

2 And David said unto all the congregation of Israel, If it seem good unto you, and that it be of the Lord our God, <sup>a</sup> let us send abroad unto our brethren every where, that are <sup>b</sup> left in all the land of Israel, and with them also to the priests and Levites which are <sup>c</sup> in their cities and suburbs, that they may gather themselves unto us:

6 And David went up, and all Israel, to <sup>i</sup> Baalah, that is, to Kirjath-jearim, which belonged to Judah, to bring up from thence the ark of God the Lord, <sup>j</sup> that dwelleth between the cherubims, whose name is called on it.

Hiram sends artificers and materials to David, to build him a house, 1, 2. David's wives and children, 3-7. He defeats the Philistines in two battles: one in the valley of Rephaim, 8-12, and the other at Gibeon and Gazer, 13-16. His fame goes out into all the surrounding nations, 17.

NOW *Hiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and timber of cedars, with masons and carpenters, to build him an house.

2 And David perceived that the LORD had confirmed him king over Israel, for his kingdom was lifted up on high, because of his people Israel.

3 And David took <sup>b</sup>more wives at Jerusalem: and David begat more sons and daughters.

4 Now <sup>c</sup>these are the names of his children which he had in Jerusalem; Shamunua, and Shobab, Nathan, and Solomon,

8 And when the Philistines heard that *David was anointed king over all Israel, all the Philistines went up to seek David. And David heard of it, and went out against them.

11 So they came up to Baal-perazim; and David smote them there. Then David said, God hath broken in upon mine enemies by mine hand like the breaking forth of waters: therefore they called the name of that place *Baal-perazim.

12 And when they had left their gods there, David gave a commandment, and they were burned with fire.

13 <sup>1</sup>And the Philistines yet again spread themselves abroad in the valley.

14 Therefore David inquired again of God; and God said unto him, Go not after them; turn away from them, <sup>1</sup>and come upon them over against the mulberry-trees.

15 And it shall be, when thou shalt hear a sound of going in the tops of the mulberry-trees, that then thou shalt go out to battle: for God is gone forth before thee to smite the host of the Philistines.

16 David therefore did as God commanded him: and they smote the host of the Philistines from <sup>1</sup>Gibeon even to Gazer.

CHAPTER XV.

David prepares to bring home the ark, and musters the Levites, 1-11. They sanctify themselves, and bear the ark upon their shoulders, 12-15. The solemnities observed on the occasion, 16-26. David dances before the ark, and is despised by his wife Michal, 27-29.

AND David made him houses in the city of David, and prepared a place for the ark of God, * and pitched for it a tent.

2 Then David said, <sup>b</sup> None ought to carry the ark of God but the Levites: for them hath the Lord chosen to carry the ark of God, and to minister unto him for ever.

3 And David <sup>a</sup> gathered all Israel together to Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the Lord unto his place, which he had prepared for it.

4 And David assembled the children of Aaron, and the Levites:

5 Of the sons of Kohath; Uriel the chief, and his brethren an hundred and twenty:

6 Of the sons of Merari; Asaiah the chief, and his brethren two hundred and twenty:

7 Of the sons of Gershom: Joel the chief, and his brethren an hundred and thirty:

8 Of the sons of <sup>c</sup> Elizaphan; Shemaiah the chief, and his brethren two hundred:

9 Of the sons of <sup>d</sup> Hebron; Eliel the chief, and his brethren fourscore:

10 Of the sons of Uzziel; Amminadab the chief, and his brethren an hundred and twelve.

11 And David called for Zadok and Abiathar the priests, and for the Levites, for Uriel, Asaiah, and Joel, Shemaiah, and Eliel, and Amminadab.

12 And said unto them, Ye are the chief of the fathers of the Levites: sanctify yourselves, both ye and your brethren, that ye may bring up the ark of the Lord God of Israel unto the place that I have prepared for it.

13 For <sup>e</sup> because ye did it not at the first, <sup>f</sup> the Lord our God made a breach upon us, for that we sought him not after the due order.

14 So the priests and the Levites sanctified themselves to bring up the ark of the Lord God of Israel.

15 And the children of the Levites bare the ark

Verse 1. Made him houses] One for himself, and one for the ark; in the latter was a tent, under which the ark was placed.

Verse 2. None ought to carry the ark—but the Levites] It was their business; and he should have thought of this sooner, and then the unfortunate breach on Uzza would have been prevented; see ver. 13.

Verse 15. Upon their shoulders] That is, the staves which went through the rings rested on their shoulders, but the ark itself rested on the staves like a sedan on its poles.

As Moses commanded] See Num. iv. 5, 15.

Verse 17. Heman—Asaph—Ethan] These were the three chief musicians in the time of David; see chap. vi. 31.

Verse 20. With psalteries on Alamoth] Some suppose that the word signifies virgins or women singers, the persons mentioned here being appointed to accompany them with psalteries, and preside over them.

Verse 21. On the Sheminith] According to the Targum, this signifies an instrument that sounded an octave, or, according to others, an instrument with eight strings. The Syriac and Arabic have it, instruments to sing with daily, of God upon their shoulders with the staves thereon, as <sup>l</sup> Moses commanded according to the word of the Lord.

16 And David spake to the chief of the Levites to appoint their brethren to be the singers with instruments of musick, psalteries and harps and cymbals, sounding, by lifting up the voice with joy.

17 So the Levites appointed <sup>m</sup> Heman the son of Joel; and of his brethren, <sup>n</sup> Asaph the son of Berechiah; and of the sons of Merari their brethren, <sup>o</sup> Ethan the son of Kushaiah;

18 And with them their brethren of the second degree, Zechariah, Ben, and Jaaziel, Shemiramoth, and Jehiel, and Unni, Eliab, and Benaiah, and Maaseiah, and Mattithiah, and Eliphele, and Mikneiah, and Obed-edom, and Jeiel, the porters.

19 So the singers, Heman, Asaph, and Ethan, were appointed to sound with cymbals of brass;

20 And Zechariah, and <sup>p</sup> Aziel, and Shemiramoth, and Jehiel, and Unni, and Eliab, and Maaseiah, and Benaiah, with psalteries <sup>q</sup> on Alamoth;

21 And Mattithiah, and Eliphele, and Mikneiah, and Obed-edom, and Jeiel, and Azariah, with harps <sup>r</sup> on the Sheminith to excel.

22 And Chonaniah, chief of the Levites, <sup>s</sup> was for song: he instructed about the song, because he was skilful.

23 And Berechiah and Elkanah were door-keepers for the ark.

24 And Shebaniah, and Jehoshaphat, and Nathaneel, and Amasai, and Zechariah, and Benaiah, and Eliczer, the priests, <sup>t</sup> did blow with the trumpets before the ark of God: and Obed-edom and Jehiah were door-keepers for the ark.

25 So <sup>u</sup> David, and the elders of Israel, and the captains over thousands, went to bring up the ark of the covenant of the Lord out of the house of Obed-edom with joy.

Verse 22. Chonaniah—he instructed about the song] This appears to have been the master-singer; he gave the key and the time, for he presided, benassa, in the elevation, probably meaning what is called pitching the tune, for he was skilful in music, and powerful in his voice, and well qualified to lead the band: he might have been precentor.

Verse 26. God helped the Levites] When they saw that God had made no breach among them, as he had in the case of Uzza, in gratitude for their preservation, and his acceptance of their labour, they sacrificed seven bullocks and seven rams.

Verse 27. A robe of fine linen] A robe made of buts, probably the tuft or beard of the Pinna Magna, a species of mussel found everywhere on the shores of the Mediterranean, growing sometimes to a foot and a half in length. The buts

CHAPTER XVI.

David brings the ark into its tent; and offers sacrifices, peace-offerings, and burnt-offerings, 1, 2; and gives portions to the people of Israel, 3. He appoints proper ministers and officers for the ark, 4-6. He delivers a solemn thanksgiving on the occasion, 7-36. How the different officers served at the ark, 37-42. The people return home, 43.

SO * they brought the ark of God, and set it in the midst of the tent that David had pitched for it: and they offered burnt-sacrifices and peace-offerings before God.

2 And when David had made an end of offering the burnt-offerings and the peace-offerings, he blessed the people in the name of the LORD.

3 And he dealt to every one of Israel, both man and woman, to every one a loaf of bread, and a good piece of flesh, and a flagon of wine.

4 And he appointed certain of the Levites to minister before the ark of the LORD, and to <sup>b</sup> record, and to thank and praise the LORD God of Israel:

5 Asaph the chief, and next to him Zechariah, Jeiel, and Shemiramoth, and Jehiel, and Mattithiah, and Eliab, and Benaiah, and Obed-edom: and Jeiel <sup>c</sup> with psalteries and with harps; but Asaph made a sound with cymbals;

6 Benaiah also and Jahaziel the priests with trumpets continually before the ark of the covenant of God.

7 Then on that day David delivered <sup>d</sup> first this psalm, to thank the LORD, into the hand of Asaph and his brethren.

8 * Give thanks unto the LORD, call upon his name, make known his deeds among the people.

9 Sing unto him, sing psalms unto him, talk ye of all his wondrous works.

10 Glory ye in his holy name: let the heart of them rejoice that seek the LORD.

11 Seek the LORD and his strength, seek his face continually.

15 Be ye mindful always of his covenant; the word which he commanded to a thousand generations.

16 Even of the 'covenant which he made with Abraham, and of his oath unto Isaac;

17 And hath confirmed the same to Jacob for a law, and to Israel for an everlasting covenant,

18 Saying, Unto thee will I give the land of Canaan, * the lot of your inheritance;

19 When ye were but <sup>a</sup> few, <sup>a</sup> even a few, and strangers in it.

20 And when they went from nation to nation, and from one kingdom to another people;

21 He suffered no man to do them wrong; yea, he <sup>b</sup> reprov'd kings for their sakes, 22 Saying, <sup>c</sup> Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm.

23 <sup>d</sup> Sing unto the LORD, all the earth; shew forth from day to day his salvation.

24 Declare his glory among the heathen; his marvellous works among all nations.

25 For great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised: he also is to be feared above all gods.

26 For all the gods <sup>e</sup> of the people are idols: but the LORD made the heavens.

Verse 5. Asaph] See the preceding chapter, ver. 17, &c.

Verse 7. David delivered first this psalm] I believe the meaning in this place to be this: David made the psalm on the occasion above specified; and delivered it to Asaph, who was the musician, and to his brethren, to be sung by them in honour of what God had done in behalf of his people.

Verse 12. Remember his marvellous works] The whole of the Psalm refers to God's wondrous actions among the nations in behalf of Israel.

Verse 22. Touch not mine anointed] By this title the patriarchs are generally understood: they had a royal and sacerdotal power in the order of God. But the title may be applied to all the Jewish people, who were the anointed, as they were the elect and peculiar people of God.

27 Glory and honour are in his presence; strength and gladness are in his place.

28 Give unto the LORD, ye kindreds of the people, give unto the LORD glory and strength.

30 Fear before him, all the earth: the world also shall be stable, that it be not moved.

31 Let the heavens be glad, and let the earth rejoice: and let men say among the nations, The LORD reigneth.

Verse 35. Save us, O God of our salvation] To pray to God under the attribute, the influence of which we need, serves to inspire much confidence. I am weak; Almighty God, help me! I am ignorant; O thou Father of lights, teach me! I am lost; O merciful God, save me! &c.

Verse 39. Zadok the priest] Both Zadok and Abiathar were high-priests at this time: the former David established at Gibeon, or Gibeon, where the ark had been all the days of Saul; and the latter he established at Jerusalem, where the ark now was: so there were two high-priests and two distinct services; but there was only one ark. How long the service at Gibeon was continued we cannot tell; the principal functions were no doubt performed at Jerusalem.

Verse 42. Musical instruments of God.] Query, Did God ever ordain instruments of music to be used in his worship?

37 So he left there before the ark of the covenant of the LORD Asaph and his brethren, to minister before the ark continually, as every day's work required:

38 And Obed-edom with their brethren, three-score and eight; Obed-edom also the son of Jeduthun and Hosah to be porters:

41 And with them Heman and Jeduthun, and the rest that were chosen, who were expressed by name, to give thanks to the LORD, 'because his mercy endureth for ever;

42 And with them Heman and Jeduthun with trumpets and cymbals for those that should make a sound, and with musical instruments of God. And the sons of Jeduthun were <sup>c</sup> porters.

Can they be used in Christian assemblies according to the spirit of Christianity? Has Jesus Christ, or his apostles, ever commanded or sanctioned the use of them? Were they ever used any where in the apostolic church? Does the use of them at present, in Christian congregations, ever increase the spirit of devotion? If these and similar questions cannot be answered in the affirmative; then, query, Is not the introduction of such instruments into the worship of God antichristian, and calculated to debase and ultimately ruin the spirit and influence of the gospel of Jesus Christ? And should not all who wish well to the spread and establishment of pure and undefiled religion lift up their hand, their influence, and their voice against them? The argument from their use in the Jewish service is futile in the extreme when applied to Christianity.

CHAPTER XVII.

David consults Nathan about building a temple for God, 1, 2. God sends him an answer by Nathan, informing him that Solomon shall build the house, 3-14. David receives the divine purpose with humility and joy, and gives God praise, 15-27.

NOW * it came to pass, as David sat in his house, that David said to Nathan the prophet, Lo, I dwell in an house of cedars, but the ark of the covenant of the LORD remaineth under curtains.

2 Then Nathan said unto David, Do all that is in thine heart; for God is with thee.

3 And it came to pass the same night, that the word of God came to Nathan, saying,

4 Go and tell David my servant, Thus saith the LORD, Thou shalt not build me an house to dwell in:

5 For I have not dwelt in an house since the day that I brought up Israel unto this day; but <sup>b</sup> have gone from tent to tent, and from one tabernacle to another.

6 Whosoever I have walked with all Israel, spake I a word to any of the judges of Israel, whom I commanded to feed my people, saying, Why have ye not built me an house of cedars?

7 Now therefore thus shalt thou say unto my servant David, Thus saith the LORD of hosts, I took thee from the sheep-cote, even <sup>c</sup> from following the sheep, that thou shouldst be ruler over my people Israel:

* 2 Sam. vii. 1, &c.—<sup>a</sup> Heb. have been.

Verse 1. Now it came to pass] See every thing recorded in this chapter amply detailed in the notes on 2 Sam. vii. 1, &c.

* Heb. from after.

Verse 9. Neither shall the children of wickedness] They shall no more be brought into servitude as they were in the time they sojourned in Egypt. This is what is here referred to.

8 And I have been with thee whithersoever thou hast walked, and have cut off all thine enemies from before thee, and have made thee a name like the name of the great men that are in the earth.

9 Also I will ordain a place for my people Israel, and will plant them, and they shall dwell in their place, and shall be moved no more; neither shall the children of wickedness waste them any more, as at the beginning,

10 And since the time that I commanded judges to be over my people Israel. Moreover I will subdue all thine enemies. Furthermore I tell thee that the LORD will build thee an house.

11 And it shall come to pass, when thy days be expired, that thou must go to be with thy fathers, that I will raise up thy seed after thee, which shall be of thy sons; and I will establish his kingdom.

12 He shall build me an house, and I will stablish his throne for ever.

13 * I will be his father, and he shall be my son: and I will not take my mercy away from him, as I took it from him that was before thee.

14 But <sup>b</sup> I will settle him in mine house and in my kingdom for ever: and his throne shall be established for evermore.

15 According to all these words, and according to all this vision, so did Nathan speak unto David.

16 <sup>c</sup> And David the king came and sat before the LORD, and said, Who am I, O LORD God, and what is mine house, that thou hast brought me hitherto?

17 And yet this was a small thing in thine eyes, O God; for thou hast also spoken of thy servant's house for a great while to come, and hast regarded me according to the estate of a man of high degree, O LORD God.

* 2 Sam. vii. 14, 15.—<sup>b</sup> Luke i. 33.—<sup>c</sup> 2 Sam. vii. 18.—

Verse 12. I will stablish his throne for ever.] David was a type of Christ; and concerning him the prophecy is literally true. See Isa. ix. 7, where there is evidently the same reference.

Verse 13. I will not take my mercy away from him.] I will not cut off his family from the throne, as I did that of his predecessor, Saul.

Verse 16. And what is mine house, that thou hast brought 18 What can David speak more to thee for the honour of thy servant? for thou knowest thy servant.

19 O LORD, for thy servant's sake, and according to thine own heart, hast thou done all this greatness, in making known all these <sup>d</sup> great things.

20 O LORD, there is none like thee, neither is there any God beside thee, according to all that we have heard with our ears.

21 And what one nation in the earth is like thy people Israel, whom God went to redeem to be his own people, to make thee a name of greatness and terrible, by driving out nations from before thy people, whom thou hast redeemed out of Egypt.

22 For thy people Israel didst thou make thine own people for ever; and thou, LORD, becamest their God.

23 Therefore now, LORD, let the thing that thou hast spoken concerning thy servant and concerning his house be established for ever, and do as thou hast said.

24 Let it even be established, that thy name may be magnified for ever, saying, The LORD of hosts is the God of Israel, even a God to Israel: and let the house of David thy servant be established before thee.

25 For thou, O my God, <sup>e</sup> hast told thy servant that thou wilt build him an house; therefore thy servant hath found in his heart to pray before thee.

26 And now, LORD, thou art God, and hast promised this goodness unto thy servant:

27 Now therefore <sup>f</sup> let it please thee to bless the house of thy servant, that it may be before thee for ever: for thou blessest, O LORD, and it shall be blessed for ever.

* Heb. hast revealed the ear of thy servant.—

me hitherto?] I am not of any regal family, and have no natural right to the throne.

CHAPTER XVIII.

David smites the Philistines, and takes Gath, 1. Reduces the Moabites, 2. Vanguishes Hadarezer, king of Zobah, 3, 4. Overcomes the Syrians of Damascus, and takes several of their cities, 5-8. Tou, king of Hamath, congratulates him on his victory, and sends him vessels of silver, gold, and brass, 9, 10. Those and the different spoils he had taken from the conquered nations, he dedicates to God, 11. Abishai defeats the Edomites, 12, 13. David reigns over all Israel, 14. His officers, 15-17.

NO after this <sup>a</sup> it came to pass, that David smote the Philistines, and subdued them, and took Gath and her towns out of the hand of the Philistines.

6 Then David put garrisons in Syria-damascus; and the Syrians became David's servants, and brought gifts. Thus the LORD preserved David whithersoever he went.

7 And David took the shekels of gold that were on the servants of Hadarezer, and brought them to Jerusalem.

8 Likewise from *Tibhath, and from Chun, cities of Hadarezer, brought David very much brass, wherewith <sup>b</sup> Solomon made the brasen sea, and the pillars, and the vessels of brass.

10 He sent <sup>d</sup> Hadoram his son to king David, * to inquire of his welfare, and <sup>e</sup> to congratulate him because he had fought against Hadarezer, and smitten him; (for Hadarezer <sup>f</sup> had war with Tou;) and with him all manner of vessels of gold and silver and brass.

CHAPTER XIX.

David sends a congratulatory message to Hanun, king of Ammon, 1, 2. He treats the messengers with great incivility, 3, 4. David is exasperated, but condoles with the degraded messengers, 5. The Ammonites prepare for war, and hire thirty-two thousand chariots, and besiege Medeba, 6, 7. David sends Joab to attack them; he defeats the Syrians and Ammonites, 8-15. The discomfited Syrians recruit their army, and invade David's territories beyond Jordan; he attacks them, kills Shophach their general, seven thousand charioteers, and forty thousand of their infantry, 16-18. The Syrians abandon the Ammonites, and make a separate peace with David, 19.

NOW * it came to pass after this, that Nahash the king of the children of Ammon died, and his son reigned in his stead.

2 And David said, I will shew kindness unto Hanun the son of Nahash, because his father shewed kindness to me. And David sent messengers to comfort him concerning his father. So the servants of David came into the land of the children of Ammon to Hanun, to comfort him.

3 But the princes of the children of Ammon said to Hanun, <sup>b</sup> Thinkest thou that David doth honour thy father, that he hath sent comforters unto thee? are not his servants come unto thee for to search, and to overthrow, and to spy out the land?

4 Wherefore Hanun took David's servants, and shaved them, and cut off their garments in the midst hard by their buttocks, and sent them away.

5 Then there went certain, and told David how the men were served. And he sent to meet them: for the men were greatly ashamed. And the king said, Tarry at Jericho until your beards be grown, and then return.

6 And when the children of Ammon saw that they had made themselves <sup>c</sup> odious to David, Hanun and the children of Ammon sent a thousand talents of silver to hire them chariots and horsemen out of Mesopotamia, and out of Syria-maachah, <sup>d</sup> and out of Zobah.

7 So they hired thirty and two thousand chariots, and the king of Maachah and his people; who came and pitched before Medeba. And the children of Ammon gathered themselves together from their cities, and came to battle.

8 And when David heard of it, he sent Joab, and all the host of the mighty men.

9 And the children of Ammon came out, and put 10 Now when Joab saw that <sup>a</sup>the battle was set against him before and behind, he chose out of all the <sup>b</sup>choice of Israel, and put them in array against the Syrians.

11 And the rest of the people he delivered unto the hand of <sup>c</sup>Abishai his brother, and they set themselves in array against the children of Ammon.

12 And he said, If the Syrians be too strong for me, then thou shalt help me: but if the children of Ammon be too strong for thee, then I will help thee.

13 Be of good courage, and let us behave ourselves valiantly for our people, and for the cities of our God: and let the Lord do that which is good in his sight.

14 So Joab and the people that were with him drew nigh before the Syrians unto the battle; and they fled before him.

16 And when the Syrians saw that they were put to the worse before Israel, they sent messengers, and drew forth the Syrians that were beyond the <sup>d</sup>river: and <sup>e</sup>Shophach the captain of the host of Hadarezer went before them.

17 And it was told David; and he gathered all Israel, and passed over Jordan, and came upon them, and set the battle in array against them. So when David had put the battle in array against the Syrians, they fought with him.

18 But the Syrians fled before Israel; and David slew of the Syrians seven thousand men which fought in chariots, and forty thousand footmen, and killed Shophach the captain of the host.

19 And when the servants of Hadarezer saw that they were put to the worse before Israel, they made peace with David, and became his servants: neither would the Syrians help the children of Ammon any more.

CHAPTER XX.

Joab smites the city of Rabbah; and David puts the crown of its king upon his own head, and treats the people of the city with great rigour, 1-3. First battle with the Philistines, 4. Second battle with the Philistines, 5. Third battle with the Philistines, 6, 7. In these battles three giants were slain, 8.

AND <sup>a</sup>it came to pass, that <sup>b</sup>after the year was expired, at the time that kings go out to battle, Joab led forth the power of the army, and wasted the country of the children of Ammon, and came and besieged Rabbah. But David tarried at Jerusalem. And <sup>c</sup>Joab smote Rabbah, and destroyed it.

2 And David <sup>d</sup>took the crown of their king from off his head, and found it <sup>e</sup>to weigh a talent of gold, and there were precious stones in it; and it was set upon David's head: and he brought also exceeding much spoil out of the city.

3 And he brought out the people that were in it, and cut them with saws, and with harrows of iron, and with axes. Even so dealt David with all the cities of the children of Ammon. And David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

4 And it came to pass after this, <sup>f</sup>that there

Verse 1. After the year was expired, at that time that kings go out to battle] After this verse the parallel place in Samuel relates the whole story of David and Bath-sheba, and the murder of Uriah, which the compiler of these books passes over, as he designedly does almost every thing prejudicial to the character of David. All he states is, but David tarried at Jerusalem; and while he thus tarried, and Joab conducted the war against the Ammonites, the awful transactions above referred to took place.

5 And there was war again with the Philistines: and Elhanan the son of <sup>g</sup>Jair slew Lahmi the brother of Goliath the Gittite, whose spear-staff was like a weaver's beam.

6 And yet again <sup>h</sup>there was war at Gath, where was <sup>i</sup>a man of great stature, whose fingers and toes were four and twenty, six on each hand, and six on each foot: and he also was <sup>j</sup>the son of the giant.

7 But when he <sup>k</sup>defied Israel, Jonathan the son of <sup>l</sup>Shimea David's brother slew him.

8 These were born unto the giant in Gath; and they fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants.

19.—<sup>2</sup> 2 Sam. xxi. 20.—<sup>3</sup> Heb. a man of measure.—<sup>4</sup> Heb. born to the giant, or Rapha.—<sup>5</sup> Or, reproached.—<sup>6</sup> Called Shamhah, 1 Sam. xvi. 9.

Verse 5. Elhanan the son of Jair] See the note on 2 Sam. xxi. 19.

Verse 6. Fingers and toes were four and twenty] See the note on 2 Sam. xxi. 20.

The compiler of these books passes by also the incest of Amnon with his sister Tamar, and the rebellion of Absalom, and the awful consequences of all these. These should have preceded the fourth verse. These facts could not be unknown to him, for they were notorious to all; but he saw that they were already amply detailed in books which were accredited among the people, and the relations were such as no friend to piety and humanity could delight to repeat. On these grounds the reader will give him credit for the omission.

CHAPTER XXI.

David is tempted by Satan to take the numbers of the people of Israel and Judah, 1, 2. Joab remonstrates, but the king is determined, and Joab pleads in vain, 3, 4. He returns, and delivers in the number to the king, but reckons not Levi and Benjamin, 5. The Lord is displeased, and sends Gad to offer David his choice of three great national calamities; famine, war, or pestilence, 6-12. David submits himself to God, and a pestilence is sent, which destroys seventy thousand, 13, 14. At David's intercession the destroying angel is restrained at the threshing-floor of Ornan, 15-17. He buys the piece of ground, builds an altar to the Lord, and offers sacrifices, and the plague is stayed, 18-30.

AND * Satan stood up against Israel, and provoked David to number Israel.

2 And David said to Joab and to the rulers of the people, Go, number Israel from Beer-sheba even to Dan; <sup>b</sup> and bring the number of them to me, that I may know it.

3 And Joab answered, The Lord make his people an hundred times so many more as they be: but, my lord the king, are they not all my lord's servants? why then doth my lord require this thing? why will he be a cause of trespass to Israel?

4 Nevertheless the king's word prevailed against Joab. Wherefore Joab departed, and went throughout all Israel, and came to Jerusalem.

5 And Joab gave the sum of the number of the people unto David. And all they of Israel were a thousand thousand and an hundred thousand men that drew sword: and Judah was four hundred threescore and ten thousand men that drew sword.

6 * But Levi and Benjamin counted he not among them: for the king's word was abominable to Joab.

7 <sup>a</sup> And God was displeased with this thing; therefore he smote Israel.

8 And David said unto God, * I have sinned greatly, because I have done this thing: ' but now, I beseech thee, do away the iniquity of thy servant; for I have done very foolishly.

9 And the Lord spake unto Gad, David's <sup>a</sup> seer, saying,

10 Go and tell David, saying, Thus saith the Lord, I <sup>b</sup> offer thee three things: choose thee one of them, that I may do it unto thee.

11 So Gad came to David, and said unto him, Thus saith the Lord, <sup>c</sup> Choose thee.

12 <sup>d</sup> Either three years' famine; or three months to be destroyed before thy foes, while that the sword of thine enemies overtaketh thee; or else three days the sword of the Lord, even the pestilence, in the land, and the angel of the Lord destroying throughout all the coasts of Israel. Now therefore advise thyself what word I shall bring again to him that sent me.

13 And David said unto Gad, I am in a great strait: let me fall now into the hand of the Lord; for very <sup>e</sup> great are his mercies: but let me not fall into the hand of man.

14 So the Lord sent pestilence upon Israel; and there fell of Israel seventy thousand men.

15 And God sent an <sup>f</sup> angel unto Jerusalem to destroy it: and as he was destroying, the Lord beheld, and <sup>g</sup> he repented him of the evil, and said to the angel that destroyed, It is enough, stay now thine hand. And the angel of the Lord stood by the threshing-floor of <sup>h</sup> Ornan the Jebusite.

16 And David lifted up his eyes, and <sup>i</sup> saw the angel of the Lord stand between the earth and the heaven, having a drawn sword in his hand stretched out over Jerusalem. Then David and the elders of Israel, who were clothed in sackcloth, fell upon their faces.

17 And David said unto God, Is it not I that commanded the people to be numbered? even I it is that have sinned and done evil indeed; but as for these sheep, what have they done? let thine hand, I pray thee, O Lord my God, be on me, and on my father's house; but not on thy people, that they should be plagued.

18 Then the <sup>j</sup> angel of the Lord commanded Gad to say to David, that David should go up, and set up an altar unto the Lord in the threshing-floor of Ornan the Jebusite.

19 And David went up at the saying of Gad, which he spake in the name of the Lord.

20 <sup>k</sup> And Ornan turned back, and saw the angel;

Verse 20. Ornan turned back, and saw the angel] The Septuagint say, And Ornan turned, and saw the king. But the seeing David is mentioned in ver. 21; though Houbigant supposes that the 20th verse refers to his seeing the king while he was at a distance; the 21st, to his seeing him when he came into the threshing-floor. In the first instance he and his sons were afraid when they saw the king coming, and this caused them to hide themselves; but when he came into the threshing-floor, they were obliged to appear before him.

and his four sons with him hid themselves. Now Ornan was threshing wheat.

21 And as David came to Ornan, Ornan looked and saw David, and went out of the threshing-floor, and bowed himself to David with his face to the ground.

22 Then David said to Ornan, *Grant me the place of this threshing-floor, that I may build an altar therein unto the LORD: thou shalt grant it me for the full price: that the plague may be stayed from the people.

23 And Ornan said unto David, Take it to thee, and let my LORD the king do that which is good in his eyes: lo, I give thee the oxen also for burnt-offerings, and the threshing instruments for wood, and the wheat for the meat-offering; I give it all.

24 And king David said to Ornan, Nay; but I will verily buy it for the full price: for I will not take that which is thine for the LORD, nor offer burnt-offerings without cost.

Verse 26. He answered him—by fire] In answer to David's prayers, God, to show that he had accepted him, and was now pacified towards him and the people, sent fire from heaven and consumed the offerings.

Verse 30. Because of the sword of the angel] This is given as a reason why David built an altar in the threshing-floor of Ornan: he was afraid to go to Gibeon because of the 25 So <sup>b</sup> David gave to Ornan for the place six hundred shekels of gold by weight.

26 And David built there an altar unto the LORD, and offered burnt-offerings and peace-offerings, and called upon the LORD; and <sup>c</sup> he answered him from heaven by fire upon the altar of burnt-offering.

27 And the LORD commanded the angel; and he put up his sword again into the sheath thereof.

28 At that time, when David saw that the LORD had answered him in the threshing-floor of Ornan the Jebusite, then he sacrificed there.

29 <sup>d</sup> For the tabernacle of the LORD, which Moses made in the wilderness, and the altar of the burnt-offering, were at that season in the high place at <sup>e</sup> Gibeon.

30 But David could not go before it to inquire of God: for he was afraid because of the sword of the angel of the LORD, sword of the destroying angel, or he was afraid of delaying the offerings so long as his going thither would require, lest the destroying angel should in the mean while exterminate the people; therefore he hastily built an altar in that place, and on it made the requisite offerings; and by the fire from heaven God showed that he had accepted his act and his devotion. Such interventions as these must necessarily maintain in the minds of the people a full persuasion of the truth and divine origin of their religion.

CHAPTER XXII.

David makes great preparations for building a temple to the Lord, 1-5; gives the necessary directions to Solomon concerning it, 6-16; and exhorts the princes of Israel to assist in the undertaking, 17-19.

THEN David said, *This is the house of the LORD God, and this is the altar of the burnt-offering for Israel.

2 And David commanded to gather together <sup>b</sup> the strangers that were in the land of Israel; and he set masons to hew wrought stones to build the house of God.

3 And David prepared iron in abundance for the nails for the doors of the gates, and for the joinings; and brass in abundance <sup>c</sup> without weight;

4 Also cedar-trees in abundance: for the <sup>d</sup> Zidonians and they of Tyre brought much cedar-wood to David.

5 And David said, *Solomon my son is young and tender, and the house that is to be builded for the LORD must be exceeding magnifical, of fame and of glory throughout all countries: I will therefore Verse 1. David said, This is the house of the Lord] Till a temple is built for his name, this place shall be considered the temple of God; and on this altar, and not on that at Gibeon, shall the burnt-offerings of Israel be made. David probably thought that this was the place on which God designed that his house should be built; and perhaps it was this that induced him to buy, not only the threshing-floor, but probably some adjacent ground also, as Calmet supposes, that there might be sufficient room for such a building.

Verse 2. The strangers that were in the land] Those who had become proselytes to the Jewish religion, at least now make preparation for it. So David prepared abundantly before his death.

6 Then he called for Solomon his son, and charged him to build an house for the LORD God of Israel.

7 And David said to Solomon, My son, as for me, 'it was in my mind to build an house <sup>a</sup> unto the name of the LORD my God:

8 But the word of the LORD came to me, saying, <sup>b</sup> Thou hast shed blood abundantly, and hast made great wars: thou shalt not build an house unto my name, because thou hast shed much blood upon the earth in my sight.

9 <sup>c</sup> Behold, a son shall be born to thee, who shall be a man of rest; and I will give him <sup>d</sup> rest from all his enemies round about: for his name shall be <sup>e</sup> Solomon, and I will give peace and quietness unto Israel in his days.

so far as to renounce idolatry, and keep what were called the seven Noahic precepts. These were to be employed in the more servile and difficult parts of the work: see our 1 Kings ix. 21.

Verse 3. Iron—for the nails, &c.] Iron for bolts, bars, hinges, &c., &c.

Verse 8. Thou hast shed blood abundantly] Heathens, Jews, and Christians have all agreed that soldiers of any kind should have nothing to do with divine offices.

Verse 9. His name shall be Solomon] Shelomoh, from shalam, he was peaceable; and therefore, says the Lord, 10 *He shall build an house for my name; and <sup>b</sup>he shall be my son, and I will be his father; and I will establish the throne of his kingdom over Israel for ever.

11 Now, my son, <sup>c</sup>the LORD be with thee; and prosper thou, and build the house of the LORD thy God, as he hath said of thee.

12 Only the LORD <sup>d</sup>give thee wisdom and understanding, and give thee charge concerning Israel, that thou mayest keep the law of the LORD thy God.

13 *Then shalt thou prosper, if thou takest heed to fulfil the statutes and judgments which the LORD charged Moses with concerning Israel: <sup>e</sup>'be strong and of good courage; dread not, nor be dismayed.

14 Now, behold, <sup>f</sup>in my trouble I have prepared for the house of the LORD an hundred thousand talents of gold, and a thousand thousand talents of silver; and of brass and iron <sup>g</sup>without weight; for it is in abundance: timber also and stone have I prepared; and thou mayest add thereto.

alluding to the name, I will give PEACE, SHALOM, in his days.

Verse 14. In my trouble I have prepared] Notwithstanding all the wars in which I have been engaged, all the treacheries with which I have been surrounded, all the domestic troubles with which I have been overwhelmed, I never lost sight of this great object, the building of a house for God, that his worship might be established in the land. [The original does not mean "in my trouble," but "by my labour."]

An hundred thousand talents of gold] A talent of gold weighed three thousand shekels, and was worth five thousand and seventy-five pounds, fifteen shillings, and seven pence halfpenny. One hundred thousand such talents would therefore amount to five hundred and seven millions, five hundred and seventy-eight thousand, one hundred and twenty-five pounds sterling. These sums are variously computed by several writers.

15 Moreover there are workmen with thee in abundance, hewers and <sup>h</sup>workers of stone and timber, and all manner of cunning men for every manner of work.

16 Of the gold, the silver, and the brass, and the iron, there is no number, Arise therefore, and be doing, and <sup>i</sup>the LORD be with thee.

17 David also commanded all the princes of Israel to help Solomon his son, saying,

18 Is not the LORD your God with you? <sup>j</sup>and hath he not given you rest on every side? for he hath given the inhabitants of the land into mine hand; and the land is subdued before the LORD, and before his people.

19 Now <sup>k</sup>set your heart and your soul to seek the LORD your God; arise therefore, and build ye the sanctuary of the LORD God, to <sup>l</sup>bring the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and the holy vessels of God, into the house that is to be built <sup>m</sup>to the name of the LORD.

A thousand thousand talents of silver] A talent of silver weighed three thousand shekels, and was worth three hundred and fifty-three pounds, eleven shillings, and ten pence. A million of such talents would amount to the immense sum of three hundred and fifty-three millions, five hundred and ninety-one thousand, six hundred and sixty-six pounds, thirteen shillings, and four pence sterling; both sums amounting to eight hundred and sixty-one millions, one hundred and sixty-nine thousand, seven hundred and ninety-one pounds, thirteen shillings, and four pence. [Our uncertainty as to the value of the shekel, and the Hebrew method of computation, renders it impossible to form an accurate estimate of these sums.]

Thou mayest add thereto.] This was a gentle though pointed hint, which was not lost on Solomon.

Verse 18. Hath he not given you rest on every side?] David at this time was not only king of Judea, but had also subdued most of the surrounding nations.

CHAPTER XXIII.

David makes Solomon king, 1. Numbers the Levites, and appoints them their work, 2-5. The sons of Levi, Gershon, Kohath, Merari, and their descendants, 6-12. The sons of Amram, and their descendants, 13. The sons of Moses, and their descendants, 14-24. David appoints the Levites to wait on the priests for the service of the sanctuary, 25-32.

SO when David was old and full of days, he made <sup>a</sup>Solomon his son king over Israel.

2 And he gathered together all the princes of Israel, with the priests and the Levites.

3 Now the Levites were numbered from the age of <sup>b</sup>thirty years and upward: and their number

*1 Kings i. 38-39. Ch. xxviii. 5.—<sup>b</sup>Num. iv. 3, 47.—<sup>c</sup>Or, to oversee.

Verse 1. David was old and full of days] On the phrase, full of days, see the note on Gen. xxv. 8.

Verse 3. Thirty years and upward] The enumeration of the Levites made in the desert, Num. iv. 3, was from thirty years upwards to fifty years. In this place the latter limit is not mentioned, probably because the service was not so laborious now; for the ark being fixed, they had no longer any heavy burdens to carry, and therefore even an old man by their polls, man by man, was thirty and eight thousand,

4 Of which, twenty and four thousand were <sup>c</sup>to set forward the work of the house of the LORD; and six thousand were <sup>d</sup>officers and judges.

5 Moreover four thousand were porters; and four might continue to serve the tabernacle. David made another ordinance afterwards; see on ver. 24 and 27.

Verse 5. Four thousand praised the Lord] It does not appear that he had any positive divine authority for such arrangements. As to the instruments of music which he made, they are condemned elsewhere; see Amos vi. 5, to which this verse is allowed to be the parallel.

Verse 11. Therefore they were in one reckoning] The thousand praised the LORD with the instruments * which I made, said David, to praise therewith.

6 And <sup>b</sup> David divided them into <sup>c</sup> courses among the sons of Levi, namely, Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

7 Of the <sup>d</sup> Gershonites were, * Leadan, and Shimei.

8 The sons of Leadan; the chief was Jehiel, and Zetham, and Joel, three.

9 The sons of Shimei; Shelomith, and Haziel, and Haran, three. These were the chief of the fathers of Leadan.

10 And the sons of Shimei were, Jahath, * Zina, and Jeush, and Beriah. These four were the sons of Shimei, 11 And Jahath was the chief, and Zizah the second: but Jeush and Beriah * had not many sons; therefore they were in one reckoning, according to their father's house.

12 <sup>b</sup> The sons of Kohath; Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel, four.

13 The sons of <sup>1</sup> Amram; Aaron and Moses: and <sup>1</sup> Aaron was separated, that he should sanctify the most holy things, he and his sons for ever, * to burn incense before the LORD, <sup>1</sup> to minister unto him, and * to bless in his name for ever.

14 Now concerning Moses the man of God, * his sons were named of the tribe of Levi.

15 * The sons of Moses were, Gershom, and Eliezer.

16 Of the sons of Gershom, * Shebuel * was the chief.

17 And the sons of Eliezer were, * Rehabiah * the chief. And Eliezer had none other sons; but the sons of Rehabiah * were very many.

18 Of the sons of Izhar; * Shelomith the chief.

19 * Of the sons of Hebron; Jeriah the first, Amariah the second, Jahaziel the third, and Jekameam the fourth.

20 Of the sons of Uzziel; Micah the first and Jesiah the second.

family of Shimei, being small, was united with that of Leadan, that the two families might do that work which otherwise belonged to one, but which would have been too much for either of these separately.

Verse 13. To bless in his name] To bless the people by invoking the name of the Lord.

Verse 22. Their brethren the sons of Kish took them.] This was according to the law made, Num. xxvii. 1, &c., and xxxvi. 5-9, in favour of the daughters of Zelophehad, that women who were heiresses should marry in the family of the tribe of their father, and that their estates should not be alienated from them.

Verse 24. Twenty years and upward.] It appears that this was a different ordinance from that mentioned ver. 8. At first he appointed the Levites to serve from thirty years and upward; now from twenty years. These were David's last orders; see ver. 27. They should begin at an earlier age, and continue later.

This was not a very painful task; the ark being now fixed, and the Levites very numerous, there could be no drudgery.

22 And Eleazar died, and * had no sons, but daughters: and their * brethren the sons of Kish * took them.

23 <sup>bb</sup> The sons of Mushi; Mahli, and Eder, and Jeremoth, three.

24 These were the sons of <sup>cc</sup> Levi after the house of their fathers; even the chief of the fathers, as they were counted by number of names by their polls, that did the work for the service of the house of the LORD, from the age of <sup>dd</sup> twenty years and upward.

25 For David said, The LORD God of Israel * hath given rest unto his people, * that they may dwell in Jerusalem for ever:

26 And also unto the Levites; they shall no more * carry the tabernacle, nor any vessels of it for the service thereof.

27 For by the last words of David the Levites were <sup>hh</sup> numbered from twenty years old and above.

28 Because * their office was to wait on the sons of Aaron for the service of the house of the LORD, in the courts, and in the chambers, and in the purifying of all holy things, and the work of the service of the house of God;

29 Both for <sup>ll</sup> the shew-bread, and for <sup>kk</sup> the fine flour for meat-offering, and for <sup>ll</sup> the unleavened cakes, and for <sup>mm</sup> that which is baked in the <sup>nn</sup> pan, and for that which is fried, and for all manner of <sup>oo</sup> measure and size;

Verse 28. Purifying of all holy things] Keeping all the vessels and utensils belonging to the sacred service clean and neat.

Verse 29. Both for the shew-bread] It was the priests' office to place this bread before the Lord, and it was their privilege to feed on the old loaves when they were replaced by the new.

For all manner of measure and size] The standards of all weights and measures were kept at the sanctuary, and by those there deposited all the weights and measures of the land were to be tried.

Verse 30. To stand every morning] At the offering of the morning and evening sacrifice, they sounded their musical instruments, and sang praises to God.

Verse 32. The charge of the sons of Aaron] It was the priests' business to kill, flay, and dress, as well as to offer, the victims; but being few, they were obliged to employ the Levites to flay those animals. The Levites were, properly speaking, servants to the priests, and were employed about the more servile part of divine worship.

CHAPTER XXIV.

David divides the families of Eleazar and Ithamar, by lot, into twenty-four courses, 1-19. How the rest of the sons of Levi were disposed of, 20-31.

NOW these are the divisions of the sons of Aaron. * The sons of Aaron; Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.

2 But <sup>b</sup> Nadab and Abihu died before their father, and had no children: therefore Eleazar and Ithamar executed the priest's office.

3 And David distributed them, both Zadok of the sons of Eleazar, and Ahimelech of the sons of Ithamar, according to their offices in their service.

4 And there were more chief men found of the sons of Eleazar than of the sons of Ithamar; and thus were they divided. Among the sons of Eleazar there were sixteen chief men of the house of their fathers, and eight among the sons of Ithamar according to the house of their fathers.

5 Thus were they divided by lot, one sort with another; for the governors of the sanctuary, and governors of the house of God, were of the sons of Eleazar, and of the sons of Ithamar.

6 And Shemaiah the son of Nethaneel the scribe, one of the Levites, wrote them before the king, and the princes, and Zadok the priest, and Ahimelech the son of Abiathar, and before the chief of the fathers of the priests and Levites: one 'principal household being taken for Eleazar, and one taken for Ithamar.

7 Now the first lot came forth to Jehoiarib, the second to Jedaiah,

8 The third to Harim, the fourth to Seorim,

9 The fifth to Malchijah, the sixth to Mijamin,

10 The seventh to Hakkoz, the eighth to <sup>d</sup> Abijah,

11 The ninth to Jeshuah, the tenth to Shecaniah,

12 The eleventh to Eliashib, the twelfth to Jakim,

13 The thirteenth to Huppah, the fourteenth to Jeshebeab,

14 The fifteenth to Bilgah, the sixteenth to Immer,

15 The seventeenth to Hezir, the eighteenth to Apses,

Verse 2. Nadab and Abihu died before their father] That is, during his life-time.

Eleazar and Ithamar executed the priest's office.] These two served the office during the life of their father Aaron; after his death Eleazar succeeded in the high-priesthood. And under Eli the high-priest, the family of Ithamar re-entered into that office.

Verse 3. And Ahimelech] Ahimelech is put here for Abiathar, who was high-priest in the days of David. Abiathar had also the name of Ahimelech as well as his father.

Verse 5. They divided by lot] This prevented jealousies; for, as all the families were equally noble, they had equal right to all ecclesiastical and civil distinctions.

Verse 6. One principal household—for Eleazar] The family of Eleazar was the most illustrious of the sacerdotal families,

16 The nineteenth to Pethahiah, the twentieth to Jehezkeel,

17 The one and twentieth to Jachin, the two and twentieth to Gamul, 18 The three and twentieth to Delaiah, the four and twentieth to Maaziah.

19 These were the orderings of them in their service * to come into the house of the LORD, according to their manner, under Aaron their father, as the LORD God of Israel had commanded him.

20 And the rest of the sons of Levi were these: Of the sons of Amram; 'Shubael: of the sons of Shubael; Jehdeiah.

21 Concerning 'Rehabiah: of the sons of Rehabiah, the first was Isshiah, 22 Of the Izharites; 'Shelomoth: of the sons of Shelomoth; Jahath.

23 And the sons of 'Hebron; Jeriah the first, Amariah the second, Jahaziel the third, Jekameam the fourth.

24 Of the sons of Uzziel; Michah: of the sons of Michah; Shamir.

25 The brother of Michah was Isshiah: of the sons of Isshiah; Zechariah.

26 'The sons of Merari were Mahli and Mushi: the sons of Jaaziah; Beno.

27 The sons of Merari by Jaaziah; Beno, and Shoham, and Zaccur, and Ibri.

28 Of Mahli came Eleazar, <sup>k</sup> who had no sons.

29 Concerning Kish: the son of Kish was Jerahmeel.

30 'The sons also of Mushi; Mahli, and Eder, and Jerimoth. These were the sons of the Levites after the house of their fathers.

31 These likewise cast lots over against their brethren the sons of Aaron in the presence of David the king, and Zadok, and Ahimelech, and the chief of the fathers of the priests and Levites, even the principal fathers over against their younger brethren.

because Eleazar was the first-born of Aaron. Ithamar's family was the second in order and dignity; therefore one of the principal families of Eleazar was first taken, and then one of Ithamar's, and thus alternately till the whole was finished.

Verse 19. Under Aaron their father] That is, they followed the order and plans laid down by Aaron during his lifetime.

Verse 26. The sons of Merari] It is remarkable that not a word is here spoken of the family of Gershom.

Verse 31. These likewise cast lots] The Levites were divided into twenty-four orders; and these were appointed by lot to serve under the twenty-four orders of the priests: the first order of Levites under the first order of priests, and

MOREOVER David and the captains of the host separated to the service of the sons of <sup>a</sup>Asaph, and of Heman, and of Jeduthun, who should prophesy with harps, with psalteries, and with cymbals: and the number of the workmen according to their service was:

2 Of the sons of Asaph; Zaccur, and Joseph, and Nethaniah, and <sup>b</sup>Asarelah, the sons of Asaph under the hands of Asaph, which prophesied <sup>c</sup>according to the order of the king.

3 Of Jeduthun: the sons of Jeduthun; Gedaliah, and <sup>d</sup>Zeri, and Jeshaiiah, Hashabiah, and Mattithiah, <sup>e</sup>six, under the hands of their father Jeduthun, who prophesied with a harp, to give thanks and to praise the LORD.

4 Of Heman: the sons of Heman; Bukkiah, Mattaniah, <sup>f</sup>Uzziel, <sup>g</sup>Shebuel, and Jerimoth, Hananiah, Hanani, Eliathah, Giddalti, and Romamti-ezer, Joshbekashah, Mallothi, Hothir, and Mahazioth:

5 All these were the sons of Heman, the king's seer in the <sup>h</sup>words of God, to lift up the horn. And God gave to Heman fourteen sons and three daughters.

6 All these were under the hands of their father for song in the house of the LORD, with cymbals, psalteries, and harps, for the service of the house of God, <sup>i</sup>according to the king's order to Asaph, Jeduthun, and Heman.

7 So the number of them, with their brethren that were instructed in the songs of the LORD, even all that were cunning, was two hundred fourscore and eight.

8 And they cast lots, ward against ward, as well the small as the great, <sup>k</sup>the teacher as the scholar.

9 Now the first lot came forth for Asaph to Joseph: the second to Gedaliah, who with his brethren and sons were twelve:

10 The third to <sup>l</sup>Zaccur, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

11 The fourth to Izri, he, his sons, and his brethren, were twelve:

CHAPTER XXVI.

The divisions of the porters, 1-12. The gates assigned to them, 13-19. Those who were over the treasures, 20-28. Different officers, 29-32.

CONCERNING the divisions of the porters: Of the Korhites was <sup>a</sup> Meshelemiah the son of Kore, of the sons of <sup>b</sup> Asaph,

2 And the sons of Meshelemiah were, Zechariah the first born, Jedaiel the second, Zebadiah the third, Jathniel the fourth,

3 Elam the fifth, Johanan the sixth, Elioenai the seventh.

4 Moreover the sons of Obed-edom were, Shemaiah the first-born, Jehozabad the second, Joah the third, and Sacar the fourth, and Nethaneel the fifth,

5 Ammiel the sixth, Issachar the seventh, Peulthai the eighth: for God blessed <sup>c</sup> him.

6 Also unto Shemaiah his son were sons born, that ruled throughout the house of their father: for they were mighty men of valour.

7 The sons of Shemaiah; Othni, and Rephael, and Obed, Elzabad, whose brethren were strong men, Elihu, and Semachiah.

8 All these of the sons of Obed-edom: they and their sons and their brethren, able men for strength for the service, were threescore and two of Obed-edom.

9 And Meshelemiah had sons and brethren, strong men, eighteen.

10 Also <sup>d</sup> Hosah, of the children of Merari, had sons; Sinri the chief, (for though he was not the first-born, yet his father made him the chief.)

11 Hilkiah the second, Tebaliah the third, Zechariah the fourth: all the sons and brethren of Hosah were thirteen.

12 Among these were the divisions of the porters, even among the chief men, having wards one against another, to minister in the house of the LORD.

13 And they cast lots, <sup>e</sup> as well the small as the great, according to the house of their fathers, for every gate.

14 And the lot eastward fell to <sup>f</sup> Shelemiah. Then for Zechariah his son, a wise counsellor, they cast lots; and his lot came out northward.

15 To Obed-edom southward; and to his sons the house of <sup>g</sup> Asuppim.

16 To Shuppim and Hosah the lot came forth westward, with the gate Shallecheth, by the causeway of the going <sup>h</sup> up, ward against ward.

17 Eastward were six Levites, northward four a day, southward four a day, and toward Asuppim two and two.

18 At Parbar westward, four at the causeway, and two at Parbar.

19 These are the divisions of the porters among the sons of Kore, and among the sons of Merari.

20 And of the Levites, Ahijah was <sup>i</sup> over the treasures of the house of God, and over the treasures of the <sup>j</sup> dedicated things.

21 As concerning the sons of <sup>k</sup> Laadan; the sons of the Gershonite Laadan, chief fathers, even of Laadan the Gershonite, were <sup>l</sup> Jehieli.

22 The sons of Jehieli; Zetham, and Joel his brother, which were over the treasures of the house of the LORD.

23 Of the Amramites, and the Izharites, the Hebronites, and the Uzzielites:

24 And <sup>m</sup> Shebuel the son of Gershom, the son of Moses, was ruler of the treasure.

25 And his brethren by Eliezer; Rehabiah his son, and Jesaiiah his son, and Joram his son, and Zichri his son, and <sup>n</sup> Shelomith his son.

26 Which Shelomith and his brethren were over all the treasures of the dedicated things, which David the king, and the chief fathers, the captains over thousands and hundreds, and the captains of the host, had dedicated.

27 <sup>o</sup> Out of the spoils won in battles did they dedicate to maintain the house of the LORD.

28 And all that Samuel <sup>p</sup> the seer, and Saul the son of Kish, and Abner the son of Ner, and Joab the son of Zeruiah, had dedicated; and whosoever had dedicated any thing, it was under the hand of Shelomith, and of his brethren.

29 Of the Izharites, Chenaniah and his sons were, for the outward business over Israel, for <sup>q</sup> officers and judges.

30 And of the Hebronites, Hashabiah and his brethren, men of valour, a thousand and seven hun-

Verse 1. The divisions of the porters] There were four classes of these, each of which belonged to one of the four gates of the temple, which opened to the four cardinal points of heaven. The eastern gate fell to Shelemiah; the northern to Zechariah, ver. 14; the southern to Obed-edom, ver. 15; the western to Shuppim and Hosah, ver. 16. These several persons were captains of these porter-bands or door-keepers at the different gates. There were probably a thousand men under each of these captains; as we find, from chap. xxiii. 5, that there were four thousand in all.

Verse 6. They were mighty men of valour.] They were not only porters or door-keepers in the ordinary sense of the word, but they were a military guard for the gates: and perhaps in this sense alone we are to understand their office.

Verse 13. They cast lots—for every gate.] None of these captains or their companies were permitted to choose which gate they would guard, but each took his appointment by lot.

Verse 16. The gate Shallecheth.] The gate of the projections; probably that through which all the offal of the temple was carried out.

Verse 17. Eastward were six Levites.] It is supposed that there were more guards set at this eastern gate, because it was more frequented than the others.

Verse 27. The spoils won in battles did they dedicate.] It seems these were intended for its repairs. This custom prevailed amongst almost all the people of the earth. All who acknowledged any Supreme Being, believed that victory could only come through him; and therefore thought it quite rational to give him a share of the spoils.

CHAPTER XXVII.

An account of the twelve captains who were over the monthly course of twenty-four thousand men; each captain serving one month in turn, 1. The names of the twelve, and the months in which they served, 2-15. The names of the rulers of the twelve tribes, 16-22. The reasons why the whole number of Israel and Judah had not been taken, 23, 24. The persons who were over the king's property, treasures, fields, flocks, &c., 25-31. His officers of state, 32-34.

NOW the children of Israel after their number, to wit, the chief fathers and captains of thousands and hundreds, and their officers that served the king in any matter of the courses, which came in and went out month by month throughout all the months of the year, of every course were twenty and four thousand.

2 Over the first course for the first month was <sup>a</sup> Jashobeam the son of Zabdiel: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

3 Of the children of Perez was the chief of all the captains of the host of the first month.

4 And over the course of the second month was <sup>b</sup> Dodai an Ahoiite, and of his course was Mikloth also the ruler: in his course likewise were twenty and four thousand.

5 The third captain of the host for the third month was Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, a <sup>c</sup> chief priest: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

6 This is that Benaiah, who was <sup>d</sup> mighty among the thirty, and above the thirty: and in his course was Ammizabad his son.

7 The fourth captain for the fourth month was Verse 1. The chief fathers and captains of thousands] This enumeration is widely different from the preceding. In that, we have the orders and courses of the priests and the Levites in their ecclesiastical ministrations; in this, we have the account of the order of the civil service, that which related simply to the political state of the king and the kingdom. Thus the king had always on foot a regular force of twenty-four thousand, who served without expense to him or the state, and were not oppressed by the service, which took up only a twelfth part of their time; and by this plan he could at any time, when the exigency of the state required it, bring into the field twelve times twenty-four thousand, or two hundred and eighty-eight thousand fighting men, independently of the twelve thousand officers, which made in the whole an effective force of three hundred thousand soldiers; and all these men were prepared, disciplined, and ready at a call, without the smallest expense to * Asahel the brother of Joab, and Zebadiah his son after him: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

8 The fifth captain for the fifth month was Shamhuth the Izrahite: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

9 The sixth captain for the sixth month was <sup>e</sup> Ira the son of Ikkesh the Tekoite: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

10 The seventh captain for the seventh month was <sup>f</sup> Helez the Pelonite, of the children of Ephraim: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

11 The eighth captain for the eighth month was <sup>g</sup> Sibbecai the Hushathite, of the Zarahites: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

12 The ninth captain for the ninth month was <sup>h</sup> Abiezzer the Anetothite, of the Benjamites: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

13 The tenth captain for the tenth month was <sup>i</sup> Maharai the Netophathite, of the Zarahites: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

14 The eleventh captain for the eleventh month was <sup>j</sup> Benaiah the Pirathonite, of the children of Ephraim and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

the state or the king. These were, properly speaking, the militia of the Israelitish kingdom.

Verse 5. Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, a chief priest] Why should not this clause be read as it is in the Hebrew? "Benaiah, the son of Jehoiada the priest, a captain; and in his course," &c. He is distinguished from Benaiah, the Pirathonite, who was over the eleventh month. Some think that the original word hacohen, which generally signifies priest, should be translated here a principal officer; so the margin has it. But, in the Old Testament, cohen signifies both prince and priest; and translating it by the former removes the difficulty from this place, for we well know that Benaiah never was a priest.

Verse 7. Asahel the brother of Joab] This verse proves that the division and arrangement mentioned above were made before David was acknowledged king in Hebron; for Asahel, the brother of Joab, who was fourth captain, was 15 The twelfth captain for the twelfth month was <sup>a</sup>Heldai the Netophathite, of Othniel: and in his course were twenty and four thousand.

16 Furthermore over the tribes of Israel: the ruler of the Reubenites was Eliezer the son of Zichri: of the Simeonites, Shephatiah the son of Maachah:

17 Of the Levites, <sup>b</sup>Hashabiah the son of Kemuel: of the Aaronites, Zadok:

18 Of Judah, <sup>c</sup>Elihu, one of the brethren of David: of Issachar, Omri, the son of Michael:

19 Of Zebulun, Ishmaiah the son of Obadiah: of Naphtali, Jerimoth the son of Azriel:

20 Of the children of Ephraim, Hoshea the son of Azaziah: of the half tribe of Manasseh, Joel the son of Pedaiah:

21 Of the half tribe of Manasseh in Gilead, Iddo the son of Zechariah: of Benjamin, Jaasiel the son of Abner:

22 Of Dan, Azareel the son of Jeroham. These were the princes of the tribes of Israel.

23 But David took not the number of them from twenty years old and under: because <sup>d</sup>the Lord had said he would increase Israel like to the stars of the heavens.

24 Joab the son of Zeruiah began to number, but he finished not, because <sup>e</sup>there fell wrath for it against Israel: neither <sup>f</sup>was the number put in the account of the chronicles of king David.

slain by Abner, while Ish-bosheth reigned over Israel at Mahanaim, 2 Sam. ii. 19-23.

Verse 16. Over the tribes of Israel] In this enumeration there is no mention of the tribes of Asher and Gad. Probably the account of these has been lost from this register. These rulers appear to have been all honorary men, without pay, like the lords lieutenants of our counties.

Verse 24. Neither was the number put in the account] Joab did not return the whole number, probably the plague began before he had finished; or, as he had entered on the work with extreme reluctance, he did not choose to tell this king how numerous they were.

25 And over the king's treasures was Azmaveth the son of Adiel: and over the storehouses in the fields, in the cities, and in the villages, and in the castles, was Jehonathan the son of Uzziab:

26 And over them that did the work of the field for tillage of the ground was Ezri the son of Chelub:

27 And over the vineyards was Shimei the Ramathite; <sup>g</sup>over the increase of the vineyards for the wine cellars was Zabdi the Shiphmite:

28 And over the olive-trees and the sycamore-trees that were in the low plains was Baalhanan the Gederite: and over the cellars of oil was Joash:

29 And over the herds that fed in Sharon was Shitrai the Sharonite: and over the herds that were in the valleys was Shaphat the son of Adlai:

30 Over the camels also was Obil the Ishmaelite: and over the asses was Jehdeiah the Meronothite:

31 And over the flocks was Jaziz the Hagerite. All these were the rulers of the substance which was king David's.

32 Also Jonathan David's uncle was a counsellor, a wise man, and a <sup>h</sup>scribe: and Jehiel the <sup>i</sup>son of Hachmoni was with the king's sons.

33 And <sup>j</sup>Ahithophel was the king's counsellor: and <sup>k</sup>Hushai the Archite was the king's companion:

34 And after Ahithophel was Jehoiada the son of Benaiah, and <sup>l</sup>Abiathar: and the general of the king's army was <sup>m</sup>Joab.

Verses 25-31. Over the king's treasures] We see from these verses in what the personal property of David consisted.

It is worthy of remark that Obil, an Ishmaelite or Arab, was put over the camels, which is a creature of Arabia; and that Jaziz, a Hagarite (the Hagarites were shepherds by profession), was put over the flocks: nothing went by favour; each was appointed to the office for which he was best qualified; and thus men of worth were encouraged, and the public service effectually promoted.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

David assembles the princes of Israel, and informs them that the temple was to be built by Solomon; to whom God had given the most gracious promises, 1-7. He exhorts them and him to be obedient to God, that they might continue to prosper, 3-10. He gives Solomon a pattern of the work, 11-12; directs him concerning the courses of the priests of the Levites, 13; gives also gold, by weight, for the different utensils of the temple, as God had directed him, 14-19; encourages Solomon to undertake the work, 20, 21.

AND David assembled all the princes of Israel, <sup>a</sup>the princes of the tribes, and <sup>b</sup>the captains of the companies that ministered to the king by course, and the captains over the thousands, and captains over the hundreds and <sup>c</sup>the stewards over all the substance and <sup>d</sup>possession of the king, <sup>e</sup>and of his sons, with the <sup>f</sup>officers, and with <sup>g</sup>the mighty men, and with all the valiant men, unto Jerusalem.

Verse 3. Thou shalt not build an house] See 2 Samuel vii. 5, 13.

Verse 4. Over Israel for ever] The government should have no end, provided they continued to walk according to 4 Howbeit the LORD God of Israel *chose me before all the house of my father to be king over Israel for ever: for he hath chosen <sup>b</sup>Judah to be the ruler; and of the house of Judah, <sup>c</sup>the house of my father; and <sup>d</sup>among the sons of my father he liked me to make me king over Israel:

5 * And of all my sons, (for the LORD hath given me many sons), <sup>e</sup>he hath chosen Solomon my son to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the LORD over Israel.

6 And he said unto me, * Solomon thy son, he shall build my house and my courts: for I have chosen him to be my son, and I will be his father.

7 Moreover I will establish his kingdom for ever, <sup>f</sup>if he be <sup>g</sup>constant to do my commandments and my judgments, as at this day.

8 Now therefore in the sight of all Israel the congregation of the LORD, and in the audience of our God, keep and seek for all the commandments of the LORD your God: that ye may possess this good land, and leave it for an inheritance for your children after you for ever.

9 And thou, Solomon my son, <sup>h</sup>I know thou the God of thy father, and serve him <sup>i</sup>with a perfect heart and with a willing mind: for <sup>j</sup>the LORD searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts: <sup>k</sup>if thou seek him, he will be found of thee; but if thou forsake him, he will cast thee off for ever.

10 Take heed now: <sup>l</sup>for the LORD hath chosen thee to build an house for the sanctuary: be strong and do it.

11 Then David gave to Solomon his son, <sup>m</sup>the pattern of the porch, and of the houses thereof, and of the treasuries thereof, and of the upper chamber thereof, and of the inner parlours thereof, and of the place of the mercy-seat,

12 And the pattern <sup>n</sup>of all that he had by the spirit, of the courts of the house of the LORD, and of all the chambers round about, <sup>o</sup>of the treasuries of the house of God, and of the treasuries of the dedicated things:

13 Also for the courses of the priests and the Levites, and for all the work of the service of the house of the LORD, and for all the vessels of service in the house of the LORD.

14 <sup>p</sup>He gave of gold by weight for things of gold, for all instruments of all manner of service: <sup>q</sup>silver also for instruments of silver by weight, for all instruments of every kind of service:

15 Even the weight <sup>r</sup>for the candlesticks of gold, and for their lamps of gold, by weight for every candlestick, and for the lamps thereof: and for the candlesticks of silver by weight, <sup>s</sup>both for the candlestick, and <sup>t</sup>also for the lamps thereof, according to the use of every candlestick.

16 And by weight <sup>u</sup>he gave gold for the tables of shew-bread, for every table; and <sup>v</sup>likewise silver for the tables of silver:

17 Also pure gold for the flesh-hooks, and the bowls, and the cups: and for the golden basons <sup>w</sup>he gave gold by weight for every bason; and <sup>x</sup>likewise silver by weight for every bason of silver:

18 And for the altar of incense refined gold by weight: and gold for the pattern of the chariot of the <sup>y</sup>cherubims, that spread out <sup>z</sup>their wings, and covered the ark of the covenant of the LORD.

19 All this, <sup>aa</sup>said David, <sup>ab</sup>the LORD made me understand in writing by <sup>ac</sup>his hand upon me, <sup>ad</sup>even all the works of this pattern.

20 And David said to Solomon his son, <sup>ae</sup>Be strong and of good courage, and do it: fear not, nor be dismayed: for the LORD God, <sup>af</sup>even my God, <sup>ag</sup>will be with thee; <sup>ah</sup>he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee, until thou hast finished all the work for the service of the house of the LORD.

21 And, behold, <sup>ai</sup>the courses of the priests and the Levites, <sup>aj</sup>even they shall be with thee for all the service of the house of God; and <sup>ak</sup>there shall be with thee for all manner of workmanship <sup>al</sup>every willing skilful man, for any manner of service: also the princes and all the people <sup>am</sup>will be wholly at thy commandment.

the commandments of God; see ver. 7. The government, as referring to Christ, is, and will be, without end.

Verse 11. David gave to Solomon—the pattern] He gave him an ichnograph of the building, with elevations, sections, and specifications of every part; and all this he received by inspiration from God himself (see ver. 12 and 19), just as Moses had received the plan of the tabernacle.

The treasuries thereof] The word ganzach is not Hebrew, but is supposed to be Persian, the same word being found in Ezra iii. 19.

Verse 14. Of gold by weight] The quantity of gold which was to be put in each article.

Verse 15. For the candlesticks] There was but one chandelier in the tabernacle; there were ten in the temple. See 1 Kings vii. 49.

Verse 19. Understand in writing] In some vision of ecstasy he had seen a regularly sketched-out plan, which had made so deep an impression on his mind that he could readily describe it to his son.

Verse 21. Behold, the courses of the priests] Thus David, having assigned him his work, and described the manner in which it was to be done, shows him who were to be his assistants in it, and encourages him in the great undertaking.

Here we find piety, good sense, prudence, zeal for the public welfare and God's glory, the strongest attachments to the worship of Jehovah, and concern for the ordinances of religion, all united; and Solomon has his danger, his duty, and his interest placed before him in the truest and most impressive light by his pious and sensible father.

CHAPTER XXIX.

David enumerates the gifts which he designed for the building of the temple; and exhorts the princes and people to make their offerings, 1-5. They offer willingly, and to a great amount, 6-9. David's thanksgiving and prayer to God on the occasion, 10-19. The princes and people praise God, offer sacrifices and feasts before him. make Solomon king, and do him homage, 20-24. The Lord magnifies Solomon, 25. Concluding account of David's reign, character, and death, 26-30.

FURTHERMORE David the king said unto all the congregation, Solomon my son, whom God alone hath chosen, is yet <sup>a</sup> young and tender, and the work is great: for the palace is not for man, but for the LORD God.

2 Now I have prepared with all my might for the house of my God the gold for things to be made of gold, and the silver for things of silver, and the brass for things of brass, the iron for things of iron, and wood for things of wood; <sup>b</sup> onyx stones, and stones to be set, glistening stones, and of divers colours, and all manner of precious stones, and marble stones in abundance.

3 Moreover, because I have set my affection to the house of my God, I have of mine own proper good, of gold and silver, which I have given to the house of my God, over and above all that I have prepared for the holy house,

4 Even three thousand talents of gold, of the gold of <sup>c</sup> Ophir, and seven thousand talents of refined silver, to overlay the walls of the houses withal :

5 The gold for things of gold, and the silver for things of silver, and for all manner of work to be made by the hands of artificers. And who then is willing <sup>d</sup> to consecrate his service this day unto the LORD?

6 Then <sup>e</sup> the chief of the fathers and princes of the tribes of Israel, and the captains of thousands and of hundreds, with <sup>f</sup> the rulers of the king's work, offered willingly,

7 And gave for the service of the house of God of gold five thousand talents, and ten thousand drams, and of silver ten thousand talents, and of brass eighteen thousand talents, and one hundred thousand talents of iron.

Verse 2. And marble stones] The Vulgate translates marmor Parium, Parian marble. Paros was one of the Cyclade islands, and produced the whitest and finest marble, that of which most of the finest works of antiquity have been made. Josephus says that the temple was built of large blocks of white marble, beautifully polished, so as to produce a most splendid appearance.

Verse 5. To consecrate his service] To fill his hand ; to bring an offering to the Lord.

Verse 7. Of gold five thousand talents] These, at five thousand and seventy-five pounds, fifteen shillings, and seven pence halfpenny each, amount to twenty-five millions, three hundred and seventy-eight thousand, nine hundred and six pounds, five shillings sterling. [This estimate of the Hebrew gold talent is probably exaggerated.]

Ten thousand drams] Probably golden darics, worth each about twenty shillings, amounting to ten thousand pounds.

Of silver ten thousand talents] These, at three hundred and fifty-three pounds, eleven shillings, and ten pence halfpenny each, amount to three millions, five hundred and thirty-five thousand, nine hundred and thirty-seven pounds, ten shillings sterling.

8 And they with whom precious stones were found gave them to the treasure of the house of the LORD, by the hand of <sup>a</sup> Jehiel the Gershonite.

9 Then the people rejoiced, for that they offered willingly, because with perfect heart they <sup>b</sup> offered willingly to the LORD : and David the king also rejoiced with great joy.

10 Wherefore David blessed the LORD before all the congregation : and David said, Blessed be thou, LORD God of Israel our father, for ever and ever.

11 <sup>c</sup> Thine, O LORD, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty : for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is <sup>d</sup> thine ; thine is the kingdom, O LORD, and thou art exalted as head above all.

12 <sup>e</sup> Both riches and honour come of thee, and thou reignest over all ; and in thine hand is power and might ; and in thine hand it is to make great, and to give strength unto all.

13 Now therefore, our God, we thank thee, and praise thy glorious name.

14 But who am I, and what is my people, that we should be <sup>f</sup> able to offer so willingly after this sort ? for all things come of thee, and <sup>g</sup> of thine own have we given thee.

15 For <sup>h</sup> we are strangers before thee, and sojourners, as were all our fathers : <sup>i</sup> our days on the earth are as a shadow, and there is none <sup>j</sup> abiding.

16 O LORD our God, all this store that we have prepared to build thee an house for thine holy name cometh of thine hand, and is all thine own.

17 I know also, my God, that thou <sup>k</sup> triest the heart, and <sup>l</sup> hast pleasure in uprightness. As for me, in the uprightness of mine heart I have willingly offered all these things : and now have I seen with

Brass eighteen thousand talents] Each six hundred and fifty-seven thousand grains, amount to one thousand and twenty-six tons, eleven hundred weight, and one quarter.

One hundred thousand talents of iron] Each six hundred and fifty-seven thousand grains, amount to five thousand seven hundred and three tons, two hundred weight and a half.

Verse 15. For we are strangers] We have here neither right nor property.

And sojourners] Lodging as it were for a night in the mansion of another.

As were all our fathers] These were, as we are, supported by thy bounty, and tenants at will to thee.

Our days on the earth are as a shadow] They are continually declining, fading, and passing away. This is the place of our sojourning, and here we have no substantial permanent residence.

There is none abiding] However we may wish to settle and remain in this state of things, it is impossible, because every earthly form is passing swiftly away, all is in a state of revolution and decay, and there is no abiding, nikreh, no expectation, that we shall be exempt from those changes and chances to which our fathers were subjected.

joy thy people, which are <sup>a</sup> present here, to offer willingly unto thee.

18 O Lord God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, our fathers, keep this for ever in the imagination of the thoughts of the heart of thy people, and <sup>a</sup> prepare their heart unto thee:

19 And <sup>a</sup> give unto Solomon my son a perfect heart, to keep thy commandments, thy testimonies, and thy statutes, and to do all these things, and to build the palace, for the which <sup>a</sup> I have made provision.

20 And David said to all the congregation, Now bless the Lord your God. And all the congregation blessed the Lord God of their fathers, and bowed down their heads, and worshipped the Lord, and the king.

21 And they sacrificed sacrifices unto the Lord, and offered burnt-offerings unto the Lord, on the morrow after that day, even a thousand bullocks, a thousand rams, and a thousand lambs, with their drink-offerings, and sacrifices in abundance for all Israel:

22 And did eat and drink before the Lord on that day with great gladness. And they made Solomon the son of David king the second time, and <sup>a</sup> anointed him unto the Lord to be the chief governor, and Zadok to be priest.

Verse 18. Keep this for ever] All the good dispositions which myself and my people have, came from thee; continue to support and strengthen them by the same grace by which they have been inspired.

Verse 19. Give unto Solomon—a perfect heart] This he did, but Solomon abused his mercies.

Verse 20. Worshipped the Lord, and the king.] They did reverence to God as the Supreme Ruler, and to the king as his deputy.

Verse 21. And sacrifices] These were peace-offerings offered for the people, and on the flesh of which they feasted.

Verse 22. They made Solomon—king the second time] The first time of his being anointed and proclaimed king was when his brother Adonijah affected the throne; and Zadok, Nathan, and Benaiah anointed and proclaimed him in a hurry, and without pomp. See 1 Kings i. 39. Now that all is quiet, and David his father dead (for he was probably so at the time of the second anointing), they anointed and proclaimed him afresh, with due ceremonies, sacrifices, &c.

To be the chief governor.] To be the viceroy or deputy of Jehovah; for God never gave up his right of king in Israel; those called kings were only his lieutenants; hence it is said, ver. 28, that "Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David his father."

23 Then Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David his father, and prospered: and all Israel obeyed him.

24 And all the princes, and the mighty men, and all the sons likewise of king David, <sup>1</sup> submitted themselves unto Solomon the king.

25 And the Lord magnified Solomon exceedingly in the sight of all Israel, and <sup>a</sup> bestowed upon him such royal majesty as had not been on any king before him in Israel.

26 Thus David the son of Jesse reigned over all Israel.

27 <sup>1</sup> And the time that he reigned over Israel was forty years; <sup>1</sup> seven years reigned he in Hebron, and thirty and three years reigned he in Jerusalem.

28 And he <sup>a</sup> died in a good old age, <sup>1</sup> full of days, riches, and honour: and Solomon his son reigned in his stead.

29 Now the acts of David the king, first and last, behold, they are written in the <sup>a</sup> book <sup>a</sup> of Samuel the seer, and in the book of Nathan the prophet, and in the book of Gad the seer, Verse 24. Submitted themselves] "They gave the hand under Solomon;" they swore fealty to him. We have already seen that putting the hand under the thigh was the form of taking an oath.

Verse 28. And he died] David, at his death, had every thing that his heart could wish. 1. A good old age; having lived as long as living could be desirable, and having in the main enjoyed good health. 2. Full of days; having lived till he saw everything that he lived for either accomplished or in a state of forwardness. 3. Full of riches; witness the immense sums left for the temple. 4. Full of honour; having gained more renown than any crowned head ever did, either before his time or since—laurels that are fresh to the present hour.

Verse 29. The acts of David—first and last] Those which concerned him in private life, as well as those which grew out of his regal government. These writings are all lost.

Verse 30. The times that went over him] The transactions of his reign, and the occurrences and vicissitudes in his own kingdom, as well as those which were over all the kingdoms of the countries, i.e. in the surrounding nations, in most of which David had a share during his forty years' reign.

OF THE # CHRONICLES.

CHAPTER I.

Solomon, and the chiefs of the congregation, go to Gibeon, where was the tabernacle of the Lord, and the brazen altar; and there he offers a thousand sacrifices, 1-6. The Lord appears in a dream, and gives him permission to ask any gift, 7. He asks wisdom, 8-10, which is granted; and riches, wealth, and honour besides, 11, 12. His kingdom is established, 13. His chariots, horsemen, and horses, 14. His abundant riches, 15. He brings horses, linen yarn, and chariots, at a fixed price, out of Egypt, 16, 17.

AND <sup>a</sup> Solomon the son of David was strengthened in his kingdom, and <sup>b</sup> the LORD his God was with him, and <sup>c</sup> magnified him exceedingly.

2 Then Solomon spake unto all Israel, to <sup>d</sup> the captains of thousands and of hundreds, and to the judges, and to every governor of all Israel, the chief of the fathers.

3 So Solomon, and all the congregation with him, went to the high place that was at <sup>e</sup> Gibeon; for there was the tabernacle of the congregation of God, which Moses the servant of the LORD had made in the wilderness,

4 <sup>f</sup> But the ark of God had David brought up from Kirjath-jearim to the place which David had prepared for it: for he had pitched a tent for it at Jerusalem.

5 Moreover <sup>g</sup> the brasen altar, that <sup>h</sup> Bezalcel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, had made, <sup>i</sup> he put before the tabernacle of the LORD: and Solomon and the congregation sought unto it.

6 And Solomon went up thither to the brasen altar before the LORD, which was at the tabernacle of the congregation, and <sup>j</sup> offered a thousand burnt-offerings upon it.

7 <sup>k</sup> In that night did God appear unto Solomon, and said unto him, Ask what I shall give thee.

8 And Solomon said unto God, Thou hast shewed great mercy unto David my father, and hast made me <sup>l</sup> to reign in his stead.

9 Now, O LORD God, let thy promise unto David my father be established: <sup>m</sup> for thou hast made me king over a people <sup>n</sup> like the dust of the earth in multitude.

10 <sup>o</sup> Give me now wisdom and knowledge, that I may <sup>p</sup> go out and come in before this people: for who can judge this thy people, that is so great?

11 <sup>q</sup> And God said to Solomon, Because this was in thine heart, and thou hast not asked riches, wealth, or honour, nor the life of thine enemies, neither yet hast asked long life; but hast asked wisdom and knowledge for thyself, that thou mayest judge my people, over whom I have made thee king:

12 Wisdom and knowledge is granted unto thee; and I will give thee riches, and wealth, and honour, such as <sup>r</sup> none of the kings have had that have been before thee, neither shall there any after thee have the like.

13 Then Solomon came from his journey to the high place that was at Gibeon to Jerusalem, from before the tabernacle of the congregation, and reigned over Israel.

14 <sup>s</sup> And Solomon gathered chariots and horsemen: and he had a thousand and four hundred chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen, which he placed in the chariot cities, and with the king at Jerusalem.

15 <sup>t</sup> And the king <sup>u</sup> made silver and gold at Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, and cedar-trees made he as the sycamore-trees that are in the vale for abundance.

16 <sup>v</sup> And <sup>w</sup> Solomon had horses brought out of Egypt, and linen yarn: the king's merchants received the linen yarn at a price.

17 And they fetched up, and brought forth out of Egypt a chariot for six hundred shekels of silver, and an horse for an hundred and fifty: and so brought they out horses for all the kings of the Hittites, and for the kings of Syria, <sup>x</sup> by their means.

Verse 9. Let thy promise] It is very remarkable that when either God or man is represented as having spoken a word, then the noun pitgam is used by the Targumist; but when word is used personally, then he employs the noun meymera, which appears to answer to the Aoyoc of St. John, chap. i. 1, &c.

Verse 17. An horse for an hundred and fifty] Suppose we take the shekel at the utmost value at which it has been rated, three shillings; then the price of a horse was about twenty-two pounds ten shillings.

II. CHRONICLES.

CHAPTER II.

Solomon determines to build a temple, 1. The number of his workmen, 2. Sends to Hiram for artificers and materials, 3-10. Hiram sends him a favourable answer, and makes an agreement with him concerning the labour to be done, and the wages to be paid to his men, 11-16. The number of strangers in the land, how employed, 17, 18.

AND Solomon <sup>a</sup> determined to build an house for the name of the LORD, and an house for his kingdom.

2 And <sup>b</sup> Solomon told out threescore and ten thousand men to bear burdens, and fourscore thousand to hew in the mountain, and three thousand and six hundred to oversee them.

3 And Solomon sent to <sup>c</sup> Hiram the king of Tyre, saying, <sup>d</sup> As thou didst deal with David my father, and didst send him cedars to build him an house to dwell therein, even so deal with me.

4 Behold, <sup>e</sup> I build an house to the name of the LORD my God, to dedicate it to him, and <sup>f</sup> to burn before him <sup>g</sup> sweet incense, and for <sup>h</sup> the continual shew-bread, and for <sup>i</sup> the burnt-offerings morning and evening, on the sabbaths, and on the new moons, and on the solemn feasts of the LORD our God. This is an ordinance for ever to Israel.

5 And the house which I build is great: for <sup>j</sup> great is our God above all gods.

6 <sup>k</sup> But who <sup>l</sup> is able to build him an house, seeing the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain him? who am I then, that I should build him an house, save only to burn sacrifice before him?

7 Send me now therefore a man cunning to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass, and in iron, and in purple, and crimson, and blue, and that can skill <sup>m</sup> to grave with the cunning men that are with me in Judah and in Jerusalem, <sup>n</sup> whom David my father did provide.

8 <sup>o</sup> Send me also cedar-trees, fir-trees, and <sup>p</sup> alumn-trees, out of Lebanon: for I know that thy servants can skill to cut timber in Lebanon; and, behold, my servants shall be with thy servants, 9 Even to prepare me timber in abundance: for the house which I am about to build shall be <sup>q</sup> wonderful great.

10 And, behold, I will give to thy servants, the hewers that cut timber, twenty thousand measures of beaten wheat, and twenty thousand measures of barley, and twenty thousand baths of wine, and twenty thousand baths of oil.

11 Then Hiram the king of Tyre answered in writing, which he sent to Solomon, <sup>r</sup> Because the LORD hath loved his people, he hath made thee king over them.

12 Hiram said moreover, <sup>s</sup> Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, <sup>t</sup> that made heaven and earth, who hath given to David the king a wise son, <sup>u</sup> endued with prudence and understanding, that might build an house for the LORD, and an house for his kingdom.

13 And now I have sent a cunning man, endued with understanding, of Hiram my father's,

14 <sup>v</sup> The son of a woman of the daughters of Dan, and his father was a man of Tyre, skilful to work in gold, and in silver, in brass, in iron, in stone, and in timber, in purple, in blue, and in fine linen, and in crimson; also to grave any manner of graving, and to find out every device which shall be put to him, with thy cunning men, and with the cunning men of my lord David thy father.

15 Now therefore the wheat, and the barley, the oil, and the wine, which <sup>w</sup> my lord hath spoken of, let him send unto his servants:

16 <sup>x</sup> And we will cut wood out of Lebanon, <sup>y</sup> as much as thou shalt need: and we will bring it to thee in flotes by sea to <sup>z</sup> Joppa; and thou shalt carry it up to Jerusalem.

17 <sup>aa</sup> And Solomon numbered all <sup>ab</sup> the strangers that were in the land of Israel after the numbering wherewith <sup>ac</sup> David his father had numbered them; and they were found an hundred and fifty thousand and three thousand and six hundred.

18 And he set <sup>ad</sup> threescore and ten thousand of them to be bearers of burdens, and fourscore thousand to be hewers in the mountain, and three thousand and six hundred overseers to set the people a work.

CHAPTER III.

Solomon begins to build the temple in the fourth year of his reign on Mount Moriah, 1, 2. Its dimensions, ornaments, and pillars, 3-17.

THEN <sup>a</sup> Solomon began to build the house of the LORD at <sup>b</sup> Jerusalem in Mount Moriah, <sup>c</sup> where the LORD appeared unto David his father, in the place that David had prepared in the threshing-floor of <sup>d</sup> Ornan <sup>e</sup> the Jebusite.

2 And he began to build in the second day of the second month, in the fourth year of his reign.

3 Now these are the things <sup>f</sup> wherein Solomon was instructed for the building of the house of God. The length by cubits, after the first measure, was threescore cubits, and the breadth twenty cubits.

4 And the <sup>h</sup> porch that was in the front of the house, the length of it was according to the breadth of the house, twenty cubits, and the height was an hundred and twenty: and he overlaid it within with pure gold.

5 And <sup>i</sup> the greater house he cieled with fir-trees, which he overlaid with fine gold, and set thereon palm-trees and chains.

6 And he <sup>j</sup> garnished the house with precious stones for beauty: and the gold was gold of Parvaim.

7 He overlaid also the house, the beams, the posts, and the walls thereof, and the doors thereof, with gold; and graved cherubims on the walls.

8 And he made the most holy house, the length whereof was according to the breadth of the house, twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof twenty cubits: and he overlaid it with fine gold, amounting to six hundred talents.

9 And the weight of the nails was fifty shekels of gold. And he overlaid the upper chambers with gold.

10 <sup>k</sup> And in the most holy house he made two cherubims <sup>l</sup> of image work, and overlaid them with gold.

11 And the wings of the cherubims were twenty cubits long: one wing of the one cherub was five cubits, reaching to the wall of the house: and the other wing was likewise five cubits, reaching to the wing of the other cherub.

12 And one wing of the other cherub was five cubits, reaching to the wall of the house: and the other wing was five cubits also, joining to the wing of the other cherub.

13 The wings of these cherubims spread themselves forth twenty cubits: and they stood on their feet, and their faces were <sup>m</sup> inward.

14 And he made the <sup>n</sup> veil of blue, and purple, and crimson, and fine linen, and <sup>o</sup> wrought cherubims thereon.

15 Also he made before the house <sup>p</sup> two pillars of thirty and five cubits <sup>q</sup> high, and the chapter that was on the top of each of them was five cubits.

16 And he made chains, as in the oracle, and put them on the heads of the pillars; and made <sup>r</sup> an hundred pomegranates, and put them on the chains.

give us no help. There is probably a mistake here, which, from the similarity of the letters, might easily occur.

Verse 6. Gold of Parvaim. We know not what this place was; some think it is the same as Sepharvaim, a place in Armenia or Media, conquered by the king of Assyria, 2 Kings xvii. 24, &c. Others, that it is Taprobane, now the island of Ceylon, which Bochart derives from taph, signifying the border, and Parvaim, i.e. the coast of Parvaim. The rabbins say that it was gold of a blood-red colour, and had its name from parim, heifers, being like to bullock's blood. [The theory of Bochart is etymologically incorrect.]

Verse 9. The weight of the nails was fifty shekels. Bolts must be here intended, as it would be preposterous to suppose nails of nearly two pounds' weight.

The upper chambers. Probably the ceiling is meant.

Verse 17. He reared up the pillars. See on 1 Kings vii. 21; and see the parallel places for other matters contained in this chapter.

CHAPTER IV.

The brazen altar, 1. Molten sea, and its supporters, 2-5. The ten lavers, 5. Ten golden candlesticks, 7. Ten tables, the honoured golden basons, and the priests' court, 8-10. The works which Hiram performed, 11-17. Solomon finishes the temple, and its utensils, 18-22.

MOREOVER he made * an altar of brass, twenty cubits the length thereof, and twenty cubits the breadth thereof, and ten cubits the height thereof.

2 * Also he made a molten sea of ten cubits * from brim to brim, round in compass, and five cubits the height thereof; and a line of thirty cubits did compass it round about.

3 * And under it was the similitude of oxen, which did compass it round about: ten in a cubit, compassing the sea round about. Two rows of oxen were cast, when it was cast.

4 It stood upon twelve oxen, three looking toward the north, and three looking toward the west, and three looking toward the south, and three looking toward the east; and the sea was set above upon them, and all their hinder parts were inward.

5 And the thickness of it was an hand-breadth, and the brim of it like the work of the brim of a cup, * with flowers of lilies; and it received and held * three thousand baths.

6 He made also * ten lavers, and put five on the right hand, and five on the left, to wash in them: * such things as they offered for the burnt-offering they washed in them; but the sea was for the priests to wash in.

7 * And he made ten candlesticks of gold * according to their form, and set them in the temple, five on the right hand, and five on the left.

8 * He made also ten tables, and placed them in the temple, five on the right side, and five on the left. And he made an hundred * basons of gold.

9 Furthermore * he made the court of the priests, and the great court, and doors for the court, and overlaid the doors of them with brass.

10 And * he set the sea on the right side of the east end, over against the south.

Verse 3. Under it was the similitude of oxen] In 1 Kings vii. 24, instead of oxen, bekarim, we have knops, pekaïm; and this last is supposed by able critics to be the reading which ought to be received here. What we call knops may signify grapes, mushrooms, apples, or some such ornaments placed round about under the turned over lip or brim of this caldron. It is possible that bekarim, oxen, may be a corruption of pekaïm, grapes. The reader will at once see that what are called the oxen, ver. 3, said to be round about the brim, are widely different from those ver. 4, by which this molten sea was supported.

Verse 5. It—held three thousand baths] In 1 Kings vii. 26, it is said to hold only two thousand baths. As this book was written after the Babylonish captivity, it is very possible that reference is here made to the Babylonish bath, which might have been less than the Jewish. The Targum cuts the knot by saying, "It received three thousand baths, of dry measure, and held two thousand of liquid measure."

Verse 6. He made also ten lavers] The lavers served to wash the different parts of the victims in; and the molten sea was for the use of the priests. In this they bathed, or drew water from it for their personal purification.

Verse 8. An hundred basons of gold] These were doubtless a sort of patera, or sacrificial spoons, with which they made libations.

Verse 9. He made the court of the priests] This was the inner court.

11 And * Hiram made the pots, and the shovels, and the * basons. And Hiram * finished the work that he was to make for king Solomon for the house of God;

12 To wit, the two pillars, and * the pommels, and the chapters which were on the top of the two pillars, and the two wreaths to cover the two pommels of the chapters which were on the pillars;

13 And * four hundred pomegranates on the two wreaths; two rows of pomegranates on each wreath, to cover the two pommels of the chapters which were * upon the pillars.

14 He made also * bases, and * lavers made he upon the bases;

15 One sea, and twelve oxen under it.

16 The pots also, and the shovels, and the flesh-hooks, and all their instruments, did * Hiram his father make to king Solomon for the house of the LORD of * bright brass.

17 * In the plain of Jordan did the king cast them, in the * clay ground between Succoth and Zeredathah.

18 * Thus Solomon made all these vessels in great abundance: for the weight of the brass could not be found out.

19 And <sup>bb</sup> Solomon made all the vessels that were for the house of God, the golden altar also, and the tables whereon <sup>cc</sup> the shew-bread was set;

20 Moreover the candlesticks with their lamps, that they should burn <sup>dd</sup> after the manner before the oracle, of pure gold;

21 And <sup>ee</sup> the flowers, and the lamps, and the tongs, made he of gold, and that <sup>ff</sup> perfect gold;

22 And the snuffers, and the <sup>gg</sup> basons, and the spoons, and the censers, of pure gold: and the entry of the house, the inner doors thereof for the most holy place, and the doors of the house of the temple, were of gold,

And the great court] This was the outer court, or place for assembling of the people.

Verse 16. Hiram his father] Ab, father, is often used in Hebrew to signify a master, inventor, chief operator.

Verse 17. In the clay ground] Some suppose that he did not actually cast those instruments at those places, but that he brought the clay from that quarter, as being the most proper for making moulds to cast in.

Verse 21. And the flowers, and the lamps] Probably each branch of the chandelier was made like a plant in flower, and the opening of the flower was either the lamp, or served to support it.

Verse 22. The doors—were of gold] That is, were overlaid with golden plates, the thickness of which we do not know.

That everything in the tabernacle and temple was typical or representative of some excellence of the gospel dispensation may be readily credited, without going into all the detail produced by the pious author of Solomon's Temple Spiritualized. We can see the general reference and the principles of the great design, though we may not be able to make a particular application of the knops, the flowers, the pomegranates, the tongs, and the snuffers, to some gospel doctrines: such spiritualizing is in most cases weak, silly, religious trifling; being ill calculated to produce respect for divine revelation.

CHAPTER V.

Solomon, having finished the temple, brings in the things which his father had consecrated, 1. He assembles the elders and chiefs of Israel and the Levites, in order to bring up the ark from the city of David, 2, 3. They bring it and its vessels; and having offered innumerable sacrifices, place it in the temple, under the wings of the cherubim, 4-10. The Levites, singers, and trumpeters praise God; and his glory descends, and fills the house, so that the priests cannot stand to minister, 11-14.

THUS all the work that Solomon made for the house of the LORD was finished: and Solomon brought in all the things that David his father had dedicated; and the silver, and the gold, and all the instruments, put he among the treasures of the house of God.

2 <sup>b</sup> Then Solomon assembled the elders of Israel, and all the heads of the tribes, the chief of the fathers of the children of Israel, unto Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the covenant of the LORD <sup>c</sup> out of the city of David, which is Zion,

3 <sup>d</sup> Wherefore all the men of Israel assembled themselves unto the king <sup>e</sup> in the feast which was in the seventh month.

4 And all the elders of Israel came; and the Levites took up the ark.

5 And they brought up the ark, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle, these did the priests and the Levites bring up.

6 Also king Solomon, and all the congregation of Israel that were assembled unto him before the ark, sacrificed sheep and oxen, which could not be told nor numbered for multitude.

7 And the priest brought in the ark of the covenant of the LORD unto his place, to the oracle of the house, into the most holy place, even under the wings of the cherubims:

8 For the cherubims spread forth their wings over the place of the ark, and the cherubims covered the ark and the staves thereof.

Verse 9. They drew out the staves] As the ark was no longer to be carried about, those were unnecessary.

Verse 11. When the priests were come out] After having carried the ark into the holy of holies, before the sacred service had commenced.

Verse 12. An hundred and twenty priests] Cymbals, psalteries, and harps, of any kind, in union with a hundred and twenty trumpets or horns, could not produce much 9 And they drew out the staves of the ark, that the ends of the staves were seen from the ark before the oracle; but they were not seen without. And <sup>h</sup> there it is unto this day.

10 There was nothing in the ark save the two tables which Moses <sup>i</sup> put therein at Horeb, <sup>j</sup> when the LORD made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of Egypt.

11 And it came to pass, when the priests were come out of the holy place: (for all the priests that were <sup>k</sup> present were sanctified, and did not then wait by course:

12 <sup>l</sup> Also the Levites which were the singers, all of them of Asaph, of Heman, of Jeduthun, with their sons and their brethren, being arrayed in white linen, having cymbals and psalteries and harps, stood at the east end of the altar, <sup>m</sup> and with them an hundred and twenty priests sounding with trumpets:)

13 It came even to pass, as the trumpeters and singers were as one, to make one sound to be heard in praising and thanking the LORD; and when they lifted up their voice with the trumpets and cymbals and instruments of musick, and praised the LORD, saying, <sup>n</sup> For he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever: that then the house was filled with a cloud, even the house of the LORD;

14 So that the priests could not stand to minister by reason of the cloud; <sup>o</sup> for the glory of the LORD had filled the house of God.

harmony; as to melody, that must have been impossible, as the noise was too great.

Verse 13. For he is good] This was either the whole of the song, or the burden of each verse.

Verse 14. The priests could not stand] What a proof of the being of God, and of the divine presence! What must those holy men have felt at this time!

CHAPTER VI.

Solomon's prayer at the dedication of the temple, 1-49.

THEN <sup>a</sup> said Solomon, The LORD hath said that he would dwell in the <sup>b</sup> thick darkness.

2 But I <sup>c</sup> have built an house of habitation

<sup>a</sup> 1 Kings viii. 12, &c.

Verse 1. The Lord hath said that he would dwell] Solomon, seeing the cloud descend and fill the house, immediately took for granted that the Lord had accepted the place, and for thee, and a place for thy dwelling for ever.

3 And the king turned his face, and blessed the whole congregation of Israel: and all the congregation of Israel stood.

was now present. What occurred now was precisely the same with what took place when Moses reared the tabernacle in the wilderness; see Exod. xl. 34, 35.

4 And he said, Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, who hath with his hands fulfilled that which he spake with his mouth to my father David, saying,

5 Since the day that I brought forth my people out of the land of Egypt I chose no city among all the tribes of Israel to build an house in, that my name might be there; neither chose I any man to be a ruler over my people Israel:

6 <sup>a</sup> But I have chosen Jerusalem that my name might be there; and <sup>b</sup> have chosen David to be over my people Israel.

7 Now <sup>c</sup> it was in the heart of David my father to build an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel.

8 But the Lord said to David my father, Forasmuch as it was in thine heart to build an house for my name, thou didst well in that it was in thine heart:

9 Notwithstanding thou shalt not build the house; but thy son which shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build the house for my name.

10 The Lord therefore hath performed his word that he hath spoken; for I am risen up in the room of David my father, and am set on the throne of Israel, as the Lord promised, and have built the house for the name of the Lord God of Israel.

11 And in it have I put the ark, <sup>d</sup> wherein is the covenant of the Lord, that he made with the children of Israel.

12 <sup>e</sup> And he stood before the altar of the Lord in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands:

13 (For Solomon had made a brasen scaffold, of five cubits <sup>f</sup> long, and five cubits broad, and three cubits high, and had set it in the midst of the court; and upon it he stood, and kneeled down upon his knees before all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands toward heaven.

14 And said, O Lord God of Israel, <sup>g</sup> there is no God like thee in the heaven, nor in the earth; which keepest covenant, and shewest mercy unto thy servants, that walk before thee with all their hearts:

15 <sup>h</sup> Thou which hast kept with thy servant David my father that which thou hast promised him; and spakest with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it with thine hand, as it is this day.

16 Now therefore, O Lord God of Israel, keep with thy servant David my father that which thou hast promised him, saying, <sup>i</sup> There <sup>j</sup> shall not fail thee a man in my sight to sit upon the throne of Israel; <sup>k</sup> yet so that thy children take heed to their way to walk in my law, as thou hast walked before me.

17 Now then, O Lord God of Israel, let thy word be verified, which thou hast spoken unto thy servant David.

18 But will God in very deed dwell with men on the earth? <sup>l</sup> behold, heaven and the heaven of heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house which I have built!

19 Have respect therefore to the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O Lord my God, to hearken unto the cry and the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee:

20 That thine eyes may be open upon this house day and night, upon the place whereof thou hast said that thou wouldest put thy name there; to hearken unto the prayer which thy servant prayeth <sup>m</sup> toward this place.

21 Hearken therefore unto the supplications of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, which they shall <sup>n</sup> make toward this place: hear thou from thy dwelling-place, even from heaven; and when thou hearest, forgive.

22 If a man sin against his neighbour, <sup>o</sup> and an oath be laid upon him to make him swear, and the oath come before thine altar in this house;

23 Then hear thou from heaven, and do, and judge thy servants, by requiting the wicked, by recompensing his way upon his own head; and by justifying the righteous, by giving him according to his righteousness.

24 And if thy people Israel <sup>p</sup> be put to the worse before the enemy, because they have sinned against thee; and shall return and confess thy name, and pray and make supplication before thee <sup>q</sup> in this house;

25 Then hear thou from the heavens, and forgive the sin of thy people Israel, and bring them again unto the land which thou gavest to them and to their fathers.

26 When the <sup>r</sup> heaven is shut up, and there is no rain, because they have sinned against thee: yet if they pray toward this place, and confess thy name, and turn from their sin, when thou dost afflict them;

27 Then hear thou from heaven, and forgive the sin of thy servants, and of thy people Israel, when thou hast taught them the good way, wherein they should walk; and send rain upon thy land, which thou hast given unto thy people for thy inheritance.

28 If there <sup>s</sup> be dearth in the land, if there be pestilence, if there be blasting, or mildew, locusts, or caterpillars; if their enemies besiege them <sup>t</sup> in the cities of their land; whatsoever sore or whatsoever sickness there be;

29 Then what prayer or what supplication soever shall be made of any man, or of all thy people Israel, when every one shall know his own sore and his own grief, and shall spread forth his hands <sup>u</sup> in this house:

30 Then hear thou from heaven thy dwelling-place, and forgive, and render unto every man according unto all his way, whose heart thou knowest; (for thou only <sup>v</sup> knowest the hearts of the children of men;)

These two last verses are not in the parallel place in 1 Kings viii. There are other differences between the two places in this prayer, but they are not of much consequence.

31 That they may fear thee, to walk in thy ways, 'so long as they live<sup>b</sup> in the land which thou gavest unto our fathers.

32 Moreover concerning the stranger, 'which is not of thy people Israel, but is come from a far country for thy great name's sake, and thy mighty hand, and thy stretched-out arm; if they come and pray in this house;

34 If thy people go out to war against their enemies by the way that thou shalt send them, and they pray unto thee toward this city which thou hast chosen, and the house which I have built for thy name:

35 Then hear thou from the heavens their prayer and their supplication, and maintain their 'cause.

CHAPTER VII.

Solomon having ended his prayer, the fire of the Lord comes down from heaven, and consumes the offerings, 1. The people and the priests see this, and glorify God, and offer sacrifices, 2-4. Solomon offers twenty-two thousand oxen, and one hundred and twenty thousand sheep; and the priests and Levites attend in their offices, 5, 6. He keeps the feasts seven days, and the dedication of the altar seven days, and dismisses the people, 7-11. The Lord appears unto him by night, and assures him he has heard his prayer, 12-16; promises him and his posterity a perpetual government, if they be obedient, 17, 18; but utter destruction should they disobey, and become idolaters, 19-22.

NOW 'when Solomon had made an end of praying, the <sup>b</sup> fire came down from heaven, and consumed the burnt-offering and the sacrifices; and 'the glory of the LORD filled the house.

2 'And the priests could not enter into the house of the LORD, because the glory of the LORD had filled the LORD's house.

3 And when all the children of Israel saw how the fire came down, and the glory of the LORD upon the house, they bowed themselves with their faces to the ground upon the pavement, and worshipped and praised the LORD, 'saying, For he is good; 'for his mercy endureth for ever.

4 'Then the king and all the people offered sacrifices before the LORD.

5 And king Solomon offered a sacrifice of twenty and two thousand oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousand sheep: so the king and all the people dedicated the house of God.

6 'And the priests waited on their offices: the Levites also with instruments of musick of the LORD, which David the king had made to praise the LORD, because his mercy endureth for ever, when David praised 'by their ministry; and 'the priests sounded trumpets before them, and all Israel stood.

7 Moreover 'Solomon hallowed the middle of the court that was before the house of the LORD: for there he offered burnt-offerings, and the fat of the peace-offerings, because the brasen altar which Solomon had made was not able to receive the burnt-offerings, and the meat-offerings, and the fat.

people themselves slew them; and, having caught the blood, collected the fat, &c., presented them to the priests to be offered as the law required.

Verse 5. Twenty and two thousand oxen, &c.] The amount of all the victims that had been offered during the seven days of the feast of tabernacles, and the seven days of the feast of the dedication.

II. CHRONICLES.

8 * Also at the same time Solomon kept the feast seven days, and all Israel with him, a very great congregation, from the entering in of Hamath unto the river of Egypt.

9 And in the eighth day they made a * solemn assembly: for they kept the dedication of the altar seven days, and the feast seven days.

10 And * on the three and twentieth day of the seventh month he sent the people away into their tents, glad and merry in heart for the goodness that the LORD had shewed unto David, and to Solomon, and to Israel his people.

11 Thus * Solomon finished the house of the LORD, and the king's house: and all that came into Solomon's heart to make in the house of the LORD, and in his own house, he prosperously effected.

12 And the LORD appeared to Solomon by night, and said unto him, I have heard thy prayer, * and have chosen this place to myself for an house of sacrifice.

13 * If I shut up heaven that there be no rain, or if I command the locusts to devour the land, or if I send pestilence among my people;

14 If my people, * which are called by my name, shall * humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; * then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land.

15 Now * mine eyes shall be open, and mine ears attent * unto the prayer that is made in this place.

Verse 10. On the three and twentieth day] This was the ninth day of the dedication of the temple; but in 1 Kings viii. 66 it is called the eighth day. "The meaning is this," says Jarchi: "he gave them liberty to return on the eighth day, and many of them did then return; and he dismissed the remainder on the ninth, what is called here the twenty-third, reckoning the fourteen days for the duration of the two feasts; in all, twenty three."

Verse 12. The Lord appeared to Solomon] This was a second manifestation; see 1 Kings ix. 2-9, and the notes there.

Verse 18. There shall not fail thee a man] This promise was not fulfilled, because the condition was not fulfilled; they forsook God, and he cut them off, and the throne also.

Verse 20. Then will I pluck them up by the roots] How completely has this been fulfilled! not only all the branches

16 For now have * I chosen and sanctified this house, that my name may be there for ever: and mine eyes and mine heart shall be there perpetually.

17 * And as for thee, if thou wilt walk before me, as David thy father walked, and do according to all that I have commanded thee, and shalt observe my statutes and my judgments;

18 Then will I stablish the throne of thy kingdom, according as I have covenanted with David thy father, saying, * There * shall not fail thee a man to be ruler in Israel.

19 * But if ye turn away, and forsake my statutes and my commandments, which I have set before you, and shall go and serve other gods, and worship them;

20 Then will I pluck them up by the roots out of my land which I have given them; and this house, which I have sanctified for my name, will I cast out of my sight, and will make it to be a proverb and a byword among all nations.

21 And this house, which is high, shall be an astonishment to every one that passeth by it; so that he shall say, * Why hath the LORD done thus unto this land, and unto this house?

22 And it shall be answered, Because they forsook the LORD God of their fathers, which brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, and laid hold on other gods, and worshipped them, and served them: therefore hath he brought all this evil upon them.

of the Jewish political tree have been cut off, but the very roots have been plucked up; so that the day of the Lord's anger has left them neither root nor branch.

Verse 21. Shall be an astonishment] The manner in which these disobedient people have been destroyed is truly astonishing: no nation was ever so highly favoured, and none ever so severely and signally punished.

Verse 22. Because they forsook the Lord] While they cleaved to God, the most powerful enemy could make no impression on them: but when they forsook him, then the weakest and most inconsiderable of their foes harassed, oppressed, and reduced them to bondage and misery. It was by no personal prowess, genuine heroism, or supereminent, military tactics, that the Jews were enabled to resist and overcome their enemies; it was by the divine power alone; for, destitute of this, they were even worse than other men.

3 And Solomon went to Haphath-zobah, and prevailed against it.

Verse 2. The cities which Hiram had restored] See the note on 1 Kings ix. 11.

Verse 4. Tadmor] Palmyra. See the note on 1 Kings ix. 18, for an account of this superb city.

4 *And he built Tadmor in the wilderness, and all the store cities, which he built in Hamath.

5 Also he built Beth-horon the upper, and Beth-horon the nether, fenced cities, with walls, gates, and bars;

6 And Baalath, and all the store cities that Solomon had, and all the chariot cities, and the cities of the horsemen, and <sup>b</sup>all that Solomon desired to build in Jerusalem, and in Lebanon, and throughout all the land of his dominion.

8 But of their children, who were left after them in the land, whom the children of Israel consumed not, them did Solomon make to pay tribute until this day.

9 But of the children of Israel did Solomon make no servants for his work; but they were men of war, and chief of his captains, and captains of his chariots, and horsemen.

10 And these were the chief of king Solomon's officers, even <sup>d</sup>two hundred and fifty, that bare rule over the people.

11 And Solomon <sup>e</sup>brought up the daughter of Pharaoh out of the city of David unto the house that he had built for her: for he said, My wife shall not dwell in the house of David king of Israel, because the places are <sup>f</sup>holy, whereunto the ark of the LORD hath come.

Verse 9. But of the children of Israel] See the note on 1 Kings ix. 21.

Because the places are holy] Is not this a proof that he considered his wife to be a heathen, and not proper to dwell in a place which had been sanctified? Solomon had not yet departed from the true God.

Verse 13. Three times in the year] These were the three great annual feasts.

Verse 15. The commandment of the king] The institutions of David.

12 Then Solomon offered burnt-offerings unto the LORD on the altar of the LORD, which he had built before the porch, 13 Even after a certain rate <sup>a</sup>every day, offering according to the commandment of Moses, on the sabbaths, and on the new moons, and on the solemn feasts, <sup>b</sup>three times in the year, even in the feast of unleavened bread, and in the feast of weeks, and in the feast of tabernacles.

14 And he appointed, according to the order of David his father, the <sup>c</sup>courses of the priests to their service, and <sup>d</sup>the Levites to their charges, to praise and minister before the priests, as the duty of every day required: the <sup>e</sup>porters also by their courses at every gate: for <sup>f</sup>so had David the man of God commanded.

15 And they departed not from the commandment of the king unto the priests and Levites concerning any matter, or concerning the treasures.

16 Now all the work of Solomon was prepared unto the day of the foundation of the house of the LORD, and until it was finished. So the house of the LORD was perfected.

17 Then went Solomon to <sup>g</sup>Ezion-geber, and to <sup>h</sup>Eloth, at the sea-side in the land of Edom.

18 <sup>i</sup>And Hiram sent him by the hands of his servants ships, and servants that had knowledge of the sea; and they went with the servants of Solomon to Ophir, and took thence four hundred and fifty talents of gold, and brought them to king Solomon.

Verse 18. Knowledge of the sea] Skilful sailors. Solomon probably bore the expenses, and his friend the Tyrian king, furnished him with expert sailors; for the Jews, at no period of their history, had any skill in maritime affairs, their navigation being confined to the lakes of their own country, from which they could never acquire any nautical skill. The Tyrians, on the contrary, lived on and in the sea.

CHAPTER IX.

*The queen of Sheba visits Solomon, and is sumptuously entertained by him, 1-12. His great riches, 13, 14. AND <sup>a</sup>when the queen of Sheba heard of the fame of Solomon, she came to prove Solomon with hard questions at Jerusalem, with a very great company, and camels that bare spices, and gold in abundance, and precious stones: and when she was come to Solomon, she communed with him of all that was in her heart.

2 And Solomon told her all her questions: and there was nothing hid from Solomon which he told her not.

3 And when the queen of Sheba had seen the wisdom of Solomon, and the house that he had built, apparel; and his ascent by which he went up into the house of the Lord; there was no more spirit in her.

5 And she said to the king, It was a true <sup>a</sup>report which I heard in mine own land of thine <sup>b</sup>acts, and of thy wisdom:

6 Howbeit I believed not their words, until I came, and mine eyes had seen it: and, behold, the one half of the greatness of thy wisdom was not told me: for thou exceedest the fame that I heard.

7 Happy are thy men, and happy are these thy servants, which stand continually before thee, and hear thy wisdom.

8 Blessed be the Lord thy God, which delighted in thee to set thee on his throne to be king for the Lord thy God: because thy God loved Israel, to establish them for ever, therefore made he thee king over them, to do judgment and justice.

9 And she gave the king an hundred and twenty talents of gold, and of spices great abundance, and precious stones: neither was there any such spice as the queen of Sheba gave king Solomon.

10 And the servants also of Hiram, and the servants of Solomon, <sup>c</sup>which brought gold from Ophir, brought <sup>d</sup>algum-trees and precious stones.

11 And the king made of the algum-trees <sup>e</sup>terraces <sup>f</sup>to the house of the Lord, and to the king's palace, and harps and psalteries for singers; and there were none such seen before in the land of Judah.

12 And king Solomon gave to the queen of Sheba all her desire, whatsoever she asked, beside that which she had brought unto the king. So she turned, and went away to her own land, she and her servants.

13 Now the weight of gold that came to Solomon in one year was six hundred and threescore and six talents of gold;

14 Besides that which chapmen and merchants brought. And all the kings of Arabia and <sup>g</sup>governors of the country brought gold and silver to Solomon.

15 And king Solomon made two hundred targets of beaten gold: six hundred shekels of beaten gold went to one target.

16 And three hundred shields made he of beaten gold: three hundred shekels of gold went to one shield. And the king put them in the house of the forest of Lebanon.

is not at all likely that he gave her back the presents which she brought to him, and which he had accepted. She had no doubt asked for several things which were peculiar to the land of Judea, and would be curiosities in her own kingdom; and besides these, he gave her other valuable presents.

17 Moreover the king made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with pure gold.

18 And there were six steps to the throne, with a footstool of gold, which were fastened to the throne, and <sup>a</sup>stays on each side of the sitting place, and two lions standing by the stays:

19 And twelve lions stood there on the one side and on the other upon the six steps. There was not the like made in any kingdom.

20 And all the drinking vessels of king Solomon were of gold, and all the vessels of the house of the forest of Lebanon were of <sup>b</sup>pure gold: <sup>c</sup>none were of silver; it was not any thing accounted of in the days of Solomon.

21 For the king's ships went to Tarshish with the servants of Hiram: every three years once came the ships of Tarshish bringing gold, and silver, <sup>d</sup>ivory, and apes, and peacocks.

22 And king Solomon passed all the kings of the earth in riches and wisdom.

23 And all the kings of the earth sought the presence of Solomon, to hear his wisdom, that God had put in his heart.

24 And they brought every man his present, vessels of silver, and vessels of gold, and raiment, harness, and spices, horses, and mules, a rate year by year.

25 And Solomon <sup>e</sup>had four thousand stalls for horses and chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen; whom he bestowed in the chariot cities, and with the king at Jerusalem.

26 <sup>f</sup>And he reigned over all the kings <sup>g</sup>from the <sup>h</sup>river even unto the land of the Philistines, and to the border of Egypt.

27 <sup>i</sup>And the king <sup>j</sup>made silver in Jerusalem as stones, and cedar trees made he as the sycamore trees that are in the low plains in abundance.

28 <sup>k</sup>And they brought unto Solomon horses out of Egypt, and out of all lands.

29 <sup>l</sup>Now the rest of the acts of Solomon, first and last, are they not written in the <sup>m</sup>book of Nathan the prophet, and in the prophecy of <sup>n</sup>Ahijah the Shilonite, and in the visions of <sup>o</sup>Iddo the seer against Jeroboam the son of Nebat?

CHAPTER X.

The people apply to Rehoboam to ease them of their burdens, 1-4. Rejecting the advice of the aged counsellors, and following that of the young men, he gives them an ungracious answer, 5-14. The people are discouraged, and ten tribes revolt, 15-17. They stone Hadoram, who went to collect the tribute; and Rehoboam but barely escapes, 18-19.

AND Rehoboam went to Shechem: for to Shechem were all Israel come to make him king.

2 And it came to pass, when Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who was in Egypt, <sup>b</sup>whither he had fled from the presence of Solomon the king, heard it, that Jeroboam returned out of Egypt.

3 And they sent and called him. So Jeroboam and all Israel came and spake to Rehoboam, saying,

4 Thy father made our yoke grievous: now therefore ease thou somewhat the grievous servitude of thy father, and his heavy yoke that he put upon us, and we will serve thee.

5 And he said unto them, Come again unto me after three days. And the people departed.

6 And king Rehoboam took counsel with the old men that had stood before Solomon his father while he yet lived, saying, What counsel give ye me to return answer to this people?

7 And they spake unto him, saying, If thou be kind to this people, and please them, and speak good words to them, they will be thy servants for ever.

8 But he forsook the counsel which the old men gave him, and took counsel with the young men that were brought up with him, that stood before him.

9 And he said unto them, What advice give ye that we may return answer to this people, which have spoken to me, saying, Ease somewhat the yoke that thy father did put upon us?

10 And the young men that were brought up with him spake unto him, saying, Thus shalt thou answer the people that spake unto thee, saying, Thy father made our yoke heavy, but make thou it somewhat lighter for us; thus shalt thou say unto them,

My little finger shall be thicker than my father's loins.

11 For whereas my father <sup>c</sup>put a heavy yoke upon you, I will put more to your yoke; my father chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions.

12 So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam on the third day, as the king bade, saying, Come again to me on the third day.

13 And the king answered them roughly; and king Rehoboam forsook the counsel of the old men, 14 And answered them after the advice of the young men, saying, My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add thereto; my father chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions.

15 So the king hearkened not unto the people; <sup>d</sup>for the cause was of God, that the LORD might perform his word, which he spake by the <sup>e</sup>hand of Ahijah the Shilonite to Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

16 And when all Israel saw that the king would not hearken unto them, the people answered the king, saying, What portion have we in David? and we have none inheritance in the son of Jesse; every man to your tents, O Israel; and now, David, see to thine own house. So all Israel went to their tents.

17 But as for the children of Israel that dwelt in the cities of Judah, Rehoboam reigned over them.

18 Then king Rehoboam sent Hadoram that was over the tribute; and the children of Israel stoned him with stones, that he died. But king Rehoboam <sup>f</sup>made speed to get him up to his chariot, to flee to Jerusalem.

19 <sup>g</sup>And Israel rebelled against the house of David unto this day.

Verse 18. Stoned him] When he endeavoured to collect the tribute which Solomon had imposed on them.

Verse 19. Israel rebelled] A few soft words, and the removal of a part of the oppressive taxes, would have secured this people to the state, and prevented the shedding of a sea of human blood, which was the consequence of the separation of this kingdom. Rehoboam was a fool; and through his folly he lost his kingdom. He is not the only example on record: the Stuarts lost the realm of England much in the same way; and, by a different mode of treatment, the house of Brunswick continues to fill the British throne. May the thread of its fortune, woven by the hand of God, never be undone! and may the current of its power glide on to the latest posterity!

CHAPTER XI.

Rehoboam raises an army, purposing to reduce the ten tribes; but is prevented by Shemaiah the prophet, 1-4. He builds several cities of defence, and fortifies others, 5-12. The priests and Levites, being turned out by Jeroboam, come to Rehoboam, 13-14. Jeroboam's gross idolatry, 15. The pious of the land join with Judah, and strengthen the kingdom of Rehoboam, 16, 17. His wives, concubines, and numerous issue, 18-21. He places his own sons for governors in the different provinces, 22, 23.

AND *when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he gathered of the house of Judah and Benjamin an hundred and fourscore thousand chosen men, which were warriors, to fight against Israel, that he might bring the kingdom again to Rehoboam.

2 But the word of the LORD came <sup>b</sup> to Shemaiah the man of God, saying,

3 Speak unto Rehoboam the son of Solomon, king of Judah, and to all Israel in Judah and Benjamin, saying,

4 Thus saith the LORD, Ye shall not go up, nor fight against your brethren: return every man to his house: for this thing is done of me. And they obeyed the words of the LORD, and returned from going against Jeroboam.

5 And Rehoboam dwelt in Jerusalem, and built cities for defence in Judah.

6 He built even Beth-lehem, and Etam, and Tekoa,

7 And Beth-zur, and Shoco, and Adullam,

8 And Gath, and Mareshah, and Ziph,

9 And Adairam, and Lachish, and Azekah,

10 And Zorah, and Aijalon, and Hebron, which are in Judah and in Benjamin, fenced cities.

11 And he fortified the strong-holds, and put captains in them, and store of victual, and of oil and wine.

12 And in every several city he put shields and spears, and made them exceeding strong, having Judah and Benjamin on his side.

13 And the priests and the Levites that were in all Israel <sup>c</sup>resorted to him out of all their coasts.

14 For the Levites left <sup>d</sup>their suburbs and their Verse 1. Gathered of the house of Judah] See this account 1 Kings xii. 21-24, and the notes there.

Verse 5. And built cities for defence in Judah.] He was obliged to strengthen his frontiers against the encroachments of the men of Israel; and Jeroboam did the same thing on his part, to prevent the incursions of Judah. See 1 Kings xii. 25.

Verse 11. Store of victual] In these places he laid up stores of provisions, not only to enable them to endure a siege; but also that they might be able, from their situation, to supply desolate places.

Verse 14. The Levites left their suburbs] They and the priests were expelled from their offices by Jeroboam, lest they should turn the hearts of the people to the true God, and then they would revolt to Judah, 1 Kings xii. 26; and therefore he established a new worship, and made new gods.

Verse 15. And he ordained him priests—for the devils] Seirim, the hairy ones; probably goats: for as the golden calves, or oen, were in imitation of the Egyptian os-god, Apis; so they no doubt paid divine honours to the goat, which we know was an object of religious veneration in Egypt.

Verse 16. Such as set their hearts to seek the Lord] All the truly pious joined him out of every tribe; and the whole tribe of Levi, being deprived of their functions, joined him also.

Verse 17. For three years they walked in the way of David] During this time he prospered; but for fourteen years after this he and the people were unfaithful to the Lord, except at such intervals as the hand of God's judgments was upon them.

possession, and came to Judah and Jerusalem: for <sup>a</sup>Jeroboam and his sons had cast them off from executing the priest's office unto the Lord:

15 <sup>a</sup>And he ordained him priests for the high places, and for <sup>b</sup>the devils, and for <sup>c</sup>the calves which he had made.

16 <sup>d</sup>And after them out of all the tribes of Israel such as set their hearts to seek the LORD God of Israel came to Jerusalem, to sacrifice unto the LORD God of their fathers.

17 So they <sup>e</sup>strengthened the kingdom of Judah, and made Rehoboam the son of Solomon strong three years: for three years they walked in the way of David and Solomon.

18 And Rehoboam took him Mahalath the daughter of Jerimoth the son of David to wife, and Abihail the daughter of Eliab the son of Jesse;

19 Which bare him children; Jeush, and Shama-riah, and Zaham.

20 And after her he took <sup>f</sup>Maachah the daughter of Absalom: which bare him Abijah, and Attai, and Ziza, and Shelomith.

21 And Rehoboam loved Maachah the daughter of Absalom above all his wives and his concubines: (for he took eighteen wives, and threescore concubines; and begat twenty and eight sons, and threescore daughters.)

22 And Rehoboam <sup>g</sup>made Abijah the son of Maachah the chief, to be ruler among his brethren: for he thought to make him king.

23 And he dealt wisely, and dispersed of all his children throughout all the countries of Judah and Benjamin, unto every fenced city: and he gave them victual in abundance. And he desired <sup>h</sup>many wives.

Verse 18. Took him Mahalath] By marrying thus in the family of David, he strengthened his right to the Jewish throne.

Verse 20. Maachah the daughter of Absalom] See the note on 1 Kings xv. 10. She is called Michaiah, the daughter of Uriel, chap. xiii. 2. [The latter name is a copyist's error. Daughter must be understood as grand-daughter.]

Verse 21. Eighteen wives, and threescore concubines] Bad enough, but not so abandoned as his father. Of these marriages and concubinage the issue was twenty-eight sons and sixty daughters; eighty-eight children in the whole, to the education of the whole of whom he could pay but little attention. Numerous families are often neglected; and children by different women, must be yet in a worse state.

Verse 22. Made Abijah—the chief] Abijah certainly was not the first-born of Rehoboam: but as he loved Maachah more than any of his wives, so he preferred her son, probably through his mother's influence. In Deut. xxi. 16, this sort of preference is forbidden; but Rehoboam had a sort of precedent in the preference shown by David to Solomon.

Verse 23. He dealt wisely] It was true policy to disperse his own sons through the different provinces who were not likely to form any league with Jeroboam against their father.

He desired many wives.] He was much addicted to women; yet we do not find that he formed any heathenish alliances of this nature. And as no particulars are given, we do not know how far he indulged himself in this propensity. He probably strengthened his political connections by these means.

CHAPTER XII.

Rehoboam and his subjects, forsaking the Lord, are delivered into the hands of Shishak, king of Egypt, 1-4. Shemaiah the prophet remonstrates with them, and they humble themselves, and Jerusalem is not destroyed; but Shishak takes away all the treasures, and the golden shields, instead of which Rehoboam makes shields of brass, 5-12. He reigns badly seventeen years, dies, and is succeeded by his son Abijah, 13-16.

AND *it came to pass, when Rehoboam had established the kingdom, and had strengthened himself, <sup>b</sup> he forsook the law of the LORD, and all Israel with him.

2 ° And it came to pass, that in the fifth year of king Rehoboam Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem, because they had transgressed against the LORD,

3 With twelve hundred chariots, and threescore thousand horsemen: and the people were without number that came with him out of Egypt; <sup>d</sup> the Lubims, the Sukkiims, and the Ethiopians.

4 And he took the fenced cities which pertained to Judah, and came to Jerusalem.

5 Then came ° Shemaiah the prophet to Rehoboam, and to the princes of Judah, that were gathered together to Jerusalem because of Shishak, and said unto them, Thus saith the LORD, 'Ye have forsaken me, and therefore have I also left you in the hand of Shishak.

6 Whereupon the princes of Israel and the king ° humbled themselves; and they said, <sup>b</sup> The LORD is righteous.

7 And when the LORD saw that they humbled themselves, <sup>1</sup> the word of the LORD came to Shemaiah, saying, They have humbled themselves; therefore I will not destroy them, but I will grant them <sup>1</sup> some deliverance; and my wrath shall not be poured out upon Jerusalem by the hand of Shishak.

8 Nevertheless * they shall be his servants; that they may know <sup>1</sup> my service, and the service of the kingdoms of the countries.

Verse 1. He forsook the law of the Lord] This was after the three years mentioned chap. xi. 17.

Verse 2. Shishak king of Egypt] Concerning this man, and the motive which led him to attack the Jews, see note on 1 Kings xiv. 31.

Verse 3. The Lubims] Supposed to be a people of Libya, adjoining to Egypt; sometimes called Phut in scripture, as the people are called Lehabim and Ludim.

The Sukkiims] The Septuagint translate by the word Τρωαδωναι, Troglodytes.

[Gesenius suggests that the name signifies dwellers in tents, that is, some wandering shepherd tribe, which is far more likely than the Septuagint rendering.]

The Ethiopians] Cushim. Various people were called by this name, particularly a people bordering on the northern coast of the Red Sea: but these are supposed to have come from a country of that name on the south of Egypt.

Verse 6. Whereupon the princes of Israel and the king humbled themselves] This is not mentioned in the parallel place, 1 Kings xiv.: this was the sole reason why Jerusalem was not at this time totally destroyed, and the house of David entirely cut off; for they were totally incapable of defending themselves against this innumerable host.

9 ° So Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem, and took away the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house: he took all: he carried away also the shields of gold which Solomon had ° made.

10 Instead of which king Rehoboam made shields of brass, and committed them ° to the hands of the chief of the guard, that kept the entrance of the king's house.

11 And when the king entered into the house of the LORD, the guard came and fetched them, and brought them again into the guard chamber.

12 And when he humbled himself, the wrath of the LORD turned from him, that he would not destroy him altogether: ° and also in Judah things went well.

13 So king Rehoboam strengthened himself in Jerusalem, and reigned: for ° Rehoboam was one and forty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, ° the city which the LORD had chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, to put his name there. And his mother's name was Namah an Ammonitess.

14 And he did evil, because he ° prepared not his heart to seek the LORD.

15 Now the acts of Rehoboam, first and last, are they not written in the ° book of Shemaiah the prophet, ° and of Iddo the seer concerning genealogies? ° And there were wars between Rehoboam and Jeroboam continually.

16 And Rehoboam slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David: and ° Abijah his son reigned in his stead.

Verse 8. They shall be his servants] While they were pious, they found the service of the Lord to be perfect freedom; when they forsook the Lord, they found the fruit to be perfect bondage. A sinful life is both expensive and painful.

Verse 9. Took away the treasures] Such a booty as never had before, nor has since, come into the hand of man.

The shields of gold] The shields were the mark of the king's body-guard: it was in imitation of this eastern magnificence that Alexander constituted his Argyraspidæ, adorned with the spoils taken from Darius.

Verse 13. Was one and forty years old] Houbigant thinks he was but sixteen years old when he began to reign; and brings many and forcible arguments to prove that the number forty-one must be a mistake. That he was young when he came to the throne, is evident from his consulting the young men that were brought up with him, chap. x. 8, 10. If this reading were allowed, it would prove that he was born before his father Solomon began to reign, for Solomon reigned only forty years, and Rehoboam immediately succeeded him.

Verse 16. Abijah his son] Concerning the varieties in this king's name, see the note on 1 Kings xvi. 81.

II. CHRONICLES.

CHAPTER XIII.

Abijah begins to reign over Judah, and has war with Jeroboam, 1-3. His speech from Mount Zemaraim to Jeroboam, before the commencement of hostilities, 4-12. While thus engaged, Jeroboam despatches some troops, which came on the rear of Abijah's army, 13. Perceiving this they cry unto the Lord, and the Israelites are defeated with the loss of five hundred thousand men, 14-18. Abijah retakes several cities from Jeroboam, who is smitten by the Lord, and dies, 19, 20. Abijah's marriages and issue, 21, 22.

NOW *in the eighteenth year of king Jeroboam began Abijah to reign over Judah.

2 He reigned three years in Jerusalem. His mother's name also was <sup>b</sup> Michaiah the daughter of Uriel of Gibeah. And there was war between Abijah and Jeroboam.

3 And Abijah <sup>c</sup>set the battle in array with an army of valiant men of war, even four hundred thousand chosen men: Jeroboam also set the battle in array against him with eight hundred thousand chosen men, being mighty men of valour.

4 And Abijah stood up upon Mount <sup>d</sup>Zemaraim, which is in Mount Ephraim, and said, Hear me, thou Jeroboam, and all Israel;

5 Ought ye not to know that the LORD God of Israel <sup>e</sup>gave the kingdom over Israel to David for ever, even to him and to his sons <sup>f</sup>by a covenant of salt?

6 Yet Jeroboam the son of Nebat, the servant of Solomon the son of David, is risen up, and hath <sup>g</sup>rebelled against his lord.

7 And there are gathered unto him <sup>h</sup>vain men, the children of Belial, and have strengthened themselves against Rehoboam the son of Solomon, when Rehoboam was young and tender-hearted, and could not withstand them.

8 And now ye think to withstand the kingdom of the LORD in the hand of the sons of David: and ye be a great multitude, and there are with you golden calves, which Jeroboam <sup>i</sup>made you for gods,

9 <sup>j</sup>Have ye not cast out the priests of the LORD, the sons of Aaron, and the Levites, and have made you priests after the manner of the nations of other lands? <sup>k</sup>so that whosoever cometh <sup>l</sup>to consecrate himself with a young bullock and seven rams, the same may be a priest of them that are no gods.

10 But as for us, the LORD is our God, and we have not forsaken him: and the priests, which minister unto the LORD, are the sons of Aaron, and the Levites wait upon their business:

11 <sup>m</sup>And they burn unto the LORD every morning and every evening burnt-sacrifices and sweet incense: the <sup>n</sup>shew-bread also set they in order upon the pure table; and the candlestick of gold with the lamps thereof, <sup>o</sup>to burn every evening: for we keep the charge of the LORD our God; but ye have forsaken him.

12 And, behold, God himself is with us for our captain, <sup>p</sup>and his priests with sounding trumpets to cry alarm against you. O children of Israel, <sup>q</sup>fight ye not against the LORD God of your fathers; for ye shall not prosper.

13 But Jeroboam caused an ambushment to come about behind them: so they were before Judah, and the ambushment was behind them.

14 And when Judah looked back, behold, the battle was before and behind: and they cried unto the LORD, and the priests sounded with the trumpets.

15 Then the men of Judah gave a shout: and as the men of Judah shouted, it came to pass, that God <sup>r</sup>smote Jeroboam and all Israel before Abijah and Judah.

16 And the children of Israel fled before Judah: and God delivered them into their hand.

17 And Abijah and his people slew them with a great slaughter: so there fell down slain of Israel five hundred thousand chosen men.

18 Thus the children of Israel were brought under Verse 2. His mother's name—was Michaiah] See on chap. xi. 20.

Verse 3. Abijah set the battle in array] The numbers in this verse and in the seventeenth seem almost incredible. It is very possible that there is a cipher too much in all these numbers, and that they should stand thus: Abijah's army, forty thousand; Jeroboam's, eighty thousand; the slain, fifty thousand.

In all printed copies of the Hebrew, the numbers are as in the common text, four hundred thousand, eight hundred thousand, and five hundred thousand.

Corruptions in the numbers of these historical books we have often had cause to suspect, and to complain of.

Verse 4. Stood up upon Mount Zemaraim] Jarchi thinks that Abijah went to the confines of the tribe of Ephraim to attack Jeroboam. It could not be Shomeron, the mount on which Samaria was built in the days of Omri king of Israel, 1 Kings xvi. 24.

Verse 5. By a covenant of salt?] For ever. See on Numb. xviii. 19.

Verse 7. When Rehoboam was young and tender-hearted] Therefore he could not be forty-one when he came to the throne; see the note on ver. 3. Children of Belial here signifies men of the most abandoned principles and characters; or men without consideration, education, or brains.

Verse 9. A young bullock and seven rams] He who could provide these for his own consecration was received into the order of this spurious and wicked priesthood. Some think he who could give to Jeroboam a young bullock and seven rams, was thereby received into the priesthood; this being the price for which the priesthood was conferred. The former is most likely.

Verse 10. The Lord is our God] We have not abandoned the Lord; and we still serve him according to his own law.

Verse 12. God himself is with us] Ye have golden calves; we have the living and omnipotent Jehovah.

With—trumpets to cry alarm against you.] This was appalling: When the priests sound their trumpets, it will be a proof that the vengeance of the Lord shall speedily descend upon you.

Verse 13. But Jeroboam caused an ambushment] While Abijah was thus employed in reproving him, Jeroboam divided his army privately, and sent a part to take Abijah in the rear; and this must have proved fatal to the Jews, had not the Lord interposed.

Verse 17. Slain—five hundred thousand chosen men. Query, fifty thousand?

at that time; and the children of Judah prevailed, *because they relied upon the Lord God of their fathers.

19 And Abijah pursued after Jeroboam, and took cities from him, Beth-el with the towns thereof, and Jeshanah with the towns thereof, and Ephraim with the towns thereof.

20 Neither did Jeroboam recover strength again

*1 Chron. v. 20. Ps. xxii. 5. — b Josh. xv. 9. — c 1 Sam. xxv. 38.

Verse 19. Jeshanah] We know not where these towns lay.

Verse 20. The Lord struck him, and he died.] Who died? Abijah or Jeroboam? Some think it was Jeroboam; some, that it was Abijah. Both rabbins and Christians are divided on this point; nor is it yet settled. The prevailing opinion is that Jeroboam is meant, who was struck then with that disease of which he died about two years after; for he did not die till two years after Abijah: see 1 Kings xiv. 20, xv. 9. [There can be no reasonable doubt that Jeroboam is meant.]

Verse 21. Married fourteen wives] Probably he made in the days of Abijah: and the Lord *struck him, and he died.

21 But Abijah waxed mighty, and married fourteen wives, and begat twenty and two sons, and sixteen daughters.

22 And the rest of the acts of Abijah, and his ways, and his sayings, are written in the *story of the prophet Iddo.

alliances with the neighbouring powers, by taking their daughters to him for wives.

Verse 22. Written in the story] Bemidrash, "in the commentary;" this, as far as I recollect, is the first place where a midrash or commentary is mentioned. The margin is right.

His ways, and his sayings] The commentary of the prophet Iddo is lost. What his sayings were we cannot tell; but from the specimen in this chapter, he appears to have been a very able speaker, and one who knew well how to make the best use of his argument.

CHAPTER XIV.

Asa succeeds his father Abijah, reigns piously, and has peace for ten years, 1. He makes a great reformation in Judah, and builds cities of defence, 2-7. His military strength, 8. He is attacked by Zerah the Ethiopian, with an immense army; Asa cries to the Lord, attacks the Ethiopians, and gives them a total overthrow, 9-12. He takes several of their cities, their cattle, &c., and returns to Jerusalem, laden with spoils, 13-15.

SO Abijah slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David: and **Asa* his son reigned in his stead. In his days the land was quiet ten years.

2 And Asa did that which was good and right in the eyes of the Lord his God:

3 For he took away the altars of the strange gods, and <sup>b</sup>the high places, and <sup>c</sup>brake down the <sup>d</sup>images, <sup>e</sup>and cut down the groves:

4 And commanded Judah to seek the Lord God of their father, and to do the law and the commandment.

5 Also he took away out of all the cities of Judah the high places and the <sup>f</sup>images: and the kingdom was quiet before him.

6 And he built fenced cities in Judah: for the land had rest, and he had no war in those years; because the Lord had given him rest.

7 Therefore he said unto Judah, Let us build these cities, and make about them walls, and towers, gates, and bars, while the land is yet before us; because we have sought the Lord our God, we have sought him, and he hath given us rest on every side. So they built and prospered.

Verse 1. The land was quiet ten years.] Calmet thinks these years should be counted from the fifth to the fifteenth of Asa's reign.

Verse 2. Did that which was good] He attended to what the law required relative to the worship of God. He was no idolater, though, morally speaking, he was not exempt from faults, 1 Kings xv. 14. He suppressed idolatry universally, and encouraged the people to worship the true God; see verses 3, 4, 5.

Verse 6. Fenced cities] To preserve his territories from invasion, and strengthen the frontiers of his kingdom: see ver. 7.

8 And Asa had an army of men that bare targets and spears, out of Judah three hundred thousand; and out of Benjamin, that bare shields and drew bows, two hundred and fourscore thousand: all these were mighty men of valour.

9 * And there came out against them Zerah the Ethiopian with an host of a thousand thousand, and three hundred chariots; and came unto <sup>b</sup>Mareshah.

10 Then Asa went out against him, and they set the battle in array in the valley of Zephathah at Mareshah.

11 And Asa <sup>c</sup>cried unto the Lord his God, and said, Lord, it is <sup>d</sup>nothing with thee to help, whether with many, or with them that have no power: help us, O Lord our God; for we rest on thee, and <sup>e</sup>in thy name we go against this multitude. O Lord, thou art only God; let not <sup>f</sup>man prevail against thee.

12 So the Lord <sup>g</sup>smote the Ethiopians before Asa, and before Judah; and the Ethiopians fled.

13 And Asa and the people that were with him pursued them unto <sup>h</sup>Gerar: and the Ethiopians were overthrown, that they could not recover them-

Verse 8. Targets and spears] Probably targets with the dagger in the centre, and javelins for distant fight.

Bare shields and drew bows] They were not only archers, but had shield and sword for close fight.

Verse 9. Zerah the Ethiopian] Probably of that Ethiopia which lay on the south of Egypt, near to Libya, and therefore the Libyans are joined with them, chap. xvi. 8.

A thousand thousand] If this people had come from any great distance, they could not have had forage for such an selves; for they were <sup>a</sup> destroyed before the LORD, and before his host; and they carried away very much spoil.

14 And they smote all the cities round about Gerar; for <sup>b</sup> the fear of the LORD came upon them :

that uttered by Jonathan, 1 Sam. xiv. 6, when he attacked the garrison of the Philistines.

Verse 14. There was—much spoil in them.] These cities being on the rear of this vast army, they had laid up much forage in them; and to get this the Jews overthrew the whole.

Verse 15. Tents of cattle] Those which had carried the baggage of the great army, and which they had left in such places as abounded with pasture. Perhaps sheep-folds, and they spoiled all the cities; for there was exceeding much spoil in them.

15 They smote also the tents of cattle, and carried away sheep and camels in abundance, and returned to Jerusalem.

inclosures for camels, mules, &c., may also be intended. The discomfiture was great, because God fought for the people; and the spoil was immense, because the multitude was prodigious, indeed almost incredible; a million of men in one place is almost too much for the mind to conceive, but there may be some mistake in the numerals: it is evident from the whole account that the number was vast, and the spoil great.

CHAPTER XV.

Azariah's prophecy concerning Israel, and his exhortation to Asa, 1-7. Asa completes the reformation which he had begun, his kingdom is greatly strengthened, and all the people make a solemn covenant with the Lord, 8-15. His treatment of his mother Maachah, 16. He brings into the house of God the things that his father had dedicated, 17, 18. And he has no war till the thirty-fifth year of his reign, 19.

AND <sup>a</sup> the Spirit of God came upon Azariah the son of Oded :

2 And he went out to <sup>b</sup> meet Asa, and said unto him, Here ye me, Asa, and all Judah and Benjamin; <sup>c</sup> The LORD is with you, while ye be with him; and <sup>d</sup> if ye seek him, he will be found of you; but <sup>e</sup> if ye forsake him, he will forsake you.

3 Now <sup>f</sup> for a long season Israel hath been without the true God, and without <sup>g</sup> a teaching priest, and without law.

4 But <sup>h</sup> when they in their trouble did turn unto the LORD God of Israel, and sought him, he was found of them.

5 And <sup>i</sup> in those times there was no peace to him that went out, nor to him that came in, but great vexations were upon all the inhabitants of the countries.

6 <sup>j</sup> And nation was <sup>k</sup> destroyed of nation, and city of city: for God did vex them with all adversity.

7 Be ye strong therefore, and let not your hands be weak: for your work shall be rewarded.

8 And when Asa heard these words, and the prophecy of Oded the prophet, he took courage, Verse 1. Azariah the son of Oded] We know nothing of this prophet but what is related of him here.

Verse 2. The Lord is with you, while ye be with him] This is the settled and eternal purpose of God; to them who seek him he will ever be found propitious, and them alone will he abandon who forsake him. In this verse the unconditional perseverance of the saints has no place: a doctrine which was first the ruin of the human race, Ye shall not die; and ever since the fall, has been the plague and disgrace of the church of Christ.

Verse 3. Now for a long season Israel] There is a great diversity of opinions concerning the meaning of this text. Some consider it a prophecy relative to the future state of this people, and the final destruction of the Jews as to their political existence: others consider it as referring to the state of the people under the reigns of Rehoboam and Abijah, which were happily changed under that of Asa; and this appears to me to be the most natural sense of the words.

Verse 5. But great vexations] Does not our Lord allude and put away the <sup>1</sup> abominable idols out of all the land of Judah and Benjamin, and out of the cities, <sup>2</sup> which he had taken from Mount Ephraim, and renewed the altar of the LORD, that was before the porch of the LORD.

9 And he gathered all Judah and Benjamin, and <sup>3</sup> the strangers with them out of Ephraim and Manasseh, and out of Simeon: for they fell to him out of Israel in abundance, when they saw that the LORD his God was with him.

10 So they gathered themselves together at Jerusalem in the third month, in the fifteenth year of the reign of Asa.

11 <sup>4</sup> And they offered unto the LORD <sup>5</sup> the same time, of <sup>6</sup> the spoil which they had brought, seven hundred oxen and seven thousand sheep.

12 And they <sup>7</sup> entered into a covenant to seek the LORD God of their fathers with all their heart and with all their soul;

13 <sup>8</sup> That whosoever would not seek the LORD God of Israel <sup>9</sup> should be put to death, whether small or great, whether man or woman.

14 And they sware unto the LORD with a loud to this and the following verse in Mat. xxiv. 6, 7, 9, 13?

Verse 8. Renewed the altar] Dedicated it afresh, or perhaps enlarged it, that more sacrifices might be offered on it than ever before; for it cannot be supposed that this altar had no victims offered on it till the fifteenth year of the reign of Asa, who had previously been so zealous in restoring the divine worship.

Verse 9. And the strangers] Many out of the different tribes, particularly out of Simeon, Ephraim, and Manasseh, having reflected that the divine blessing was promised to the house of David, and finding the government of Jeroboam founded in idolatry, would naturally, through a spirit of piety, leave their own country, and go where they might enjoy the worship of the true God.

Verse 10. The third month] At the feast of pentecost which was held on the third month.

Verse 11. The spoil which they had brought] The spoil which they had taken from Zerah and his auxiliaries, chap. xiv. 14, 15.

voice, and with shouting, and with trumpets, and with cornets.

15 And all Judah rejoiced at the oath: for they had sworn with all their heart, and sought him with their whole desire; and he was found of them: and the LORD gave them rest round about.

16 And also concerning <sup>b</sup>Maachah the <sup>c</sup>mother of Asa the king, he removed her from being queen, because she had made an <sup>d</sup>idol in a grove: and consisted of two parts: 1. We will seek the God of our fathers with all our heart, and with all our soul. 2. Whosoever, great or small, man or woman, will not worship the true God, and serve him alone, shall be put to death. Thus no toleration was given to idolatry, so that it must be rooted out: and that this covenant might be properly binding, they confirmed it with an oath; and God accepted them and their services.

Verse 16. Concerning Maachah] See this matter fully explained in the note on 1 Kings xv. 13.

The Jews imagine that Maachah repented, and her name became changed into Michaiah, daughter of Uriel of Gibeah; and that this was done that there might be no mention of her former name, lest it should be a reproach to her.

Verse 17. The high places were not taken away] He had totally suppressed or destroyed the idolatry; but some of Asa cut down her idol, and stamped it, and burnt it at the brook Kidron.

17 But the high places were not taken away out of Israel: nevertheless the heart of Asa was perfect all his days.

18 And he brought into the house of God the things that his father had dedicated, and that he himself had dedicated, silver, and gold, and vessels.

19 And there was no more war unto the five and thirtieth year of the reign of Asa.

the places, buildings, or altars, he permitted to remain.

Verse 18. The things that his father had dedicated] As it was a custom to dedicate a part of the spoils taken from an enemy to the service and honour of God, it is natural to suppose that Abijah, having so signally overthrown Jeroboam (chap. xiii. 15-19), had dedicated a part of the spoils to the Lord; but they had not been brought into the temple till this time.

Silver, and gold, and vessels] The word which we translate vessels, signifies instruments, utensils, ornaments, &c.

Verse 19. The five and thirtieth year of the reign of Asa] To settle in every respect these chronologies is a most difficult undertaking; and the difficulty does not belong to the sacred books alone, all other chronological tables of all the nations in the world, are in the same predicament. Probably we should read here the five and twentieth year.

CHAPTER XVI.

Baasha, king of Israel, begins to build Ramah, to prevent his subjects from having any intercourse with the Jews, 1. Asa hires Ben-hadad king of Syrians against him; and obliges him to leave off building Ramah, 2-5. Asa and his men carry the stones and timbers of Ramah away, and build therewith Geba and Mizpah, 6. Asa is reproved by Hunani, the seer, for his union with the king of Syria; he is offended with the seer, and puts him in prison, 7-10. Of his acts, 11. He is diseased in his feet, and seeks to physicians and not to God, and dies, 12, 13. His sumptuous funeral, 14.

IN the six and thirtieth year of the reign of Asa <sup>b</sup>Baasha king of Israel came up against Judah, and built Ramah, <sup>c</sup>to the intent that he might let none go out or come in to Asa king of Judah.

2 Then Asa brought out silver and gold out of the treasures of the house of the LORD and of the king's house, and sent to Ben-hadad king of Syria, that dwelt at <sup>d</sup>Damascus, saying,

3 There is a league between me and thee, as there was between my father and thy father: behold, I have sent thee silver and gold; go, break thy league with Baasha king of Israel, that he may depart from me.

4 And Ben-hadad hearkened unto king Asa, and sent the captains of his armies against the cities of Israel; and they smote Ijon, and Dan, and Abel-maim, and all the store cities of Naphtali.

5 And it came to pass, when Baasha heard it,

Verse 3. There is a league] Let there be a treaty offensive and defensive, between me and thee: see on 1 Kings xv. 19.

Verse 6. Took all Judah] See on 1 Kings xv. 22.

Verse 7. Escaped out of thine hand.] It is difficult to know that he left off building of Ramah, and let his work cease.

6 Then Asa the king took all Judah; and they carried away the stones of Ramah, and the timber thereof, wherewith Baasha was building; and he built therewith Geba and Mizpah.

7 And at that time Hanani the seer came to Asa king of Judah, and said unto him, Because thou hast relied on the king of Syria, and not relied on the LORD thy God, therefore is the host of the king of Syria escaped out of thine hand.

8 Were not <sup>a</sup>the Ethiopians and <sup>b</sup>the Lubims <sup>c</sup>a huge host, with very many chariots and horsemen? yet, because thou didst rely on the LORD, he delivered them into thine hand.

9 For the eyes of the LORD run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to shew himself strong in the behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward him. Herein <sup>d</sup>thou hast done foolishly:

what is here intended. Perhaps the divine providence had intended to give Asa a grand victory over the Syrians, who had always been the inveterate enemies of the Jews; but by this unnecessary and very improper alliance between Asa and Ben-hadad, this purpose of the divine providence was prevented, and thus the Syrians escaped out of their hands.

Verse 9. Therefore—thou shalt have wars.] And so he had with Israel during the rest of his reign, 1 Kings xv. 32.

therefore from henceforth 'thou shalt have wars.

10 Then Asa was wroth with the seer, and put him in a prison house; for he was in a rage with him because of this thing. And Asa oppressed some of the people the same time.

11 And, behold, the acts of Asa, first and last, lo, they are written in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel.

12 And Asa in the thirty and ninth year of his reign was diseased in his feet, until his disease was Verse 10. Asa was wroth with the seer] Instead of humbling himself, and deprecating the displeasure of the Lord, he persecuted his messenger: and having thus laid his impious hand upon the prophet, he appears to have got his heart hardened through the deceitfulness of sin; and then he began to oppress the people, either by unjust imprisonments, or excessive taxations.

Verse 12. Diseased in his feet] He had a strong and long fit of the gout; this is most likely.

He sought not to the Lord] Are we not taught by this to make prayer and supplication to the Lord in our afflictions, exceeding great: yet in his disease he sought not to the LORD, but to the physicians.

13 And Asa slept with his fathers, and died in the one and fortieth year of his reign.

14 And they buried him in his own sepulchres, which he had made for himself in the city of David, and laid him in the bed which was filled with sweet odours and divers kinds of spices prepared by the apothecaries' art: and they made a very great burning for him.

with the expectation that he will heal us when he finds us duly humbled, i.e., when the end is answered for which he sends the affliction?

Verse 14. And laid him in the bed] It is very likely that the body of Asa was burnt; that the bed spoken of here was a funeral pyre, on which much spices and odoriferous woods had been placed: and then they set fire to the whole, and consumed the body with the aromatics. Some think the body was not burned, but the aromatics only, in honour of the king.

CHAPTER XVII.

Jehoshaphat succeeds his father Asa, and reigns piously, and is particularly blessed, 1-6. He establishes an itinerant ministry, for the instruction of the people, through all the cities of Judah, which produces the most beneficial effects, 7-10. The Philistines and Arabians bring him gifts, 11. His greatness, 12-13. The commanders of his troops, 14-19.

AND Jehoshaphat his son reigned in his stead, and strengthened himself against Israel.

2 And he placed forces in all the fenced cities of Judah, and set garrisons in the land of Judah, and in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa his father had taken.

3 And the LORD was with Jehoshaphat, because he walked in the first ways of his father David, and sought not unto Baalim;

4 But sought to the LORD God of his father, and walked in his commandments, and not after the doings of Israel.

5 Therefore the LORD established the kingdom in his hand; and all Judah brought to Jehoshaphat presents; and he had riches and honour in abundance.

Verse 1. Jehoshaphat—and strengthened himself against Israel] The kingdoms of Israel and Judah were rivals from the beginning: sometimes one, sometimes the other, vailed. Asa and Baasha were nearly matched; but Baasha's death Israel was greatly weakened by civil contentions, and Jehoshaphat got the ascendancy.

Verse 2. The cities of Ephraim] This conquest from the kingdom of Israel is referred to, chap. xv. 8; but when it was made we do not know.

Verses 7-9. In these verses we find a remarkable account of an itinerant ministry established by Jehoshaphat; and in this work he employed three classes of men: 1. The princes. 2. The Levites. 3. The priests. We may presume that the princes instructed the people in the nature of the civil law and constitution of the kingdom; the Levites instructed them in every thing that appertained to the 7 Also in the third year of his reign he sent to his princes, even to Ben-hail, and to Obadiah, and to Zechariah, and to Nethaneel, and to Michaiiah, to teach in the cities of Judah.

8 And with them he sent Levites, even Shemaiah, and Nethaniah, and Zebadiah, and Asabel, and Shemiramoth, and Jehonathan, and Adonijah, and Tobijah, and Tob-adonijah, Levites; and with them Elishama and Jehoram, priests.

9 And they taught in Judah, and had the book of the law of the LORD with them, and went about throughout all the cities of Judah, and taught the people.

temple service, and ritual law; and the priests instructed them in the nature and design of the religion they professed.

Verse 9. Had the book of the law of the LORD with them] This was their text book: it was the book of God; they taught it as such, and as such the people received it. Its laws were God's laws, and the people felt their obligation, and their consciences were bound. Thus they were obedient to the laws of the land, on the principle of religion. In this they were encouraged and confirmed by the example of all, both in church and state. The princes were not only pious, but were teachers of piety; the Levites showed them the worth and excellence of their ritual institutions; and the priests showed them the moral use they were to make of the whole: and thus the people became obedient to God as well as to the king, and kept all the civil ordinances, not merely for the sake of a good king, but for the sake of a good and 11 Also some of the Philistines * brought Jehoshaphat presents, and tribute silver : and the Arabians brought him flocks seven thousand and seven hundred rams, and seven thousand and seven hundred he-goats.

12 And Jehoshaphat waxed great exceedingly ; and he built in Judah <sup>b</sup> castles and cities of store.

13 And he had much business in the cities of Judah : and the men of war, mighty men of valour, were in Jerusalem.

gracious God. By these means the nations enjoyed peace and prosperity ; and all insurrections, seditions, and popular commotions, were prevented. The surrounding nations, perceiving this, saw that there was no hope of subduing such a people ; so they made no war with Jehoshaphat, ver. 10. And they took care not to provoke such a people to fall on them ; therefore, it is said, The fear of the Lord fell on all the kingdoms and lands that were round about Judah.

Verse 11. The Philistines brought—presents] They and the Arabians purchased peace with the king of Judah by paying an annual tribute. The Philistines brought silver, and no doubt different kinds of merchandize. The Arabs, whose riches consisted in cattle, brought him flocks in great abundance, principally rams and he-goats.

There is not a sovereign in Europe or in the world but might read this chapter with advantage. 1. It shows most forcibly that true religion is the basis of the state, and that, wherever it prospers, there the state prospers. 2. It shows also that it is the wisdom of kings to encourage religion with all their power and influence ; for if the hearts of the subjects be not bound and influenced by true religion, vain is the application of laws, fines, imprisonments, or corporal punishment of any kind. 3. A religious nation is ever a great nation ; it is loved by its friends, it is dreaded by its enemies. 4. It is ever a peaceable and united nation : the blessings of religion, and a wholesome and paternal government, are so fully felt and prized, that all find it their interest to preserve and defend them. Harmony, peace, piety, and strength, are the stability of such times.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Jehoshaphat joins affinity with Ahab, king of Israel, 1, 2 ; who invites him to assist in the war with the Syrians, to which Jehoshaphat agrees, 3. They consult the prophets concerning the success of the war ; and all, except Micaiah, premise Ahab victory, 4-17. Micaiah relates his vision concerning the lying spirit in the mouth of Ahab's prophets, 18-22. Zedekiah, a false prophet, opposes Micaiah ; and Micaiah is put in prison, 13-27. Both the kings go against the Syrians ; the confederate armies are defeated, and the king of Israel slain, 28-31.

NOW Jehoshaphat * had riches and honour in abundance, and <sup>b</sup> joined affinity with Ahab.

2 * And <sup>a</sup> after certain years he went down to Ahab to Samaria. And Ahab killed sheep and oxen for him in abundance, and for the people that he had with him, and persuaded him to go up with him to Ramoth-gilead.

3 And Ahab king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat king of Judah, Wilt thou go with me to Ramoth-gilead ? And he answered him, I am as thou art, and my people as thy people ; and we will be with thee in war.

4 And Jehoshaphat said unto the king of Israel, * Inquire, I pray thee, at the word of the LORD to day.

5 Therefore the king of Israel gathered together of prophets four hundred men, and said unto them, Shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I forbear ? And they said, Go up ; for God will deliver it into the king's hand.

6 But Jehoshaphat said, Is there not here a prophet of the LORD <sup>b</sup> besides, that we might inquire of him ?

7 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, There is yet one man, by whom ye may inquire of the LORD : but I hate him ; for he never prophesied good unto me, but always evil : the same is Micaiah, the son of Imla. And Jehoshaphat said, Let not the king say so.

8 And the king of Israel called for one of his <sup>c</sup> officers, and said, <sup>b</sup> Fetch quickly Micaiah the son of Imla.

Verse 8. To Ramoth-gilead] This place belonged to the Israelites, and was now held by the king of Syria.

The whole of this chapter is circumstantially explained in the note on 1 Kings xxii.

Judah sat either of them on his throne, clothed in their robes, and they sat in a void place at the entering in of the gate of Samaria, and all the prophets prophesied before them.

10 And Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah had made him horns of iron, and said, Thus saith the LORD, With these thou shalt push Syria until they be consumed.

11 And all the prophets prophesied so, saying, Go up to Ramoth-gilead, and prosper: for the LORD shall deliver it into the hand of the king.

12 And the messenger that went to call Micaiah spake to him, saying, Behold, the words of the prophets declare good to the king with one assent; let thy word therefore, I pray, thee, be like one of theirs, and speak thou good.

13 And Micaiah said, As the LORD liveth, even what my God saith, that will I speak.

14 And when he was come to the king, the king said unto him, Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I forbear? And he said, Go ye up, and prosper, and they shall be delivered into your hand.

15 And the king said to him, How many times shall I adjure thee that thou say nothing but the truth to me in the name of the LORD?

16 Then he said, I did see all Israel scattered upon the mountains, as sheep that have no shepherd: and the LORD said, These have no master; let them return therefore every man to his house in peace.

17 And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, Did I not tell thee that he would not prophesy good unto me, but evil?

18 Again he said, Therefore hear the word of the LORD: I saw the LORD sitting upon his throne, and all the host of heaven standing on his right hand and on his left.

19 And the LORD said, Who shall entice Ahab king of Israel, that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead? And one spake saying after this manner, and another saying after that manner.

20 Then there came out a spirit, and stood before the LORD, and said, I will entice him. And the LORD said unto him, Wherewith?

21 And he said, I will go out, and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. And the LORD said, Thou shalt entice him, and thou shalt also prevail: go out, and do even so.

22 Now therefore, behold, the LORD hath put a lying spirit in the mouth of these thy prophets, and the LORD hath spoken evil against thee.

23 Then Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah came near, and smote Micaiah upon the cheek, and said, Which way went the Spirit of the LORD from me to speak unto thee?

24 And Micaiah said, Behold, thou shalt see on that day when thou shalt go into an inner chamber to hide thyself.

25 Then the king of Israel said, Take ye Micaiah, and carry him back to Amon the governor of the city, and to Joash the king's son;

26 And say, Thus saith the king, Put this fellow in the prison, and feed him with bread of affliction, and with water of affliction, until I return in peace.

27 And Micaiah said, If thou certainly return in peace, then hath not the LORD spoken by me. And he said, Harken, all ye people.

28 So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah went up to Ramoth-gilead.

29 And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, I will disguise myself, and will go to the battle: but put thou on thy robes. So the king of Israel disguised himself; and they went to the battle.

30 Now the king of Syria had commanded the captains of the chariots that were with him, saying, Fight ye not with small or great, save only with the king of Israel.

31 And it came to pass, when the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, that they said, It is the king of Israel. Therefore they compassed about him to fight: but Jehoshaphat cried out, and the LORD helped him; and God moved them to depart from him.

32 For it came to pass, that, when the captains of the chariots perceived that it was not the king of Israel, they turned back again from pursuing him.

33 And a certain man drew a bow at a venture, and smote the king of Israel between the joints of the harness: therefore he said to his chariot man, Turn thine hand, that thou mayest carry me out of the host; for I am wounded.

34 And the battle increased that day: howbeit the king of Israel stayed himself up in his chariot against the Syrians until the even: and about the time of the sun going down he died.

immediately give way, and the battle would not only be lost but the slaughter would be great in the pursuit; therefore he stayed himself up till the evening, when the termination of the day must necessarily bring the battle to a close; and when this was done, the Israelites found that their king was slain, and so they left the field of battle to their foes. Thus Israel had a great loss, and the Syrians had got a great deliverance. Had it not been for this accident, the Syrians had probably been defeated. See on 1 Kings xxii. 36.

CHAPTER XIX.

Jehoshaphat, on his return from Ramoth-gilead, is met by the prophet Jehu, and reproved, 1-5. He makes a further reformation in the land, establishing courts of justice, and giving solemn and pertinent directions to the judges, Levites, &c., to do judgment and justice among the people, in the fear of God, 4-11.

AND Jehoshaphat the king of Judah returned to his house in peace to Jerusalem.

2 And Jehu the son of Hanani <sup>a</sup>the seer went out to meet him, and said to king Jehoshaphat, Shouldest thou help the ungodly, and <sup>b</sup>love them that hate the LORD? therefore is <sup>c</sup>wrath upon thee from before the LORD.

3 Nevertheless there are <sup>d</sup>good things found in thee, in that thou hast taken away the groves out of the land, and hast <sup>e</sup>prepared thine heart to seek God.

4 And Jehoshaphat dwelt at Jerusalem: and <sup>f</sup>he went out again through the people from Beer-sheba to Mount Ephraim, and brought them back unto the LORD God of their fathers.

5 And he set judges in the land throughout all the fenced cities of Judah, city by city,

6 And said to the judges, Take heed what ye do: for <sup>g</sup>ye judge not for man, but for the LORD, <sup>h</sup>who is with you <sup>i</sup>in the judgment.

7 Wherefore now let the fear of the LORD be upon you; take heed and do it: for <sup>j</sup>there is no iniquity with the LORD our God, nor <sup>k</sup>respect of persons, nor taking of gifts.

8 Moreover in Jerusalem did Jehoshaphat <sup>l</sup>set of the Levites, and of the priests, and of the chief of the fathers of Israel, for the judgment of the LORD and for controversies, when they returned to Jerusalem.

9 And he charged them, saying, Thus shall ye do <sup>m</sup>in the fear of the LORD, faithfully, and with a perfect heart.

10 <sup>n</sup>And what cause soever shall come to you of your brethren that dwell in their cities, between blood and blood, between law and commandment, statutes and judgments, ye shall even warn them that they trespass not against the LORD, and so <sup>o</sup>wrath come upon <sup>p</sup>you, and upon your brethren: this do, and ye shall not trespass.

11 And, behold, Amariah the chief priest <sup>q</sup>is over you <sup>r</sup>in all matters of the LORD; and Zebadiah the son of Ishmael, the ruler of the house of Judah, for all the king's matters: also the Levites <sup>s</sup>shall be officers before you. <sup>t</sup>Deal courageously, and the LORD shall be <sup>u</sup>with the good.

Verse 1. Returned to his house in peace] That is, in safety, notwithstanding he had been exposed to a danger so imminent, and from which only the especial mercy of God could have saved him.

Verse 2. Jehu the son of Hanani] We have met with this prophet before; see the note on 1 Kings xvi. 7.

Therefore is wrath upon thee] That is, Thou deservest to be punished. And who can doubt this, who knows that he did help the ungodly, and did love them that hated Jehovah? And is not the wrath of God upon all those alliances which his people form with the ungodly, whether they be social, matrimonial, commercial, or political?

Verse 4. From Beer-sheba to Mount Ephraim] Before the separation of the ten tribes, in speaking of the extent of the land it was said, From Dan to Beer-sheba; but since that event, the kingdom of Judah was bounded on the south by Beer-sheba, and on the north by the mountains of Ephraim. This shows that Jehoshaphat had gone through all his territories to examine every thing himself, to see that judgment and justice were properly administered among the people.

Verse 6. Take heed what ye do] A very solemn and very necessary caution; judges should feel themselves in the place of God, and judge as those who know they shall be judged for their judgments.

Verse 8. And for controversies, when they returned to Jerusalem] Who were they that returned to Jerusalem? Some suppose that it means Jehoshaphat and his courtiers, who returned to Jerusalem after the expedition mentioned ver. 4: but if this were so, or if the text spoke of any person returning to Jerusalem, would not Ierushalem, to Jerusalem, and not the simple word Yerushalem, without the preposition, be used?

Learned men have supposed with great plausibility that the word vaiyashubu, "and they returned," should be written yoshubei, "the inhabitants," and that the words should be read, And for the controversies of the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

There is a clause in chap xxxiv. 9 where we have a similar mistake in our Version.

Verse 10. Between blood and blood] Cases of manslaughter or accidental murder, or cases of consanguinity, the settlement of inheritance, family claim, &c.

Between law and commandment] Whatsoever concerns the moral precepts, rites, and ceremonies, of the law, or whatsoever belongs to civil affairs.

Verse 11. Behold, Amariah] Here was a twofold jurisdiction, ecclesiastical and civil: in the ecclesiastical court, Amariah the high-priest was supreme judge: in the civil court, Zebadiah was supreme. To assist both, the Levites were a sort of counsellors.

Without good and wholesome laws, no nation can be prosperous; and vain are the best laws if they be not judiciously and conscientiously administered. The things of God and the things of the KING should never be confounded in the administration of justice. Amariah the priest, and Zebadiah the ruler, should ever have their distinct places of jurisdiction.

II. CHRONICLES.

CHAPTER XX.

The Moabites, Ammonites, and Edomites invade Judah, 1, 2. Jehoshaphat proclaims a fast, and gathers the people together to seek the Lord, 3, 4. His prayer to God, 5-12. Great and small, male and female, seek the Lord, 13. Jahaziel predicts the downfall of their enemies, 14-17. The king, the Levites, and the people, take courage; praise and magnify God; and go forth to meet their enemies, 18-21. The enemies are confounded, and destroy each other, 22-24. The men of Judah take the spoil, praise the Lord, and return with joy to Jerusalem, 25-28. The fear of the Lord falls upon all their enemies round about; and the land has rest, 29, 30. Transactions and character of Jehoshaphat, 31-34. He joins with Ahaziah, king of Israel, in building a fleet of ships to go to Tarshish, but they are wrecked at Ezion geber, 35-37.

IT came to pass after this also, that the children of Moab, and the children of Ammon, and with them other beside the Ammonites, came against Jehoshaphat to battle.

2 Then there came some that told Jehoshaphat, saying, There cometh a great multitude against thee from beyond the sea on this side Syria; and, behold, they be <sup>a</sup> in Hazazon-tamar, which is <sup>b</sup> En-gedi.

3 And Jehoshaphat feared, and set <sup>c</sup> himself to <sup>d</sup> seek the LORD, and proclaimed a fast throughout all Judah.

4 And Judah gathered themselves together, to ask help of the LORD: even out of all the cities of Judah they came to seek the LORD.

5 And Jehoshaphat stood in the congregation of Judah and Jerusalem, in the house of the LORD, before the new court.

6 And said, O LORD God of our fathers, art not thou <sup>e</sup> God in heaven? and <sup>f</sup> rulest not thou over all the kingdoms of the heathen? and <sup>g</sup> in thine hand is there not power and might, so that none is able to withstand thee?

7 Art not thou <sup>h</sup> our God, <sup>i</sup> who <sup>j</sup> didst drive out the inhabitants of this land before thy people Israel, and gavest it to the seed of Abraham <sup>k</sup> thy friend for ever?

8 And they dwelt therein, and have built thee a sanctuary therein for thy name, saying,

9 <sup>l</sup> If, when evil cometh upon us, as the sword, judgment, or pestilence, or famine, we stand before this house, and in thy presence, (for thy <sup>m</sup> name is in this house), and cry unto thee in our affliction, then <sup>n</sup> thou wilt hear and help.

10 And now, behold, the children of Ammon and Moab and Mount Seir, whom thou <sup>o</sup> wouldest not let Israel invade, when they came out of the land of Egypt, but <sup>p</sup> they turned from them, and destroyed them not;

11 Behold, I say, how they reward us. <sup>q</sup> to come to cast us out of thy possession, which thou hast given us to inherit.

12 O our God, wilt thou not <sup>r</sup> judge them? for we have no might against this great company that cometh against us; neither know we what to do: but <sup>s</sup> our eyes are upon thee.

13 And all Judah stood before the LORD with their little ones, their wives, and their children.

14 Then upon Jahaziel the son of Zechariah, the son of Benaiah, the son of Jieiel, the son of Mattaniah, a Levite of the sons of Asaph, <sup>t</sup> came the Spirit of the LORD in the midst of the congregation;

15 And he said, Hearken ye, all Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and thou king Jehoshaphat, Thus saith the LORD unto you, <sup>u</sup> Be not afraid nor dismayed by reason of this great multitude: for the battle is not yours, but God's.

16 To-morrow go ye down against them: behold, they come up by the <sup>v</sup> cliff of Ziz; and ye shall find them at the end of the <sup>w</sup> brook, before the wilderness of Jeruel.

17 <sup>x</sup> Ye shall not need to fight in this battle: set yourselves, stand ye still, and see the salvation of the LORD with you, O Judah and Jerusalem: fear not, nor be dismayed; to-morrow go out against them: <sup>y</sup> for the LORD will be with you.

18 And Jehoshaphat <sup>z</sup> bowed his head with his face to the ground: and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem fell before the LORD worshipping the LORD.

19 And the Levites, of the children of the Kohathites, and of the children of the Korhites, stood up to praise the LORD God of Israel with a loud voice on high.

20 And they rose early in the morning, and went forth into the wilderness of Tekoa: and as they went forth, Jehoshaphat stood and said, Hear me, O Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem <sup>aa</sup> Believe Verse 1. Children of Ammon, and with them other beside the Ammonites] Here there must be a mistake; surely the Ammonites are the same as the children of Ammon. Our translators have falsified the text by inserting the words "other beside," which have nothing properly to represent them in the Hebrew. The Septuagint have given it another turn: And with them people of the Minaites; which were a people of Arabia Felix near the Red Sea. The Targum has "And with them some of the Edomites." This is very likely to be the true reading, as we find from ver. 10, 22, 23, that they procured men from Mount Seir; and these were the Idumeans or Edomites.

Verse 2. On this side Syria] Instead of mearam, from Syria, I would read meedrom from Edom, which alteration brings it to truth, and does not require the change of half a letter. We do not read of any Syrians in this invasion, but we know there were Edomites, or inhabitants of Mount Seir.

Verse 3. Jehoshaphat feared] He found that he could not possibly stand against such a numerous army, and therefore could not expect to be delivered except by the strong arm of God. To get this assistance, it was necessary to seek it; and to get such extraordinary help, they should seek it in an extraordinary way; hence he proclaimed a universal fast, and all the people came up to Jerusalem to seek the Lord.

Verse 5. Jehoshaphat stood] What an instructive sight was this! The king who proclaimed the fast was foremost to observe it, and was on this occasion the priest of the people; offering in the congregation, without form or any premeditation, one of the most sensible, pious, correct, and as to its composition one of the most elegant, prayers ever offered under the Old Testament dispensation.

Verse 9. For thy name is in this house] "Thy Majesty is in this house."

Verse 12. Wilt thou not judge them] That is, Thou wilt inflict deserved punishment upon them.

Verse 15. For the battle is not yours, but God's.] God in the LORD your God, so shall ye be established; believe his prophets, so shall ye prosper.

21 And when he had consulted with the people, he appointed singers unto the LORD, <sup>a</sup>and <sup>b</sup>that should praise the beauty of holiness, as they went out before the army, and to say, <sup>c</sup>Praise the LORD; <sup>d</sup>for his mercy endureth for ever.

22 <sup>a</sup>And when they began <sup>1</sup>to sing and to praise, <sup>e</sup>the LORD set ambushments against the children of Ammon, Moab, and Mount Seir, which were come against Judah; and <sup>b</sup>they were smitten.

23 For the children of Ammon and Moab stood up against the inhabitants of Mount Seir, utterly to slay and destroy them: and when they had made an end of the inhabitants of Seir, every one helped <sup>1</sup>to destroy another.

24 And when Judah came toward the watch-tower in the wilderness, they looked unto the multitude, and, behold, they were dead bodies fallen to the earth, and <sup>1</sup>none escaped.

25 And when Jehoshaphat and his people came to take away the spoil of them, they found among them in abundance both riches with the dead bodies, and precious jewels, which they stripped off for themselves, more than they could carry away: and they were three days in gathering of the spoil, it was so much.

26 And on the fourth day they assembled themselves in the valley of <sup>a</sup>Berachah; for there they blessed the LORD: therefore the name of the same place was called, The valley of Berachah, unto this day.

27 Then they returned, every man of Judah and Jerusalem, and Jehoshaphat in the <sup>1</sup>forefront of them, to go again to Jerusalem with joy; for the LORD had <sup>a</sup>made them rejoice over their enemies.

28 And they came to Jerusalem with psalteries and harps and trumpets unto the house of the LORD.

29 And <sup>a</sup>the fear of God was on all the kingdoms of those countries, when they had heard that the LORD fought against the enemies of Israel.

30 So the realm of Jehoshaphat was quiet: for his <sup>a</sup>God gave him rest round about.

31 <sup>a</sup>And Jehoshaphat reigned over Judah: he was thirty and five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty and five years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Azubah the daughter of Shilhi.

32 And he walked in the way of Asa his father, and departed not from it, doing that which was right in the sight of the LORD.

33 Howbeit <sup>a</sup>the high places were not taken away: for as yet the people had not <sup>a</sup>prepared their hearts unto the God of their fathers.

34 Now the rest of the acts of Jehoshaphat, first and last, behold, they are written in the <sup>a</sup>book of Jehu the son of Hanani, <sup>a</sup>who <sup>a</sup>is mentioned in the book of the kings of Israel.

35 And after this <sup>a</sup>did Jehoshaphat king of Judah join himself with Ahaziah king of Israel, who did very wickedly:

36 <sup>a</sup>And he joined himself with him to make ships to go to Tarshish: and they made the ships in Ezion-gaber.

37 Then Eliczer the son of Dodavah of Mareshah prophesied against Jehoshaphat, saying, Because thou hast joined thyself with Ahaziah, the LORD hath broken thy works, <sup>a</sup>And the ships were broken, that they were not able to go <sup>a</sup>to Tarshish.

will not employ you in the discomfiture of this great host; he himself will take the matter in hand, deliver you, and destroy them.

Verse 25. Both riches with the dead bodies] For pegarim, dead bodies, beyadin, garments, is the reading of the eight MSS. in the collections of Kennicott and De Rossi, and in several ancient editions. None of the Versions have dead bodies except the Chaldee. I believe garments to be the true reading; and as to the clause which they stripped off for themselves, it should be understood thus: Which they seized for themselves, &c.

Verse 27. Jehoshaphat in the forefront of them] He was their leader in all these spiritual, holy, fatiguing, and self-denying exercises. What a noble and persuasive pattern!

Verse 33. The high places were not taken away] The idolatry, as we have seen, was universally suppressed; but some of the places where that worship had been performed were not destroyed. Some of them still remained; and these, to such a fickle people, became the means of idolatry in reigns less propitious to truth and religion.

Verse 34. In the book of Jehu] This is totally lost, though it is evident that it was in being when the Books of Chronicles were written.

Verse 37. The Lord hath broken, &c.] Concerning Tarshish, Ezion-geber, and Ophir, and the voyage thither, see the notes on 1 Kings x. 22. The Tarshish here is called by the Chaldee Torsos in the great sea, some place in the Mediterranean.

CHAPTER XXI.

Jehoram succeeds his father Jehoshaphat; and commences his reign with the murder of his brethren, and of several of the princes of Israel, 1-5. He walks in the way of Ahab, whose bad daughter, Athaliah, he had married, 6. God remembers his covenant with David, and does not destroy the nation, 7. The Edomites revolt, 8-10. Jehoram restores the high places in the mountains of Judah, and greatly corrupts the morals of the people, 11. A letter comes to him from Elijah, 12-15. The Philistines and the Arabians come up against him, pillage his house, and take away all his wives, with his sons except Jehoahaz, 16, 17. He is smitten with an incurable disease in his bowels; of which, in two years, he dies miserable, after a profligate reign of eight years, 18-20.

NOW <sup>a</sup>Jehoshaphat slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. And Jehoram his son <sup>b</sup>reigned in his stead.

2 And he had brethren the sons of Jehoshaphat, Azariah, and Jehiel, and Zechariah, and Azariah, and Michael, and Shephatiah: all these were the sons of Jehoshaphat king of Israel.

3 And their father gave them great gifts of silver, and of gold, and of precious things, with fenced cities in Judah. but the kingdom gave he to <sup>c</sup>Jehoram; because he was the first-born.

4 Now when Jehoram was risen up to the kingdom of his father, he strengthened himself, and slew all his brethren with the sword, and <sup>d</sup>divers also of the princes of Israel.

5 <sup>e</sup>Jehoram was thirty and two years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem.

6 And he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, like as did the house of Ahab: for he had the daughter of <sup>f</sup>Ahab to wife; and he wrought that which was evil in the eyes of the LORD.

7 Howbeit the LORD would not destroy the house of David, because of the covenant that he had made with David, and as he promised to give a <sup>g</sup>light to him and to his <sup>h</sup>sons for ever.

8 <sup>i</sup>In his days the Edomites revolted from under the <sup>j</sup>dominion of Judah, and made themselves a king.

9 Then Jehoram went forth with his princes, and all his chariots with him: and he rose up by night, and smote the Edomites which compassed him in, and the captains of the chariots.

10 So the Edomites revolted from under the hand of Judah unto this day. The same time <sup>k</sup>also did Libnah revolt from under his hand; because he had forsaken the LORD God of his fathers.

11 Moreover he made high places in the mountains of Judah, and caused the inhabitants of Jerusalem to <sup>l</sup>commit fornication, and compelled Judah <sup>m</sup>thereto.

12 And there came a <sup>n</sup>writing to him from Elijah the prophet, saying, Thus saith the LORD God of David thy father, Because thou hast not walked in the ways of Jehoshaphat thy father, nor in the ways of Asa king of Judah,

13 But hast walked in the way of the kings of Israel, and hast <sup>o</sup>made Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to <sup>p</sup>go a whoring, like to the <sup>q</sup>whoredoms of the house of Ahab, and also hast <sup>r</sup>slain thy brethren of thy father's house, which were better than thyself:

14 Behold, with <sup>s</sup>a great plague will the LORD smite thy people and thy children, and thy wives, and all thy goods:

15 And thou shalt have great sickness by <sup>t</sup>a disease of thy bowels, until thy bowels fall out by reason of the sickness day by day.

16 Moreover the LORD <sup>u</sup>stirred up against Jehoram the spirit of the Philistines, and of the Arabians, that were near the Ethiopians.

17 And they came up into Judah, and brake into it, and <sup>v</sup>carried away all the substance that was found in the king's house, and <sup>w</sup>his sons also, and his wives; so that there was never a son left him, save <sup>x</sup>Jehoahaz, the youngest of his sons.

18 <sup>y</sup>And after all this the LORD smote him <sup>z</sup>in his bowels with an incurable disease.

19 And it came to pass, that in process of time,

Verse 2. And he had brethren—sons of Jehoshaphat, king of Israel. Jehoshaphat certainly was not king of Israel, but king of Judah. Yisrael must be a corruption in the text, for Yehudah; which is the reading of the Syriac, Arabic, Septuagint, and Vulgate: the Chaldee, only agrees with the Hebrew text.

Verse 2. The kingdom gave he to Jehoram He made him co-partner with himself in the kingdom about three years before his death; so that he reigned only five years after the death of his father Jehoshaphat.

Verse 4. Slew all his brethren What a truly diabolic thing is the lust of power! it destroys all the charities of life, and renders those that are under its influence the truest resemblants of the arch fiend. That he might sit the more secure upon his throne, this execrable man imbrues his hands in the blood of his own brethren!

Verse 6. He had the daughter of Ahab to wife This was Athaliah, daughter of Ahab and Jezebel, who was famous for her impieties and cruelty, as was her most profligate mother. It is likely that she was the principal cause of Jehoram's cruelty and profaneness.

Verse 7. To give a light to him To give him a descendant.

Verse 8. In his days the Edomites revolted See on 2 Kings viii. 21.

Verse 11. To commit fornication That is, to serve idols. The Israelites were considered as joined to Jehovah as a woman is joined to her husband: when she associates with other men, this is adultery; when they serve other gods, this was called by the same name, it was adultery against Jehovah. This is frequently the only meaning of the terms adultery and fornication in the scriptures.

Verse 12. There came a writing to him from Elijah the prophet From 2 Kings ii. 11, it is evident that Elijah had been translated in the reign of Jehoshaphat, the father of xxiv. 15. Jehoram. How then could he send a letter to the son? Some say he sent it from heaven by an angel; others, that by the spirit of prophecy he foresaw this defection of Jehoram, and left the letter with Elisha, to be sent to him when this defection should take place; others say that Elijah is put here for Elisha; and others, that this Elijah was not the same as translated, but another prophet of the same name. There are others who think that, as Elisha was still in the body, for he did not die, but was translated, he sent this letter from that secret place in which he was hidden by the Almighty. All the Versions have Elisha, and all the MSS. the same reading. Our margin says, the letter was written before his assumption, and refers to 2 Kings ii. 1.

These are all conjectures; and I could add another to their number, but still we should be where we were. I should adopt the conjecture relative to Elisha, were not every Hebrew MS., and all the Oriental Versions, against it; to which may be added, that the author of this book does not once mention Elisha in any part of his work. It is certainly a possible case that this writing might have been a prediction of Jehoram's impiety and miserable death, delivered in the time of the prophet, and which was now laid before this wicked king for the first time: and by it the prophet though not among mortals, still continued to speak.

Verse 15. Until thy bowels fall out This must have been occasioned by a violent inflammation: by the same death perished Antiochus Epiphanes, and Herod Agrippa.

Verse 16. The Philistines and—the Arabians We have no other account of this war. Though it was a predatory war, yet it appears to have been completely ruinous and destructive. What a general curse fell upon this bad king; in his body, soul, substance, family, and government!

Verse 17. Save Jehoahaz the youngest This person had after the end of two years, his bowels fell out by reason of his sickness: so he died of sore diseases. And his people made no burning for him, like <sup>a</sup> the burning of his fathers.

at least three names, Jehoahaz, Ahaziah, (chap. xxii. 1), and Azariah (ver. 6).

Verse 20. Departed without being desired. He was hated while he lived, and neglected when he died; visibly cursed of God, and necessarily execrated by the people whom he to reign, and he reigned in Jerusalem eight years, and departed <sup>b</sup> without being desired. Howbeit they buried him in the city of David, but not in the sepulchres of the kings.

had lived only to corrupt and oppress. No annalist is mentioned as having taken the pains to write any account of his vile life. This summary mention of him consigns him to the execration of posterity, and holds in the view of every prudent governor, the rock on which he split and wrecked the state.

CHAPTER XXII.

Ahaziah begins to reign; and reigns wickedly under the counsels of his bad mother, 1-4. He is slain by Jehu, who destroys all the house of Ahab, 5-9. Athaliah destroys all the seed royal of Judah, except Joash, who is hidden by his nurse in the temple six years, 10-12.

AND the inhabitants of Jerusalem made <sup>a</sup> Ahaziah his youngest son king in his stead: for the band of men that came with the Arabians to the camp had slain all the <sup>b</sup> eldest. So Ahaziah the son of Jehoram king of Judah reigned.

2 <sup>c</sup> Forty and two years old was Ahaziah when he began to reign, and he reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name also was <sup>d</sup> Athaliah the daughter of Omri.

3 He also walked in the ways of the house of Ahab: for his mother was his counsellor to do wickedly.

4 Wherefore he did evil in the sight of the LORD like the house of Ahab; for they were his counsellors after the death of his father to his destruction.

5 He walked also after their counsel, and <sup>e</sup> went with Jehoram the son of Ahab king of Israel to war against Hazael king of Syria at Ramoth-gilead: and the Syrians smote Joram.

6 <sup>f</sup> And he returned to be healed in Jezreel because of the wounds <sup>g</sup> which were given him at Ramah, when he fought with Hazael king of Syria. And <sup>h</sup> Azariah the son of Jehoram king of Judah went down to see Jehoram the son of Ahab at Jezreel, because he was sick.

7 And the <sup>i</sup> destruction of Ahaziah <sup>j</sup> was of God by coming to Joram: for when he was come, he <sup>k</sup> went out with Jehoram against Jehu the son of Nimshi, <sup>l</sup> whom the LORD had anointed to cut off the house of Ahab.

8 And it came to pass that when Jehu was <sup>m</sup> executing judgment upon the house of Ahab, and <sup>n</sup> found the princes of Judah, and the sons of the brethren of Ahaziah, that ministered to Ahaziah, he slew them.

9 <sup>o</sup> And he sought Ahaziah: and they caught him, (for he was hid in Samaria,) and brought him to Jehu: and when they had slain him, they buried him: Because, said they, he <sup>p</sup> is the son of Jehoshaphat, who <sup>q</sup> sought the LORD with all his heart. So the house of Ahaziah had no power to keep still the kingdom.

10 <sup>r</sup> But when Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, she arose and destroyed all the seed royal of the house of Judah.

11 But <sup>s</sup> Jehoshabeath, the daughter of the king, took Joash the son of Ahaziah, and stole him from among the king's sons that were slain, and put him and his nurse in a bed-chamber. So Jehoshabeath, the daughter of the king Jehoram, the wife of Jehoiada the priest, (for she was the sister of Ahaziah,) hid him from Athaliah, so that she slew him not.

12 And he was with them hid in the house of God six years: and Athaliah reigned over the land.

Verse 1. Made Ahaziah his youngest son king] All the others had been slain by the Arabians, &c.; see the preceding chapter, ver. 17.

Verse 2. Forty and two years old was Ahaziah] See the note on 2 Kings viii. 26. Ahaziah might have been twenty-two years old, according to 2 Kings viii. 26, but he could not have been forty-two, as stated here, without being two years older than his own father!

The reading in 2 Kings is right, and any attempt to reconcile this in Chronicles with that is equally futile and absurd. Both readings cannot be true; is that therefore likely to be genuine that makes the son two years older than the father who begat him?

Verse 3. His mother was his counsellor] Athaliah the wicked daughter of a wicked parent, and the wicked spouse of an unprincipled king.

Verse 9. He sought Ahaziah] See a different account 2 Kings ix. 27, and the note there, where the accounts are reconciled.

Verse 10. All the seed royal of the house of Judah] Nothing but the miraculous intervention of the divine providence could have saved the line of David at this time, and preserved the prophecy relative to the Messiah. The whole truth of that prophecy, and the salvation of the world, appeared to be now suspended on the brittle thread of the life of an infant of a year old (see chap. xxiv. 1), to destroy whom was the interest of the reigning power! But God can save by few as well as by many. He had purposed, and vain were the counter-exertions of earth and hell.

Verse 12. Went in the house of God] To this place Athaliah had no access, therefore Joash lay concealed, he and his affectionate aunt-nurse.—See on 2 Kings xi. 1.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Jehoiada the priest, after having taken counsel with the captains, Levites, &c., proclaims Joash, and anoints him king, 1-11. Athaliah endeavouring to prevent it, is slain, 12-15. He makes the people enter into a covenant, that they would serve the Lord, 16. The people break down the temple of Baal, and slay Mattan his priest, 17. Jehoiada makes several alterations, and remodels the kingdom, 18-21.

AND * in the seventh year Jehoiada strengthened himself, and took the captains of hundreds, Azariah the son of Jeroham, and Ishmael the son of Jehohanan, and Azariah the son of Obed, and Maaseiah the son of Adaiah, and Elishaphat the son of Zichri, into covenant with him.

2 And they went about in Judah, and gathered the Levites out of all the cities of Judah, and the chief of the fathers of Israel, and they came to Jerusalem.

3 And all the congregation made a covenant with the king in the house of God. And he said unto them, Behold, the king's son shall reign, as the LORD hath <sup>b</sup> said of the sons of David.

4 This is the thing that ye shall do; A third part of you <sup>c</sup> entering on the sabbath, of the priests and of the Levites, shall be porters of the <sup>d</sup> doors;

5 And a third part shall be at the king's house; and a third part at the gate of the foundation; and all the people shall be in the courts of the house of the LORD.

6 But let none come into the house of the LORD, save the priests, and <sup>e</sup> they that minister of the Levites; they shall go in, for they are holy: but all the people shall keep the watch of the LORD.

7 And the Levites shall compass the king round about, every man with his weapons in his hand; and whosoever else cometh into the house, he shall be put to death: but be ye with the king when he cometh in, and when he goeth out.

8 So the Levites and all Judah did according to all things that Jehoiada the priest had commanded, and took every man his men that were to come in on the sabbath, with them that were to go out on the sabbath: for Jehoiada the priest dismissed not <sup>f</sup> the courses.

9 Moreover Jehoiada the priest delivered to the captains of hundreds spears, and bucklers, and shields, that had been king David's, which were in the house of God.

10 And he set all the people, every man having his weapon in his hand, from the right <sup>g</sup> side of the <sup>h</sup> temple to the left side of the temple, along by the altar and the temple, by the king round about.

11 Then they brought out the king's son, and put upon him the crown, and <sup>i</sup> gave him the testimony, and made him king. And Jehoiada and his sons anointed him, and said <sup>j</sup> God save the king.

12 Now when Athaliah heard the noise of the people running and praising the king, she came to the people into the house of the LORD: .

13 And she looked, and, behold, the king stood at his pillar at the entering in, and the princes and the trumpets by the king: and all the people of the land rejoiced, and sounded with trumpets, also the singers with instruments of music, and <sup>k</sup> such as taught to sing praise. Then Athaliah rent her clothes, and said, <sup>l</sup> Treason, Treason.

14 Then Jehoiada the priest brought out the captains of hundreds that were set over the host, and said unto them, Have her forth of the ranges: and whoso followeth her, let him be slain with the sword. For the priest said, Slay her not in the house of the LORD.

15 So they laid hands on her: and when she was come to the entering <sup>m</sup> of the horse-gate by the king's house, they slew her there.

16 And Jehoiada made a covenant between him, and between all the people, and between the king, that they should be the LORD's people.

17 Then all the people went to the house of Baal, and brake it down, and brake his altars and his images in pieces, and <sup>n</sup> slew Mattan the priest of Baal before the altars.

18 Also Jehoiada appointed the offices of the house of the LORD by the hand of the priests of the Levites, whom David had <sup>o</sup> distributed in the house of the LORD, to offer the burnt-offerings of the LORD, as it is written in the <sup>p</sup> law of Moses, with rejoicing and with singing, as it was ordained <sup>q</sup> by David.

19 And he set the <sup>r</sup> porters at the gates of the house of the LORD, that none which was unclean in any thing should enter in.

20 <sup>s</sup> And he took the captains of hundreds, and the nobles, and the governors of the people, and all the people of the land, and brought down the king from the house of the LORD; and they came through the high gate into the king's house, and set the king upon the throne of the kingdom.

21 And all the people of the land rejoiced; and the city was quiet, after that they had slain Athaliah with the sword.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Joash begins to reign when seven years old, and reigns well all the days of Jehoiada the priest, 1-3. He purposes to repair the temple of God; and makes the proclamation that the people should bring in the money prescribed by Moses, 4-9. They all contribute liberally; and the different artificers soon perfect the work, 10-13. The rest of the money is employed to form utensils for the temple, 14. Jehoiada dies, 15, 16. And the people, after his death, become idolaters, 17, 18. Prophets are sent unto them, 19. And among the rest Zechariah the son of Jehoiada, who testifies against them; and they stone him to death, 20, 22. The Syrians come against Jerusalem, and spoil it, 23, 24. Joash is murdered by his own servants, 25, 26. His acts, 27.

JOASH <sup>a</sup> was seven years old when he began to reign, and he reigned forty years in Jerusalem. His mother's name also was Zibiah of Beer-sheba.

2 And Joash <sup>b</sup> did that which was right in the sight of the LORD all the days of Jehoiada the priest.

3 And Jehoiada took for him two wives: and he begat sons and daughters.

4 And it came to pass after this, that Joash was minded <sup>c</sup> to repair the house of the LORD.

5 And he gathered together the priests and the Levites, and said to them, Go out unto the cities of Judah, and <sup>d</sup> gather of all Israel money to repair the house of your God from year to year, and see that ye hasten the matter. Howbeit the Levites hastened it not.

6 <sup>e</sup> And the king called for Jehoiada the chief, and said unto him, Why hast thou not required of the Levites to bring in out of Judah and out of Jerusalem the collection, according to the commandment of <sup>f</sup> Moses the servant of the LORD, and of the congregation of Israel, for the <sup>g</sup> tabernacle of witness?

7 For <sup>h</sup> the sons of Athaliah, that wicked woman, had broken up the house of God; and also all the <sup>i</sup> dedicated things of the house of the LORD did they bestow upon Baalim.

8 And at the king's commandment <sup>j</sup> they made a chest, and set it without at the gate of the house of the LORD.

9 And they made <sup>k</sup> a proclamation through Judah and Jerusalem, to bring in to the LORD <sup>l</sup> the collection that Moses the servant of God laid upon Israel in the wilderness.

10 And all the princes and all the people rejoiced, and brought in, and cast into the chest until they had made an end.

11 Now it came to pass, that at what time the chest was brought into the king's office by the hand of the Levites, and <sup>m</sup> when they saw that there was much money, the king's scribe and the high priest's officer came and emptied the chest, and took it, and carried it to his place again. Thus they did day by day, and gathered money in abundance.

12 And the king and Jehoiada gave it to such as did the work of the service of the house of the LORD, and hired masons and carpenters to repair the house of the LORD, and also such as wrought iron and brass to mend the house of the LORD.

13 So the workmen wrought, and <sup>n</sup> the work was perfected by them, and they set the house of God in his state, and strengthened it.

14 And when they had finished it, they brought the rest of the money before the king and Jehoiada, <sup>o</sup> whereof were made vessels for the house of the LORD, even vessels to minister, and <sup>p</sup> to offer withal, and spoons, and vessels of gold and silver. And they offered burnt-offerings in the house of the LORD continually all the days of Jehoiada.

15 But Jehoiada waxed old, and was full of days when he died; an hundred and thirty years old was he when he died.

16 And they buried him in the city of David among the kings, because he had done good in Israel, both toward God, and toward his house.

17 Now after the death of Jehoiada came the princes of Judah, and made obeisance to the king. Then the king hearkened unto them.

18 And they left the house of the LORD God of their fathers, and served <sup>q</sup> groves and idols: and <sup>r</sup> wrath came upon Judah and Jerusalem for this their trespass.

19 Yet he <sup>s</sup> sent prophets to them, to bring them again unto the LORD; and they testified against them: but they would not give ear,

20 And <sup>t</sup> the Spirit of God <sup>u</sup> came upon Zechariah the son of Jehoiada the priest, which stood above the people, and said unto them, Thus saith God, <sup>v</sup> Why transgress ye the commandments of the Verse 1. Joash was seven years old] As he was hidden six years in the temple, and was but seven when he came to the throne, he could have been but one year old when he was secreted by his aunt; see on chap. xxii. 10.

Verse 4. To repair the house of the Lord.] During the reigns of Joram and Athaliah, the temple of God had been pillaged to enrich that of Baal, and the whole structure permitted to fall into decay; see ver. 7.

Verse 5. Gather of all Israel money] As the temple was the property of the whole nation, and the services performed in it were for the salvation of the people at large, it was right that each should come forward on an occasion of this kind, and lend a helping hand. This is the first instance of such a general collection for building or repairing a house of God.

From year to year] It must have been in a state of great dilapidation, when it required such annual exertions to bring it into a thorough state of repair.

Verse 6. The collection—of Moses] This was the poll-tax, fixed by Moses, of half a shekel, which was levied on every man from twenty years upwards; and which was considered as a ransom for their souls that there might be no plague among them. See Exod. xxx. 12—14.

Verse 8. They made a chest] See the notes on the parallel places, 2 Kings xxii. 4, &c.

Verse 16. They buried him—among the kings] He had, in fact, been king in Judah; for Joash, who appears to have been weak man, was always under his tutelage. His being buried among the kings is a proof of the high estimation in which he was held among the people.

Verse 21. Stoned him—at the commandment of the king] What a most wretched and contemptible man was this, who

But when a man falls from God, the devil enters into him; and then he is capable of every species of cruelty.

Verse 22. The Lord look upon it, and require it. And so he did; for at the end of that year, the Syrians came against Judah, destroyed all the princes of the people, sent their spoils to Damascus; and Joash, the murderer of the prophet, the son of his benefactor, was himself murdered by his own servants. Here was a most signal display of the divine retribution.

25 And when they departed from him, (for they left him in great diseases,) <sup>c</sup>his own servants conspired against him for the blood of the <sup>d</sup>sons of Jehoiada the priest, and slew him on his bed, and he died: and they buried him in the city of David, but they buried him not in the sepulchres of the kings.

two persons mentioned here were certainly not Jews; the mother of one was an Ammonitess and the mother of the other was a Moabitess. Who their fathers were we know not; they were probably foreigners and aliens. Some suppose that these persons were of the king's chamber, and therefore could have had the easiest access to him.

Verse 27. The greatness of the burdens laid upon him] Meaning, probably, the heavy tribute laid upon him by the Syrians; though some think the vast sums amassed for the repairs of the temple are here intended.

CHAPTER XXV.

Amaziah succeeds his father Joash, and begins his reign well, 1, 2. He slays his father's murderers, but spares their children, 3, 4. He reviews and remodels the army, 5; and hires a hundred thousand soldiers out of Israel, whom, on the expostulations of a prophet, he sends home again, without bringing them into active service: at which they are greatly offended, 6-10. He attacks the Syrians, kills ten thousand, and takes ten thousand prisoners, whom he precipitates from the top of a rock, so that they are dashed to pieces, 11, 12. The Israelitish soldiers, sent back, ravage several of the cities of Judah, 13. Amaziah becomes an idolater, 14. Is reproved by a prophet, whom he threatens, and obliges to desist, 15, 16. He challenges Joash king of Israel, 17; who reproves him by a parable, 18, 19. Not desisting, the armies meet, the Jews are overthrown, and Amaziah taken prisoner by Joash, who ravages the temple, and takes away all the treasures of the king, 20-24. The reign of Amaziah; a conspiracy is formed against him; he flees to Lachish, whither he is pursued and slain; is brought to Jerusalem, and buried with his fathers, 25-28.

AMAZIAH <sup>a</sup>was twenty and five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned twenty and nine years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jehoadan of Jerusalem.

2 And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, <sup>b</sup>but not with a perfect heart.

3 * Now it came to pass, when the kingdom was <sup>c</sup>established to him, that he slew his servants that had killed the king his father.

4 But he slew not their children, but <sup>d</sup>did as it is written in the law in the book of Moses, where the LORD commanded, saying, * The fathers shall not die for the children, neither shall the children die for the fathers, but every man shall die for his own sin.

5 Moreover Amaziah gathered Judah together, and made them captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, according to the houses of their fathers, throughout all Judah and Benjamin: and he numbered them <sup>e</sup>from twenty years old and above, and found them three hundred thousand choice men, able to go forth to war, that could handle spear and shield.

Verse 2. He did that which was right] He began his reign well, but soon became an idolater, ver. 14, 15.

Verse 5. Gathered Judah together] He purposed to avenge himself of the Syrians, but wished to know his military strength before he came to a rupture.

6 He hired also an hundred thousand mighty men of valour out of Israel for an hundred talents of silver.

7 But there came a man of God to him saying, O king, let not the army of Israel go with thee; for the LORD is not with Israel, to wit with all the children of Ephraim.

8 But if thou wilt go, do it, be strong for the battle: God shall make thee fall before the enemy: for God hath a power to help, and to cast down.

9 And Amaziah said to the man of God, But what shall we do for the hundred talents which I have given to the army of Israel? And the man of God answered, The LORD is able to give thee much more than this.

10 Then Amaziah separated them, to wit, the army that was come to him out of Ephraim, to go home again: wherefore their anger was greatly kindled against Judah, and they returned home in great anger.

11 And Amaziah strengthened himself, and led forth his people, and went to the valley of salt, and smote of the children of Seir ten thousand.

12 And other ten thousand left alive did the children of Judah carry away captive, and brought unto the top of the rock, and cast them down from the top of the rock, that they all were broken in pieces.

13 But the soldiers of the army which Amaziah sent back, that they should not go with him to battle, fell upon the cities of Judah, from Samaria even unto Beth-horon, and smote three thousand of them, and took much spoil.

14 Now it came to pass, after that Amaziah was come from the slaughter of the Edomites, that he brought the gods of the children of Seir, and set them up to be his gods, and bowed down himself before them, and burned incense unto them.

15 Wherefore the anger of the LORD was kindled against Amaziah, and he sent unto him a prophet, which said unto him, Why hast thou sought after the gods of the people, which could not deliver their own people out of thine hand?

16 And it came to pass, as he talked with him, that the king said unto him, Art thou made of the king's counsel? forbear; why shouldst thou be smitten? Then the prophet forbore, and said, I know that God hath determined to destroy thee, because thou hast done this, and hast not hearkened unto my counsel.

17 Then Amaziah king of Judah took advice, and sent to Joash, the son of Jehoahaz, the son of Jehu, king of Israel, saying, Come, let us see one another in the face.

18 And Joash king of Israel sent to Amaziah king of Judah, saying, The thistle that was in Lebanon sent to the cedar that was in Lebanon, saying, Give thy daughter to my son to wife: and there passed by a wild beast that was in Lebanon, and trode down the thistle.

19 Thou sayest, Lo, thou hast smitten the Edomites; and thine heart lifteth thee up to boast: abide now at home; why shouldst thou meddle to thine hurt, that thou shouldst fall, even thou, and Judah with thee?

20 But Amaziah would not hear: for it came of God, that he might deliver them into the hand of their enemies, because they sought after the gods of Edom.

21 So Joash the king of Israel went up; and they saw one another in the face, both he and Amaziah king of Judah, at Beth-shemesh, which belongeth to Judah.

22 And Judah was put to the worse before Israel, and they fled every man to his tent.

23 And Joash the king of Israel took Amaziah king of Judah, the son of Joash, the son of Jehoahaz, at Beth-shemesh, and brought him to Jerusalem and brake down the wall of Jerusalem from the gate of Ephraim to the corner gate, four hundred cubits.

24 And he took all the gold and silver, and all the vessels that were found in the house of God with Obed-edom, and the treasures of the king's house, the hostages also, and returned to Samaria.

25 And Amaziah the son of Joash king of Judah lived after the death of Joash son of Jehoahaz king of Israel fifteen years.

26 Now the rest of the acts of Amaziah, first and last, behold, are they not written in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel?

27 Now after the time that Amaziah did turn away from following the LORD they made a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem; and he fled to Lachish: but they sent to Lachish after him, and slew him there.

28 And they brought him upon horses, and buried him with his fathers in the city of Judah.

Verse 27. Made a conspiracy] He no doubt became very unpopular after having lost the battle with the Israelites; the consequence of which was the dismantling of Jerusalem, and the seizure of the royal treasures, with several other evils. It is likely that the last fifteen years of his reign were greatly embittered: so that, finding the royal city to be no place of safety, he endeavoured to secure himself at Lachish; but all in vain, for thither his murderers pursued him; and he who forsook the Lord was forsaken by every friend, perished in his gainsaying, and came to an untimely end.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Uzziah, the son of Amaziah, succeeds; and begins his reign piously and prosperously, which continued during the life of Zechariah the prophet, 1-5. He fights successfully against the Philistines, and takes and dismantles some of their chief cities, 6; prevails over the Arabians and Meunims, 7; and brings the Ammonites under tribute, 8. He fortifies Jerusalem, and builds towers in different parts of the country, and delights in husbandry, 9, 10. An account of his military strength, warlike instruments, and machines, 11-15. He is elated with his prosperity, invades the priest's office, and is smitten with the leprosy, 16-20. He is obliged to abdicate the regal office, and dwell apart from the people, his son Jotham acting as regent, 21. His death and burial, 22, 23.

THEN all the people of Judah took <sup>a</sup>Uzziah, who was sixteen years old, and made him king in the room of his father Amaziah.

2 He built Eloth, and restored it to Judah, after that the king slept with his fathers.

3 Sixteen years old was Uzziah when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty and two years in Jerusalem. His mother's name also was Jecoliah of Jerusalem.

4 And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD according to all that his father Amaziah did.

5 And <sup>b</sup>he sought God in the days of Zechariah, who <sup>c</sup>had understanding <sup>d</sup>in the visions of God: and as long as he sought the LORD, God made him to prosper.

6 And he went forth and <sup>e</sup>warred against the Philistines, and brake down the wall of Gath, and the wall of Jabneh, and the wall of Ashdod, and built cities <sup>f</sup>about Ashdod, and among the Philistines.

7 And God helped him against <sup>g</sup>the Philistines, and against the Arabians that dwelt in Gur-baal, and the Meunims.

8 And the Ammonites <sup>h</sup>gave gifts to Uzziah: and his name <sup>i</sup>spread abroad even to the entering in of Egypt; for he strengthened <sup>j</sup>himself exceedingly.

9 Moreover Uzziah built towers in Jerusalem at the <sup>k</sup>corner gate, and at the valley gate, and at the turning of the wall, and <sup>l</sup>fortified them.

Verse 1. The people of Judah took Uzziah] They all agreed to place this son on his father's throne.

Verse 2. He built Eloth] See the notes on 2 Kings xiv. 21. This king is called by several different names: see the note on 2 Kings xv. 1.

Verse 5. In the days of Zechariah] Who this was we know not, but by the character that is given of him here. He was wise in the visions of God—in giving the true interpretation of divine prophecies. He was probably the tutor of Uzziah.

Verse 7. And God helped him] These are supposed to be the Arabs which are called the Meunims, or Munites, or Meonites.

Verse 8. The Ammonites gave gifts] Paid an annual tribute.

Verse 10. Built towers in the desert] For the defence of his flocks, and his shepherds and husbandmen.

And in Carmel] Calmet remarks that there were two Carmels in Judea: one in the tribe of Judah, where Nabal lived; and the other on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea, near to Kishon; and both fertile in vines.

He loved husbandry] This is a perfection in a king: on husbandry every state depends. Let their trade or commerce be what they may, there can be no true national prosperity if agriculture do not prosper; for the king himself is served by the field. When, therefore, the king of a country encourages agriculture; and emulation is excited among his 10 Also he built towers in the desert, and <sup>n</sup>digged many wells: for he had much cattle, both in the low country, and in the plains: husbandmen also, and vinedressers in the mountains, and in <sup>o</sup>Carmel: for he loved <sup>p</sup>husbandry.

11 Moreover Uzziah had an host of fighting men that went out to war by bands, according to the number of their account by the hand of Joiel the scribe and Masseiah the ruler, under the hand of Hananiah, one of the king's captains.

12 The whole number of the chief of the fathers of the mighty men of valour were two thousand and six hundred.

13 And under their hand was <sup>q</sup>an army, three hundred thousand and seven thousand and five hundred, that made war with mighty power, to help the king against the enemy.

14 And Uzziah prepared for them throughout all the host shields, and spears, and helmets, and habergeons, and bows, and <sup>r</sup>slings to cast stones.

15 And he made in Jerusalem engines, invented by cunning men, to be on the towers and upon the bulwarks, to shoot arrows and great stones withal. And his name <sup>s</sup>spread far abroad; for he was marvellously helped, till he was strong.

16 But <sup>t</sup>when he was strong, his heart was <sup>u</sup>lifted up to his destruction: for he transgressed against the LORD his God, and <sup>v</sup>went into the temple of the LORD to burn incense upon the altar of incense.

17 And <sup>w</sup>Azariah the priest went in after him, subjects; the science is cultivated; and the earth yields its proper increase; then, should trade and commerce fail, the people cannot be reduced to wretchedness, because there is plenty of bread.

Verse 14. Shields and spears] He prepared a vast number of military weapons, that he might have them in readiness to put into the hands of his subjects on any exigency.

Verse 15. Engines—to shoot arrows and great stones] This is the first intimation on record of any warlike engines for the attack or defence of besieged places; and this account is long prior to any thing of the kind among either the Greeks or Romans. Previously to such inventions, the besieged could only be starved out, and hence sieges were very long and tedious. Salmanser consumed three years before such an inconsiderable place as Samaria, 2 Kings xvii. 5, 6; Sardanapalus maintained himself in Nineveh for seven years, because the besiegers had no engines proper for the attack and destruction of walls, &c.; and it is well known that Troy sustained a siege of ten years, the Greeks not possessing any machine of the kind here referred to. The Jews alone were the inventors of such engines; and the invention took place in the reign of Uzziah about eight hundred years before the Christian era. It is no wonder that, in consequence of this, his name spread far abroad, and struck terror into his enemies.

Verse 16. Went into the temple to burn incense] Thus assuming and with him fourscore priests of the LORD, that were valiant men.

18 And they withstood Uzziah the king, and said unto him, It <sup>a</sup>appertaineth not unto thee, Uzziah, to burn incense unto the LORD, but to the <sup>b</sup>priests the sons of Aaror that are consecrated to burn incense: go out of the sanctuary; for thou hast trespassed; neither shall it be for thine honour from the LORD God.

19 Then Uzziah was wroth, and had a censer in his hand to burn incense: and while he was wroth with the priests, <sup>c</sup>the leprosy even rose up in his forehead, before the priests in the house of the LORD, from beside the incense altar.

20 And Azariah the chief priest, and all the priests, looked upon him, and, behold, he was

Verse 21. And dwelt in a several house] He was separated, because of the infectious nature of his disorder, from all society, domestic, civil, and religious.

Jotham—was over the king's house] He became regent of the land; his father being no longer able to perform the functions of the regal office.

21 <sup>e</sup>And Uzziah the king was a leper unto the day of his death, and dwelt in a <sup>f</sup>several <sup>g</sup>house, being a leper; for he was cut off from the house of the LORD: and Jotham his son was over the king's house, judging the people of the land.

Isaiah the prophet—write.] This work, however, is totally lost; for we have not any history of this king in the writings of Isaiah. He is barely mentioned, Isa. i. 1 and vi. 1.

Verse 23. They buried him—in the field of the burial] As he was a leper, he was not permitted to be buried in the common burial-place of the kings; as it was supposed that even a place of sepulture must be defiled by the body of one who had died of that most afflictive and dangerous malady.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Jotham succeeds his father Uzziah, and reigns well, 1, 2. His buildings, 3, 4. His successful wars, 5, 6. General account of his acts, reign, and death, 7-9.

JOTHAM <sup>a</sup>was twenty and five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. His mother's name also was Jerushah, the daughter of Zadok.

2 And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, according to all that his father Uzziah did: howbeit he entered not into the temple of the LORD. And <sup>b</sup>the people did yet corruptly.

3 He built the high gate of the house of the LORD, and on the wall of <sup>c</sup>Ophel he built much.

4 Moreover he built cities in the mountains of Judah, and in the forests he built castles and towers.

5 He fought also with the king of the Ammonites, and prevailed against them. And the children of

Verse 2. He entered not into the temple] He copied his father's conduct as far as it was constitutional; and avoided his transgression. See the preceding chapter.

Verse 3. On the wall of Ophel] Ophel was some part of the wall of Jerusalem, that was most pregnable, and therefore Jotham fortified it in a particular manner.

Verse 4. Castles and towers] These he built for the protection of the country people against marauders.

Verse 5. He fought also with—the Ammonites] We find here that he brought them under heavy tribute for three years; but whether this was the effect of his prevailing against them, it is not so evident. Some think they paid this tribute for three years, and then revolted; that in con-

Ammon gave him the same year an hundred talents of silver, and ten thousand measures of wheat, and ten thousand of barley. <sup>d</sup>So much did the children of Ammon pay unto him, both the second year, and the third.

6 So Jotham became mighty, because he <sup>e</sup>prepared his ways before the LORD his God.

7 Now the rest of the acts of Jotham, and all his wars, and his ways, lo, they are written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah.

8 He was five and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem.

sequence, he attacked them, and their utter subjection was the result.

Verse 7. The rest of the acts of Jotham, and all his wars, and his ways] It was in his days, according to 2 Kings xv. 37, that Rezin king of Syria, and Pekah king of Israel, began to cut Judah short.

Written in the book of the Kings &c.] There is not so much found in the Books of Kings which we have now, as in this place of the Chronicles. In both places we have an abridged account only; the larger histories have long been lost. The reign of Jotham was properly the last prosperous reign among the Jews. Hesekiah and Jehoiakim did much to preserve the divine worship; but Judah continued to be cut short, till at last it was wholly ruined.

II. CHRONICLES.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Ahas succeeds his father Jotham, and reigns wickedly for sixteen years, 1. He restores idolatry, in its grossest forms, 2-4; and is delivered into the hands of the kings of Israel and Syria, 5. Pekah slays one hundred and twenty thousand Jews in one day, and carries away captive two hundred thousand of the people, whom, at the instance of Obed the prophet, they restore to liberty, and send home, clothed and fed, 6-15. Ahas sends to the king of Assyria for help against the Edomites, Philistines, &c., from whom he receives no effectual succour, 16-21. He sins yet more, spoils and shuts up the temple of God, and propagates adultery throughout the land, 22-25. A reference to his acts, his death, and burial, 26, 27.

AHAZ <sup>a</sup> was twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem: but he did not that which was right in the sight of the Lord, like David his father:

2 For he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, and made also <sup>b</sup> molten images for <sup>c</sup> Baalim.

3 Moreover he <sup>d</sup> burnt incense in <sup>e</sup> the valley of the son of Hinnom, and burnt <sup>f</sup> his children in the fire, after the abominations of the heathen whom the Lord had cast out before the children of Israel.

4 He sacrificed also and burnt incense in the high places, and on the hills, and under every green tree.

5 Wherefore <sup>g</sup> the Lord his God delivered him into the hand of the king of Syria; and they <sup>h</sup> smote him and carried away a great multitude of them captives, and brought them to <sup>i</sup> Damascus. And he was also delivered into the hand of the king of Israel, who smote him with a great slaughter.

6 For <sup>j</sup> Pekah the son of Remaliah slew in Judah an hundred and twenty thousand in one day which were all <sup>k</sup> valiant men; because they had forsaken the Lord God of their fathers.

7 And Zichri, a mighty man of Ephraim, slew Maaseiah the king's son, and Azrikam the governor of the house, and Elkanah that was <sup>l</sup> next to the king:

8 And the children of Israel carried away captive of their <sup>m</sup> brethren two hundred thousand women, sons, and daughters, and took also away much spoil from them, and brought the spoil to Samaria.

9 But a prophet of the Lord was there, whose name was Oded: and he went out before the host that came to Samaria, and said unto them, Behold, <sup>n</sup> because the Lord God of your fathers was wroth with Judah, he hath delivered them into your hand, and ye have slain them in a rage that <sup>o</sup> reacheth up unto heaven.

of Judah and Jerusalem for <sup>q</sup> bondmen and bondwomen unto you: but are there not with you, even with you, sins against the Lord your God?

11 Now hear me therefore, and deliver the captives again, which ye have taken captive of your brethren: <sup>r</sup> for the fierce wrath of the Lord is upon you.

12 Then certain of the heads of the children of Ephraim, Azariah the son of Johanan, Berechiah the son of Meshillemoth, and Jehizkiah the son of Shallum, and Amasa the son of Hadlai, stood up against them that came from the war.

13 And said unto them Ye shall not bring in the captives hither: for whereas we have offended against the Lord already, ye intend to add more to our sins and to our trespass: for our trespass is great, and there is fierce wrath against Israel.

14 So the armed men left the captives and the spoil before the princes and all the congregation.

15 And the men <sup>s</sup> which were expressed by name rose up, and took the captives, and with the spoil clothed all that were naked among them, and arrayed them, and shod them, and <sup>t</sup> gave them to eat and to drink, and anointed them, and carried all the feeble of them upon asses, and brought them to Jericho, <sup>u</sup> the city of palm-trees, to their brethren: then they returned to Samaria.

16 <sup>v</sup> At that time did king Ahas send unto the kings of Assyria to help him.

17 For again the Edomites had come and smitten Judah, and carried away <sup>w</sup> captives.

18 <sup>x</sup> The Philistines also had invaded the cities of the low country, and of the south of Judah, and had taken Beth-shemesh, and Ajalon, and Gederoth, and Shochu with the villages thereof, and Timnah with the villages thereof, Gimzo also and the villages thereof: and they dwell there.

19 For the Lord brought Judah low because of Ahas king of <sup>y</sup> Israel; for he <sup>z</sup> made Judah naked, and transgressed sore against the Lord.

20 And <sup>aa</sup> Tilgath-pilneser king of Assyria came Verse 5. Delivered him into the hand of the king of Syria] For the better understanding of these passages, the reader is requested to refer to what has been advanced in the notes on the sixteenth chapter of 2 Kings, ver. 5, &c.

Verse 6. An hundred and twenty thousand] It is very probable that there is a mistake in this number. It is hardly possible that a hundred and twenty thousand men could have been slain in one day: yet all the Versions and MSS. agree in this number. The whole people seem to have been given up into the hands of their enemies.

Verse 9. But a prophet of the Lord—whose name was Oded] To this beautiful speech nothing can be added by the best comment; it is simple, humane, pious, and overwhelmingly convincing: no wonder it produced the effect mentioned here. That there was much of humanity in the heads of the children of Ephraim who joined with the prophet on this occasion, the fifteenth verse sufficiently proves. They did not barely dismiss these most unfortunate captives, but they took that very spoil which their victorious army had brought away; and they clothed, fed, and shod, and anointed, these distressed people, set the feeblest of them upon asses, and escorted them safely to Jericho. We can scarcely find a parallel to this in the universal history of the wars which savage man has carried on against his fellows, from the foundation of the world.

Verse 16. The kings of Assyria to help him.] Instead of malchey, KINGS; the Vulgate, Syriac, Arabic, and Chaldee, one MS., and the parallel place, 2 Kings xvi. 7, have melek, KING, in the singular number. This king was Tiglath-pilneser, as we learn from the Second Book of Kings.

unto him, and distressed him, but strengthened him not.

21 For Ahaz took away a portion out of the house of the LORD, and out of the house of the king, and of the princes, and gave it unto the king of Assyria: but he helped him not.

22 And in the time of his distress did he trespass yet more against the LORD: this is that king Ahaz.

23 For <sup>a</sup> he sacrificed unto the gods of <sup>b</sup> Damascus, which smote him: and he said, Because the gods of the kings of Syria help them, therefore will I sacrifice to them, that <sup>c</sup> they may help me. But they were the ruin of him, and of all Israel.

24 And Ahaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God, and cut in pieces the vessels of the house of God, <sup>d</sup> and shut up the doors of the house of the LORD, and he made him altars in every corner of Jerusalem.

<sup>a</sup> See ch. xxv. 14.—<sup>b</sup> Heb. Darmasek.—<sup>c</sup> Jer. xlv. 17, 18.

Verse 21. But he helped him not.] He did him no ultimate service.

Verse 24. Shut up the doors] He caused the divine worship to be totally suspended; and they continued shut till the beginning of the reign of Hezekiah, one of whose first acts was to re-open them, and thus to restore the divine worship, chap. xxxix. 8.

25 And in every several city of Judah he made high places <sup>e</sup> to burn incense unto other gods, and provoked to anger the LORD God of his fathers.

26 'Now the rest of his acts and of all his ways, first and last, behold, they are written in the book of the kings of Judah and Israel.

27 And Ahaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city, even in Jerusalem: but they brought him not into the sepulchres of the kings of Israel: and Hezekiah his son reigned in his stead.

<sup>d</sup> See ch. xxix. 8, 7.—<sup>e</sup> Or, to offer.—<sup>f</sup> 2 Kings xvi. 19, 20.

Verse 27. The kings of Israel] It is a common thing for the writer of this book to put Israel for Judah. He still considers them as one people, because proceeding from one stock. The Versions and MSS. have the same reading with the Hebrew; the matter is of little importance, and with this interpretation none can mistake.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Hezekiah's good reign, 1, 2. He opens and repairs the doors of the temple, 3. He assembles and exhorts the priests and Levites, and proposes to renew their covenant with the Lord, 4-11. They all sanctify themselves, and cleanse the temple, 12-17. They inform the king of their progress, 18, 19. He collects the rulers of the people: and they offer abundance of sin-offerings and burnt-offerings, and worship the Lord, 20-30. Every part of the divine service is arranged, and Hezekiah and all the people rejoice, 31-36.

HEZEKIAH <sup>a</sup> began to reign when he was five and twenty years old, and he reigned nine and twenty years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Abijah, the daughter <sup>b</sup> of Zechariah.

2 And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, according to all that David his father had done.

3 He in the first year of his reign, in the first month, <sup>c</sup> opened the doors of the house of the LORD, and repaired them.

4 And he brought in the priests and the Levites, and gathered them together into the east street,

5 And said unto them, Hear me, ye Levites, <sup>d</sup> sanctify now yourselves, and sanctify the house of the LORD God of your fathers, and carry forth the filthiness out of this holy place.

6 For our fathers have trespassed, and done that which was evil in the eyes of the LORD our God, and have forsaken him, and have <sup>e</sup> turned away their faces from the habitation of the LORD, and <sup>f</sup> turned their backs.

7 <sup>g</sup> Also they have shut up the doors of the porch, and put out the lamps, and have not burned incense nor offered burnt-offerings in the holy place unto the God of Israel.

8 Wherefore the <sup>a</sup> wrath of the LORD was upon Judah and Jerusalem, and he hath delivered them to <sup>b</sup> trouble, to astonishment, and to <sup>c</sup> hissing, as ye see with your eyes.

9 For, lo, <sup>d</sup> our fathers have fallen by the sword, and our sons and our daughters and our wives are in captivity for this.

10 Now it is in mine heart to make <sup>e</sup> a covenant with the LORD God of Israel, that his fierce wrath may turn away from us.

II. CHRONICLES.

15 And they gathered their brethren, and *sanctified themselves, and came, according to the commandment of the king, <sup>b</sup>by the words of the LORD, <sup>c</sup>to cleanse the house of the LORD.

16 And the priests went into the inner part of the house of the LORD, to cleanse it, and brought out all the uncleanness that they found in the temple of the LORD into the court of the house of the LORD. And the Levites took it, to carry it out abroad into the brook Kidron.

17 Now they began on the first day of the first month to sanctify, and on the eighth day of the month came they to the porch of the LORD; so they sanctified the house of the LORD in eight days; and in the sixteenth day of the first month they made an end.

18 Then they went in to Hezekiah the king, and said, We have cleansed all the house of the LORD, and the altar of burnt-offering, with all the vessels thereof, and the shew-bread table, with all the vessels thereof.

19 Moreover all the vessels, which king Ahaz in his reign did <sup>d</sup>cast away in his transgression, have we prepared and sanctified, and, behold, they are before the altar of the LORD.

20 Then Hezekiah the king rose early, and gathered the rulers of the city, and went up to the house of the LORD.

21 And they brought seven bullocks, and seven rams, and seven lambs, and seven he-goats, for a <sup>e</sup>sin-offering for the kingdom, and for the sanctuary, and for Judah. And he commanded the priests the sons of Aaron to offer them on the altar of the LORD.

22 So they killed the bullocks, and the priests received the blood, and <sup>f</sup>sprinkled it on the altar: likewise, when they had killed the rams, they sprinkled the blood upon the altar: they killed also the lambs, and they sprinkled the blood upon the altar.

under which the whole people were constantly considered, and of which circumcision was the sign; and the spirit of which was, I will be your God: Ye shall be my people.

Verse 16. And the priests went] The priests and Levites cleansed first the courts both of the priests and of the people. On this labour they spent eight days. Then they cleansed the interior of the temple; but as the Levites had no right to enter the temple the priests carried all the dirt and rubbish to the porch, whence they were collected by the Levites, carried away, and cast into the brook Kidron; in this work eight days more were occupied and thus the temple was purified in sixteen days.

Verse 21. They brought seven bullocks &c.] This was more than the law required; see Lev. iv. 13, &c. It ordered one calf or ox for the sins of the people, and one he-goat for the sins of the prince; but Hezekiah here offers many more. And the reason appears sufficiently evident: the law speaks only of sins of ignorance; but here there were sins of every kind and every die,—idolatry, apostasy from the divine worship, profanation of the temple, &c., &c. The sin-offerings, we are informed, were offered, first, for the kingdom—for the transgressions of the king and his family; secondly, for the sanctuary, which had been defiled and polluted, and for the priests who had been profane, negligent, and unholy; and, finally, for JUDAH—for the whole mass of the people, who had been led away into every kind of abomination by the above examples.

Verse 28. They laid their hands upon them] That is, they confessed their sins; and as they had by their transgression forfeited their lives, they now offer these animals to 23 And they brought <sup>a</sup>forth the he-goats for the sin-offering before the king and the congregation; and they laid their <sup>b</sup>hands upon them;

24 And the priests killed them, and they made reconciliation with their blood upon the altar, <sup>c</sup>to make an atonement for all Israel: for the king commanded that the burnt-offering and the sin-offering should be made for all Israel.

25 <sup>d</sup>And he set the Levites in the house of the LORD with cymbals, with psalteries, and with harps, <sup>e</sup>according to the commandment of David, and of <sup>f</sup>Gad the king's seer, and Nathan the prophet: <sup>g</sup>for so was the commandment <sup>h</sup>of the LORD <sup>i</sup>by his prophets.

26 And the Levites stood with the instruments <sup>j</sup>of David, and the priests with <sup>k</sup>the trumpets.

27 And Hezekiah commanded to offer the burnt-offering upon the altar. And <sup>l</sup>when the burnt-offering began, <sup>m</sup>the song of the LORD began also with the trumpets, and with the <sup>n</sup>instruments ordained by David king of Israel.

28 And all the congregation worshipped, and the <sup>o</sup>singers sang, and the trumpeters sounded: and all this continued until the burnt-offering was finished.

29 And when they had made an end of offering, <sup>p</sup>the king and all that were <sup>q</sup>present with him bowed themselves, and worshipped.

30 Moreover Hezekiah the king and the princes commanded the Levites to sing praise unto the LORD with the words of David, and of Asaph the seer. And they sang praises with gladness, and they bowed their heads and worshipped.

31 Then Hezekiah answered and said, Now ye have <sup>r</sup>consecrated yourselves unto the LORD, come near and bring sacrifices and <sup>s</sup>thank-offerings into the house of the LORD. And the congregation brought in sacrifices and thank-offerings; and as many as were of a free heart burnt-offerings.

die as vicarious offerings, their life being taken for the life of their owners.

Verse 25. With cymbals, with psalteries] Moses had not appointed any musical instruments to be used in the divine worship; there was nothing of the kind under the first tabernacle. The trumpets or horns then used were not for song nor praise but as we use bells, i. e., to give notice to the congregation of what they were called to perform, &c. But David did certainly introduce many instruments of music into God's worship, for which we have already seen he was solemnly reproved by the prophet Amos, chap. vi. 1–6. Here, however, the author of the book states he had the commandment of the prophet Nathan, and Gad the king's seer; and this is stated to have been the commandment of the LORD by his prophets: but the Syriac and Arabic give this a different turn—"Hezekiah appointed Levites in the house of the LORD, with instruments of music, and the sound of harps, and with the HYMNS OF DAVID, and the HYMNS OF GAD, the king's prophet, and of NATHAN, the king's prophet: for David sang the praises of the LORD his God, as from the mouth of his prophets." But were it even evident, which it is not, either from this or any other place in the sacred writings, that instruments of music were prescribed by divine authority under the law, could this be adduced with any semblance of reason, that they ought to be used in Christian worship? No; the whole spirit, soul, and genius of the Christian religion are against this: and those who know the church of God best, and what constitutes its genuine spiritual state, know that these things have been introduced as a substitute for the life and power of religion:

32 And the number of the burnt-offerings, which the congregation brought, was three-score and ten bullocks, an hundred rams, and two hundred lambs: all these were for a burnt-offering to the LORD.

33 And the consecrated things were six hundred oxen and three thousand sheep.

34 But the priests were too few, so that they could not slay all the burnt-offerings: wherefore <sup>a</sup>their brethren the Levites <sup>b</sup>did help them, till the

and that where they prevail most, there is least of the power of Christianity. [There is no authority for preferring the Syrian and Arabic version.]

Verse 34. They could not slay all the burnt-offerings] Peace-offerings, and such like, the Levites might slay and dress; but the whole burnt-offerings, that is, those which were entirely consumed on the altar, could be touched only by the priests, unless in a case of necessity, such as is mentioned here.

The Levites were more upright in heart] The priests seem to have been very backward in this good work; the Levites were more ready to help forward this glorious reformation. Why the former should have been so backward is not easy to tell; but it appears to have been the fact. Indeed, it often happens that the higher orders of the priesthood are less concerned for the prosperity of true religion than the lower. A rich priesthood is not favourable either work was ended, and until the other priests had sanctified themselves: <sup>c</sup>for the Levites were more <sup>d</sup>upright in heart to sanctify themselves than the priests.

35 And also the burnt-offerings were in abundance, with <sup>e</sup>the fat of the peace-offerings, and <sup>f</sup>the drink-offerings for every burnt-offering. So the service of the house of the LORD was set in order.

36 And Hezekiah rejoiced, and all the people, that God had prepared the people; for the thing was done suddenly.

to the spread or depth of religion. Earthly gratifications are often put in the place of divine influences; it is almost a miracle to see a very rich man deeply interested in behalf of his own soul, or the souls of others.

Verse 36. And Hezekiah rejoiced] Both he and the people rejoiced that God had prepared their hearts to bring about so great a reformation in so short a time; for, it is added, the thing was done suddenly. The king's example and influence were here, under God, the grand spring of all those mighty and effectual movements. What amazing power and influence has God lodged with kings! They can sway a whole empire nearly as they please; and when they declare themselves in behalf of religion, they have the people uniformly on their side. Kings on this very ground, are no indifferent beings; they must be either a great curse or a great blessing to the people whom they govern.

CHAPTER XXX.

Hezekiah invites all Israel and Judah, and writes letters to Ephraim and Manasseh to come up to Jerusalem, and hold a passover to the Lord, 1-4. The posts go out with the king's proclamation from Dan to Beer-sheba, and pass from city to city through the coasts of Ephraim, Manasseh, and Zebulun; but are generally mocked in Israel, 5-10. Yet several of Asher, Manasseh, and Zebulun humble themselves, and come to Jerusalem, 11. But in Judah they are all of one heart, 12, 13. They take away the idolatrous altars, kill the passover, sprinkle the blood, and, as circumstances will permit, sanctify the people, 14, 15. Many having eaten of the passover, who were not purified according to the law, Hezekiah prays for them; and the Lord accepts his prayer, and heals them, 16-20. Hezekiah exhorts; and they hold the feast seven additional days, fourteen in all, and the people greatly rejoice, 21-26. The priest and the Levites bless the people, and God accepts their prayers and thanksgivings, 27.

AND Hezekiah sent to all Israel and Judah, and wrote letters also to Ephraim and Manasseh, that they should come to the house of the LORD at Jerusalem, to keep the passover unto the LORD God of Israel.

2 For the king had taken counsel, and the princes, and all the congregation in Jerusalem, to keep the passover in the second <sup>a</sup>month.

3 For they could not keep it <sup>b</sup>at that time, <sup>c</sup>be-

Verse 1. Hezekiah sent to all Israel] It is not easy to find out how this was permitted by the king of Israel; but it is generally allowed that Hoshea, who then reigned over Israel, was one of their best kings. And as the Jews allow that at this time both the golden calves had been carried away by the Assyrians,—that at Dan by Tiglath-pileser, and that at Beth-el by Salsmaneser,—the people who chose to worship Jehovah at Jerusalem were freely permitted to do it, and Hezekiah had encouragement to make the proclamation in question.

Verse 2. In the second month] In Iyar, as they could not celebrate it in Nisan, the fourteenth of which month was the proper time. But as they could not complete the purgation of the temple till the sixteenth of that month, therefore they were obliged to hold it now, or else adjourn it till the next year, which would have been fatal to that cause the priests had not sanctified themselves sufficiently, neither had the people gathered themselves together to Jerusalem.

4 And the thing <sup>d</sup>pleased the king and all the congregation.

5 So they established a decree to make proclamation throughout all Israel, from Beersheba even to Dan, that they should come to keep the passover unto the LORD God of Israel at Jerusalem: for they spirit of reformation which had now taken place. The law itself had given permission to those who were at a distance, and could not attend on the fourteenth of the first month, and to those who were accidentally defiled, and ought not to attend, to celebrate the passover on the fourteenth of the second month; see Num. ix. 10, 11. Hezekiah therefore, and his counsellors, thought that they might extend that to the people at large, because of the delay necessarily occasioned by the cleansing of the temple, which was granted to individuals in such cases as the above, and the result showed that they had not mistaken the mind of the Lord upon the subject.

Verse 6. So the posts went] Ratsim, the runners or couriers; persons who were usually employed to carry messages; men who were light of foot, and confidential.

had not done it of a long time in such sort as it was written.

6 So the posts went with the letters 'from the king and his princes throughout all Israel and Judah, and according to the commandment of the king, saying, Ye children of Israel, 'turn again unto the LORD God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, and he will return to the remnant of you, that are escaped out of the hand of 'the kings of Assyria.

7 And be not ye 'like your fathers, and like your brethren, which trespassed against the LORD God of their fathers, who therefore 'gave them up to desolation, as ye see.

8 Now 'be ye not 'stiff-necked, as your fathers were, but 'yield yourselves unto the LORD, and enter into his sanctuary, which he hath sanctified for ever: and serve the LORD your God, 'that the fierceness of his wrath may turn away from you.

9 For if ye turn again unto the LORD, your brethren and your children shall find 'compassion before them that lead them captive, so that they shall come again into this land: for the LORD your God is 'gracious and merciful, and will not turn away his face from you, if ye 'return unto him.

10 So the posts passed from city to city through the country of Ephraim and Manasseh even unto Zebulun: but 'they laughed them to scorn, and mocked them.

11 Nevertheless 'divers of Asher and Manasseh and of Zebulun humbled themselves, and came to Jerusalem.

12 Also in Judah 'the hand of God was to give them one heart to do the commandment of the king and of the princes, 'by the word of the LORD.

13 And there assembled at Jerusalem much people to keep the feast of unleavened bread in the second month, a very great congregation.

14 And they arose, and took away the 'altars that were in Jerusalem, and all the altars for incense took they away, and cast them into the brook Kidron.

15 Then they killed the passover on the fourteenth day of the second month: and the priests and the Levites were 'ashamed, and sanctified themselves, and brought in the burnt-offerings into the house of the LORD.

16 And they stood in 'their place after their manner, according to the law of Moses the man of God: the priests sprinkled the blood, which they received of the hand of the Levites.

17 For there were many in the congregation that were not sanctified: 'therefore the Levites had the charge of the killing of the passovers for every one that was not clean, to sanctify them unto the LORD.

18 For a multitude of the people, even 'many of Ephraim, and Manasseh, Issachar, and Zebulun, had not cleansed themselves, 'yet did they eat the passover otherwise than it was written. But Hezekiah prayed for them, saying, The good LORD pardon every one.

19 That 'prepareth his heart to seek God, the LORD God of his fathers, though he be not cleansed according to the purification of the sanctuary.

20 And the LORD hearkened to Hezekiah, and healed the people.

21 And the children of Israel that were 'present at Jerusalem kept 'the feast of unleavened bread seven days with great gladness; and the Levites and the priests praised the LORD day by day, singing with 'loud instruments unto the LORD.

22 And Hezekiah spake 'comfortably unto all the Levites 'that taught the good knowledge of the LORD: and they did eat throughout the feast seven days, offering peace-offerings, and 'making confession to the LORD God of their fathers.

23 And the whole assembly took counsel to keep 'other seven days: and they kept other seven days with gladness.

24 For Hezekiah king of Judah 'did "give to the congregation a thousand bullocks and seven thousand sheep; and the princes gave to the congregation a thousand bullocks and ten thousand sheep: and a great number of priests "sanctified themselves.

25 And all the congregation of Judah, with the priests and the Levites, and all the congregation 'that came out of Israel, and the strangers that came out of the land of Israel, and that dwelt in Judah, rejoiced.

26 So there was great joy in Jerusalem: for since the time of Solomon the son of David king of Israel there was not the like in Jerusalem.

27 Then the priests the Levites arose and 'blessed the people: and their voice was heard, and their prayer came up to 'his holy dwelling-place, even unto heaven.

Verse 18. A multitude of the people—had not cleansed themselves] As there were men from Ephraim, Manasseh, Issachar, and Zebulun, they were excusable, because they came from countries that had been wholly devoted to idolatry.

Verse 22. Spake comfortably unto all the Levites] On such occasions the priests and Levites had great fatigue, and suffered many privations; and therefore had need of that encouragement which this prudent and pious king gave. It is a fine and expressive character given of these men, "They taught the good knowledge of God to the people." This is the great work, or should be so, of every Christian minister.

Verse 25. The strangers that came out of the land of Israel] That is, the proselytes of the covenant who had embraced Judaism, and had submitted to the rite of circumcision; for none others could be permitted to eat of the passover.

Verse 26. Since the time of Solomon—there was not the like in Jerusalem.] For from that time the ten tribes had been separated from the true worship of God, and now many of them for the first time, especially from Asher, Issachar, Ephraim, Manasseh, and Zebulun, joined to celebrate the passover.

Verse 27. And their voice was heard] God accepted the fruits of that pious disposition which himself had infused.

And their prayer came up] As the smoke of their sacrifices ascended to the clouds, so did their prayers, supplications, and thanksgivings, ascend to the heavens. Israel now appeared to be in a fair way of regaining what they had lost; but alas, how soon were all these bright prospects beclouded for ever.

It is not for the want of holy resolutions and heavenly influences that men are not saved, but through their own unsteadiness; they do not persevere, they forget the necessity of continuing in prayer, and thus the Holy Spirit is grieved, departs from them, and leaves them to their own darkness and hardness of heart. When we consider the heavenly influences which many receive who draw back to perdition, and the good fruits which for a time they bore, it is blasphemy to say they had no genuine or saving grace; they had it, they showed it, they trifled with it, sinned against it, continued in their rebellions, and therefore are lost.

CHAPTER XXXI.

The people destroy all traces of idolatry throughout Judah, Benjamin, Ephraim, and Manasseh, 1. Hezekiah reforms the state of religion in general; and the tithes are brought in from every quarter, and proper officers set over them, 2-13. They bring in also the freewill-offerings, and regulate the priests and Levites, and their families, according to their genealogies, 14-19. Hezekiah does every thing in sincerity and truth, and is prosperous 20, 21.

NOW when all this was finished, all Israel that were <sup>a</sup>present went out to the cities of Judah, and <sup>b</sup>brake the <sup>c</sup>images in pieces, and cut down the groves, and threw down the high places and altars out of all Judah and Benjamin, in Ephraim also and Manasseh,<sup>d</sup> until they had utterly destroyed them all. Then all the children of Israel returned every man to his possession, into their own cities.

2 And Hezekiah appointed <sup>e</sup>the courses of the priests and the Levites after their courses, every man according to his service, the priests and Levites <sup>f</sup>for burnt-offerings and for peace-offerings, to minister, and to give thanks, and to praise in the gates of the tents of the LORD.

3 He appointed also the king's portion of his substance for the burnt-offerings, to wit, for the morning and evening burnt-offerings, and the burnt-offerings for the sabbaths, and for the new moons, and for the set feasts, as it is written in the <sup>g</sup>law of the LORD.

4 Moreover he commanded the people that dwelt in Jerusalem to give the <sup>h</sup>portion of the priests and the Levites, that they might be encouraged in <sup>i</sup>the law of the LORD.

5 And as soon as the commandment <sup>j</sup>came abroad, the children of Israel brought in abundance <sup>k</sup>the first-fruits of corn, wine, and oil, and <sup>l</sup>honey, and of all the increase of the field; and the tithe of all things brought they in abundantly.

6 And concerning the children of Israel and Judah, that dwelt in the cities of Judah, they also brought in the tithe of oxen and sheep, and the <sup>m</sup>tithe of holy things which were consecrated unto the LORD their God, and laid them <sup>n</sup>by heaps.

7 In the third month they began to lay the foundation of the heaps, and finished them in the seventh month.

8 And when Hezekiah and the princes came and saw the heaps, they blessed the LORD and his people Israel.

9 Then Hezekiah questioned with the priests and the Levites concerning the heaps.

10 And Azariah the chief priest of the house of Zadok answered him, and said, <sup>o</sup>Since the people began to bring the offerings into the house of the LORD, we have had enough to eat, and have left plenty: for the LORD hath blessed his people; and that which is left is this great store.

11 Then Hezekiah commanded to prepare <sup>p</sup>chambers in the house of the LORD; and they prepared them, 12 And brought in the offerings and the tithes and the dedicated things faithfully: <sup>q</sup>over which Cononiah the Levite was ruler, and Shimei his brother was the next.

13 And Jehiel, and Azariah, and Nahath, and Asahel, and Jerimoth, and Jozabad, and Eliel, and Ismachiah, and Mahath, and Benaiah, were overseers <sup>r</sup>under the hand of Cononiah and Shimei his brother, at the commandment of Hezekiah the king, and Azariah the ruler of the house of God.

14 And Kore the son of Imnah the Levite, the porter toward the east, was over the freewill-offerings of God to distribute the oblations of the LORD, and the most holy things.

15 And <sup>s</sup>next him were Eden, and Miniamin, and Jeshua, and Shemaiah, Amariah, and Shecaniah, in the <sup>t</sup>cities of the priests, in their <sup>u</sup>set office, to give to their brethren by courses, as well to the great as to the small:

Verse 3. The king's portion of his substance for the burnt-offerings] It is conjectured that the Jewish kings, at least from the time of David, furnished the morning and evening sacrifices daily at their own expense, and several others also.

Verse 5. Brought—the first-fruits] These were principally for the maintenance of the priests and Levites; they brought tithes of all the produce of the field, whether com-

CHAPTER XXXII.

Sennacherib invades Judea, 1. Hezekiah takes proper measures for the defence of his kingdom, 2-6. His exhortation, 7, 8. Sennacherib sends a blasphemous message to Hezekiah, and to the people, 9-15. His servants rail against God; and he and they blaspheme most grievously, 16-19. Hezekiah and the prophet Isaiah cry to God; He answers, and the Assyrians are destroyed, and Sennacherib is slain by his own sons, 20, 21. The Lord is magnified, 22, 23. Hezekiah's sickness and recovery, 24. His ingratitude, 25. His humiliation, 26. His riches, 27, 30. His error relative to the Babylonish ambassadors, 31. His acts and death, 32, 33.

AFTER <sup>a</sup>these things, and the establishment thereof, Sennacherib king of Assyria came, and entered into Judah, and encamped against the fenced cities, and thought <sup>b</sup>to win them for himself.

2 And when Hezekiah saw that Sennacherib was come, and that <sup>c</sup>he was purposed to fight against Jerusalem,

3 He took counsel with his princes and his mighty men to stop the waters of the fountains which were without the city: and they did help him.

4 So there was gathered much people together, who stopped all the fountains, and the brook that <sup>d</sup>ran through the midst of the land, saying, Why should the kings of Assyria come, and find much water?

Verse 1. After these things] God did not permit this pious prince to be disturbed till he had completed the reformation which he had begun.

Verse 2. When Hezekiah saw] This was in the fourteenth year of the reign of Hezekiah; and at first the Jewish king bought him off at the great price of three hundred talents of silver and thirty talents of gold; and even emptied his own treasures, and spoiled the house of the Lord, to gratify the oppressive avarice of the Assyrian king.

Verse 4. Stopped all the fountains] This was prudently done, for without water, how could an immense army subsist in an arid country?

Verse 5. Raised it up to the towers] He built the wall up all the wall that was broken, and raised it up to the towers, and another wall without, and repaired <sup>g</sup>Millo in the city of David, and made <sup>h</sup>darts and shields in abundance.

6 And he set captains of war over the people, and gathered them together to him in the street of the gate of the city, and <sup>i</sup>spake comfortably to them, saying,

7 <sup>j</sup>Be strong and courageous, <sup>k</sup>be not afraid nor dismayed for the king of Assyria, nor for all the multitude that is with him: for <sup>l</sup>there be more with us than with him:

8 With him is an <sup>m</sup>arm of flesh; but <sup>n</sup>with us is Lord our God to help us, and to fight our battles. And the people <sup>o</sup>rested themselves upon the words of Hezekiah king of Judah.

Verse 6. Set captains of war over the people—in the street of the gate of the city] That is, the open places at the gate of the city, whither the people came for judgment, &c.

Verse 7. There be more with us than with him] We have more power than they have. (These words he quotes from the prophet Elisha, 2 Kings vi. 16.) This was soon proved to be true by the slaughter made by the angel of the Lord in the Assyrian camp.

Verse 9. After this did Sennacherib] Having received the silver and gold mentioned above, he withdrew his army but send his servants to Jerusalem, but he himself laid siege against Lachish, and all his <sup>a</sup> power with him), unto Hezekiah king of Judah and unto all Judah that were at Jerusalem, saying, 10 <sup>b</sup> Thus saith Sennacherib king of Assyria, Whereon do ye trust, that ye abide <sup>c</sup> in the siege in Jerusalem?

11 Doth not Hezekiah persuade you to give over yourselves to die by famine and by thirst, saying; <sup>d</sup> The Lord our God shall deliver us out of the hand of the king of Assyria?

12 <sup>e</sup> Hath not the same Hezekiah taken away his high places and his altars, and commanded Judah and Jerusalem, saying, Ye shall worship before one altar, and burn incense upon it?

13 Know ye not what I and my fathers have done unto all the people of other lands? <sup>f</sup> were the gods of the nations of those lands any ways able to deliver their lands out of mine hand?

14 Who was there among all the gods of those nations that my fathers utterly destroyed, that could deliver his people out of mine hand, that your God should be able to deliver you out of mine hand?

15 Now therefore <sup>g</sup> let not Hezekiah deceive you, nor persuade you on this manner, neither yet believe him: for no god of any nation or kingdom was able to deliver his people out of mine hand, and out of the hand of my fathers; how much less shall your God deliver you out of mine hand?

16 And his servants spake yet more against the Lord God, and against his servant Hezekiah.

17 <sup>h</sup> He wrote also letters to rail on the Lord God of Israel, and to speak against him, saying, <sup>i</sup> As the gods of the nations of other lands have not delivered their people out of mine hand, so shall not the God of Hezekiah deliver his people out of mine hand.

18 <sup>j</sup> Then they cried with a loud voice in the Jews' speech unto the people of Jerusalem <sup>k</sup> that were on the wall, to affright them, and to trouble them; that they might take the city.

19 And they spake against the God of Jerusalem, as against the gods of the people of the earth, which were <sup>l</sup> the work of the hands of man.

20 <sup>m</sup> And for this cause Hezekiah the king, and <sup>n</sup> the prophet Isaiah the son of Amoz, prayed and cried to heaven.

21 <sup>o</sup> And the Lord sent an angel, which cut off all the mighty men of valour, and the leaders and captains in the camp of the king of Assyria. So he returned with shame of face to his own land. And shortly after he sent Rabshakeh with a blasphemous message, This is the fact mentioned here.

Verse 10. Thus saith Sennacherib] See all these circumstances largely explained 2 Kings xviii. 17—36.

Verse 23. Many brought gifts unto the Lord] They plainly saw that Jehovah was the protector of the land.

And presents to Hezekiah] They saw that God was his friend, and would undertake for him; and they did not wish to have such a man for their enemy.

Verse 24. Hezekiah was sick] See 2 Kings xx. 1, &c., and the notes there.

Verse 25. Hezekiah rendered not again] He got into a vain confidence, took pleasure in his riches, and vainly when he was come into the house of his god, they that came forth of his own bowels <sup>a</sup> slew him there with the sword.

22 Thus the Lord saved Hezekiah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem from the hand of Sennacherib the king of Assyria, and from the hand of all other, and guided them on every side.

23 And many brought gifts unto the Lord to Jerusalem and <sup>b</sup> presents <sup>c</sup> to Hezekiah king of Judah: so that he was <sup>d</sup> magnified in the sight of all nations from thenceforth.

24 <sup>e</sup> In those days Hezekiah was sick to the death, and prayed unto the Lord: and spake unto him, and he <sup>f</sup> gave him a sign.

25 But Hezekiah <sup>g</sup> rendered not again according to the benefit done unto him; for <sup>h</sup> his heart was lifted up: <sup>i</sup> therefore there was wrath upon him, and upon Judah and Jerusalem.

26 <sup>j</sup> Notwithstanding Hezekiah humbled himself for <sup>k</sup> the pride of his heart, both he and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so that the wrath of the Lord came upon them <sup>l</sup> in the days of Hezekiah.

27 And Hezekiah had exceeding much riches and honour: and he made himself treasuries for silver, and for gold; and for precious stones, and for spices, and for shields, and for all manner of <sup>m</sup> pleasant jewels;

28 Storehouses also for the increase of corn, and wine, and oil; and stalls for all manner of beasts, and cotes for flocks.

29 Moreover he provided him cities, and possessions of flocks and herds in abundance: for <sup>n</sup> God had given him substance very much.

30 <sup>o</sup> This same Hezekiah also stopped the upper watercourse of Gihon, and brought it straight down to the west side of the city of David. And Hezekiah prospered in all his works.

31 Howbeit in the business of the <sup>p</sup> ambassadors of the princes of Babylon, who <sup>q</sup> sent unto him to enquire of the wonder that was done in the land, God left him, to <sup>r</sup> try him; that he might know all that was in his heart.

32 Now the rest of the acts of Hezekiah, and his <sup>s</sup> goodness, behold, they are written in <sup>t</sup> the vision of Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amoz, and in the <sup>u</sup> book of the kings of Judah and Israel.

33 <sup>v</sup> And Hezekiah slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the <sup>w</sup> chiefest of the sepulchres of the sons of David: and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem did him <sup>x</sup> honour at his death. And Manasseh his son reigned in his stead.

II. CHRONICLES.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Manasseh reigns fifty-five years, and restores idolatry, pollutes the temple, and practises all kinds of abominations, 1-9. He and the people are warned in vain, 10. He is delivered into the hands of the Assyrians, bound with fetters, and carried to Babylon, 11. He humbles himself, and is restored, 12, 13. He destroys idolatry, and restores the worship of God, 14-16. The people keep the high places, but sacrifice to the Lord on them, 17. His acts, prayer, and death, 18-20. His son Amon succeeds him; and after a wicked and idolatrous reign of two years, is slain by his own servants in his own house, 21-24. The people rise up, and slay his murderers, and make Josiah his son king in his stead, 25.

MANASSEH <sup>a</sup>was twelve years old when he began to reign, and he reigned fifty and five years in Jerusalem.

<sup>2</sup> But did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, like unto the <sup>b</sup>abominations of the heathen, whom the LORD had cast out before the children of Israel.

<sup>3</sup> For <sup>c</sup>he built again the high places which Hezekiah his father had <sup>d</sup>broken down, and he reared up altars for Baalim, and <sup>e</sup>made groves, and worshipped <sup>f</sup>all the host of heaven, and served them.

<sup>4</sup> Also he built altars in the house of the LORD, whereof the LORD had said, <sup>g</sup>In Jerusalem shall my name be for ever.

<sup>5</sup> And he built altars for all the host of heaven <sup>h</sup>in the two courts of the house of the LORD.

<sup>6</sup> And he caused his children to pass through the fire in the valley of the son of Hinnom: <sup>i</sup>also he observed times, and used enchantments, and used witchcraft, and <sup>j</sup>dealt with a familiar spirit, and with wizards: <sup>k</sup>he wrought much evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger, <sup>7</sup> And <sup>l</sup>he set a carved image, the idol which he had made, in the house of God, of which God had said to David and to Solomon his son, In <sup>m</sup>this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen before all the tribes of Israel, will I put my name for ever.

<sup>8</sup> <sup>n</sup>Neither will I any more remove the foot of Israel from out of the land which I have appointed for your fathers; so that they will take heed to do all that I have commanded them, according to the whole law and the statutes and the ordinances by the hand of Moses.

<sup>9</sup> So Manasseh made Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to err, and to do worse than the heathen, whom the LORD had destroyed before the children of Israel.

<sup>10</sup> And the LORD spake to Manasseh, and to his people: but they would not hearken.

Verse 1. Manasseh was twelve years old] We do not find that he had any godly director; his youth was therefore the more easily seduced. But surely he had a pious education; how then could the principles of it be so soon eradicated?

Verse 3. Altars for Baalim] The SUN and MOON. And made groves, Asheroth, Astarte, VENUS; the host of heaven, all the PLANETS and STARS. These were the general objects of his devotion.

Verse 5. He built altars] See the principal facts in this chapter explained in the notes 2 Kings xxi. 1-17.

Verse 7. A carved image] The Turgist supposes he wished to procure himself divine honours.

<sup>12</sup> And when he was in affliction, he besought the LORD his God, and <sup>r</sup>humbled himself greatly before the God of his fathers, <sup>13</sup> And prayed unto him: and he was <sup>s</sup>entreated of him, and heard his supplication, and brought him again to Jerusalem into his kingdom. Then Manasseh <sup>t</sup>knew that the LORD he was God.

<sup>14</sup> Now after this he built a wall without the city of David, on the west side of <sup>u</sup>Gihon, in the valley, even to the entering in at the fish-gate, and commanded <sup>v</sup>about <sup>w</sup>Ophel, and raised it up a very great <sup>x</sup>ht, and put captains of war in all the fenced <sup>y</sup>ities of Judah.

<sup>15</sup> And he took away the <sup>z</sup>strange gods, and the idol out of the house of the LORD, and all the altars that he had built in the mount of the house of the LORD, and in Jerusalem, and cast <sup>aa</sup>them out of the city.

<sup>16</sup> And he repaired the altar of the LORD, and sacrificed thereon peace-offerings and <sup>ab</sup>thank-offerings, and commanded Judah to serve the LORD God of Israel.

<sup>18</sup> Now the rest of the acts of Manasseh, and his prayer unto his God, and the words of <sup>ae</sup>the seers that spake to him in the name of LORD God of Israel, behold, they are written in the book of the kings of Israel.

<sup>19</sup> His prayer also, and <sup>af</sup>how God was entreated of him, and all his sins, and his trespass, and the places wherein he built high places, and set up groves, and graven images, before he was humbled: behold, they are written among the sayings of <sup>ag</sup>the seers.

<sup>21</sup> <sup>ai</sup>Amon was two and twenty years old when he began to reign, and reigned two years in Jerusalem.

<sup>22</sup> But he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, as did Manasseh his father: for Amon sacri-

Verse 14. He built a wall] This was probably a weak place that he fortified; or part of the wall which the Assyrians had broken down, which he now rebuilt.

Verse 15. He took away the strange gods] He appears to have done everything in his power to destroy the idolatry which he had set up, and to restore the pure worship of the true God. His repentance brought forth fruits meet for repentance. How long he was in captivity, and when or by whom he was delivered, we know not. The fact of his restoration is asserted; and we believe it on divine testimony.

ficed unto all the carved images which Manasseh his father had made, and served them ;

23 And humbled not himself before the LORD, * as Manasseh his father had humbled himself ; but Amon <sup>b</sup> trespassed more and more.

* Ver. 12.—<sup>b</sup> Heb. multiplied trespass.

Verse 22. Sacrificed unto all the carved images] How astonishing is this! with his father's example before his eyes, he copies his father's vices, but not his repentance.

Verse 23. Trespassed more and more.] He appears to have exceeded his father, and would take no warning.

Verse 24. His servants conspired against him] On what account we cannot tell.

24 * And his servants conspired against him, and slew him in his own house.

25 But the people of the land slew all them that had conspired against king Amon ; and the people of the land made Josiah his son king in his stead.

* 2 Kings xxi. 21, 24.

Verse 25. The people of the land slew all them] His murder was not a popular act, for the people slew the regicides. They were as prone to idolatry as their king was. We may rest satisfied that idolatry was accompanied with great licentiousness and sensual gratifications, else it never, as a mere religious system, could have had any sway in the world.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Josiah reigns thirty-one years ; destroys idolatry in Judah, as also in Manasseh, Ephraim, Simeon, and even to Naphtali, 1-7. He begins to repair the temple, and collects money for the purpose, and employs workmen, 8-13. Hilkiah the priest finds the book of the law in the temple, which is read by Shaphan before the king, 14-19. He is greatly troubled, and consults Huldah the prophetess, 20, 22. Her exhortation, and message to the king, 23-28. He causes it to be read to the elders of Judah, and they make a covenant with God, 29, 32. Josiah reforms every of abomination, and the people serve God all his days, 33.

JOSIAH * was eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned in Jerusalem one and thirty years.

2 And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, and walked in the ways of David his father, and declined neither to the right hand, nor to the left.

3 For in the eighth year of his reign, while he was yet young, he began to <sup>b</sup> seek after the God of David his father : and in the twelfth year he began to * purge Judah and Jerusalem <sup>d</sup> from the high-places, and the groves, and the carved images, and the molten images.

4 * And they brake down the altars of Baalim in his presence ; and the * images, that were on high above them, he cut down ; and the groves, and the carved images, and the molten images, he brake in pieces, and made dust of them, * and strowed it upon the <sup>b</sup> graves of them that had sacrificed unto them.

5 And he <sup>b</sup> burnt the bones of the priests upon their altars, and cleansed Judah and Jerusalem.

6 And so did he in the cities of Manasseh, and Ephraim, and Simeon, even unto Naphtali, with their <sup>b</sup> mattocks round about.

Verse 2. He declined neither to the right hand, nor to the left.] He never swerved from God and truth ; he never omitted what he knew to be his duty to God and his kingdom ; he carried on his reformation with a steady hand ; timidity did not prevent him from going far enough ; and zeal did not lead him beyond due bounds. He walked in the golden mean, and his moderation was known unto all men. He went neither to the right nor to the left, he looked inward, looked forward, and looked upward. Reader, let the conduct of this pious youth be thy exemplar through life.

Verse 4. The altars of Baalim] How often have these been broken down, and how soon set up again ! We see that the religion of a land is as the religion of its king. If the king were idolatrous, up went the altars, on them were placed the statues, and the smoke of incense ascended in ceaseless clouds to the honour of that which is vanity, and 7 And when he had broken down the altars and the groves, and had <sup>b</sup> beaten the graven images <sup>c</sup> into powder, and cut down all the idols throughout all the land of Israel, he returned to Jerusalem.

8 Now * in the eighteenth year of his reign, when he had purged the land, and the house, he sent Shaphan the son of Azaliah, and Maaseiah the governor of the city, and Joah the son of Joahaz the recorder, to repair the house of the LORD his God.

9 And when they came to Hilkiah the high-priest, they delivered * the money that was brought into the house of God, which the Levites that kept the doors gathered of the hand of Manasseh and Ephraim, and of all the remnant of Israel, and of all Judah and Benjamin ; and they returned to Jerusalem.

10 And they put it in the hand of the workmen that had the oversight of the house of the LORD, and they gave it to the workmen that wrought in the house of the LORD, to repair and amend the house :

11 Even to the artificers and builders gave they it, to buy hewn stone, and timber for couplings, and * to floor the houses which the kings of Judah had destroyed.

nothing in the world ; on the other hand, when the king was truly religious, down went the idolatrous altars, broken in pieces were the images, and the sacrificial smoke ascended only to the true God : in all these cases the people were as one man with the king.

Verse 6. The cities of Manasseh] Even those who were under the government of the Israelitish king permitted their idols and places of idolatry to be hewn down and destroyed : after the truth was declared and acknowledged, the spade and the axe were employed to complete the reformation.

Verse 9. And they returned to Jerusalem.] Instead of vaiyashubu "they returned," we should read yoshebey, "the inhabitants ;" a reading which is supported by many MSS., printed editions, and all the Versions, as well as by necessity and common sense. See the note on chap. xix. 8, where a similar mistake is rectified.

II. CHRONICLES.

12 And the men did the work faithfully: and the overseers of them were Jahath and Obadiah, the Levites, of the sons of Merari: and Zechariah and Meshullam, of the sons of the Kohathites, to set it forward: and other of the Levites, all that could skill of instruments of music.

13 Also they were over the bearers of burdens, and were overseers of all that wrought the work in any manner of service: and of the Levites there were scribes, and officers, and porters.

14 And when they brought out the money that was brought into the house of the Lord, Hilkiah the priest found a book of the law of the Lord given by Moses.

15 And Hilkiah answered and said to Shaphan the scribe, I have found the book of the law in the house of the Lord. And Hilkiah delivered the book to Shaphan.

16 And Shaphan carried the book to the king, and brought the king word back again, saying, All that was committed to thy servants, they do it.

17 And they have gathered together the money that was found in the house of the Lord, and have delivered it into the hand of the overseers, and to the hand of the workmen.

18 Then Shaphan the scribe told the king saying, Hilkiah the priest hath given me a book. And Shaphan read it before the king.

19 And it came to pass, when the king had heard the words of the law, that he rent his clothes.

20 And the king commanded Hilkiah, and Ahikam the son of Shaphan, and Abdon the son of Micah, and Shaphan the scribe, and Assiah a servant of the king's, saying, 21 Go inquire of the Lord for me, and for them that are left in Israel and in Judah, concerning the words of the book that is found: for great is the wrath of the Lord that is poured out upon us, because our fathers have not kept the word of the Lord, to do after all that is written in this book.

22 And Hilkiah, and they that the king had appointed, went to Huldah the prophetess, the wife of Shallum the son of Tikvath, the son of Hasruth, keeper of the wardrobe; (now she dwelt in Jerusalem in the college): and they spake to her to that effect.

23 And she answered them, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Tell ye the man that sent you to me,

24 Thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof, even all the curses that are written in the book which they have read before the king of Judah:

25 Because they have forsaken me, and have burned incense unto other gods, that they might provoke me to anger with all the works of their hands; therefore my wrath shall be poured out upon this place, and shall not be quenched.

26 And as for the king of Judah, who sent you to inquire of the Lord, so shall ye say unto him, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel concerning the words which thou hast heard;

27 Because thine heart was tender, and thou didst humble thyself before God, when thou heardest his words against this place, and against the inhabitants thereof and humbledst thyself before me, and didst rend thy clothes, and weep before me: I have even heard thee also, saith the Lord.

28 Behold, I will gather thee to thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered to thy grave in peace; neither shall thine eyes see all the evil that I will bring upon this place, and upon the inhabitants of the same. So they brought the king word again.

29 Then the king sent and gathered together all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem.

30 And the king went up into the house of the Lord, and all the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the priests, and the Levites, and all the people great and small: and he read in their ears all the words of the book of the covenant that was found in the house of the Lord.

31 And the king stood in his place, and made a covenant before the Lord, to walk after the Lord, and to keep his commandments, and his testimonies, and his statutes, with all his heart, and with all his soul, to perform the words of the covenant which are written in this book.

32 And he caused all that were present in Jerusalem and Benjamin to stand to it. And the inhabitants of Jerusalem did according to the covenant of God, the God of their fathers.

33 And Josiah took away all the abominations out of all the countries that pertained to the children of Israel, and made all that were present in Israel to serve, even to serve the Lord their God. And all his days they departed not from following the Lord, the God of their fathers.

If this were really the case, instrumental music was never better applied in any thing that refers to the worship of God. May I be allowed a gentle transition? Is it not the power and harmony of the grace of Jesus Christ in the gospel, that convert, change, and purify the souls of men, and prepare them for and place them in that part of the house of God, the New Jerusalem?

CHAPTER XXXV.

Josiah celebrates a passover; 1; regulates the courses of the priests; assigns them, the Levites, and the people, their portions; and completes the greatest passover ever celebrated since the days of Solomon, 2-19, Pharaoh Necho passes with his army through Judea, 20. Josiah meets and fights with him at Megiddo, and is mortally wounded, 21-23. He is carried to Jerusalem, where he dies, 24. Jeremiah laments for him, 25. Of his acts deeds, and where recorded, 26, 27.

MOREOVER *Josiah kept a passover unto the Lord in Jerusalem: and they killed the passover on the <sup>b</sup>fourteenth day of the first month.

2 And he set the priests in their *charges, and *encouraged them to the service of the house of the Lord,

3 And said unto the Levites *that taught all Israel, which were holy unto the Lord, 'Put the holy ark *in the house which Solomon the son of David king of Israel did build; *it shall not be a burden upon your shoulders: serve now the Lord your God, and his people Israel,

4 And prepare yourselves by the <sup>1</sup>houses of your fathers, after your courses, according to the <sup>1</sup>writing of David king of Israel, and according to the <sup>1</sup>writing of Solomon his son.

5 And <sup>1</sup>stand in the holy place according to the divisions of *the families of the fathers of your brethren *the people, and after the division of the families of the Levites.

6 So kill the passover, and *sanctify yourselves and prepare your brethren, that they may do according to the word of the Lord by the hand of Moses.

7 And Josiah *gave *to the people of the flock, lambs and kids, all for the passover-offerings, for all that were present, to the number of thirty thousand, and three thousand bullocks: these were of the king's substance.

8 And his princes *gave willingly unto the people, to the priests, and to the Levites: Hilkiah and Zechariah and Jehiel, rulers of the house of God, gave unto the priests for the passover-offerings two thousand and six hundred small cattle, and three hundred oxen.

9 Conaniah also, and Shemaiah and Nethaneel, his brethren, and Hashabiah and Jeiel and Jozabad, chief of the Levites, *gave unto the Levites for passover-offerings five thousand small cattle, and five hundred oxen.

10 So the service was prepared, and the priests, *stood in their place, and the Levites in their courses, according to the king's commandment.

11 And they killed the passover, and the priests *sprinkled the blood from their hands, and the Levites *flayed them.

12 And they removed the burnt-offerings, that they might give according to the divisions of the families of the people, to offer unto the Lord, as is written *in the book of Moses. And so did they with the oxen.

13 And they *roasted the passover with fire according to the ordinance: but the other holy offerings *sod they in pots, and in caldrons, and in pans, and *divided them speedily among all the people.

14 And afterward they made ready for themselves, and for the priests: because the priests the sons of Aaron were busied in offering of burnt-offerings and the fat until night; therefore the Levites prepared for themselves, and for the priests and the sons of Aaron.

15 And the singers the sons of Asaph were in their *place, according to the <sup>bb</sup>commandment of David, and Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun the king's seer: and the porters *waited at every gate; they might not depart from their service; for their brethren the Levites prepared for them.

16 So all the service of the Lord was prepared the same day, to keep the passover, and to offer burnt-offerings upon the altar of the Lord, according to the commandment of king Josiah.

17 And the children of Israel that were <sup>dd</sup>present kept the passover at that time, and the feast of *unleavened bread seven days.

18 And *there was no passover like to that kept in Israel from the days of Samuel the prophet; neither did all the kings of Israel keep such a passover as Josiah kept, and the priests, and the Levites, and all Judah and Israel that were present, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

19 In the eighteenth year of the reign of Josiah was this passover kept.

20 *After all this, when Josiah had prepared the <sup>bb</sup>temple, Necho king of Egypt came up to fight against Charchemish by Euphrates: and Josiah went out against him.

21 But he sent ambassadors to him, saying, What have I to do with thee, thou king of Judah? I come not against thee this day, but against *the house wherewith I have war: for God commanded me to make haste: forbear thee from meddling with God, who is with me, that he destroy thee not.

22 Nevertheless Josiah would not turn his face from him, but *disguised himself, that he might fight with him, and hearkened not unto the words of Necho *from the mouth of God, and came to fight in the valley of Megiddo:

23 And the archers shot at king Josiah; and the king said to his servants, Have me away; for I am sore *wounded.

24 *His servants therefore took him out of that chariot, and put him in the second chariot that he had; and they brought him to Jerusalem, and he died, and was buried *in one of the sepulchres of his fathers. And *all Judah and Jerusalem mourned for Josiah.

Verse 3. Put the holy ark in the house] It is likely that the priests had secured this when they found that the idolatrous kings were determined to destroy every thing that might lead the people to the worship of the true God. And now, as all appears to be well established, the ark is ordered to be put into its own place.

Verse 11. They killed the passover] The people themselves might slay their own paschal lambs, and then present the blood to the priests; that they might sprinkle it before the altar; and the Levites flayed them, and made them ready for dressing.

Verse 20. Necho king of Egypt] Pharaoh the lame says the Targum.

Verse 24. The second chariot] Perhaps this means no more than that they took Josiah out of his own chariot and put him into another, either for secrecy, or because his own had been disabled. The chariot into which he was put might have been that of the officer or aide-de-camp who attended his master to the war. See the note on 2 Kings xxii. 20.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Jehoaiah made king on the death of his father Josiah, and reigns only three months, 1, 2. He is dethroned by the king of Egypt, and Jehoiakim his brother made king in his stead, who reigns wickedly eleven years, and is dethroned and led captive to Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar, 3-8. Jehoiachin is made king in his stead, and reigns wickedly three months and ten days, and is also led captive to Babylon, 9, 10. Zedekiah begins to reign, and reigns wickedly eleven years, 11, 12. He rebels against Nebuchadnezzar, and he and his people cast all the fear of God behind their backs; the wrath of God comes upon them to the uttermost; their temple is destroyed; and the whole nation is subjugated, and led into captivity, 13-21. Cyrus, king of Persia, makes a proclamation to rebuild the temple of the Lord, 22, 23.

THEN <sup>a</sup> the people of the land took Jehoahaz the son of Josiah, and made him king in his father's stead in Jerusalem.

2 Jehoahaz was twenty and three years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem.

3 And the king of Egypt <sup>b</sup> put him down at Jerusalem, <sup>c</sup> and <sup>d</sup> condemned the land in an hundred talents of silver and a talent of gold.

4 And the king of Egypt made Eliakim his brother king over Judah and Jerusalem, and turned his name to Jehoiakim. And Necho took Jehoahaz his brother, and carried him to Egypt.

5 <sup>a</sup> Jehoiakim was twenty and five years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem : and he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD his God.

6 <sup>a</sup> Against him came up Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and bound him in <sup>b</sup> fetters to <sup>c</sup> carry him to Babylon.

7 <sup>a</sup> Nebuchadnezzar also carried of the vessels of the house of the LORD to Babylon, and put them in his temple at Babylon.

8 Now the rest of the acts of Jehoiakim, and his abominations which he did, and that which was found in him, behold, they are written in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah : and <sup>a</sup> Jehoiachin his son reigned in his stead.

Verse 1. Took Jehoahaz] It seems that after Necho had discomfited Josiah, he proceeded immediately against Charchemish, and in the interim, Josiah dying of his wounds, the people made his son king.

Verse 3. The king of Egypt put him down] He now considered Judah to be conquered, and tributary to him; and because the people had set up Jehoahaz without his consent, he dethroned him, and put his brother in his place, perhaps for no other reason but to show his supremacy.

9 <sup>a</sup> Jehoiachin was eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months and ten days in Jerusalem; and he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD.

10 And <sup>a</sup> when the year was expired, <sup>b</sup> king Nebuchadnezzar sent, and brought him to Babylon, <sup>c</sup> with the <sup>d</sup> goodly vessels of the house of the LORD, and made <sup>e</sup> Zedekiah <sup>f</sup> his brother king over Judah and Jerusalem.

11 <sup>a</sup> Zedekiah was one and twenty years old when he began to reign, and reigned eleven years in Jerusalem.

12 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD his God, and humbled not himself before Jeremiah the prophet speaking from the mouth of the LORD.

13 And <sup>a</sup> he also rebelled against king Nebuchadnezzar, who had made him swear by God : but he <sup>b</sup> stiffened his neck, and hardened his heart from turning unto the LORD God of Israel.

14 Moreover all the chief of the priests, and the people, transgressed very much after all the abominations of the heathen; and polluted the house of the LORD which he had hallowed in Jerusalem.

15 <sup>a</sup> And the LORD God of their fathers sent to them <sup>b</sup> by his messengers, rising up <sup>c</sup> betimes, and sending; because he had compassion on his people, and on his dwelling-place :

Verse 6. Came up Nebuchadnezzar] See the notes on 2 Kings xxiv. 1. Archbishop Usher believes that Jehoiakim remained three years after this tributary to the Chaldeans, and that it is from this period that the seventy years' captivity, predicted by Jeremiah, is to be reckoned.

Verse 10. Made Zedekiah—king] His name was at first Mattaniah, but the king of Babylon changed it to Zedekiah. See 2 Kings xxiv. 17.

Verse 13. Did that which was evil] Was there ever such a set of weak, infatuated men as the Jewish kings in general?

16 * But they mocked the messengers of God, and * despised his words, and * misused his prophets, until the <sup>d</sup>wrath of the LORD arose against his people, till there was no * remedy.

17 * Therefore he brought upon them the king of the Chaldees, who * slew their young men with the sword in the house of their sanctuary, and had no compassion upon young man or maiden, old man, or him that stooped for age: he gave them all into his hand.

18 * And all the vessels of the house of God, great and small, and the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king, and of his princes; all these he brought to Babylon.

19 * And they burnt the house of God, and brake down the wall of Jerusalem, and burnt all the palaces thereof with fire, and destroyed all the goodly vessels thereof.

20 And * them * that had escaped from the sword

They had the fullest evidence that they were only deputies to God Almighty, and that they could not expect to retain the throne any longer than they were faithful to their Lord; and yet with all this conviction they lived wickedly, and endeavoured to establish idolatry in the place of the worship of their Maker! After bearing with them long, the divine mercy gave them up, as their case was utterly hopeless. They sinned till there was no remedy.

Verse 19. They burnt the house of God] Here was an end to the temple; the most superb and costly edifice ever erected by man.

Brake down the wall of Jerusalem] So it ceased to be a fortified city.

Burnt all the palaces] So it was no longer a dwelling-place for kings or great men.

Destroyed all the goodly vessels] Beat up all the silver and gold into masses, keeping only a few of the finest in their own shape. See ver. 18.

Verse 21. To fulfil the word of the Lord] See Jer. xxv. 9, carried he away to Babylon; <sup>1</sup> where they were servants to him and his sons until the reign of the kingdom of Persia:

21 To fulfil the word of the LORD by the mouth of <sup>m</sup> Jeremiah, until the land * had enjoyed her sabbaths: for as long as she lay desolate * she kept sabbath, to fulfil threescore and ten years.

22 * Now in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word of the LORD spoken by the mouth of <sup>a</sup> Jeremiah might be accomplished, the LORD stirred up the spirit of <sup>c</sup> Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying,

23 * Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, All the kingdoms of the earth hath the LORD God of heaven given me; and he hath charged me to build an house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Who is there among you of all his people? The LORD his God, be with him, and let him go up.

Verse 22. Now in the first year of Cyrus] This and the following verse are supposed to have been written by mis-take from the Book of Ezra, which begins in the same way. The Book of the Chronicles, properly speaking, does close with the twenty-first verse, as then the Babylonish captivity commences: and these two verses speak of the transactions of a period seventy years after. This was in the first year of the reign of Cyrus over the empire of the East, which is reckoned to be A. M. 3468. But he was king of Persia from the year 3444 or 3445. See Calmet and Usher.

Thus ends the history of a people the most fickle, the most ungrateful, and perhaps on the whole the most sinful, that ever existed on the face of the earth. But what a display does all this give of the power, justice, mercy, and long-suffering of the Lord! There was no people like this people, and no God like their God.
